Fuel Oil Averages 49.2 Cents Per Gallon

The average price of a gallon of fuel oil in Quincy and throughout Norfolk County during the period Dec. 9-22, was 49.9 cents, according to figures released by the Massachusetts Energy Office.

In the area covering Essex, Middlesex, Suffolk and Norfolk counties the price ranged from 46.9 cents per gallon to 50.9 cents.

The average price throughout the state was 49.2 cents per gallon, an increase of .1 cent over the last reporting period. The lowest prices were in the Fitchburg area and the highest were found in the Berkshires, Eastern Massachusetts and on the Cape.

For its current report the Energy Office surveyed 115 dealers, twice the number covered in previous reports. The figures, therefore, should be more representative of actual fuel costs.

MBTA Awards $8.1M Contracts For Red Line Work

Two contracts totaling $8,125,421 have been awarded by the MBTA for construction work on the federally-aided Red Line rapid transit extension from Quincy Center station to a new Braintree station.

The contracts for power, signal and communication work on the Red Line are part of $112,141,378 in construction awarded by the MBTA during 1977.

Low bidder at $6,799,341 for the design, fabrication and installation of complete signal and communications systems on the Red Line was General Railway Signal, Rochester, N.Y., which installed these systems for the Quincy Extension that went into service in September 1971.

The contract also includes additions and modifications to equipment at the Dewey Control Center on High Street, Boston; installation of third rail heaters, and installation of public address systems at the new Quincy Adams and Braintree Stations.

The other contract award for $1,326,080 was made to the Joint Venture of Lord Electric Company, Inc., and Massachusetts Electric Construction Company, Inc., of Watertown, lowest of four bidders for the construction, and furnishing of two substation buildings at the two new stations, using components and assemblies provided by the MBTA.

The contract also includes installation of traction power feeders from the substations to the third rail which is being installed under a separate trackwork contract.

Only three major construction contracts remain to be awarded for the Braintree Extension, scheduled to be opened for service in the Fall of 1979. These are for construction of a 2,000-car parking garage at Quincy Adams Station and finishing this station, whose lobby and platforms are now being built; roadway and utilities relocation in connection with Quincy's planned Upland Road Extension; and construction of Ivory Street, South Braintree, in the vicinity of the Braintree Station.

Burn Prevention Program

A community awareness burn and fire prevention program will be held tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. at the Toree Dei Passeri Club, 225 Washington St., Quincy.

The program, which is open to the public without charge, will feature a film strip, "A Question of Burning." Lt. Robert J. Kelley of the Quincy Fire Department, will be guest speaker.

The project is sponsored by the Shriner's Burn Institute, the Educational Development Center, and Massachusetts General Hospital. It is being arranged and conducted by CETA contract 190, a fire safety grant.

'New Beginning' Strikes Responsive Chord

Economic Development, Human Services, Government Efficiency, Unity Tobin Goals

By TOM HENSHAW

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin's promise of "a new beginning" struck a responsive chord in members of the City Council and some businessmen who attended the inauguration of Quincy's 29th mayor Tuesday.

In his inaugural address, Tobin said that his administration will concentrate on three areas – economic development, delivery of human services and efficiency in government.

In the area of human services, Tobin promised that command responsibility in the Fire and Police Departments "must not and will not be interfered with."

It was an apparent allusion to Mayor LaRaia's constant struggle with Chief Francis X. Finn for control of the Police Department, a contest that ended with Finn winning in Norfolk Superior Court.

The new Mayor also promised "strong administrative leadership" for the Public Works Department and a "relevant and up to date" curriculum for the schools.

In an effort to promote efficiency in government, he outlined the following actions:

- Require that each department head submit an in depth report, including an analysis of department functions and a statement of future needs.
- Send the City Council a plan for the reorganization of several city departments, to avoid duplication.
- Establish a management training program for those in positions of leadership.
- Implement modern techniques for better communication between various departments and the Mayor's office.
- Investigate the feasibility of using data processing computers to save time and money while providing better services.

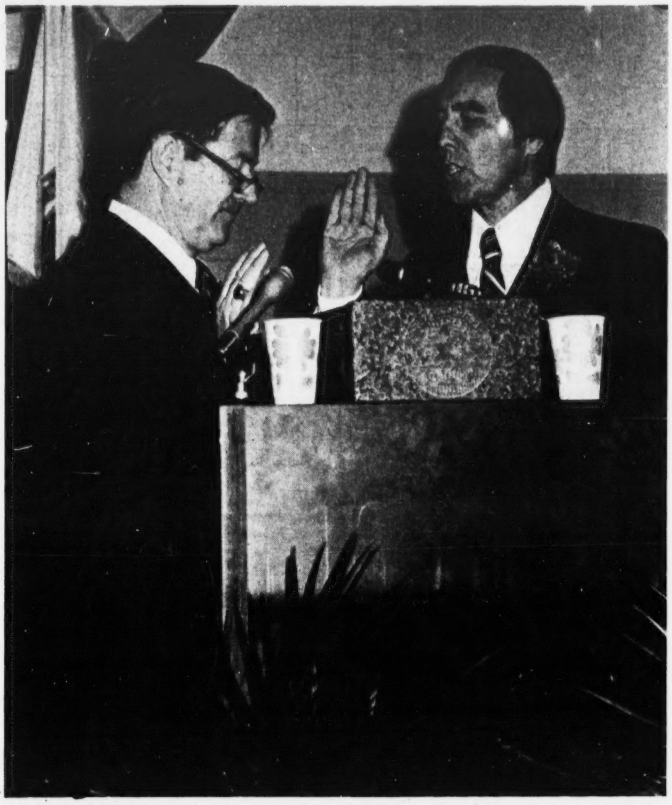
Reaction to Mayor Tobin's inaugural address:

"It covered most of the areas that we were concerned with," said Councillor Paul D. Harold, who has on occasion been critical of Tobin's actions as City Council President.

"Anyone who works in Quincy Square is aware of the vacancies in the stores," said Robert Blair, board chairman and chief executive officer of the South Shore Bank. "Hopefully, he can do something about it."

"I'm happy that he is going to give economic development consideration," said Robert Faxon of the Faxon Trust. "Downtown Quincy has been going downhill. It could stand an assist."

Tobin called revitalization of downtown Quincy "a must priority for this administration."



He promised to direct the Planning Department "to take immediate action in formulating plans, objectives and a timetable for the revitalization of business areas" including downtown Quincy, Wollaston and North Quincy.

He also promised to "oversee development of plans and procedures for bringing new industry into Quincy ... to provide jobs for our citizens and industry for our city."

His specific mention of the extension of the Thomas S. Burgin Parkway to Capen's Bridge in Braintree drew praise from William Kelly, president of the Hancock Bank.

"I was pleased to see that the

Divorced Catholics Topic For St. John's Adult Education Committee

Rev. James Young, C.S.P., of the Paulist Center Community will speak on the topic of divorced Catholics at a meeting of St. John's Adult Education Committee Wednesday, Jan. 11, at 8 p.m. in the lower church.

A nationally-recognized authority on the problems of divorced and remarried Catholics, Father Young has championed the cause of divorced Catholics and has fought courageously for years to have the stigma of excommunication removed from divorced Catholics.

On Nov. 11, 1977, Pope Paul VI ruled that Roman Catholics who remarry are no longer excommunicated from the church ending a centuries old classification as "outcasts."

Fr. Young, who has personally helped more than 1,000 Catholics obtain annulments, has lectured throughout the world concerning the problems of divorced Catholics, and is presently Director of Ministerial Studies at Weston School of Theology in Cambridge.

The Adult Education Committee is offering the presentation for all people in the Quincy, South Shore area as an information session. The program is not designed specifically for divorced Catholics, who are naturally welcome, but is broader in scope and will present the current position of the Church regarding divorce.

'Luncheon Is Served' Program At Fenno House

At noon, "Luncheon is Served" will be presented to residents of Fenno House, 540 Hancock St., Wollaston, Wednesday, Jan. 11.

Sponsored by the Fenno House Association the "Luncheon is Served" hostess provides helpful hints in a short talk about the sponsors' products and enlivens the luncheon with worthwhile door prizes and distributes samples of the products, as well as an abundance of exciting recipes, valuable coupons to use in shopping and informative literature.

Red Cross Bloodmobile At Fore River Clubhouse

Mrs. Mildred Ambrosia, Volunteer Blood Donor Chairman, Greater Quincy Red Cross Chapter, announces a bloodmobile will visit the Fore River Clubhouse, Nevada Rd., Quincy Point today (Thursday) from 1 p.m. to 6:45 p.m.

Potential donors should be between the ages of 17 and 66 years. Those under 18 years of age must have written parental consent.

The Red Cross must collect 1,300 pints of blood a day in order to meet the total needs of over 200 hospitals in Massachusetts. Donor appointments may be made with the Greater Quincy Red Cross Chapter by calling 472-2700. Those with appointments will be taken first but walk-ins are welcome.

7 Surrogate Parents Project Offered By S.S. Children's Council

A 'Surrogate Parent' training project to be conducted by the Federation For Children With Special Needs, will be offered by the South Shore Council for Children, with applications for admission being taken through Monday, Jan. 9.

The Education for All Handicapped Children Act [P.L. 94-142] requires that state provide "surrogate parents" for children who are wards of the state, or whose parents are either unknown or unavailable. The act is intended to protect the educational rights of such children.

The surrogate parent will be responsible for seeing to the educational needs of a child in special situations. It is estimated there are several thousand children in Massachusetts who are in need of this service. The surrogate will assume important parental functions in educational decision making to provide free, appropriate public education for the child.

Applications for the training program are available at the South Shore Council for Children, 1354 Hancock St., Quincy.

UF South Shore Campaign At 85 Percent Of Goal

The United Way Campaign on the South Shore has reached more than 85 percent of its goal of $390,000, according to Francis J. Mitchell, South Division chairman and administrative vice president of the Quincy Cooperative Bank.

Mitchell says the 21 communities comprising the South division expect to reach 95 percent of its projected quota by the time the campaign is completed.

Lung Association Seeking Clean Air Awards Nominees

The Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association is encouraging individuals in Massachusetts to do something about air pollution.

For the fourth consecutive year, the "Christmas Seal" people are seeking nominees for their Clean Air Awards. Anyone in the state can submit nominations from now to Feb. 1. Purpose of the awards program is to place emphasis on the positive aspects of maintaining clean air and give special recognition to those who have made a sincere effort to keep our air clean. Awards will be made in the Spring.

According to S. Alan Becker, president of the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association, "These awards will be presented for responsible and conscientious efforts to keep the atmosphere in Massachusetts free from harmful contaminants." He went on to say, "The awards recognize outstanding efforts to control air pollution and not simply adherence to compliance schedules."

Procter and Gamble plant in Quincy received the 1976 award.

Facilities eligible to apply for consideration include, but are not limited to, utilities, foundries, incinerators, heavy and light manufacturing, waste disposal facilities and transportation programs.

Nominations should be sent to the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association, 25 Spring Street, Walpole, Ma. 02081 -- or call 326-4081 for more information.

Flower tips from Andre Moreau

There are a whole bevy of green foliage plants that thrive in filtered sunlight if your window faces East or West. Just select a leaf texture and pattern and you've got a cool, quiet window garden. There are holly and bird's nest ferns, grape ivy, baby's tears and geraniums that will give you no trouble and much pleasure. For the window gardener who likes more vivid foliage and gay leaves tinted with color, there's the elegant croton, aurora borealis and the sunset and strawberry geranium. All are beautiful, easy to grow and guaranteed to please. Visit our lovely display areas at NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 where you will find an exciting assortment of exotic plants and cut flower arrangements. We are multi-lingual so we can assist you in French, Italian and Spanish. If you are planning a wedding this year keep in mind that we offer a bridal consulting service. We invite the prospective bride to come in and visit with us so we can give her guidance in selecting flowers that will suit her personal taste and budget as well. Hours: Mon. - Sat. 8-6, evenings by appointment.

HELPFUL HINT:
If you're a beginning window gardener, the sea onion is one of the easiest plants to grow.

Inaugural Day Tid Bits

Quincy Inaugural Day trivia:

Arthur Tobin is the 26th man--and seventh youngest--to take office as mayor since Quincy became a city in 1888. He's 47.

Youngest ever was Russell A. Sears who was only 27 when he was sworn in in 1898. In those days the term was one-year and he served only one year.

The other young chief executives: Charles Francis Adams, 29, [1896-97]; Thomas S. Burgin 33 [1935-42, Plan A; 1950-51 Plan E.]; James R. McIntyre, 35 [1966-71]; Walter J. Hannon, 40 [1972-75] and Joseph J. LaRaia, 43, [1976-77].

ALTHOUGH THE CITY Council presidency is looked upon as the springboard to the mayor's office, it really doesn't have that much political bounce to it.

Of the 36 men who have served as council president, Tobin is only the ninth to be elected mayor. And, it has been rare indeed when a council president has moved directly from the council chamber to the mayor's office.

AMELIO DELLA CHIESA, who died in 1975, was the city's first mayor of Italian descent and served 12 years--longest tenure in the city's history. Four years [1954-57] were under Plan E and eight [1958-65] under Plan A.

For many Quincy residents now nearing the 30-year mark, he was the only mayor they knew while growing up. He was mayor when they started public school and was on hand to present diplomas to them when they graduated from high school.

BUT THE MAYORAL longevity champ under a single form of government was Charles A. Ross who served nine years under Plan A. From 1933 to 1934 and from 1943 to 1949.

ONLY OTHER MAYOR besides Amelio Della Chiesa to serve under both Plan E and Plan A was Thomas S. Burgin.

AND, THE ONLY other Plan E mayor in Quincy's history was David S. McIntosh who served 1952-53.

JOSEPH LA RAIA'S DEPARTURE from City Hall increases the number of Quincy's living former mayors to four: Burgin [76], McIntyre [47], Hannon [46]. LaRaia is 45.

JOHN QUINN'S ELECTION as City Council president stirred memories for him and City Auditor Charles Shea. Quinn, starting an historic 11th consecutive term as councillor could have been council president in 1962.

All he had to do that year was cast a vote for himself and he would have picked up the gavel. But Quinn had pledged his vote early to Shea who was then a councillor. The pair were tied 4-4 but Quinn kept his word and cast the deciding vote for Shea.

AT 54 Quinn is not only the "dean" of the council in point of service but in age, too. "Baby" of the new council is newcomer Stephen McGrath from Ward 6. He's only 24--the youngest elected to the council in recent years.

WARD 3's JOHN LYDON is expected to succeed John Quinn as chairman of the City Council's powerful Finance Committee.

AVERAGE AGE OF the new council is just a fraction over 38. In between the 54-year-old John Quinn and 24-year-old Steven McGrath, are: Daniel Raymondi [29]; Paul Harold [30]; John Lydon [36]; Joanne Condon [37]; James Sheets [42]; Leo Kelly [45] and Francis McCauley [47].

FOR JUST THE second time in Quincy's history, appropriation orders and other communications from the Mayor's office to the City Council will be addressed "Madam Councillor and Gentlemen".

Joanne Condon, of course, is only the second woman to serve in the City Council, the first since Edna Austin retired [undefeated] in 1959 after 16 years service.

WHILE HE'S THE 26th man to be elected the city's chief executive, Arthur Tobin is actually the 29th mayor. Gustave Bates, Charles Ross and Thomas Burgin were elected to split terms.

UNDER QUINCY'S ORIGINAL charter, mayors served one year terms. Joseph Whiton was the first elected to a two-year term. He served from 1917 to 1920.

QUINCY'S FIRST MAYOR was Charles H. Porter, a Civil War veteran and Republican. He took office Jan. 7, 1889 and served until 1890

DEATH HAS CLAIMED only one Quincy mayor in office. John L. Miller died after serving several months in 1914.

IF YOU THINK some of today's City Council meetings get to be a gabfest, you should have been around when Quincy first became a city.

Instead of nine, there were 23 councillors--all trying to get a word in.

COMBINED choirs of Quincy and North Quincy High Schools, under the direction of Maurice Carbonneau, sing the National Anthem to open the inaugural ceremonies.

Inaugural Program 2 Months In Planning

The pomp and ceremony that surrounded the inauguration of Arthur H. Tobin as the 29th mayor of Quincy didn't just happen.

It was the result of nearly two months of intricate planning that would have compared favorably with the logistics behind the D-Day invasion of Normandy.

The key planners were Dr. Richard K. Chrystal, director of staff development in the Quincy public schools, and Charles Alongi of Tobin's staff.

It was plotted right down to such detail as who was to order 60 tables from the Jackson Chair Co. [John M. Browne of the School Department] and where the coat racks were to come from [the Bargain Center].

The schedule of events leading up to and away from the moment that Tobin took the oath of office was carefully laid out on something called a Program Evaluation Review Technique [PERT] chart.

"It's a business management process," says Dr. Chrystal, "that lists in order the 100 specific things that had to be done so that everything ran smoothly on Jan. 3."

The first things that were done, both assigned to Browne, were [No. 1] reserving the Vo Tech School gym for Dec. 31 through Jan. 4 and [No. 2] telling the kids there wouldn't be any gym classes those days.

The last things were [No. 99] having George Page of the Park Department pick up the inaugural platform before noon Jan. 4 and [No. 100] turning the gym back to the youngsters.

In between were such necessary but often overlooked items as:

No. 23 - The printing of signs identifying the Ladies' Room and the Men's Room for strangers [assigned to Dr. Chrystal].

No. 34 - Delivery of coffee and danish for approximately 60 people to the Staff Development room [George D. Cole, food coordinator].

No. 48 - Providing name plates for the City Council members [John Gillis, city clerk].

No. 53 - Assigning three men [no more, no less] at 10 a.m., Jan. 2, to raise the basketball backboards and release the bleachers in the gym [Browne].

No. 65 - Making up a list of those guests who were to receive cards enabling them to park in one of the 26 reserved spaces [Hal Coose of Tobin's staff].

The PERT chart was originally developed by the Defense Department to monitor production procedures and prevent cost over-runs.

"It's the only way I know of being positive that you've done everything you're supposed to do," says Dr. Chrystal, who is in charge of the School Department's end of the planning for the first time this year.

The last time, he worked with Bruce McLean, then the school's public relations man, on the inauguration of Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia. A few bugs have been ironed out of the system.

"We had a better PA system this year," he says. "We discovered last year that it was a problem. Also we relocated the band for better acoustics."

Any bugs discovered this year will be corrected in time for the 1980 inaugural.

This is the fourth year in which the School Department has played a major role in the inauguration of a Mayor.

"Walter Hannon, after he was elected for the first time, called me and asked me what I thought about shifting the ceremonies from City Hall to the Vo Tech School gym," says School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon.

"I went to a luncheon with his inauguration chairman, Jack Williams. One thing led to another and by the end of the luncheon we were rather deeply involved in it.

"We indicated to Mayor Hannon that the School Department had a lot of resources besides the gym that could be used for the inauguration. He liked the idea. We did it and did it again for his second term.

"Mayor LaRaia modified it. He was the one who established the idea of a joint meeting of the City Council and the School Committee. The School Committee was separate before.

"It's becoming a tradition now."

One item was added to the PERT chart after the wheels of organization were set in motion.

"Mayor-elect Tobin heard the choral group from Broad Meadows sing "What's More American?" at the dedication of the Burgin Memorial Parkway," says Chrystal. "He wanted the song sung at the inaugural."

Problem was music was already assigned to the combined Quincy and North Quincy High School choirs and copies of that particular song were not available.

So the Broad Meadows Choraleers, under Marion V. Clancy, were invited to perform an encore.

They're No. 21A on the PERT chart.

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS By Tom Henshaw

$1.5 Million Sought For Incinerator

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa was planning to ask the City Council to approve a bond issue of nearly $3 million to finance a capital outlay program for the city of Quincy.

"With the bonded debt reduced considerably we are in a better position to undertake such improvements than we have been for some time," said the Mayor.

He noted that the new issue would bring Quincy's bonded indebtedness to $13,328,500.

Included in his plans were $1.5 million for an incinerator, $500,000 for a new X-ray building at City Hospital, $150,000 for a new branch library in North Quincy, and $300,000 for an enlarged gym at North Quincy High School.

BARTOLINI RELEASED

Quincy handyman Oscar Bartolini, 70, was granted a full pardon after serving 23 years of a life sentence for the 1938 slaying of Mrs. Grayce Asquith, a Weymouth widow.

Moments after his release from Norfolk Prison Colony he was arrested on a federal deportation warrant that charged he concealed from the government the record of a misdemeanor in Italy.

BOTH QUINCYS LOSE

The Quincy and North Quincy High School hockey teams took on the iron of the Metropolitan League and each came away with a loss, the Presidents bowing to Christopher Columbus, 4-3, and the Raiders to Malden, 6-2.

The Quincy lineup included: Nattle, goal; Grogan, Houghton, defense; Troup, Ahola, LeNormand, forwards; Landry, Casagrande, Joe Valle, spares.

The North Quincy team was made up of: Forrestal, goal; Stimberis, W. Callahan, defense; Cooke, Higgins, Crowley, forwards; Campbell, Chambers, Anderson, J. Callahan, Erickson, Gardiner, spares.

APPEAL OVERTURNED

The State Supreme Court ruled that the Quincy Board of Appeals was wrong to grant a variance to Benjamin Kurtzman to remodel an old factory into a professional building in a residence zone at 435 Adams St., Quincy.

"The introduction of a new business enterprise to a residence area may enhance the commercial value of the property so used," said the Court, "but it is commonly conceded to have a marked depreciating effect upon the value of neighboring residence property."

Quincy Baby May Be State's First New Year Birth

Quincy's first citizen of 1978 arrived at Quincy City Hospital a scant 18 seconds after the clock announced the start of the New Year - making him perhaps the first to be born in the entire state.

A seven pound, 15-ounce baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Shaw of 64 Captain's Walk, Germantown.

At 1:40 p.m. Mr. and Mrs. John MacPherson Jr., 254 West St., West Quincy, became the parents of a nine pound, eight and a half ounce boy.

The third arrival on the first of the New Year was a baby girl born at 2:51 p.m. to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gorman, 13 Adler Rd, Holbrook. She weighed in at six pounds, 14 ounces.

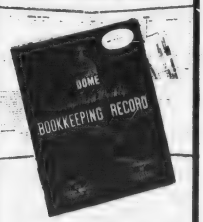
Fr. McCarthy Named Fire Dept. Chaplain

Chief Edward F. Barry has named the Rev. William R. McCarthy, pastor of St. John the Baptist Church, to the post of Roman Catholic chaplain of the Quincy Fire Department.

He succeeds the Rev. David Delaney, who has been transferred from his residency at St. John, where he was City Hospital chaplain, to St. Dennis Church, Islington.

Father McCarthy, a native of Haverhill, became pastor of St. John in January, 1977, after 14 years at St. Gregory's, Dorchester. He previously served as chaplain of the Chelsea Fire and Police Departments.

Animal Control



The Quincy Animal Control Commission, established in October, is seeking to implement its program to remove unleashed dogs from the city streets, according to Dr. Samuel Solomon, the city health commissioner.

The commission is seeking rental space to serve as an interim stop for the housing of stray dogs, Dr. Solomon said.

An Individual Retirement Account Is All To Your Advantage. . .In Many Ways

1. TAX-DEFERRED - All deposits you make to your retirement account are tax-deductible, and all interest earned is exempt from federal income tax during your working years.
2. HIGH EARNINGS - Your retirement account earns high savings bank interest for continuing and sustained growth.
3. NO RISK - Your retirement account is backed by our history of sound management and deposit safety, plus your account is insured, of course.
4. FLEXIBILITY - You determine how much you want to add to your retirement account, up to the legal maximum, and how frequently you wish to do so.
5. BENEFIT OPTIONS - You may start receiving benefits upon retirement any time between the ages of 59½ and 70½.
6. EASY TO OPEN - All you do is fill out a brief application/agreement form ... it takes only minutes. Ask for one.
7. NO PROBLEM IF YOU MOVE - If you move to a new locale you may continue your IRA deposits here by mail.

Contributions up to $1,500, or 15% of earned income, whichever is less, are deductible for Federal Income Tax purposes. But contributions are not deductible for Massachusetts Income Tax.

Interest earned on contributions is tax-deferred until distribution for both Federal and Massachusetts income tax. All amounts distributed and not previously taxed are usually taxed as ordinary income, in the year of distribution.

This is a summary of the basic tax effects of the Individual Retirement Account (IRA). For further details and special rules that may apply to your situation, consult your tax adviser.

Complete Text Of Mayor Tobin's Inaugural Address

Mayor is aware of the problems of the downtown area," he said, "Particularly the Burgin Parkway extension. It is an integral part of downtown development and I hope he will pursue it vigorously."

Tobin made no mention of an elaborate downtown revitalization plan advanced by his predecessor, Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia nor did he bring up any of the bitterness of the past two years.

Only once did he allude to "the adversities and turmoil of recent months," an omission that drew praise from new City Councillor Francis X. McCauley.

"I thought it was good that he did not rake over the coals of the past two years," said McCauley. "I think that's important. I hope his 'new beginning' means that the last two years are behind us."

Other comments from City Councillors on the Tobin inaugural address included:

"I thought it was excellent," said James A. Sheets. "It was really a 'come together' kind of theme and I think it's proper and we're going to move forward now.

"I didn't expect anything more specific. The Mayor is going to have to sit down with the City Council and take cognizance of where we're going. You can't get more specific until we've done that."

"I was very impressed with the statements that he made," said Daniel G. Raymondi. "I think he made a commitment to follow through on many of the specifics he campaigned on, to be fiscally conservative while keeping in mind that the city has to move ahead."

"I'm very happy with it," said Joanne Condon. "I don't think he could have been any more specific. The Mayor and the Council both need the opportunity to look at the problems as they exist and then start working on them one at a time."

"I think he's on the key problems," said Leo J. Kelly. "The downtown area has got to move ahead or the people in the neighborhoods are going to have to assume the bulk of the taxes. The good tax base comes out of the downtown."

"The message was there for bringing the city together," said Stephen J. McGrath. "I think that's what we'll be trying to do for the next two years.

"All inaugural addresses try for eloquence at the expense of substance. It's a matter of getting your themes together. I thought he did well in outlining where he was going."

The text of Mayor Tobin's address follows:

"That we shall be a 'city upon the hill' and the eyes of all the people will be upon us," were words spoken by John Winthrop to his shipmates some 350 years ago as he spoke of leadership and standards to be met as he set about constructing a new government for the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

Since the evening of November 8th last I have dedicated myself to this same task. In so doing, I have been guided by the same set of standards set by John Winthrop for we, too, are but a city upon the hill and the eyes of the people are upon us.

More than 350 years ago our city was settled as a village. It grew as a town, and has prospered as a city. The motto upon our city seal says it all: "Manet - It Remains."

In defiance of the problems this city has encountered throughout the years, including the adversities and turmoil of recent months, this proud and historic city "remains".

I am deeply honored to be the 26th person privileged to serve as it's chief executive. I want very much to be a good Mayor. I want to keep the commitments I made to you during the campaign and I shall continue my endeavors until all my promises are fulfilled.

As Mayor I want to unite our people and with a fresh spirit to launch our city on a new beginning. My commitments to you are being met with each passing day. Already I have had several unity meetings with my colleagues on the City Council and the School Committee. They will continue.

A Blue Ribbon Committee made up of highly respected citizens from our community has been appointed by me and is currently at work assisting me in the important responsibility of screening candidates for high level appointments within this administration.

I come before you today not as a stranger, nor as one unknown to you, for there should be no strangers in our city but only friends who have yet to meet. I stand before you as a friend who has worked for you and among you for more than a decade. Together we have accomplished many things and have rejoiced in our successes. Also together, we can recall occasions when our best efforts were not good enough and our high expectations were not met. However, it was during these times that our bonds of friendship grew stronger.

A new beginning wrapped in a traditional spirit can go with us from this day if each of us realizes that the health of our city will be determined by the contribution made to its well-being by all of its citizens.

As your new Mayor I would like to talk to you today about a new beginning centering on three areas of concentration and guided by four standards of leadership. In order to keep a tight rein on municipal government, including those in elective office as well as those in appointive and career positions, to scrutinize their every request and ask of themselves this question: How will what is being proposed address itself to these three areas of concentration?

First - The Economic Development of our Community:

The slow and gradual withdrawal from our city of business firms, retail stores and industrial plants must come to an end. Stopping this erosion of our economic growth and potential will make it possible for us to embark on a new beginning.

Our future lies ahead, therefore, the revitalization of Quincy's business and retail activities as well as its industrial potential will be a must priority of this administration. In order to accomplish this end, the following initiatives shall be undertaken:

1. I shall direct the Planning Department under the supervision of the Planning Director and the Coordinator of City-wide Development to take immediate action in formulating plans, objectives and a timetable for the revitalization of our business areas including downtown Quincy, the Thomas Burgin Parkway Extension to Capens Bridge, as well as the Wollaston and North Quincy business districts.

2. I shall oversee the development of plans and procedures for bringing new industry into Quincy.

3. I shall move with the full influence of my office by recycling existing vacant industrial property to provide jobs for our citizens and industry for our city.

4. I shall direct that our zoning ordinances be reviewed so as to provide for the proper planning and future development of our city.

The Second Area of Concentration Will Center on the Delivery of Human Services:

In large measure people live in a community because of the services provided through local government. In Quincy we are proud of the life saving services provided by our Fire and Police Departments. In each department strong leadership is a must. Command responsibility must not and will not be interfered with. For the safety of our people both departments need to be equipped with the most modern equipment available. Additional in-service opportunities must be provided if the men and women engaged in public safety are to keep abreast of the rapidly changing times.

We all depend heavily upon the services of our Public Works Department.. The citizens of Quincy can be proud of the career personnel in this department from the office staff through the several superintendents. Here, too, strong administrative leadership is necessary and it shall be provided, because it is our Public Works Department that keeps our city open and functioning.

Education is the most important municipal service we provide, for it is in our schools that our young are taught not only how to make a living, but also how to live. The curriculum of our school system must be relevant and up to date. The courses offered while founded in the basic skills must be challenging. Students must know not only what we learned and needed to know, but also what they need to know in order to live, to work, and to contribute now and in Quincy's future. The City of Quincy must remain the educational capital of the South Shore, therefore, we must continue to preserve and expand our adult educational offerings.

Many of us spend a portion of our leisure time enjoying the benefits made available through our Park and Recreation Department. As more people of all ages become physical fitness conscious, we must move to keep abreast of their needs. For example, several of our outdoor recreation and athletic fields could be made more readily available by the installation of lights. In addition the rich resource of the former Army Reserve training site adjacent to Adams Field needs to be developed to its fullest potential.

MRS. SHIRLEY TOBIN Quincy's new First Lady, smiles proudly from a front row seat of honor as her husband, Arthur, is sworn in as the 29th mayor of Quincy.

Our senior citizens have contributed immeasurably to making this proud city what it is today and their life support needs as well as leisure time pursuits must be addressed.

The Third Area of Concentration will be Directed Toward Efficiency in Government:

Our city is a big business with but one major difference from the private sector and that is that profit is not our goal, but rather it is the delivery of human services. Services cost money, and money is raised through taxation; therefore, every avenue shall be explored to administer this city government at the lowest possible cost.

In pursuit of this goal, I plan to take the following action:

1. Require that each department head submit to me an indepth report which will include not only an analysis of the functions of that department but also a statement of future needs.

2. Lay before the City Council a plan for the reorganization of several of our city departments in order to avoid duplication.

3. Establish a management training program for all department heads and others in responsible positions of leadership.

4. Implement modern techniques for better communication and paper work flow between the various departments as well as with the office of the Mayor.

5. Investigate more fully the feasibility of data processing computers in order to save time and money to provide better services to our citizens and to implement more sophisticated measures of municipal accountability.

If we are to remain committed to these three areas of concentration, I need the help and good will of all our municipal employees, our elected officials and the citizens of this community.

In 1961, shortly before he was inaugurated President of the United States, John F. Kennedy appeared before the Massachusetts General Court and shared some of his deepest thoughts relative to principles of government and qualities of leadership. In my twelve years in public service I have tried to be guided by those four standards suggested by President Kennedy, and I would like to close by sharing them with you now.

President Kennedy said -

"And when at some future time the high court of history sits in judgement of each of us - recording whether in our brief span of service we fulfilled our responsibilities to the state - our success or failure, in whatever office we may hold, will be measured by the answers to four questions.

First -

Were we truly men of courage - with the courage to stand up to one's enemies - and the courage to stand up when necessary, to our associates - the courage to resist public pressure, as well as private greed?

Second -

Were we truly men of judgement - with perceptive judgement of the future as well as the past - of our own mistakes as well as those of others - with enough wisdom to know that we did not know, and enough candor to admit it?

Third -

Were we truly men of integrity - men who never ran out on either the principles in which they believed or the people who believed in them - men whom neither financial gain nor political ambition could ever divert from the fulfillment of our sacred trust?

Finally -

Were we truly men of dedication - with an honor mortgaged to no single individual or group, and compromised by no private obligation or aim, but devoted solely to serving the public good?

It is upon these four qualities of leadership and the three areas of concentration just identified that as your Mayor I am ready to move this city forward and to restore Quincy's pride and progress. For we are a city upon a hill, and the eyes of all the people are truly upon us. It is a good city; I am proud to be its Mayor; it remains.

NEW MAYOR Arthur H. Tobin draws a round of applause as he steps back from the podium after delivering his inaugural address.

OATH OF OFFICE is administered to incoming members of the School Committee by Mayor Arthur H. Tobin. They are, Joan Picard [far left], John J. Sullivan and Mary Collins [far right].

Sullivan Fails To Delay Vote

Patricia Toland Elected School Committee Vice Chairman

Patricia Toland was elected vice chairman of the School Committee Tuesday but only after surviving a bit of maneuvering by the retiring vice chairman, John J. Sullivan.

Sullivan moved that the election of a vice chairman be postponed until a successor is chosen to Francis X. McCauley, who resigned from the School Committee to take his seat on the City Council.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, who is also chairman of the School Committee, urged his colleagues to declare a state of emergency so that a vice chairman could be chosen right away.

Sullivan didn't see any emergency but the four other members of the Committee agreed with Tobin and they rolled over Sullivan's objections by a 5-1 vote.

Tobin then nominated Mrs. Toland and Sullivan nominated Committeeman Christopher F. Kennedy, who immediately announced his "wholehearted support" of Mrs. Toland. Sullivan couldn't get a second.

Mrs. Toland was elected by a 5-1 vote, with one vote, presumably Sullivan's, going to newly elected member Joan C. Picard, who appeared surprised to get it.

The School Committee then re-elected Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon as secretary to the Committee and re-elected Mrs. Frances Adams clerk.

MRS. PATRICIA TOLAND promises that she is mindful of the financial implications of the school system in her speech accepting the vice chairmanship of the School Committee.

Then it got down to the business of accepting the resignation of McCauley, who handed it in effective at 9:59 a.m. Tuesday, one minute before he was scheduled to be sworn in as a city councillor.

The School Committee, the City Council and the Mayor will meet in joint convention to choose his successor.

Harold Gets Two Votes

Quinn Sees No Division In Election As Council President

"I don't see that as a division on the City Council," said John J. Quinn shortly after he was elected Council President by vote of six of its nine members.

"I look upon it as a situation where someone was trying to become President and he did not succeed. Many times the presidency comes down to a 5-4 vote. Then all nine members go along with the President."

Paul D. Harold drew two votes for Council President as the Councillors balloted on a replacement for Arthur H. Tobin, the new Mayor, who had held the presidency for a record eight years.

The ninth member of the Council, Daniel G. Raymondi, voted "president" when asked to choose between Quinn and Harold. He declined to explain his vote.

Quinn's name was placed in nomination by Councillor Leo J. Kelly, who noted that Quinn was dean of the Council with 20 years service and had been chairman of its powerful Finance Committee for 10 years.

"He has worked with his colleagues on the Council for 20 years," said Kelly. "He understands the many diverse natures and ambitions of this particular council and will work within that diversity to seek accomplishment."

The nomination was seconded by Councillor John J. Lydon Jr.

Harold was nominated by Councillor Francis X. McCauley, who cited the fact that Harold had received the highest vote of any elected official in the city when he was re-elected last November.

Voting for Quinn were Councillors Joanne Condon, Kelly, Lydon, Stephen J. McGrath, Quinn and James A. Sheets.

Harold and McCauley voted for Harold.

One of Quinn's first moves as Council President was to name Kelly, Lydon and Sheets to what he called the "traditional" posts of vice president.

It was the first time some people had ever heard of such a position on the Council.

"It's traditional that the person in office the longest becomes vice president," Quinn explained.

"I've been vice president of the Council for a number of years because nobody was close to me in time in office.

"Councillors Sheets, Lydon and Kelly are in their third terms on the Council. They have been in office longer than anyone else.

"It's not really a formal appointment but it's the way it's drawn up in the Council rules."

Harold said the appointment of three vice presidents came as a surprise "because of the fact that it doesn't exist.

"Under Council rules there's no provision for a vice president, let alone three vice presidents. It's somewhat meaningless. It's more a title with no responsibilities and no standing."

Quinn said he plans to finalize committee assignments for councillors sometime this week and release the assignments next week.

"Each and everyone of them will be assigned a committee," he said, "hopefully, an action committee according to their concerns and interests."

Tobin 29th Mayor 26th Man To Hold Job

Arthur H. Tobin is the 29th mayor of Quincy but only the 26th man to hold the post since Quincy became a city in 1889.

Three mayors -- Gustave B. Bates, Charles A. Ross and Thomas S. Burgin -- served split terms as chief executive.

Only one mayor, John L. Miller in 1914, has ever died in office. Elections were partisan until 1916.

The mayors of Quincy are:

Joanne Condon Carries Flowers To Edna Austin

City Councillor Joanne Condon drew her first assignment from Council President John J. Quinn only moments after she was sworn in as the Council's second woman member.

She was dispatched to carry a bouquet of flowers to the first woman Councillor, Mrs. Edna B. Austin, who currently resides in a Quincy nursing home.

Mrs. Austin was first elected to the City Council in 1942, lost a bid for re-election in 1945 but won again in 1947 and served through 1959.

LaRaia Not At Tobin Inaugural

Three former mayors of Quincy attended Tuesday's inauguration of the newest mayor, Arthur H. Tobin.

Seated on the platform were ex-Mayors Thomas S. Burgin, James R. McIntyre and Walter J. Hannon.

The inaugural program was dedicated to Burgin, the oldest living mayor of Quincy who served 1935-42 and 1950-51.

Tobin's immediate predecessor, Joseph J. LaRaia, did not attend the inaugural.

NEW COUNCILLOR Joanne Condon and second termer Daniel G. Raymondi share a light moment on the dais after they were sworn in to the City Council. Mayor Tobin is in background.

MONEY TALKS

The Cast Of A Real Estate Closing Drama

By Philip J. Lawrence, President

Colonial Federal Savings and Loan Association of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham

8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

There is a certain drama that attends what we in the savings and loan industry call a "closing" – the coming together of the buyer, seller, lender, broker, and attorneys to conclude the sale and purchase of a home.

Emotions are present – satisfaction on the part of the seller often mixed with regret at departure from cherished surroundings, joyful anticipation tinged with anxiety of a buyer looking forward to life in a new home.

The paper work and red tape that attend the closing and its preparations are needed to accomplish a transaction that represents the major investment in most people's lives. Each participant has a special role to play. The broker has brought buyer and seller together, matching the needs and desires of the buyer with the seller's capacity to fulfill them and coordinating the transaction among all parties.

The seller and his attorney must warrant a good title, clearing away any imperfections that may exist. For example, the death of one of the partners in a jointly owned home will require legal services to change the ownership before turning it over to the buyer. Mechanics', attorneys', performance, and tax liens that may be attached to the property must be removed. The responsibility of seller and attorney is to prepare the proper deed documentation, affidavit of title, bill of sale for personal property, and closing statements.

The buyer and his attorney are interested in seeing that all imperfections of title have been eradicated, that all documentation is in compliance with the real estate contract, that proration of taxes, title expense, earnest money credit, and real estate commissions are exactly as agreed and that title is assigned as desired.

The lender's role is to protect the association's interests and to make sure that it has a first mortgage against the secured property.

The potential legal pitfalls that can be encountered in purchase and sale require the services of lawyers versed in the law relating to real estate, taxes, insurance, and contracts. The broker and the lender can be helpful in putting the transaction together, but they may not prepare certain necessary legal documents nor may they give legal advice.

The ceremony attending a closing does not compare with that of a wedding, but it has its own drama as it affects the lives of participating families.

Patricia Bleheen Nominated For 'Who's Who'

Patricia Anne Bleheen, daughter of Mrs. Mary V. Bleheen, 41 Cummings Ave., Wollaston, has been nominated for membership in the 1977-1978 "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Miss Bleheen, a graduate of North Quincy High School, is a senior at Regis College, Weston. She is majoring in law and plans to attend law school and stand for the bar after her graduation.

Shea Refuses LaRaia $4,000 In Vacation Pay

City Auditor Charles Shea is remaining adamant in his refusal to accede to former Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia's request he be paid nearly $4,000 for eight weeks vacation time he claims is owed him by the city.

At the same time Shea said that he will meet with Sarah Saccone, budget coordinator in the LaRaia administration, to discuss her claim for 17 weeks vacation time, a figure set at about $6,000.

Shea said LaRaia's request is 'unprecedented' and that after conferring with officials of the state Bureau of Accounts he cannot honor the request.

The auditor said a mayor can take vacation time whenever he feels the need. However, he pointed out, the ordinance says the mayor is paid $25,000 a year, or $50,000 for his two year term; there is no stipulation for vacation pay.

LaRaia contends that the mayor should be treated as a department head and as such can accummulate four weeks vacation pay a year.

Shea noted that Miss Saccone's position is not comparable with that of LaRaia. She is an appointed department head and as such is entitled to vacation pay. During the past two years she has been on leave of absence from her regular position in the auditor's office.

He said that the union contract specifies that vacation time is to be arranged with the department head and that he will talk the matter over with Miss Saccone.

LaRaia indicated that he may seek legal counsel to obtain the money he feels is coming to him.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Amethyst is the striking purple birthstone associated with the month of February. This quartz stone ranges in color from delicate violet to rich eggplant. Its sentiment is sincerity. Roman women thought the amethyst would keep their husbands' love constant. Its name comes from the Greek word meaning "not to be drunken" – the ancients thought the amethyst would prevent intoxication. One myth tells how Diana, the Goddess of Maidens, turned an innocent nymph into a white stone statue in order to protect her from Bacchus, the God of Wine. He repented and poured purple wine over the statue, and said that whoever wore the amethyst would not become drunk.

In order to give you complete service, we at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490 always have a wide selection of jewelry and gift items. We're happy to help you, and welcome you to browse whether or not you are presently in the market for a fine piece of jewelry. Hours: Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m.-5 p.m.

Junior Great Books Discussion Program To Start At Library

A Junior Great Books Discussion Program will begin at the Thomas Crane Junior Library, Quincy Center, Tuesday, Jan. 17, at 3:30 p.m.

The program series is being conducted for fifth and sixth graders and will continue through June on an every other week basis. Discussion leaders are Janet DiTullio, Coordinator of Language Arts, Quincy Public Schools, and Jane Granstrom, Supervisor of Children's Services, Quincy Public Library.

Children who enjoy reading and thinking about what they read should enjoy the Junior Great Books Discussion Program. Each series meeting will provide opportunity for children to exchange ideas about what they have read and to develop discussion skills.

Among the books to be used during the series are: Kipling's "The Jungle Books"; Andersen's "The Ugly Duckling"; Broun's "The Fifty-First Dragon"; and Hughes' "Thank You, Ma'm".

Participants are eligible to receive an Achievement Award when the series ends in June. Registration for the series may be made at the Junior Library, Quincy Square, or by telephone, 471-2400, extension 38.

Letter Carriers Union Opposes Braintree Central Mail Facility

By PETER BARNICLE

The U.S. Postal Service proposal to build an Incoming Mail Center in the Five Corners section of Braintree continues to draw the ire of business leaders and others in Quincy and South Shore communities most concerned with the project.

On the eve of a public hearing scheduled for Wednesday on the proposed center Ronald L. Hughes, president of the Boston Letter Carriers Union and trustee of the National Association of Letter Carriers, charged that the incoming Mail Center "will cause a disruption of postal service in Quincy, Braintree, Milton and Weymouth."

He contends that the Five Corners location is "the worst they could have chosen." Hughes points out that traffic in the area is already a serious problem and the addition of mail trucks moving through the intersection will aggravate the situation.

The 7:30 p.m. hearing at the John F. Kennedy Health Center, 1120 Hancock St., was called by Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton] to obtain an expression of opinion from postal service customers.

Under plans outlined by postal authorities the mail center will handle all mail entering the area. Carriers will be motorized and pick up their consignments at Braintree before starting out on their usual routes.

"This means that a carrier who covers Squantum will have to go to Braintree to pick up his mail," Hughes explained. "It means that in inclement weather there will be an unnecessary delay."

He also pointed out that "morning-callers" – those who go to the post office to pick up their mail – and box-holders, will have to wait until the mail is transferred from Braintree to the local offices.

"The Postal Service says that they will have store-front stations to provide customers with stamps and money orders," Hughes said. "But up to the moment nothing has been done about this."

He noted that a similar operation is due to start in Chelsea in March, and as yet, he says, nothing has been done about leasing 'store-front' offices.

The union leaders insist their main concern is a possible breakdown of postal service.

"It's not a question of job security," according to Michael O'Connor, secretary-treasurer of the Boston Local of the NALC. "In fact we may gain a few jobs."

Both Hughes and O'Connor insist that the proposed plan will be detrimental to mail service for individuals and businesses in the South Shore area.

Skating Instruction Program

The Quincy Recreation Department announces that it still has limited openings for their instructional ice skating program.

This instructional program features the basic level of ice skating from beginner to advanced. The program is open to Quincy residents age six and over.

Registrations for the ten weeks of lessons will be taken at the Recreation Office in the John F. Kennedy Health Center, 1120 Hancock St. The program is held at the Quincy Youth Hockey Rink on Murphy Memorial Drive. The program has already started.

A fee is charged for this program and is payable at the time of registration. Additional information can be obtained by calling the Recreation Office. All registrations are on a first come, first serve basis.

Harold Carroll Heads Municipal Credit Union

Harold R. Carroll has been elected president of the Quincy Municipal Credit Union by the board of directors.

Other officers are Lawrence J. Perette, vice president; Clare M. Barry, clerk of the corporation; Helen McGachie, treasurer, and John M. Bille, assistant treasurer.

The credit union was established in 1937 by members of the Quincy Fire Department and in 1958 opened its membership to all City of Quincy employees.

The organization expects to occupy its new building at 380 Washington St., Quincy Point, the latter part of March. According to Carroll the union has more than 4,000 members and total assets of $8 million.

QJC Accepting New Students For January

Quincy Junior College is accepting applications for full-time or part-time day studies for the January, 1978 semester.

Among the Associate Degree programs available for mid-year entrance are Criminal Justice, Early Childhood Education, Accounting, Management, Marketing, Retailing, the Liberal Arts transfer - oriented program, and Medical, Legal, and Executive Secretarial Science programs.

There is also openings in the one-year pre-nursing program for those people who need preparation for entrance into nursing schools.

Students interested in full-time study should immediately submit an application, and, also, arrange to have sent to the College a copy of their high school transcript. Upon receipt of these documents, an interview will be arranged with the Admissions Office.

Students transferring from another college should also arrange for their grades from their former college to be sent to QJC.

Those interested in part-time day studies need only call the Admissions Office to make an appointment. Special part-time day schedules can be arranged for home-makers with school-age children.

Second semester classes begin January 23, 1978. For more information about the college programs and admissions procedures call Dean Saluti at 471-2470.

South Shore CP Unit To Get Vehicle Grant

United Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore has been chosen to receive a federal grant for the purchase of a vehicle to assist in transporting the elderly and the handicapped, according to Rep. James A. Sheets (D-Quincy).

The grant, which totals $470,368 to 19 non-profit organizations in Massachusetts, was announced by Frederick P. Salvucci, secretary of transportation.

The federal Urban Mass. Transportation Administration (UMTA) will provide 80 percent of the costs of the vehicles and the non-profit agency will get up the other 20 percent.

Sheets said it is hoped that the vehicle, which is a custom-designed van with raised roof, lift, low step and comfortable seats, will be in service in the spring.

Presidents Hope To End Drought, Raiders Looking For Rebound

Plagued by a hot and cold offense and numerous turnovers, Quincy's basketball team has been unable to record a victory in seven games.

The Presidents hoped to end the drought Tuesday at Franklin. Friday will host Brockton and next Tuesday will be at Newton North.

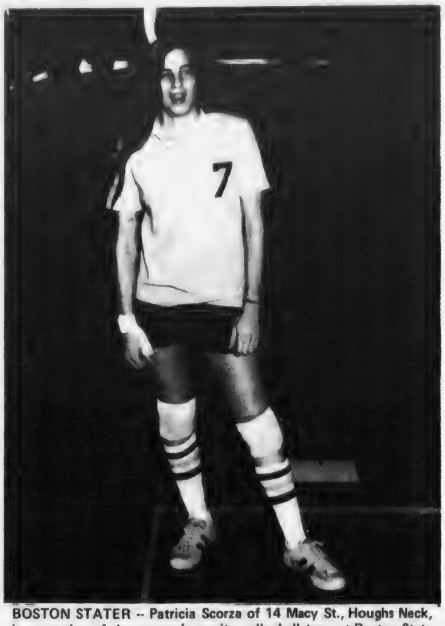
Meanwhile, North Quincy has a 3-2 record after having its three-game win streak halted by Brockton last week. The Raiders hosted Cambridge Rindge and Latin last night (Wednesday), will be at Weymouth North Friday and will be home to Weymouth South Tuesday.

Joe Amorisino has been trying desperately to get Quincy on the winning trail but last Friday, in a battle of the winless, the Presidents lost to Brookline, 61-52.

"We played well in spots but we shot only 38 percent from the floor and that hurt," Amorosino said. "And we turned the ball over too often."

Dave Casey paced Quincy with 17 points and sophomore Brian Donovan, who has been playing fine ball, had eight rebounds and drew praise from his coach.

Previously the Presidents had finished last in their second holiday tournament, losing to Framingham North, 68-54, in the opening round at Hingham and bowing to Duxbury, 61-52.



Against Framingham Quincy made another fine comeback but a bad third period was fatal. Young Donovan had another good night with 12 points and John Connolly also had 12.

In the Duxbury game the Presidents had 33 Turnovers. Young Donovan had eight points and eight rebounds. Connolly had 10 points.

North Quincy gave Brockton a great game and led by three points midway in the final period but the Boxers rallied for the win.

Pete Johnson had 11 points and Joe Deane nine for the Raiders

In their previous game the Raiders had rolled over Milton, 74-52, in a non-league game.

Quincy Girls Seek 3rd Win At Brockton

By TOM SULLIVAN

Despite a young team with only three girls who played varsity last year, the Quincy girls' basketball team is off to a good start with a 2-1 record. The First Ladies will seek their third win Friday at Brockton at 3:15 and Tuesday they will host Newton at the old Quincy gym.

"My varsity is almost completely new this year with only Juniors Debbie Russo and Lynn Powers and my only senior Janice Russo, having varsity experience," notes Coach Barbara Webster.

The starting team includes sophomore Susan Callahan and Powers as the guards, junior Paula Lynch at center and juniors Karen Murphy and Laura Riley at forward.

Backing these girls up are Debbie and Janice Russo and sophomore Laura Miller, guards; junior Linda Deady and sophomore Maureen Maher, centers, and junior Denise Leonard, forward.

"This is a young, eager team," Miss Webster said. "They are very willing to learn and are not afraid of hard work. They love to run and can be very quick.

Quincy opened with a 45-26 win over North Quincy, lost to Weymouth South 41-35 and bombed Brookline, 48-19.

"We lost to Weymouth because we made a lot of mistakes," Miss Webster said. "We were never really out of the game. We will make a lot of mistakes, being so young, but we will learn from these mistakes and improve every game. We have an outstanding defensive team."

Bob Dougherty's varsity is 1-2 and includes seniors Mary Megina and Polly Albrecht, who could move up to the varsity; senior Lillian Callahan, Maryanne Cuccinatta, Barbara Riggs and Peggy Burchell who are juniors, and sophomores Lisa Belliveau, Jane Doherty, Cheryl Higgins and Patrice Bombeck.

Brian Tilley's North Quincy girls will host Weymouth North at 3:15 Friday and Tuesday will play at Weymouth South at 3:15. The Raiderettes also play their home games at the old Quincy High gym.

North Trackmen Win, Quincy Bows

The North Quincy track team, after snapping a two-meet losing streak last week, sought its third Suburban League win and its fifth overall Tuesday when it met Newton North at Newton. Friday the Raiders will take part in the Coaches Meet at Northeastern.

Meanwhile, Quincy sought its first win Tuesday against Brookline.

Lou Tozzi's North team, defeated Weymouth North, 45-41, last Friday to make its league record 2-2 and its overall mark 4-2.

North's Russ Chisholm won the dash, John Pawell the 300, Jon Saville the mile, Mike Barrett the two-mile, John McGuiggan the 1000 and Mike Gallagher the shot put.

Earlier in the week the Raiders bowed to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 48-38, with Barrett turning his best time for the 1000, 2:28, in winning the event.

Tim O'Neill won the 300, Saville the mile and Gallagher the shot.

Quincy was outclassed by Cambridge, 77-8, having no winners. Mark Assad was second in the shot, Tom LaBlue third in the hurdles and Darren O'Neil third in the high jump.

Piccini Takes Over Quincy Girls Track Team --And A Problem

Jim Piccini has taken over as coach of the Quincy girls' track team and he has a big problem.

He has only six girls on his squad and, despite some good individual performances, the First Ladies can't hope to do much against teams with much more depth.

Quincy dropped its first two meets to Weymouth North and Brockton but the few girls on the squad did well.

Heidi Dolan, in the 1000 and high jump, is the only senior and she and three juniors, Donna Reardon, mile; Lois Guglielmi, 300, and Paula Church, 600, are the only veterans.

Rounding out the tiny squad are sophomore Lucia Fabrizio and junior Tara Prince.

"These girls show a lot of spirit and have done well and they would be the nucleus of a good team if only more girls would show some interest and come out for track," Piccini said.

Today (Thursday) Quincy meets Cambridge Rindge and Latin and next Thursday will face Brookline. Both meets are at 3 p.m. at Brookline.

North Wins Second Match

Quincy Matmen Off To Quick Start

Carmen Mariano's Quincy wrestling team is off to another fast start with four wins and a tie.

Last week the Presidents finished third in the Lowell Christmas tourney.

The Presidents opened with a 65-0 breeze over Randolph and, after being held to a 29-29 tie by Weymouth North, defeated Braintree, 47-11; Norwood, 41-19, and Dedham, 32-19.

"I'm very pleased with the way things have gone," Mariano said. "The team's attitude is excellent, the boys are working very hard and I am proud of them. The team is relatively young with only four seniors among the 12 starters, but I have seen plenty of poise and commitment from everyone."

The tri-captains are off to excellent starts. Len Picot, the outstanding wrestler at 188 in last year's south sectional tournament and 18-1 in dual meets, is 5-0, as are Dan Madden, sectional champion at 100 last year, and Lou Venturelli, sectional runnerup at 114 a year ago. The fourth senior, Don Heath, has also been excellent with three wins in five matches.

Steve Venturelli, 3-1-1, Steve Notarangelo, 4-0, and Jim Mullarkey, 3-1, are juniors wrestling varsity for their second year and making major contributions, according to their coach.

Kevin McCarthy, Rennie Crowe, John Shea, Tony Marinelli, Tony Akoury, Mike Shea and Joe Shea round out the juniors, along with John Vespaziani and Walter Steen, who are coming off recent injuries.

"Once again the city's junior high program has produced a number of talented sophomores for us," Mariano said.

Stephen Picot, Geof Caflisch, Paul Orlando, John Fitzgerald and Martin Doyle have already been actively involved in the varsity's early success. Todd Veale, Joe Irvine, John O'Leary, Sam Hassan, Joe Callahan, Frank McManus, Mike Dalton, George McHugh, Jeff Heath and David Carbonneau are also showing much promise in their first year.

"We have a very tough schedule ahead including a meet with defending state champion Chelmsford," Mariano went on. "Also Suburban League powers Brockton, Waltham and Newton North. If our people continue to work as they have, however, we should be competitive against even these strong teams."

In last week's Lowell Christmas Tournament Quincy finished behind Milford and North Andover. Madden won the 114 class, Len Picot won the 187-pound division, Notarangelo took third in the 107-pound class and Lou Venturelli was second in the 121-pound class.

The Presidents yesterday met Marshfield, Saturday they will face Chelmsford and Concord-Carlisle at Chelmsford at 6 o'clock and Monday will host Weymouth South at the Quincy Armory at 6.

Steve Joyce's North Quincy grapplers, who romped over Cambridge Rindge and Latin last week for their second win, will be at Newton South Saturday at 3:30 and Tuesday at 6 will be home to Milford.

Track Club To Hold Awards Banquet Friday

The Quincy Track Club will hold its first awards banquet for the championship cross country team Friday. The speaker will be National Women's Marathon Champion Patty LaTora.

The club will appear in its first National Calibre Open meet when Coaches Jeff Hennessy and John Jacoppo take six girls to the U.S. Track and Field Federation's Dartmouth Relays.

Participating will be the 220 relay team of Linda Cellini, Karen McCarthy, Sue McLoughlin and Denise Santo. Cellini will also run the 800 meters, McCarthy will be in the high jump and Santo and McLoughlin will run the dash.

Mary Crehan will run the 3000 meters and Bodil Wahlstedt, an exchange student from Sweden and the national age group champion in her country, will throw the shot put. Michelle Millane is an alternate.

Rich Papaluca will run in the men's dash and Hennessey will be entered in the hurdles.

The Quincy club recently dominated the NEAAU meet at Franklin High School for the second time in a row.

Santo [6.4] and Penny Sawyer [6.5] took first and second in the girls' 50-yard dash. Martha Donaghue was third in that event. Karen Lindentelzer placed second in the 440 and Michelle Millane was third. Sheila Barrett ran her best race ever and took second in the mile at 6:02.3 and Linda Kennedy was third. Kara Crehan led teammates Lindenfelzer and Donaghue to a sweep of the high jump.

In boys' action Kevin Wood won the 50, the 440 with his best time of 61.8, the mile and the high jump. Newcomer Brad Kenyon was second in the 440 and third in the dash and high jump.

In the women's open events, Cellini won the 1000 in 2:54.8 and Crehan won the two-mile in 12:10.6. She is only 14 and established a club record. Her time qualifies her for the age group nationals which will be run next summer.

Donna Reardon placed second in the two-mile, Millane won the shot with her best throw, 30-11½, and Linda Morash was third with a 27-4½, five feet better than last year. Hennessy took second in men's hurdles.

Men's Candlepin Tourney To Open Jan. 22

The 25th annual Greater Quincy men's candlepin bowling tournament, sponsored by the Koch Club of Quincy, will start Sunday, Jan. 22, at noon at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome, Quincy Shore Drive, Wollaston.

Applications are now available and can be obtained at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome.

Teams entered must be from an organized men's bowling league. No pickup teams are allowed and rules governing the competition are the same as regular league rules.

The top five bowlers in the league as of Jan. 13, bowl in competition with the sixth and seventh bowlers in the standings used as alternates. If, for one reason or another, one of the top seven bowlers cannot compete, the league officials may choose down in their roster according to average to provide the full compliment of bowlers needed.

Bowlers entered must have bowled half the season thus far with their respective leagues and may only bowl for one tourney entry.

Any violation of the above rules will forfeit the team's participation.

All tournament matches will be decided on total pinfall.

It is an elimination tourney and each team must win to continue in competition.

The first entries received will bowl on Sunday, Jan. 22, with the remaining teams registered bowling on Jan. 29.

Opposition each Sunday is automatic according to the alley number drawn.

The Koch Club of Quincy has sponsored the event for the past quarter of a century and Richard J. Koch, founder of the competition, is tourney director.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

DON'T 'WALK OFF' SPRAINS

A sprained ankle or other injury should not be "walked off" so that the player can get back into action as soon as possible.

"A young athlete is often under a lot of pressure to get back in the game," says Dr. Jacob Suker, of Northwestern University and physician for the Chicago Cubs. "The coach wants to win. The kid's father is worried about his chances of winning a college scholarship, and his teammates may think the injury is not that bad."

"But a sprained ankle in a youngster can become serious if it is not properly treated. We've seen youngsters who had to undergo surgery to have their ankles fused because of the damage done to supporting structures while trying to walk off an injury."

Athletes of all ages should give injured muscles a rest. Give Mother Nature a chance. Never work a hurting muscle or joint.

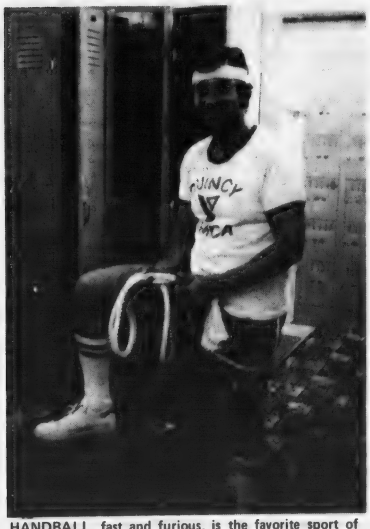
Plenty Doing At YMCA's Renovated Men's Facility



NOONTIME BASKETBALL game relaxes Quincy business men who are members of the Business & Professional Mens' Facility at the Quincy YMCA. A special program has been inaugurated for men wanting to keep physically fit despite a busy schedule. With the opening of the new Floyd Folmsbee, Sr. Memorial Wing in January the program will be expanded. The wing will have an indoor track, four-wall handball court and a fully equipped Olympic weight room. For boxing enthusiasts there will be a ring, a speed bag and a heavy bag. A 24 by 48 foot padded mat will be provided for wrestling buffs.

Quincy Hosts Cambridge Rindge, North At Newton Saturday

Quincy's hockey team, with a 3-0 record, sought its fourth win last night (Wednesday) against Weymouth North.

Saturday the Presidents will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin at 6:40 at the Youth Arena. Next Thursday Quincy will play at Waltham at 8.

North Quincy, following two non-league wins, has dropped four Suburban League games in a row. The Raiders will try to snap their losing streak Saturday when they play Newton at 2:30 p.m. Next Wednesday they will host Brookline at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

Quincy topped North Quincy, 3-1, last Saturday for its third win in a row.

Earlier it had lost a 5-2 lead but pulled out a 6-5 win over Newton North on Mark Giordani's unassisted goal at 10:11 of the final period.

After Newton had taken an early 1-0 lead John Norton tied it with Tom Cahill and Robbie Craig assisting.

Quincy scored four times in the middle period. Cahill started off the spree with Jim Deitsch assisting, Craig scored with assists for Cahill and Brian Bertoni, Bertoni scored with Mike Bondarick having an assist and Craig scored again with Norton assisting. Newton added one goal.

Newton scored three unanswered goals in the third period to tie it at 5-5 but Giordani came through with his goal with 4:49 left in the game to win it.

Prior to its loss to Quincy, North Quincy has bowed to Weymouth South, 5-2.

John Cooney and Jim Moore had the Raider goals with assists for Paul Cooney, Paul Graham and Pat Ennis.

There is intense rivalry between North and Weymouth South as Raider coach Ron Erikson and South Coach Norm Walker were teammates at Merrimack College.

Income Tax Course At Quincy Junior

Quincy Junior College will offer a non-credit course in individual income tax, starting Tuesday, Jan. 24, 10 a.m. to 12 noon, at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School. The course will also be offered on Tuesday evenings 7-9 p.m.

Albino Peruzzi, who will instruct the course, is a tax accountant who has been engaged in the income tax field for over twenty years.

The course will focus on the many changes brought about by the 1976 Tax Reform Act.

Peruzzi will discuss and explain, on actual tax forms, these changes, such as child care expenses for working couples, the retirement income credit for the elderly, tax advantages on sale of personal residences for senior citizens, and tax benefits of home ownership for the younger set.

Also, long term and short term capital gains and losses, plus moving and education expenses will be discussed, but most important will be the distinct tax savings of the new individual retirement account and the earned income credit, which may not have been properly exposed to the tax payers who qualified.

Other topics will include the application of income averaging, particularly for persons with unusually high incomes, the depreciation and other deductions of rental property, how to determine taxable portion of pensions, and when it is necessary to file quarterly estimated taxes. Also, the deductions most often overlooked will be mentioned, as well as state taxes.

For further information and a college brochure call Dean Mula at 471-9200 or 471-2470.

Major Appointees . . .

FOUR MAJOR APPOINTEES -- Mayor Arthur Tobin looks on as City Clerk John Gillis swears in four of the new mayor's first major appointees. With hands raised are Executive Secretary George Riley, City Solicitor Richard Barry, Public Works Commissioner James Ricciuti and Mrs. Muriel Chandler, administrative aide.

Treasurer Screening Next

Tobin Appoints Ricciuti, Riley, Barry, Chandler

By TOM HENSHAW

The Tobin Administration took a firmer grasp on the city government this week.

On Tuesday:

- George R. Riley, insurance man and former city purchasing agent, was sworn in as Mayor Tobin's executive secretary.
- Richard W. Barry, attorney and former City Councillor, was sworn in as City Solicitor.
- James J. [Pete] Ricciuti took the oath of office for the second time as Commissioner of Public Works, a post he held from 1971 to 1976.
- Mrs. Muriel Chandler, Tobin's personal secretary for the past 10 years, was sworn in as administrative aide to the Mayor.

All except Mrs. Chandler had their credentials reviewed by the Mayor's Screening Committee.

Dennis Ryan also was up for reappointment to the Hospital Board of Managers Tuesday but Tobin said he postponed the move so that the screening committee could look him over.

Ryan had been asked to resign by ex-Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia who claimed his job as clerk of Quincy District Court was a conflict of interest. Ryan refused.

Following the swearing in Tuesday, Tobin made the following disclosures:

- Agatha Deschenes will remain as purchasing agent until March when she is due to retire after 20 years in city service. It will mean another $400 a year in her pension.

Tobin said Mrs. Deschenes offered her resignation but he refused to accept it. Had he done so, she would have reverted to her permanent job as clerk.

- Several applications have been received for the post of city treasurer, which has been held by Robert Foy through the administrations of LaRaia and Walter J. Hannon. They will be screened.
- He plans to reorganize the

Quinn Names New Chairmen

Lydon, McGrath, Kelly, Harold Get Top Council Posts

City Council President John J. Quinn named the new Council Committees this week with John J. Lydon Jr., Paul Harold, Leo J. Kelly and newcomer Stephen McGrath emerging with the top prizes.

Lydon was given two of Quinn's old jobs as chairman of the powerful Finance and Rules Committees in addition to his old posts as head of the Public Safety and Veteranss' Services Committees.

Young McGrath whose vote assured Quinn of the council presidency was named chairman of Ordinance Committee, a rare honor for a freshman councillor.

Kelly was named chairman of the Public Works Committee.

Harold, who got two votes in the council presidency derby, was given chairmanship of the Committee on Oversight, the council's investigatory arm. He traded committee posts with James A. Sheets who took over the Federal Funds Committee.

Francis X. McCauley, who served in the City Council from 1964 through 1967, was named chairman of the youth committee and vice chairman of the finance committee.

Joanne Condon, the first woman on the Council in nearly 20 years, got the chairmanship of the Public Health and Hospital Committee and the vice chairmanship of public works.

The new lineup, with the chairman first named, the vice chairman second and members following, include:

FINANCE: Lydon, McCauley, Condon, Harold, Kelly, McGrath, Quinn, Raymondi, Sheets.

ORDINANCE: McGrath, Raymondi, Condon, Harold, Kelly, Lydon, McCauley, Quinn, Sheets.

OVERSIGHT: Harold, Lydon, Condon, Kelly,

Udall To Tour Adams Birthplaces Jan. 28

Arizona Congressman Morris Udall will be in Quincy Saturday, Jan. 28 to tour the Presidents Adams Birthplaces on Franklin St., South Quincy to seek information regarding the continuing drive to turn over control of the site to the federal government.

Udall, as chairman of the House Committee on the Interior, will be deeply involved in the planned transfer, according to City Councillor Paul Harold, since the Interior Committee oversees the National Parks System, the planned recipient of the historic site.

Harold, who chairs a City Council sub-committee on the birthplaces, said Udall will be greeted at a reception to which city officials, Historical Society directors and the sub-committee members have been invited. He will tour the birthplaces at about 3:30 p.m.

According to Harold the reception is planned to show that strong community sentiment exists for the federal

Council, School Committee Meet Thursday On Vacancy Guidelines

The City Council and the School Committee will meet tonight [Thursday] at 7 p.m. in the Method Center of Quincy High School to establish guidelines for naming a successor to Francis X. McCauley on the School Committee.

McCauley resigned Jan. 3 just before taking the oath of office as a city councillor with two years left on his School Committee term.

Under the charter, his successor is to be named by a joint convention of the five remaining members of the School Committee, plus the Mayor as chairman, and the nine members of the City Council.

The successor will not be named tonight.

So far, seven people have submitted applications and resumes for the job to the office of School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, who is also secretary to the School Committee.

They include former Committeemen Charles T. Sweeny and Francis Anselmo, who lost their posts in the November election, and J. Thomas Mullaney, who also ran and lost.

Others are: Miss Janet Caristo, a business study teacher at Silver Lake Regional High School, Pembroke; Ronald Conway, education resource officer in the Boston Police Department; Mary J. Mayo, secretary and bookkeeper to the School Department's food service coordinator, and William J. Hurley, a Boston school teacher for 25 years, the past 12 as an assistant principal.

Atty. Stephen T. Keefe Jr. and Patrick J. Conroy, an unsuccessful candidate for City Council last fall, submitted and withdrew applications, Mayor Tobin said. Resumes and other credentials will be submitted to an open hearing prior to the naming of a successor to McCauley, a procedure that was suggested by City Councillor Leo J. Kelly.

It will be the fifth time in the past 30 years that a vacany will have to be filled on the School Committee.

Twice new members were voted in by joint conventions of the City Council and the School Committee; once the runnerup was named by ruling of the City Solicitor; and once the runnerup

The Quincy Department of Wire Inspection issued 94 permits for an estimated $184,763 in new wiring during December reports Thomas E. Purpura, acting inspector of wires. Fees collected amounted to $1,573.

During the same period the department made 127 inspections, noting 11 defects. There were 10 re-inspections and two fire-calls.

Major wiring projects during the month included:

– A new building for the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., 100 Quincy Ave.

– A new electrically operated lift at Furnace Brook ski slope, South Central Ave.

– A new five-unit apartment building at 23 Claremont Ave.

– First phases of electrical work for new 270-unit apartment building at 125 Granite St.

Says Quincy Short Changed

Brownell Urges Reformation Of School Aid Distribution Formula

The present state school aid distribution formula is grossly unfair to Quincy because of under funding and the priority of special and bilingual education funds, Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy) told the Special Commission on Unequal Education Opportunity at a meeting in Faneuil Hall, Boston.

Brownell urged adoption of a recommendation which would reform the present formula. He pointed out that for fiscal 1977, Quincy received approximately $5.8 million in state reimbursements for education.

"If the current formula was working correctly Quincy should have gotten an actual aid entitlement of approximately $7.8 million," he contended.

"So Quincy was short-changed about $2 million in state education aid because of the inequity built into the current formula," he charged.

He told the Commission that as a result the property taxpayers of Quincy "were forced to subsidize the failure of the state to fully fund the formula."

Brownell warned that unless the formula is changed "Quincy will probably experience an underfunding level of well over 50 percent for fiscal year 1978" and that "Quincy's property taxpayers will not be able to absorb this loss in state aid."

The Quincy legislator recommended that a new fiscal ability formula be adopted using a per capita test rather than school attending children test.

"This index would increase aid to cities such as Quincy which are sorely in need of property tax reduction," he said.

Fate Of Controversial Facility Uncertain

Plans For Mail Center To Be Reviewed In Wake Of Strong Opposition

By PETER BARNICLE

The fate of the proposed controversial Incoming Mail Center in Braintree remained uncertain this week, but there can be little doubt that officials of the Postal Service in Washington now know that Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Milton do not like the idea.

Strenuous opposition to the proposed center planned for the Five Corners area of Braintree was voiced by an overflow crowd attending a hearing in the John F. Kennedy Health Center, Quincy, with Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton] leading foes of the project.

Burke told a cheering audience of nearly 400 that if the project is not abandoned he will call for a Congressional investigation.

Following the hearing Congressman Burke sent a telegram to Postmaster General Benjamin F. Bailer calling on him to put an immediate hold on plans for the IMC.

Burke pointed out that "there is utter confusion as to the Postal Service's plans for mail service in the South Shore area. Local officials have not been consulted in the drafting of the program to streamline mail service, and there appears to be no specific information available on the social and economic impact of the changes which the Postal Service proposes."

Frank Sommerkamp, Northeastern regional postmaster general, said at the close of the hearing he would inform Washington of the opinions expressed and conceded that the Postal Service would have to review its plans.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin and the nine members of the City Council voiced vigorous disapproval of the Postal Service plan.

Sommerkamp explained that under the plan all incoming mail for Quincy, Milton, Weymouth and Braintree would be picked up by carriers at the IMC. The plan also calls for the closing of Wollaston and Milton Village post offices. He was challenged a number of times when he said that mechanization would improve the service.

Speaker after speaker denounced the proposed system, insisting that it would cause undue hardships on businesses and the elderly.

Sommerkamp said that the Braintree site had been selected after "all other possible locations had been looked at." However, no specific site was mentioned.

The 7.38 acre site was purchased in 1975 at a cost of $560,000 the meeting was told.

Anthony J. Mollica, chairman of the Braintree selectmen, said the town stands to lose $200,000 in real estate taxes as a result of the Postal Service takeover.

He said that while the facility will pay no taxes the town will have to maintain roads, fire and police protection, water, sewerage and other utilities.

He pointed out that the traffic conditions in Five Corners have been a problem for more than 30 years and the building of a postal facility will aggravate the situation.

Philip L. Sullivan, sectional manager of the Boston Postal District, denied he had stated that "raw mail" would be trucked directly from Logan Airport to the facility.

Congressman Burke complained that postal officials had been very secretive in their negotiation and had failed to contact public officials or people who would be affected most by the proposed new system.

"There's an arrogance on the part of the Post Office," he shouted, pointing at Sullivan. "Since when have you been appointed a dictator!

"Let me serve notice on the Post Office Department that you have to prove to me that you are going to save money; that you are going to improve the service.

"Believe me, I'm powerful enough in the Congress of the United States to go to the Post Office and Civil Service Committee and have them come down here for an investigation," Burke states.

The Congressman and others complained that their letters to postal officials requesting

$57,905 In New Plumbing

Eighty permits for an estimated $57,905 in plumbing were issued with the Quincy Inspector of Plumbing and Gas Fitting during Decembe..

During the same period, Inspector James A. Erwin Jr., reports that 76 permits for gas fitting were issued.

Fees totaling $428 were collected for the plumbing permits. A total of 124 inspections were made during the month.

Permit fees for gas fitting amounted to $336. Estimated cost of the work was $28,762. There were 74 inspections in December.

Aquinas Offers Student Medical Program

The Aquinas Junior College educational program for Medical Assistants has been accredited by the Committee on Allied Health Education and Accreditation in collaboration with the American Association of Medical Assistants.

The program was established in 1973 when it was increasingly apparent that there was a growing interest and demand for a career-oriented program for young women drawn to a para-professional career.

Upon the accreditation, students are now able to take the Certification Examination the first week in June following their graduation from Aquinas. Before, graduates of the program had to acquire a year of clinical experience before they were allowed to take the exam.

Those who pass the exam become Certified Medical Assistants, competent practitioners who assume both administrative and clinical responsibilities in hospitals, physicians' offices, ambulatory care and other medical facilities.

Diane Erwin Re-Elected Sorority President

Diane Erwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Erwin, 3 Isabella St., South Quincy, has been re-elected president of Delta Zeta sorority at Plymouth State College.

Miss Erwin was elected to the presidency in her sophomore year. A graduate of Quincy High School, she is a physical education major.

Collecting silver spoons is a fascinating hobby for silver connoisseurs and history enthusiasts alike. Up to 1700, most spoons were made in the same general size, although their length varied from 5" to 7". But by the beginning of the eighteenth century, spoons were produced for specific purposes. One could buy teaspoons, tablespoons, and dessert spoons in the same pattern. The basting spoon had an over-sized bowl and an extra long handle. The serving spoon was in between the basting spoon and the tablespoon in size. The mustard spoon had a deep bowl and a curled handle – it resembled a small ladle.

We're here at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490 to give you fine service. Whenever you need an item for gifts or yourself, we hope you'll take the time to visit us. One of our many services is to discreetly dispose of unwanted jewelry for private owners, banks or estates. Open: Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Equal Opportunity Affirmative Action Employer

HAROLD M. FISHER of 57 Rodman St., South Quincy [right], newly elected President of the Supreme Anchor Club of America, is congratulated by Joseph Nucera, past president. The Supreme Anchor Club whose members are Third Degree members of the Knights of Columbus, engage in charitable and Catholic action activities. Fisher is also a member of Richard Cardinal Cushing General Assembly, Fourth Degree and is employed by Penn Central Railroad System.

[James Heffernan]

Harold Fisher To Be Installed Supreme Anchor Club President

Harold M. Fisher, 57 Rodman St., South Quincy, will be installed as president of the Supreme Anchor Club of America at ceremonies to be held at the Hotel Biltmore, New York City, Jan. 20.

Fisher, an employee of the Penn Central Railroad, was elected at the club's annual convention held at the Concord Hotel, Kiamesha Lake, New York.

The Anchor Club which has 7,500 members throughout the United States and Canada, draws its membership from Third and Fourth Degree, Knights of Columbus. Fisher is a member of the Quincy Council Knights of Columbus, and the Cardinal Cushing General Assembly, Fourth Degree.

The organization provides scholarships to help seminarians complete their studies for the priesthood and also give aid to religious orders working with exceptional children.

Parishioners Plan Testimonial For Fr. John McMahon

Parishioners of St. Mary's Church, West Quincy, are planning a testimonial Mass and dinner for their pastor, Rev. John J. McMahon in honor of his 35th anniversary as a Catholic priest.

On Saturday, Jan. 21, there will be a concelebrated Mass in the Church at 6:30 p.m. followed by a dinner and dance downstairs in the hall.

The Most Rev. Daniel A. Hart, Auxiliary Bishop of Boston, will preside at the Mass, and will speak at the dinner. Earl Hannafin's orchestra will play for dancing.

More than 400 people are expected to attend, according to General Chairman Leo F. Meady. Other committee members include Rev. James F. Lanergan, associate pastor at St. Mary's, honorary chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Beatson, Mr. and Mrs. John DiBona, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Flaherty, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Herbert, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Kilcommons, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lally, Mr. and Mrs.

FR. JOHN McMAHON

George McDonald, Mrs. Leo Meady, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Meenan, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Prewitt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Storella and Mr. and Mrs. James Triglia.

Father McMahon has been at St. Mary's for the past 14 years.

Fr. McMahon was born in Brockton in 1913. He graduated from Brockton High School in 1931, attended St. Philips Preparatory School and received his degree from Boston College in 1938. After attending St. John's Seminary he was ordained by the late Richard Cardinal Cushing in 1943.

His first assignment was at St. John's, Canton, where he served until 1948. He also served briefly at Immaculate Conception Church in East Weymouth and for two years at St. Margaret's in Lowell. After six months at St. Peter's, Plymouth in 1950, he was transferred to St. Williams, Dorchester, and was there until 1964.

He has been at St. Mary's since 1964, first as assistant and since 1968 as pastor, succeeding the late Rt. Rev. Cornelius Donovan.

His 14 years at St. Mary's makes him the dean of all Quincy priests from a point of service.

Quincy Catholic Club To Hear Fr. Kevin Cronin

The Quincy Catholic Club will meet Jan. 18 at 8 p.m. at the Viking Club, Braintree.

Quincy Historical Society To Host Bay State Winter Meeting

The Quincy Historical Society will host the winter meeting of the Bay State Historical Society Jan. 14 at Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy Center.

The program which starts at 9 a.m., will run all day beginning with registration and coffee. A business meeting will be held at 10 a.m. with William O'Connell, president, and Lawrence Yerdon, director-curator, both of the Quincy Society, as speakers.

A noon tour of the historic United First Parish Church will follow and at 1 p.m. a catered lunch will be served there. The afternoon will consist of six workshops beginning at 2:15 p.m. at the Academy. They include:

"Planning Your Programs - Some Helpful Hints", Mary Clark, Quincy Historical Society.

"Junior Historians", Harold Crowley, Quincy Historical Society.

"A Morning With The Alcotts", Jayne Gordon, Director, Louisa May Alcott Memorial Association [Orchard House, Concord].

"History For Children", Michele West, Minute Man National Historical Park, Lexington.

"Successful Educational Programs At Braintree's Thayer House", Mary Cunningham, Braintree Historical Society.

"Interpreting History Through The Decorative Arts", Dean Roberts, president, Hamilton Historical Society.

At 3:30 p.m. a slide show of the Adams' Houses will be presented by Lawrence D. Gall, historian, Adams National Historical Site. A social hour and tour of the Academy will begin at 4:30. The program will close with a mid-winter festival at the First Parish Church including dinner and an evening of historic music by the Social Harp.

Ecologists say we can help maintain the balance of nature by the way we garden. It is what they call "companion planting" and the idea is that certain plants help each other by being close and others definitely do not take to togetherness. It is all in their aromas, the chemicals they give off, and the insects they attract and repel. Which ones go with what best? Some say broccoli likes smelly herbs and onions. Brussel sprouts enjoy being close to all members of the cabbage family. Beans are a joy and are compatible with most vegetables - except onions. Asparagus and tomatoes are a twosome - likewise peas and carrots. So be aware and read up on plant relationships. It's fun.

Whether you are in the market for flowers or a plant for yourself or as a gift our staff at NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 will pay attention to your particular needs. Our shop displays are beautiful and creative and we invite you to stop by whether or not you plan on becoming a customer. We are multi-lingual so we can assist you in French, Italian or Spanish. "For the Creative and Unusual in Floral Designing". Member of FTD and Teleflora. Master Charge and BankAmericard honored. Hours: Mon. - Sat. 8-6, evenings by appointment.

QJC Community Service Courses

Over 40 Community Service Courses are being offered by Quincy Junior College, Division of Continuing Education, in addition to its regular credit course offerings beginning Jan. 23.

Community Service Courses are non-credit courses open to any person who feels they may profit from them. This credit-free approach to learning makes it possible for one to continue to learn in an informal, non-competitive environment.

There are two types of Community Service courses. One type of course is that designed to increase career skills. Among these are Bookkeeping I and II, Key Punching, typing and shorthand [Beginners and Advanced], preparation for the Real Estate Brokers' Exam, Basic Mathematics Review, Basic Writing, English, Speed Reading, Creative Writing, Opportunities in the Travel Industry, Fundamentals of Investments and Option Trading, Practical Spanish for Medical Personnel, and The Care and Prevention of Athletic Injuries.

The other type of course is designed for one's personal interest and hobby. Courses in this category include Outdoor Gardening, Astrology, Antiques, Beginning Guitar I and II, Photography, Interior Decorating, Pottery, Drawing, Painting, Bronze and Jewelry Making, Meditation and Yoga, Conversational French I and II, Law for the Layman, Assertiveness Training, Diet Workshop, Ballroom, Disco and Novelty Dancing, Roles of Women in Society, Conversational Spanish, Income Tax for the Layman, Small Boat Navigation, Kennedy Assassination, Conversational Italian II, Parenting, and Parliamentary Procedures.

Credit-free courses begin on January 23 and continue for 7 to 10 weeks. Registration is on Jan. 17, 18, 19, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m. at the College.

For course descriptions and further information call 471-9200 or 471-2470.

QHS Career Information Night Jan. 17

Students, parents, and members of the community are invited to share in a Career Information Night Tuesday, Jan. 17, at 7:30 p.m. in the Method Center of Quincy High School. The program is sponsored by the Guidance Department.

A panel of guests and their affiliates include: Ronald DuBois, South Shore Collaborative for Career Education; Joseph Deery, Massachusetts Division of Employment Security; William Hitchcock, State Street Bank and Trust Company; Philip Quinn, Massachusetts Rehabilitation Commission; and Helen Sullivan, Commercial Union Assurance Companies.

Purpose of the program is to discuss the present and future local labor market as seen by the panel members and tie this analysis into educational choices and career goals.

High School Counselors will be available at 6 p.m. in the Pupil Personnel Office. Appointments may be made by calling 471-0100 [Ext. 385].

Sharing Sessions At Central For Parents Of 7th Graders

Parents of seventh grade students at Central Junior High School, have been invited to meet with administration, faculty and guidance personnel in a series of sharing sessions for a discussion of individual concerns, school matters and policies.

The informal question and answer sessions will be held in the first floor media center of the school and will last approximately one hour.

The schedule is:

Tuesday, Jan. 17 - 1:10 p.m.; Thursday, Jan. 19 - 10:15-11:30 a.m. and 1:20 p.m.; Monday, Jan. 23 - 1 p.m.

Vincent R. Moscardelli, school principal, says he and his staff hope to answer questions concerning homework, book reports, field trips and other concerns about junior high school adjustment.

School Committee Vacancy Guidelines

was automatically moved into the spot under the Plan E charter.

The most recent occasion was in February, 1968, when Atty. Paul C. Kelly was chosen by joint convention to succeed Dr. Edward S. Mann, president of Eastern Nazarene College, who resigned.

Ironically, Kelly's chief opponent in the convention balloting was Charles T. Sweeny, who had been narrowly defeated for re-election to the Committee the previous November.

Once again, in 1978, Sweeny finds himself in the position of being a candidate to fill a vacancy only months after losing a bid for re-election.

Kelly, a 39-year-old lawyer who had never run for the position before, got 11 convention votes to four for Sweeny, who came back to be elected again on his own in 1969.

Voting for Kelly at the time were Mayor James R. McIntyre, Councillars Albert R. Barilaro, Edward S. Graham, Clifford H. Marshall, George B. McDonald, John J. Quinn, J. Vincent Smyth and Arthur H. Tobin, and School Committee members James F. McCormick Sr., Alice Mitchell and Ruth E. Scanlan.

Sweeny got the votes of Councillors Walter J. Hannon and John F. Koegler and School Committeemen Franis Anselmo and Dr. Charles Djerf.

Three other candidates announced interest in the post but they received no votes. They were Atty. Maurice R. Horrigan Jr., Arnold Levine and William F. Shea.

Kelly went on to top the ticket for re-election in 1969 but he did not seek re-election in 1973.

James F. McCormick succeeded Atty. Paul K. Duffey on the School Committee in February, 1959, by ruling of then City Solicitor Douglas Randall.

Duffey had been elected in 1955 under the last Plan E election in Quincy. McCormick finished fourth in a race for three spots in 1957, the first election under the new Plan A charter.

After Duffey resigned when his company transferred him to Philadelphia, Solicitor Randall ruled that Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and the remaining members of the School Committee were bound by the charter to select McCormick.

Later, McCormick was re-elected to three more terms on the Committee.

Back in 1952, when the Rev. Joseph E. Parkman resigned from the Board it was an easy matter choosing his successor.

The Plan E charter specified that the ballots from the last election should be counted again and the runnerup named. They were and Ethel B. Wiley was selected.

In January, 1949, following the death in office of Mrs. Helen E. Spencer, a joint convention of the City Council and the School Committee was called under the old Plan A charter.

Mrs. Anne B. Forsyth a former school teacher who had never before sought the office, was selected unanimously on the second ballot. The first time around she got seven of the 15 votes with the rest split up among three other candidates.

They were Mrs. Parkman A. Collins, Mrs. Ida N. Glasser and Mrs. Daniel Riley. Mrs. Wesley C. Marsh, who had been defeated for the post in 1945, also was a candidate.

On the first ballot, Mrs. Forsyth got the votes of Councillors Clifton H. Baker, Amelio Della Chiesa and Thomas J. Gilmartin and School Committeemen William A. Anderson, A. Wendell Clark, Alexander Smith and Raymond C. Warmington.

Mrs. Collins received support from Carter Lee, Carl W. Anderson and Edna B. Austin; Mrs. Riley from John B. O'Connor and William J. Papile; and Mrs. Glasser from Frank N. Orcutt.

Mayor Charles A. Ross did not vote on either ballot.

One of Mrs. Forsyth's first moves as a member of the Board was to propose that every other meeting of the committee be held behind closed doors in order to avoid time-consuming discussions. It was not adopted.

She was re-elected to the committee in 1949 but finished out of contention in 1951, the city's second Plan E election.

Cerasoli Backs Re-surfacing At Point-Webster School

Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli (D-Quincy) has written to the Quincy School Committee in support of a request from the Parent Advisory Board and principal of the Point-Webster complex relative to resurfacing of the school grounds.

"It is my understanding that this request has been made for the past several years, and is being re-submitted this year," Cerasoli said.

"As State Representative of the area, I visit the school grounds often and visit inside the school at least once a month.

"There are numerous cracks, potholes, and portions of pavement missing. In these areas, glass and other sharp objects have accumulated and present a definite safety hazard to children and citizens who use the facilities for voting.

"I think that you and the school committee deserve credit for the excellent upgrading of the Point Webster physical plant.

"Hopefully you will decide favorably to resurface the school grounds and continue to act in the best interest of our children."

Funeral Services Held For 3 Quincy Men Killed In Randolph Crash

Funeral services for three Quincy men killed in a car crash in Randolph were held Wednesday.

The fatal accident occured about 11 p.m. on Saturday when their car hit a patch of ice on Route 139, skidded, crossed the dividing line, and was in collision with an oncoming vehicle.

Killed were Edward P. Murphy, 21, of 41 Barry St., identified as the driver; Leo F. Lyons, 19, of 25 Morton St., and John F. Curran, 20 of 357 Quarry St., all of West Quincy.

Murphy and Lyons were pronounced dead on arrival at Cardinal Cushing Hospital. Curran died shortly after being admitted to Goddard Memorial Hospital, Stoughton.

Hall Burton, 17, of Bedford, a passenger in the other car, is reported in good condition at Goddard Hospital, with a fractured pelvis and dislocated hip. His brother, Samuel Barton, 20, driver of the car, and Fred Kelly, 17, also of Bedford, were treated at Goddard Hospital and released.

John F. Curran was the son of James Curran and the late Mary C. [O'Brien] Curran.

He was born in Quincy, attended St. Mary's School and graduated from Archbishop Williams High School in 1975.

He was honorably discharged from the Air Force in June, 1977, after serving at an airbase in Tucson, Ariz., as a mechanic on heavy equipment.

He was waiting test results in preparation to entering Northeastern University where he planned to study accounting.

He leaves his father, two brothers, James F. Curran and Steven M. Curran, both of the home address; two aunts and two uncles.

A funeral Mass was held at 9 a.m., Wednesday, at St. Mary's Church, West Quincy.

At 10 a.m. a funeral Mass was held for Edward P. Murphy at the same church. A native of Braintree, he had lived most of his life in Quincy.

He graduated from Quincy High School in 1975 and was employed as a welder at General Dynamics, Quincy.

He is survived by his parents, William and Josephine [Mahoney] Murphy; three brothers, William F. Murphy Jr., and Michael J., both of West Quincy, and James M. Murphy, U.S. Army, of California, and three sisters, Mary Jane Murphy of West Quincy, Catherine G. Murphy of Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., and Mrs. Christina Morrison of Quincy.

Leo Lyons, 19, was born in Ashland, N.C., and lived in Quincy for several years.

He was a member of the 1976 class at Quincy High School and captain of the golf team. He was also a member of the Quincy Yacht Club, the Brewster Golf Club and the Furnace Brook Golf Club.

He is survived by his parents, Leo and Ellen [Keefe] Lyons; a sister, Ellen Elizabeth Lyons of Quincy; his grandmother, Mrs. Eleanor M. Tobin of Quincy; several aunts and uncles.

A funeral Mass was celebrated at Most Blessed Sacreament Church, Houghs Neck at 9 a.m. Wednesday.

All three were buried at Pine Hill Cemetery in West Quincy. The Joseph Sweeney Funeral Home, 326 Copeland St., West Quincy, handled funeral arrangements for the three.

Council On Aging Seeking Wheelchairs

By BETTY WOISLAW

During the past holiday season as we have all been scurrying from one activity to another as fast as our legs would carry us – I wonder how many have paused to consider how lucky we are to be able to get about on our own two feet.

This fact was brought to my attention several times during the past few weeks. First when in attempting to park at a local shopping mall I found many of the spaces near the entrance were reserved for handicapped persons using wheelchairs and again when I witnessed a happy group entering church with one of their members in a wheelchair.

How wonderful that through the use of a wheelchair these people were able to get out and join in the day to day activities we take for granted.

The Quincy Council on Aging has been aware for quite some time just how important a wheelchair can be in the everyday life of a person who because of illness or accident finds himself helplessly confined but for this conveyance.

Often because of a senior's age being under 65 or because of inadequate insurance coverage or other financial burdens the purchase of a wheelchair becomes impossible. When these circumstances have occured the Council has always been of help by loaning a wheelchair to the family who has a member in need of one. Over the years the Council has loaned out many chairs to the citizens of Quincy and at the moment we find our wheelchairs are all in use. The Council is always receiving requests for chairs so more are needed.

Perhaps at some time some of you may have had a relative that for one reason or another was confined to a wheelchair and now it is no longer being used. The wheelchair may have been relegated to the attic, cellar or storeroom. If such be the case, the Quincy Council on Aging would appreciate it if you would bring out the chair, dust it off and donate it to the Council.

If you have a wheelchair to donate just call 773-1380, [Ext. 243 or 244] and the Council will arrange to have someone pick it up.

With your cooperation, we may put more seniors on wheels and make their daily lives a little easier and pleasanter.

Ward 2 Civic Association To Install Officers Saturday

The Ward II Civic Association will install officers Saturday, Jan. 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse, Nevada Rd, Quincy Point.

Those installed will be: Bart Caggiano, president; Dante Lauretto, vice-president; Ted DeChristofaro, treasurer; Sharon Raymondi, recording secretary, and Owen Eaton, corresponding secretary.

Members of the Board of Directors include: Phyllis Bagen, Thomas Barrett, Isabel Brugge, Robert Cerasoli, Dan Raymondi, Dorothy Timcoe.

The Unity Award, given by the Association annually, will be presented this year to George Fay of 69 Scammell St., Quincy, for his achievements and continued involvement in the community over the past years.

Dancing and a buffet will follow the formal Installation Ceremonies with music provided by Guy Oliveri.

All members and guests are invited to attend.

'Watch' Topic For N.Q. Catholic Women

William Flanagan of the Quincy Police Department will present a program entitled "Community Watch" at a meeting of the Catholic Women's Club of North Quincy tonight [Thursday] at 8 p.m. in Sacred Heart School Hall on Glover St.

Mrs. Howard Crowley, president of the club will preside at the business meeting. Mrs. Bernard Moore and Mrs. Philip Doherty, are co-chairwomen of the evening. Refreshments will be served.

Medfield Hospital Closing Hearing

Members of Citizens Organization Assisting Mental Patients plan to attend a public hearing at Medfield State Hospital Wednesday, Jan. 18 on the proposed closing of the hospital, according to Mrs. Gwen Senger, 4 Ocean St., North Quincy.

Mrs. Senger, secretary of COAMP, said the organization is opposed to the proposal to move the facility to the Westboro State Hospital, and will voice their opposition at the hearing.

Dr. Robert L. Okin, state commissioner of mental health, is expected to attend and review plans for the future care of mental health patients on the South Shore.

COAMP, founded three years ago, has a membership made up of parents and friends of present and former patients of Medfield Hospital. The group does volunteer work at the hospital and assists patients after their discharge, endeavoring to aid them in adjusting.

The group meets at the Wollaston Congregational Church, Lincoln and Winthrop Aves. at 8 p.m. on the second Wednesday of the month and welcomes interested guests and prospective members.

If you are not covered by a company pension plan...
Now... With our IRA Plan you can build your own...
TAX-SHELTERED retirement nest egg
An Individual Retirement Account Is All To Your Advantage...in Many Ways

1. TAX-DEFERRED - All deposits you make to your retirement account are tax-deductible, and all interest earned is exempt from federal income tax during your working years.
2. HIGH EARNINGS - Your retirement account earns high savings bank interest for continuing and sustained growth.
3. NO RISK - Your retirement account is backed by our history of sound management and deposit safety, plus your account is insured, of course.
4. FLEXIBILITY - You determine how much you want to add to your retirement account, up to the legal maximum, and how frequently you wish to do so.
5. BENEFIT OPTIONS - You may start receiving benefits upon retirement any time between the ages of 59½ and 70½.
6. EASY TO OPEN - All you do is fill out a brief application/agreement form ... it takes only minutes. Ask for one.
7. NO PROBLEM IF YOU MOVE - If you move to a new locale you may continue your IRA deposits here by mail.

Contributions up to $1,500, or 15% of earned income, whichever is less, are deductible for Federal Income Tax purposes. But contributions are not deductible for Massachusetts Income Tax.
Interest earned on contributions is tax-deferred until distribution for both Federal and Massachusetts income tax. All amounts distributed and not previously taxed are usually taxed as ordinary income, in the year of distribution.
This is a summary of the basic tax effects of the Individual Retirement Account (IRA). For further details and special rules that may apply to your situation, consult your tax adviser.

Screening Committee Doing Good Job

The 10-member citizens committee has put a lot of time into screening appointees for Mayor Arthur Tobin's new administration.

And, before all the jobs are filled, a lot more time will have gone into the task.

Some people, however, apparently do not really understand the true function of the committee.

"A rubber stamp committee," a few have grumbled.

Not so!

The committee's job is not to appoint but to screen candidates for municipal posts. Mayor Tobin is the appointing power--not the committee.

He listens to the committee's recommendations and then makes his selections. It is his administrative team that is being put together--not the committee's.

The committee was created by Tobin to prevent some of the problems that beset the LaRaia administration and ultimately brought it down.

Through interviews and study, the committee assesses the candidates' qualifications and/or deficiences. And if there is a bad apple in the application barrel their job is to find it before--not after--an appointment.

The fact that the press-including this writer--has speculated on some of the appointments probably has led to a few calling it "a rubber stamp" committee.

This writer, for example, several weeks ago made several appointee predictions. Three of them have already come true.

How did we do it? By doing our own assessing via names being mentioned, bits of information, and closely watching the scene. Nobody on the committee, nor Mayor Tobin "leaked" us the names.

We've made predictions before and have a fairly good batting average. In fact we named most of Mayor LaRaia's appointees before he did. He wasn't too happy about it.

Mayor Tobin isn't too delighted either over our predictions. He would rather be the first to name them.

But in the newspaper business, speculating about who will get what political job starts the day after the election and continues until the final job is filled. It is part of the political scene.

A good many of our predictions come true, but we lose a few, too.

We, of course, like to remember the ones we got right. But we do get some wrong.

But the fact we get most of them right should not have any bearing on the workings of the screening committee.

The members are sincerely attempting to look over each candidate carefully and to make their recommendations honestly.

They do not want the wrong people in public trust anymore than you do. They remember the dirty laundry Quincy hung up not too long ago and the jeers from our neighbors.

The committee should be encouraged and thanked for devoting their time and talents to this cause--not criticized.

So right now, if you don't mind, we'd like to tip our editorial hat to:

Dr. Luleen Anderson, Robert Foley, Mrs. Norma Gacicia, Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, Dr. Donald MacLeod, Mrs. Ruth Paven, Dr. Gerald Rosenblatt, A. Mario Salvatore, Joseph A. Sullivan, and Andrew T. Walsh.

IF THERE WAS anyone enjoying himself more at the inaugural ball than Quincy's new mayor and first lady, Arthur and Shirley Tobin, it had to be former Mayor Thomas Burgin.

Burgin, who earlier in the day had been given an extraordinary tribute when Tobin dedicated the inaugural ceremonies in his honor was attending his first inaugural ball ever that night.

He stood in the reception line with the Tobins, former Mayors James McIntyre and Walter Hannon, City Councillors and School Committee members.

He had himself a ball seeing old friends and meeting new admirers and he made a discovery: things sure have changed since he was mayor.

Burgin, who will be 76 in April, recalled when he took office back in 1935: he was sworn in, went to lunch and right to work. That's all there was to it.

"You know," he smiled, leaning across to Tobin in the reception line, "I'm enjoying myself so much I might try a comeback."

READER SPEAKS OUT

Commends Elected Officials

Editor, Quincy Sun:

During the past three weeks I have had the opportunity to meet individually with the Mayor elect, and the members of the City Council and School Committee sworn in on Jan. 3. The purpose of these meetings was to discuss the soon to be vacant seat on the school committee.

My general impression after these meetings is that the people of Quincy are very fortunate to have such a highly motivated group of public officials. At a time when elected officials are being criticized for neglecting the needs of their constituencies, I was encouraged by the unanimous concern and responsiveness displayed by Quincy's leaders.

Each and every person I spoke with was willing to engage in an honest and frank discussion about the quality of education in our city. As a concerned parent with three children attending our schools I am particularly concerned with the future direction of public schooling in Quincy. I came away from my series of meetings with the feeling that many of our elected officials share those same concerns.

The caliber of the elected officials in our city is a tribute not only to the individuals who serve us but also to the citizens who elected them.

Finally, I would like to wish all of our public officials success in their endeavors and thank them for their kindness.

Koch Permanent Scholarship Fund At $8,020

The Koch Club Permanent Scholarship Fund has been raised to $8,020.14, with a $75 donation in memory of Mrs. Dora Ellis, announces Richard J. Koch, executive director of the club.

Robert Foy, city treasurer, reports that as of Dec. the fund had realized $7,945.14, since it was founded in December, 1973, with a $5,000 grant from proceeds of the 25th anniversary events of the Koch Club.

The interest accumulated and special gifts have increased the total to its present amount.

The grant will be activated in May, 1998, the 50th anniversary of the Koch Club, when scholarships will be awarded from the annual interest accrued guaranteeing that the fund will be perpetual.

Koch said the organization will continue its current scholarship program and will award $100 scholarships each to a boy and girl graduate of Quincy and North Quincy High Schools and a $50 scholarship to a boy and girl graduate of the Quincy Vocational Technical School.

The $500 awarded this year will result in a total of $8,000 having been awarded by the Koch Club since the scholarship program was initiated in 1959.

The scholarship fund was formed to impress upon the boys and girls that, although the Koch Club was primarily involved in recreational activities, the education of children was a prime concern of the organization.

Both efforts combined have resulted in $6,000 being expended and reserved for scholarship awards for present and future young residents of the city.

The Koch Club scholarship committee includes: Anthony T. Delmonico, chairman; Thomas F. Nestor, vice chairman; Gerry DelMonico; Richard J. Koch Jr.; Howard F. Crowley; Simone N. Koch and David J. Donaghue.

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS By Tom Henshaw

Snow? How About 49.8 Inches Of It!

A weekend storm dumped nearly a foot of new snow on Beleaguered Quincy, which was swamped with a record total of 49.8 inches for the season, the most since records were first kept in 1871.

The snow was so deep that its weight collapsed the roof of the Howard Johnson storehouse at 650 Adams St., scattering ice cream cans on nearby Shirley St.

Engineer Earl E. Nutter and his helper, Nicholas DiGiulio, were relieved after 32 hours of continuous duty at the Nut Island screening plant when Engineer Irving K. Carter finally reported to work on skis.

A cold wave accompanying the storm drove temperatures down to 3 degrees in Quincy Square.

QUINCY, NORTH BOW

The Quincy High School basketball team held visiting star Ronnie Perry to seven points but fell apart in the second half to lose, 38-25, to Somerville.

North Quincy went down to its first defeat in four games, over-powered by Durfee of Fall River, 52-30, as Durfee stars Andy Farrissey and Joe Andrews accounted for 33 points themselves.

North's starters were Sid Cedrone, Richie Sullivan, guards; Tom Finneran, center; Norm Nelson, Al Strecker, forwards.

NEW FIREFIGHTERS

The City Council approved the addition of 60 men to the Fire Department in order to comply with the 48-hour work week that was voted in the November election. It was to start Feb. 5.

Mayor Charles A. Ross asked the Council to approve 61 additional men, including a deputy chief, a captain, 12 lieutenants, 46 privates and a clerk. He got all but the deputy chief.

Fire Chief Thomas F. Gorman requested 89 new men, including a deputy chief, a captain, 13 lieutenants, 69 privates and a clerk. The Council turned him down after a 4½-hour session.

It was estimated the new hours would add $140,000 to the 1948 city payroll.

HOUSING NEEDED

J. Girard White, chairman of the Mayor's Emergency Committee on Housing, told his group that "the housing situation in Quincy is the worst it has ever been."

"During the past few weeks," he said, "eight or 10 families with children have tried to get lodging in the city home. Up in South Quincy there is a family including six children living in one room in a city welfare department storehouse."

Meanwhile, Mayor Ross recommended that the abandoned Washington School in Quincy Point be taken over from the School Department and converted into 24 apartments for Quincy veterans with families.

Residential-Commercial Project

Condon Asks $1 Million In U.S. Funds For N.D., Atlantic Rehabilitation

Ward 6 Councillor Joanne Condon is requesting more than $1 million in federal funds to be earmarked for rehabilitation of commercial and residential properties in the Atlantic-Norfolk Downs areas.

The recommendations presented in a letter to Mayor Arthur H. Tobin call for $563,000 being channeled from the federal Community Development funds. Another $500,000 would be made available from the federal 312 Loan Program for rehabilitation in the Atlantic Section.

Allocation of funds from the Community Development Block Grant would include: $200,000 for housing rehabilitation grants; $200,000 for improvement of commercial properties in Norfolk Downs; $138,000 for self help paint program, and $25,000 for the Atlantic Neighborhood Center.

Another $500,000, obtained through 312 Loan Program, would be devoted to rehabilitation of the Atlantic residential section.

She noted that "the housing stock in Atlantic is very old and in need of constant repair." In her letter to the Mayor she pointed out there are over 100 households on a waiting list for a very limited Sec. 312 program in Atlantic. She said she is convinced there would be a "tremendous demand" for this program if it were expanded.

She asked that $500,000 be allocated for this program from the 312 loan program, which is not part of the Community Development budget.

She said Atlantic has demonstrated its commitment to neighborhood rehabilitation and is ready for a comprehensive community development program and the financial resources are available.

One of the elements of her program would be $200,000 in outright grants to help senior citizens and people of very limited income make repairs and maintain their homes.

Another part of the program calls for expansion of the Atlantic Self-Help Paint program at a cost of $138,000. She said the program should also address itself to other housing components such as roofing, insulation and carpentry. Over 350 households have already applied for an insulation program, according to her letter.

The Atlantic Neighborhood Center is vital to the well being of the area and needs $25,000 to continue its services, she said. In three years it has maintained youth programs,well-baby clinics, blood-pressure clinics, health programs and hot lunch programs and is now essential to the people of the district.

"As a part of the comprehensive community development program for the North Quincy area, the Norfolk Downs businessmen, the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, representatives of the Department of Planning and Community Development and elected officials from this area have been working with a consultant to study the needs and potentials of the Norfolk Downs business district," Condon said.

She said the North Quincy businessmen have been actively participating in the study and expressed confidence in their willingness to provide the necessary private investment to augment any government participation.

The Councillor emphasized that only active interest by residents and businessmen will make any community development program a success.

Residents of the area were asked to give their input to the program at a 7:30 p.m. meeting Wednesday at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center.

Bids To Be Advertised For MDC Wollaston Beach Facility

Bids for construction of a new MDC facility to be located on the Kimberly site at Wollaston Beach are scheduled to be advertised for Feb. 7, according to Senator Arthur H. Tobin.

Tobin, along with Rep. Michael Morrissey, Thomas F. Brownell and James A. Sheets, and City Councillors Leo Kelly, Stephen J. McGrath and Joanne Condon, viewed the nearly completed drawings of the $225,000 facility during a meeting with MDC Commissioner John F. Snedeker this week.

The opening of bids has been set for March 7, and it is hoped construction can begin as early as April 3.

The facility will provide for rest rooms, including handicap facilities, as well as an office for the beach manager, life guard changing stations and police presence.

The Quincy delegation has asked that the MDC exert all efforts to adhere to the proposed time frame. If the building is not completed in time for the 1978 swimming season a trailer will be installed at the site to provide interim services.

Elderly and Handicapped Housing

The final draft of the Housing Package submitted by the Urban Affairs Committee, of which I am a member, is on the Governor's desk waiting to be signed.

The bill was approved by the House and the Senate in the final moments of the 1977 session, and promises to improve housing and housing conditions for both the elderly and the handicapped.

Some of the highlights of the package include: [1] an increase of 100 million dollars in the present bonding issue from 672 million dollars to 772 million dollars. The final 100 million dollars will provide for about 4000 new units of housing over a three year period. [2] An additional 2.5 million dollars in modernization monies. These monies will be used to eliminate architectural barriers and to provide for structural changes which will accommodate handicapped residents of existing state-aided projects. [3] New provisions for congregate living. This provision will enable those elderly who are too healthy and too active for nursing home care to continue to maintain their own apartments. [4] Handicapped persons and their families must receive priority placement in at least five per cent of all units for low income elderly housing constructed after January 1977. [5] Persons residing in private dwellings which are operated under either state or federal rent subsidies and find that their units do not meet reasonable standards of human habitation will be able to have their rental subsidies transferred to their own units.

I hope as does the Committee on Urban Affairs that this package will help alleviate some of the needs and problems that the elderly and handicapped face.

I can be reached by calling my office at the State House at 727-7035 or by calling my district office at 69 Billings Rd. at 328-0900.

Raiders Need Fast Finish, Quincy Could Use Some Luck

It appears the North Quincy basketball team will have to stage another furious finish as it did a year ago to make the state tournament.

After a fast start, the Raiders dropped to 3-4 with two losses last week and, with teams forced to win 70 percent of their games as compared to only 59 percent last year, North's chances are getting slimmer and slimmer. It can lose only two more games and still qualify.

Meanwhile, Quincy's hopes of making the tourney were dashed long ago and the Presidents' record dropped to 0-9 last week.

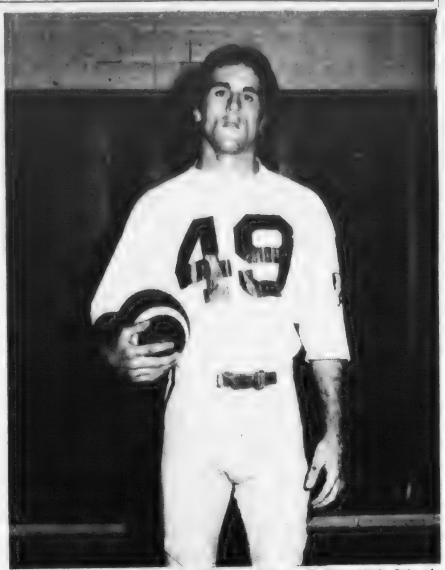
Quincy played at Newton and North hosted Weymouth South Tuesday. Friday the Presidents are home to Cambridge Rindge and Latin and North faces a new opponent, Sharon, at Sharon. Tuesday it will be Newton at North Quincy at 3:30 and Quincy at Waltham at 7.

North dropped a heartbreaker to Weymouth North, 50-48, last Friday after tying the score at 48-all on Pete Johnston's foul shot. But Bill Johnson was fouled when Weymouth regained possession and he sank both foul shots with eight seconds left for the win.

The Raiders had made a remarkable comeback after trailing, 37-22, at the half. Johnston sparked North with 25 points.

Earlier in the week the Raiders had bowed to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 79-59.

Kurt O'Sullivan had 15 points and 13 rebounds for North and Kevin Cobban had 10 points and seven assists. Jim Holleran scored seven of his nine points in the first half before being hobbled by foul trouble.



Luckless Quincy lost to Brockton, 70-52, Friday for its ninth loss in a row.

Coach Joe Amorosino used sophomores through most of the game and they showed up well. Brian Donovan, who has done well since being inserted several games ago, had 11 points, Dave Austin had nine and Andy Carrera had eight. Ron Donovan played a fine defensive game, holding Jerry Pollard to 12 points, 10 below his average.

Earlier in the week Franklin had topped the Presidents, 51-40.

John Connolly had 13 points and 13 rebounds. Brian Donovan had nine points and Amorosino had praise for two other sophomores, guards Carrera and Rich Finnegan.

"These kids have never given up," Amorosino said. "They continue to work very hard and the seniors are helping the youngsters. I have to give them a lot of credit. They refuse to quit despite the record."

Quincy, North In Wrong Streak

The North Quincy track team, which has faltered slightly after a good start, suffered three losses in the space of 13 days to equal the total number of defeats during the past two years.

Lou Tozzi's inexperienced squad lost to Newton North last week, 48-38, when a North runner fell and Newton won the relay to clinch the win. A win in the relay would have tied it for the Raiders. This was the second time North had a chance to tie with a relay win but failed both times.

John Saville in the mile, Dan McIntyre in the 300, Mike Barrett in the mile and Russ Chisholm in the dash, all won for North. This was McIntyre's first try at the 300, as he usually runs the hurdles.

Bob Ferrara was second in the high jump with his best effort ever, six feet, as he continues to show steady improvement. Chisholm's 5.9 in the dash was his best time ever and Bob Biagini made a fine showing in the hurdles with a second.

Undermanned Quincy, still seeking its first win, lost to Brookline, 54-32, for its fourth loss in a row.

Quincy had only nine members on hand for the meet but took four first places including the relay.

Kevin Murphy won the mile, Darren O'Neil the high jump, Vin Harte the shot put and the relay team of O'Neil, Murphy, John Kahler and Tom LaBlue won.

North competed in Friday's State Coaches Association Indoor Meet at the new track facility at Harvard, believed to be one of the fastest in the country.

Mike Gallagher broke the school shot put record with a toss of 54 feet, 3/4 inch, placing third. The winner, Joel Dennis of Newton North, is the only one to top Gallagher in the Suburban League this year.

Two other Raiders made good showings, although failing to place among the star-studded field. Barrett turned in a 9:49 in the two mile and Saville had his best time for the mile indoors, 4:30.7.

"The track is fantastic and it is no wonder so many meet and school records were broken," Tozzi said.

Quincy, North Girls Having Their Troubles

The Quincy and North Quincy girls' track teams are having their troubles, Quincy due to a lack of depth [only six girls] and North due to inexperience [16 of the 24 are only sophomores], but there have been some excellent individual performances.

Last week North bowed to Weymouth North, 49-28, while Quincy lost to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 47-30.

For North, Sophomore Claire Hurley was second in the mile with her best time of 6:31.84.

Two other Raiderette sophs, Elaine Robertson and Joanne Clark were 1-2 in the 300, senior co-captain Betsy Johnson won the 1000, Sophomore Eileen McKenna won the hurdles and Marilyn McKenna continued to improve with a third in the high jump.

The six Quincy girls deserve much credit for compiling 30 points.

Donna Reardon won the mile in 6:12.42, Paula Church won the 1000, Paula Constas took a second in the 600 and third in the shot put and Tara Prince, in her first try at the hurdles, finished second. Lois Guglielmi was second in the 300 and Heidi Dolan took third in the dash. Quincy wound up the meet in style, winning the relay with Guglielmi, Dolan, Church and Prince.

Today [Thursday] Quincy meets Brookline and North faces Newton North at 3 o'clock at Brookline, where all Suburban League meets are held.

Mike Dwyer Leads Koch Club Boys

Mike Dwyer leads the Koch Club Boys Junior Bowling League with an 86 average. Others in the Top 10 of the 80 member boys league include:

John Broadbent, 82; Danny MacCauley, 82; Ricky Wallace, 82; Danny Batts, 81; Steve Copp, 81; Pat Fitzgerald, 81; John Doran, 80; Tim Tracey, 80; John Doherty, 78, and Robert Leonard, 78.

MacCauley holds a high individual three string total of 302 and a high single string of 120.

Billy Smith's team leads the league. Other members include Kevin McNamara, Mark Smith, Mike Colleary, Doherty and MacCauley.

The league formed in 1963 by Anthony T. DelMonico, Broadmeadows district director, is supervised by Gary DeMole.

Quincy Hosts Brockton, North At Weymouth N.

The Quincy hockey team, which bounced back from its first Suburban League loss to bomb Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 6-1, last Saturday, will host strong Brockton Saturday at 6:40 p.m. at the Youth Arena.

Next Wednesday, the Presidents will be home to Weymouth South at the same time and place.

Meanwhile, North Quincy, which made its best showing of the year in holding Newton North to a 2-2 tie Saturday, will play at Weymouth North Saturday at 1:50 and Wednesday will play at Cambridge at 4:15.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy team, upset in its previous game by Weymouth North, 6-5, outshot Cambridge, 63-24, in a one-sided game and is tied for the league lead with Weymouth North (each 4-1).

Co-Capt. Brian Bertoni had the hat trick for Quincy and Co-Capt. Mark Giordani and Tom Cahill and outstanding sophomore Robbie Craig each had a goal.

John Norton had two assists and Craig, Scott Richardson and Rich Ahola had one each.

Despite the win, Sylvia remains concerned about Quincy's trouble scoring. "When you have 63 shots, you should score more than six goals," he said.

It appeared Ron Erikson's North Quincy team was going to pull a major upset but Newton North scored with 1:37 left in the game to tie it. North's record dropped to 0-4-1.

John Cooney scored to give the Raiders a 1-0 lead, Paul Cooney and Jim Moore assisted. Twenty-nine seconds into the final period, Mike Pitts scored unassisted to give North a 2-0 lead but Newton came back with a disputed goal on which it appeared an offside should have been called and Tom Hagerstrom scored the tying goal unassisted.

North Swimmers Win First, Quincy Loses To Don Bosco

The North Quincy swim team, which captured its first win of the season, 101-55, over South Boston, Friday, swam at Brookline yesterday [Wednesday], will host Apponequet Friday at 3:30 at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool and will be home to Weymouth North Tuesday at 7.

The Quincy swimmers, meantime, sought their first win Tuesday against Cambridge Rindge and Latin. They will host Brookline next Wednesday at 4 at Lincoln-Hancock.

Jim Stockless, Ed Melanson and John Conley were double winners in North's first win. They also helped the 400 freestyle relay team set a new school record.

Conley won the 100 freestyle in the record time of 53.9. However, Melanson broke that mark in the first leg of the relay, doing 53.76. He teamed with Stockless, Conley and Kevin Greene for a 3:45.9 win.

Melanson won the 200 individual medley [2:14.8] and the 100 butterfly [59.4]. Conley won the 50 freestyle [24.2] and Stockless took the 200 freestyle [2:13.8] and the 500 freestyle [6:20.7].

Greene won the one-meter diving and Thor Hellsted won the 100 breaststroke in 1:18.4. Dave Donovan, Phil Golden, Bill Feeney and Joe Waterhouse all posted second place finishes.

In their previous meet the Raiders had bowed to undefeated Newton North, 93-77, despite record-setting performances by double winners Melanson and Conley and the 200 medley relay team.

Melanson and Conley were part of the medley team, which set a school record of 1:54.7 and their efforts helped North remain tied with Newton through the first eight events.

Melanson set a team record of 58.1 in the 100 butterfly to go with his win in the 200 individual medley. Conley's 55.9 in the 100 freestyle was a record until Friday's meet. He also won the 50-yard freestyle.

Stockless won the 500 freestyle, was second in the 200 freestyle and was on the winning 400 freestyle relay team, which also had Jim Morris, John Buckley and Golden.

Greene, second in the diving, and Hellsted completed the record-setting medley relay team.

Quincy bowed to Don Bosco, 105-63, despite double wins by Peter Sullivan and John Connelly. Sullivan won the 200 freestyle and 500 freestyle and Connelly took the 200 individual medley and the 100 breaststroke. The 400 relay team of Pete Tautavasis, Bob Lavigne, Dave Burke and Sullivan also won.

Burke placed second in the 50 freestyle, Dave Notorangelo second in the 100 butterfly, Ed Fenby second in the 100 backstroke and Fenby, Connelly, Notorangelo and Burke second in the 200 medley relay.

Ed Regan was third in the one-meter diving and Lavigne was third in the 100 freestyle.

Paul Kelly Hot Roller For Koch Young Men

Paul Kelly has topped his own individual scoring in the Koch Club Young Men's Bowling League, bowling with a 387 [his previous 366] for a three-string total lead and fired a 154 high single string besting his 143-high.

Kelly boosted his average to 108.1, one of the highest in the league's history. Other averages in the Top Ten include Paul's brother, Mark Kelly, with 100.5; Bob Hutchins, 95.8; John Wahlberg, 95.6; Chris Gorman, 95.4; Ernie Dubeau, 94.8; Lenny Staff, 92.8; Tom Koch, 89.6; John Butts, 87.5; and Bob Zappi, 86.5.

Kelly's team also leads the loop with 44 wins and 16 losses.

The league meets every Saturday morning at the Merrymount Daylight Alleys.

Founded in 1974 by Anthony T. Delmonico, the league involves boys 13 thru 16 years.

Girls A Team Defeats Malden, 5-3

Quincy's Slapshot Photo Girls A team defeated Malden, 5-3, Sunday at Town Line Twin Rinks in Danvers.

Lisa Norling and Maureen Santry gave Quincy a 2-0 lead in the first period, with Eileen Marr assisting on Norling's goal. Malden came back early in the second period to tie the game, but Quincy fought back as Lauren Apollo scored an unassisted goal and Marie McAuliffe scored what proved to be the winner with Marr assisting.

Mary Ellen Riordan added the insurance goal in the final period. Malden scored with two minutes left in the game.

Friday night, Jan. 20, at 6:40, Colby College's team comes to Quincy to face the Girls A team at the Youth Arena.

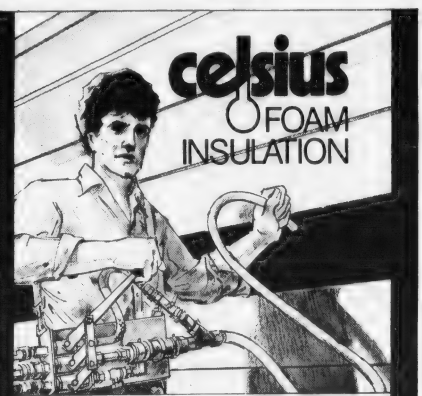
HAZARDS OF THE SNOWBLOWER

Some dangers around the house merely change appearance by the season. For example, the snowblower - winter's cousin to summer's potentially hazardous power lawn mower.



The motorized snowblower breaks up snow and tosses it to the side. There's no doubt that it has safety advantages - such as reducing the exertion of shoveling snow [which can result in heart attack], and making walks less slippery. But it has, also, built-in hazards similar to those of the power lawnmower.

The snowblower has blades or augers that can slice off parts of the human anatomy, and a number of users have had fingers mangled or amputated while using their hands to unclog a snowblower when the motor was running. It's imperative to shut off the blower's motor and wait for the blades to stop revolving before putting your hands near the discharge area. In general, say safety engineers, you should treat snowblowers with the same caution as you do power lawn mowers.

The effective way to insulate your home

Insulation effectiveness is measured in its resistance to heat flow . . . either moving out of the house in winter or flowing in, during the summer.

Celsius foam insulation has a high "R" rating which creates an efficient thermal barrier in ceilings, attics and walls. Celsius foam is pumped into walls cavities and flows around pipes, electrical outlets and other protrusions. It effectively seals against heat loss and drafts by completely filling the spaces without settling.

With Celsius foam you save on heating/cooling costs all year round and you get a return on your investment every time you receive your utility bill. You'll enjoy extra living comfort too!

Call us today for more information on our homeowner's warranty and a free estimate. You need to insulate your home only once. Do it right. Call us today!

JUNIOR SPORTS SPOTLIGHT

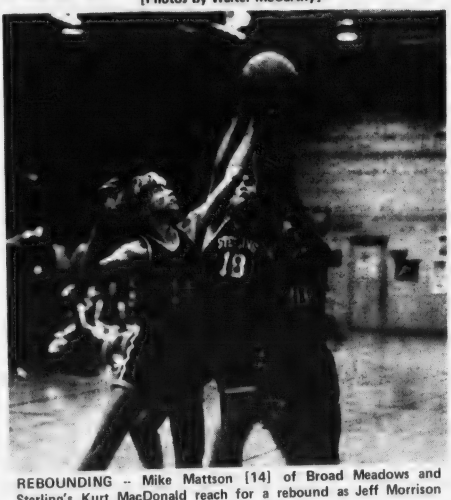
Central Rolls To 6th Straight Win

By WALTER McCARTHY

Central Junior High's varsity basketball team continued to roll along undefeated at it topped Point, 49-35, at the Point court for its sixth win in a row.

Mark Millane led all scorers with 26 points. Ken Mann had nine. Steve Priscilla was high for Point with 13 points, while Peter Papile had 10.

Central's junior varsity added the frosting to Coach Mike Casali's cake with an easy 40-14 win. Brian Reale had eight points and Mike Guidice seven for Central, while Randy Paris and Steve Goguen had four each for Point.



In one of the most thrilling games of the year, Broad Meadows varsity edged Sterling, 49-45, which saw the teams go right down to the wire.

The score had been tight throughout with neither team willing to surrender. With three minutes left to play, Sterling's Dennis Donovan scored to give his team a 40-39 lead. This lead was short lived as Frank Riley came up with a big three-point play to give Meadows the upper hand.

Here the small but quick John Cascarano got hot. It seemed whenever Sterling threatened to pull away, the little guard would pop up and slam the door with a basket or foul shot. He finished with eight clutch points.

Meadows was led by Mike Mattson and Jeff Morrison with 12 points each. Dave Grindle had seven. Ed Iodice had 11 for Sterling with Sean Sweeney and Kurt MacDonald had 10 apiece. Fran MacDonald had six and Scott MacLeod four.

Broad Meadows junior varsity topped Sterling, 34-21.

Tom O'Connor led the winners' scorers with 15 points. Jim Austin had four and Dan Radley, Dan Dunn and Jim DePietro two each. Roy Myatt had nine for Sterling, Mike Ploof had six and Dave Calabro and Bill Harris each had a basket.

Crusaders Open Tough Homestand

The Eastern Nazarene College basketball team, carrying a 4-1 record after the month-long holiday break, faced Roger Williams College Tuesday at Bristol, R.I.

Last year Ron Bradley's Crusaders handed Williams (19-6) one of its defeats.

ENC begins a tough three-game homestand Friday as old rival Barrington College comes in for an 8 p.m. game. The Crusaders topped the Warriors, 83-59, in the final game before the vacation break.

Saturday night Suffolk visits ENC's Lahue Center, bringing a number three ranking in New England. Suffolk comes off its third successive NCAA Division III tournament appearance with a 5-1 record. The Rams topped ENC, 89-83, last year at Suffolk's gym. ENC, which has never lost a regular season home game under Bradley, hopes to avenge that defeat.

Next Tuesday powerful Rhode Island College comes to ENC. The Anchormen topped ENC, 85-76, last season. Former New England Division III champion (1975-76) RIC is again considered one of the area's top teams. Game time is 8 p.m.

Mite A's In Wins Over Braintree, Weymouth

The Mite A team won two league games during the week, topping Braintree, 3-1, and blanking Weymouth, 4-0.

In the Braintree game Mark Zimmerman, Jon Harp and Billy Roche had the goals with assists going to Jon Hays, Mike Benson, Bobby Furlan, David Young, Matt Furtado and Adam McGregor.

Zimmerman had two goals against Weymouth and Chris Boussy and Roche had one each. Furtado and Benson had two assists apiece and Rick Connelly, Hays, Billy Ferrara and Mike Tenney one each.

The Weymouth game marked the 11th shutout for goalies Chuckie Hughes and Kyle Robertson.

The Mite A's advanced to the finals of the recent Santa Claus tournament in Hingham, losing the championship game to Hanover, 4-1, after winning three games.

Ferrara had the only goal against Hanover with Boussy and Billy Connolly assisting.

Quincy opened with a 4-1 win over Abington as Boussy, Zimmerman, Hays and Roche had the goals. Billy Connolly, Furtado, Benson, Hays and Richie Connelly had assists.

Quincy then edged Hyde Park, 4-3, in double overtime with Zimmerman scoring the winning goal. Billy Connolly had two goals and Roche one. Boussy and Ferrara had two assists apiece and Hays, Richie Connelly, Furtado and Benson one each. The defense and goalies were outstanding.

Quincy topped Milton, 3-1, on goals by Hays, Billy Connolly and Richie Connelly. Roche had two assists and Boussy one.

Controversial Mail Center's Fate Uncertain

information about the facility, were ignored.

He said bluntly to Sullivan "you'll have to unload that land if you've already bought it."

Mayor Tobin noted that it was at Congressman Burke's insistence that the Postal Service agreed to a public hearing.

"The Congressman might have suffered a physical disability in recent months, but it hasn't impaired his ability to represent the people of the 11th Congressional District," Tobin commented.

"I want to express my deep concern over the Incoming Mail Center proposed for Braintree Five Corners," Tobin said. "I am concerned that the Postal Service has committed itself to a radical change in the method of delivery service to our area without any consultation with or input from area postal patrons or their elected officials on the local, state and federal levels," the Mayor told the audience.

He said he was concerned that the federal law may have been ignored by the postal service when it failed to hold a public hearing "to determine our local needs and our future planned objectives."

"It is possible a mail distribution center, with local post offices remaining open, could be the best answer," Tobin said. He suggested it would be sensible for the postal Service to study the as yet unopened Chelsea facility before any plans for this area are finalized.

He was referring to a IMC which the Postal Service plans to open in March.

The Mayor was scornful of the proposal to close the Wollaston post office. He pointed out there are three major senior citizen complexes in the area.

"And you are going to close the Wollaston services to these people?" he asked. It's absolutely incredible."

He called on postal officials to start re-planning and to include postal patrons and public officials and businessmen in their consultations.

City Council President John J. Quinn spoke briefly, but said that the Council is "100 percent opposed to any change in the system until more study has been given."

Councillor James A. Sheets asked: "Why have we allowed it to reach this stage? People who made the decision did not take local officials into consideration. Nobody gave us the costs, or how much it will save.

Ronald L. Hughes, president of the Boston local of the National Association of Letter Carriers, said his membership objects to the use of one-quarter ton trucks. He said these vehicles are unsafe and that they get only five miles to a gallon of gasoline. He pointed out that this hardly seemed in keeping with the government's demands for energy-saving.

Eric Swider, former executive director of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, now head of the New England Council, sent a letter saying the Chamber had had no contact with postal officials concerning the project and added that he was against the plan.

Representative of U.S. Senators Edward M. Kennedy and Edward W. Brooke voiced opposition. They were joined by legislators from affected communities.

Tobin Appoints Ricciuti, Riley Barry, Chandler To Major Posts

Park and Recreation Board so that it will have nine members, one each from the six wards and three at-large members.

The City Council will be extended the courtesy of naming the three at-large members and Tobin himself will appoint those from the wards.

The reorganization plan will have to be approved by the state legislature under home rule petition. Tobin said he will submit the home rule bill to the City Council soon.

Tobin said more appointments will not be announced until early February when most of the current terms will expire.

Dr. Carol Lee Griffin, chairman of the screening committee, said that the group will meet tonight [Thursday] at the home of Dr. Donald MacLeod to interview applicants for city treasurer.

The committee is seeking resumes from those interested in the job of purchasing agent, she said.

The swearing in of Ricciuti and Barry was made possible by the resignations of acting Public Works Commissioner Paul Anderson and City Solicitor Thomas F. Williams, both LaRaia appointees.

Tobin said Williams submitted a note along with his resignation saying that he felt the Mayor should have the right to choose his own solicitor from the start.

The new Mayor said he was grateful to Williams "for being pleasant to me during the period of transition when the transitional process between two administrations was totally lacking."

In naming Riley to the post of executive secretary, Tobin noted that he had served as purchasing agent from 1968 until 1972 and "his tenure in that position was most successful in saving thousands of dollars by adherence to low bid quotes and contracts.

"His past municipal experience will be of great benefit in the office of Mayor. His contacts with the business community and its people as well as all the citizenry of the city will enable him to cope with everyday problems."

Riley probably will be the ranking administrator at City Hall during the days when Tobin is at the State House fulfilling his obligations as a state senator.

The Mayor noted that Barry had been a city councillor from 1962 to 1968 and first assistant district attorney of Norfolk County from 1966 to 1969.

"He will be able to make those decisions necessary in his capacity and to assist the Mayor and the City Council in the area of municipal law with which he will be entrusted," said Tobin.

Ricciuti has been city purchasing agent from 1966 to 1968, executive secretary to Mayor James R. McIntyre from 1968 to 1971, and public works commissioner from 1971 to 1976.

"He brings with him a background of administrative ability and is the only individual to have held three major appointments while serving the citizens of this city," said Tobin.

"The years of 1971 to 1976 were the most productive and progressive years in the area of public works in the history of our city.

"Mr. Ricciuti supervised over $30 million in public works projects, not including the millions of dollars on the extension of the Red Line into Quincy."

Tobin referred to Mrs. Chandler's post of administrative aide as "the second highest position in this administration in the office of the Mayor."

"She has served as personal secretary to me in my capacity in both private and public office for the past 10 years handling appointments, scheduling, meetings, etc.," he said.

"She brings with her to this position a wealth of experience and understanding in certain aspects of government. She is understanding, compassionate and extremely capable, and her experience will be an asset to the office of the Mayor."

Tobin acknowledged the presence at the swearing in ceremonies of Mrs. Anna G. Ricciuti, mother of the new public works commissioner, who celebrated her 79th birthday yesterday [Wednesday].

Seniors On Educational Bill Info

Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy] has invited any senior citizen who is interested in going back to college to contact his office for information on a new educational bill for older people.

The bill, recently signed into law by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, permits senior citizens to attend state colleges and universities and community colleges free of charge.

The only restrictions are that seniors may attend on a space available basis and their incomes must be under $12,000 a year.

Udall To Tour Adams Birthplaces takeover of the birthplaces which, he said, have suffered from maintenance problems due to tight city financial conditions.

He said that Udall's visit is just a preliminary step in his year long effort to arrange the takeover and that City Council hearings are planned for early February, followed, he hopes, by federal legislation later in the year.

While in Quincy for official business, Udall will also be the featured guest at a fund-raising cocktail party that evening for the Paul Harold Committee at Councillor Harold's home, 31 Riverside Ave., Adams Shore from 7-9 p.m. Harold was area coordinator for Udall's campaign for the Democratic Presidential nomination two years ago.

Historical Society Plans Slide-Tape Workshops

A series of slide-tape workshops for local historical societies has been inaugurated by the Quincy Historical Society.

The workshops will be presented Mondays at 10 a.m. and again at 7:30 p.m. at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy.

At the workshops to be held Monday, Jan. 16, two slide-tape kits will explore Educational traveling suitcase exhibits and learning history through direct experience: a museum program for children.

On Jan. 23, basic design elements and production techniques for preparing newsletters will be presented. On Jan. 30, the workshops will discuss site security and curatorial care of the furniture.

Because of the unpredictable January weather those wishing to participate are advised to call the Academy [773-1144] in case of inclement conditions.

Spaghetti Supper For Senior Citizens Jan. 19

An estimated 250 Senior Citizens are expected to attend the annual Spaghetti Supper Dance to be held Jan. 19 at the Bryan VFW Post Home.

The event is being sponsored by the Senior Citizens Division of the Quincy Recreation Department. Deadline for tickets is Friday, Jan. 13.

A social hour will be held at 5:30 p.m. followed by the supper at 6:30 p.m. Baron Hugo's orchestra will play from 8 p.m. until 11 p.m. Special entertainment will feature "the Spina's".

Among the invited guests are Mayor and Mrs. Arthur H. Tobin and City Council President John J. Quinn.

Mrs. Marion Andrews, Director of Senior Citizens Activities, announces that a presentation will be made to Miss Emma Hassan, Director of Volunteer Services, Quincy Hospital. The presentation will be foot socks made by members at the Quincy Federation of Senior Citizens Clubs during the past four months to be used for patients at the hospital. This is the third annual project undertaken by the Federation for the benefit of the hospital. Others included lap robes and therapy balls.

Further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Andrews at the Recreation Dept.

Foreign Country Foods Series At Lincoln-Hancock School

The expanded Food and Nutrition Education Program will present a series of demonstrations on the cooking of five foreign countries Tuesdays for the next five weeks at the Lincoln Hancock Community School, 300 Granite St., Quincy, from 10 to 11 a.m.

Local connoisseurs will demonstrate a different native dish each week and explain the cooking and food customs of the nation.

On Jan. 17, Vietnam will be the featured country with Miss Kim Dieve; Jan. 24, Honduras, Mrs. Jeanette Hanlon; Jan. 31, Sweden, Mrs. Nancy Widman; Feb. 7, Uraguay, Mrs. Clara Ascarate and Mrs. Delia Zola; Feb. 14, France, Mrs. Helen Sullivan.

The program also offers diet workshops Tuesdays in the exercise room of the Lincoln-Hancock School at 10 a.m.

Lead by Anneli Johnson and Rita Francione, the workshops are a free service for those who are interested in proper nutrition, weight control and simple exercise.

DEDICATION -- The Merrymount Park Amphitheater has formally been named in honor of Quincy-born actress Ruth Gordon. During dedication ceremonies held on New Year's Eve the cultural center was accepted by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia on behalf of the city. At the dedication were [from left] Mayor LaRaia, Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Quincy Park-Recreation Board; T. Owen Trainor, architect; Rev. John J. McMahon, pastor of St. Mary's Church, West Quincy, and City Councillor Paul Harold. The stone marker was donated by the Quincy Lodge, Sons of Italy.

Merrymount Amphitheater Dedicated To Ruth Gordon

The amphitheater in Merrymount Park was dedicated to Quincy-born actress Ruth Gordon during brief ceremonies held on New Year's Eve.

The federally-funded $600,000 project is not yet complete, but outgoing Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia said he wanted to go ahead with the dedication to make the public more aware of the work. Now nearly 80 percent complete, it is expected that the theater will be in operation during the summer months.

In dedicating the theater to Miss Gordon, an Academy Award winner, Rev. John J. McMahon called attention to the esteem in which the actress is held by the citizens of her native community. Miss Gordon, now 80, was born in Wollaston and made her professional debut in "Peter Pan" back in 1916.

T. Owen Trainor, architect of the theater, said the structure is a tribute to her talents.

Richard J. Koch, director of the parks and recreation department, in his remarks said that once the theater is opened he hopes it will be utilized by persons from all sections of the South Shore.

Curtain Call Casts Neil Simon Comedy

The cast for Curtain Call Theater's second production of the season "Prisoner of Second Avenue" has been completed by Director Jack Loadman.

The cast will include: Larry LeCour, Molly Hochkoppel of Weymouth; Karen Kennedy of Hull; Rosemarie Bonani, Edye Burke and Bob Carness of Braintree.

The Neil Simon comedy will be presented March 3-4.

Linda Wasko Art Exhibit At Main Library

An exhibition of abstract oil paintings by Linda Wasko of Scituate is on display through January in the Main Hall Gallery of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Center.

Miss Wasko received her bachelor's degree in chemistry from California State University in 1970. While on the West Coast she studied drawing and took a course in oil painting at Otis Art Institute. From 1972 to 1974 she studied advanced painting at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston and advanced photography at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

She is an instructor in basic and advanced photography at M.I.T., Hull High School, the South Shore Art Center and the Cambridge YWCA.

Archibald Remains Board Chairman

Richard Laine Elected South Boston Savings President

Richard R. Laine has been elected President of the South Boston Savings Bank by the Board of Trustees.

He succeeds Alfred W. Archibald who had been the bank's President from 1966 to the present. Archibald will continue to serve as the Chairman of the Board.

Laine, prior to his election as President served as Vice President. A lawyer, he is a graduate of Brown University and the New England School of Law. He was admitted to practice law in 1968. He is a member of the Massachusetts Bar Association, American Bar Association and the Massachusetts Conveyance Association.

Laine, who has been associated with the South Boston Savings Bank since 1967, resides in Norwell with his wife, Ellen and their five children.

During Archibals's tenure as President, the South Boston Savings Bank assets climbed from $105,000,000 in 1966 to the present $364,000,000 making the bank the 12th largest savings bank in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

RICHARD R. LAINE

ALFRED W. ARCHIBALD

Archibald lives in Weymouth and is a member of the Legislative Committee of the Savings Bank Association of Massachusetts, National Association of Savings Banks and the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, director of the Government Land Bank, Metropolitan Mortgage Bureau, Massachusetts Dental Corporation and Savings Banks Employees Retirement Association.

He is a trustee of the Laboure Center, Lincoln Filene Civic Foundation, Thayer Academy and the Boston Tax Industry Scholarship Fund. He is currently serving as a member of the Suffolk University College of Business Administration Advisory Council, the Sinking Fund of the City of Boston, the Community Development Committee of the Carney Hospital and as President of the Pleasure Bay Sailing Club. Archibald has received the Outstanding Citizens Award from South Boston Citizen's Association, is an overseer of the Boy's Clubs of Boston, and has served as an officer of Kiwanis and has been Chairman of drives for the United Fund, Red Cross and the Heart Fund.

THE QUINCY SAVINGS BANK made it possible for the Norfolk County-Newton Lung Association to produce a slide-tape program about the 57 year-old agency's efforts to curb lung disease. Charles H. Pearce, Quincy Savings Bank president, is shown here with a special projection unit which is being used for the program. The slide show, narrated by Win Bettinson, is available to clubs, organizations and civic groups through the lung association.

Chamber Accepts Challenge To Find Xway Carpool Solution

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has accepted a challenge from State Transportation Secretary Frederick Salvucci to help find a solution to the carpool problem on the Southeast Expressway.

President Charles A. Pearce and other Chamber officials will coordinate a regional effort involving South Shore commuters, legislators, town officials, transportation firms and private bus companies to find a solution to the problem.

Salvucci's challenge came at a meeting of the Joint Regional Transportation Committee. Area representatives at the meeting included Martha Reardon of the South Shore Chamber, Robert Daylor, Braintree; Paul Lambert, Canton; Robert Kelley, Pembroke and Martha Gjesteby.

All interested firms, commuters and individuals on the South Shore are invited to send ideas and suggestions for participating in the project to Martha Reardon at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, 479-1111.

Dorel Steel Wins AMTRAK Contract

Dorel Steel Corporation, Quincy, is heading a consortium which will be a subcontractor for $2,587,000 million on the first major contract awarded by AMTRAK for rehabilitation of the northeast rail corridor between Boston and Washington.

Cong. James A. Burke [D-Milton] said that the contract, paid for with federal funds administered by the U.S. Department of Transportation, will involve reconstruction and replacement of the Woonasquatucket railroad bridge in Providence, R.I.

HANDSHAKES DON'T COUNT

Many business agreements have been sealed with a "handshake" and enforced in the courts. But when it comes to the world of Real Estate you cannot - and should not - rely on oral promises. In fact, legislation in each of the fifty states specifically requires that all agreements and conditions relative to the sale of real estate specifically be in writing.

In real estate, oral promises or conditions have little standing. If they are not contained in writing within the agreement of sale, or on other papers relating to the transaction, they are not binding. In fact, the typical agreement of sale provides a clause to the effect that all oral statements relative to the transaction made prior to the signing of the written agreement are invalid.

The only way to put any teeth into oral promises, is to insist that everything which you think is significant be put in writing.

Abp. Williams Wins Continued Accreditation

The Commission on Independent Schools of the New England Association of Schools and Colleges, Inc., has elected to continue the membership in Archbishop Williams High School in the association for the maximum period of 10 years.

Brother Thomas Mulloy, C.F.X., principal of the Braintree school, said membership in the Association constitutes regional accreditation.

All members of the school faculty and staff participated in a self-evaluation in the 1976-1977 school year. Committees were formed to study and prepare reports in the following areas: school philosophy and objectives, curriculum, student activities, school staff, administration, school facilities, alumni and parents organizations.

From Oct. 23 to Oct. 26, 1977, an evaluating team composed of administrators and faculty members from various independent schools in New England visited Archbishop Williams for the formal evaluation. Based on this evaluating teams report, the Commission on Independent Schools made their decision to continue the school's membership in the Association.

Addition Off Schedule

Double Sessions At NQHS May Continue 3 Years

By TOM HENSHAW

The controversial double sessions at North Quincy High School could continue for another three years.

The possibility was advanced by School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon this week after the School Committee learned that the addition to the school would be finished at least two months late.

Students at North have been attending double sessions in the old building since last September while the addition is being built by Blount Brothers Construction Co.

It was planned to move them into the addition for another year of double sessions while the old building is renovated, an inconvenience of two years.

Under the original estimate, the addition was to be turned over to the School Department in June 1978 in time to prepare for the entry of students in September, 1978.

William Ambrose, a representative of Blount Brothers, told the School Committee last week that "under ideal weather conditions" the addition will be completed in August, two months late.

Dr. Creedon explained that Blount has 15 months in which to do renovation work dating from the time the old building is turned over to the construction company.

The original date on which renovation work was to begin was June 1978 so that all work could be completed and the school returned to a normal schedule in September, 1979.

"Some of the language in the contract is not clear," said Dr. Creedon. "Apparently it says June but Blount figures its 15 months will not start until September.

"If so, then they will have until January, 1979, to do the renovation, which will mean two more years of double sessions and if there is a further foul-up then we could go into a third year."

That would mean four years of double sessions in all, instead of two.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin disclosed that the roof of the addition is still not "battened down" as it was supposed to have been in December, 1977.

"There is some work that cannot be done inside the addition until the roof is battened down," he said. "They should have known there would be snow storms in January and February.

"It's beyond our control. It's in the hands of the elements."

Dispells $2 Million Report

Quincy Hospital Deficit Only $48,881 Says DeFalco

Quincy City Hospital operated at a deficiency of only $48,881, during fiscal 1976-77, according to Hospital Director Anthony DeFalco.

DeFalco told a Quincy Taxpayers' Association luncheon that that is pretty good considering "at best we can only break even. We're not allowed to make a profit."

He listed hospital receipts for the year at $19,125,000 and expenditures at $17,184,000 plus $1,567,000 for city-provided services and $421,000 in payroll and expense increases.

DeFalco said he was emphasizing the figures to dispell reports that the hospital had run a deficit ranging up to $2 million during fiscal 1976-77.

The hospital director also disclosed that between 85 and 90 percent of the hospital revenues come from medicare, medicaide and Blue Cross-Blue Shield.

"The only people who pay the full rate are accident victims whose costs are covered by insurance," he said.

About 52 percent of the patient load is covered by medicare, he said, 28 or 29 percent by Blue Cross-Blue Shield and 5 percent by medicaide.

DeFalco estimated that by 1985 one out of every six patients in City Hospital will be over 65 years of age.

He also outlined the $465,000 second phase of the renovation program, which was scheduled to be placed before the Board of Managers Tuesday night. It includes:

- Relocation and expansion of the outpatient area in the East Building basement, a deficiency that has been repeatedly cited by the State Department of Public Health.
- Renovation of the emergency room so that there are separate entrances for ambulatory and stretcher patients.
- A third elevator in the admissions building so that those entering the hospital will not have to negotiate steep stairs, a

Council, School Committee Meet To Elect McCauley Successor

Quincy may have a full complement of School Committeemen tonight [Thursday].

The Mayor, the City Council and five members of the School Committee will meet tonight [Thursday] at 6:30 p.m. in the Quincy High School Method Center to choose a successor to Francis X. McCauley.

Mayor Tobin indicated that the joint convention may take a vote tonight after listening to the nine candidates for the post present their qualifications.

The alternative would be to have transcripts made up of the candidates' remarks for further study and postpone the voting until another time and place.

Members of the Council and School Committee met last week to lay out the guidelines for selecting a successor to McCauley, who resigned Jan. 3 after being elected to the City Council.

They named Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon secretary to the convention, Frances Adams clerk and Dennis E. Harrington parliamentarian.

They determined that any resident of Quincy could apply for the committee post up until the night the convention is called. There were eight candidates at the time. Now there are nine.

Each candidate will be given up to five minutes to present his or her qualifications. Then members of the convention will

Flu Closes St. Ann's School

Classes at St. Ann's School, Wollaston, were cancelled Tuesday because of the high rate of absenteeism blamed on an outbreak of the flu.

Msgr. James Scally, pastor, said that on Friday there were 53 pupils out of a student body of 290 down with the virus. Normally there are approximately five to six absentees daily.

There was no school on Monday, Martin Luther King Day, and Tuesday would normally be a half day. However, it was found that three of the 12 teachers had also been stricken and the decision was made to cancel classes.

The decision when to reopen will be made by the pastor and Sister Georgianna, principal of the school.

High Schools Mid-Year Exams Jan. 25-26-27

Mid-year examinations are scheduled in Quincy High School, Quincy Vocational-Technical, and North Quincy High School for Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, Jan. 25-26-27.

The regular schedules will be modified to accommodate the examination schedules. Grades 9 through 12. All students will be given specific instructions as to the examination schedules for each session in each building.

Students are required to be present during times of scheduled examinations during the three days of testing.

A Local First

Police, Banks Join To Protect Seniors From 'Flim-Flams'

Quincy has become the first city in this area to inaugurate a program to protect senior citizens from becoming victims of flim-flam artists and other types of confidence men.

The police department, with the cooperation of all the banks in Quincy, have issued a "flim-flam warning form" which is on hand at the banks.

In the event a teller becomes suspicious about a request for withdrawal of a large sum of cash, the customer will be requested to read the warning form. A bank officer will then discuss flim-flam and con artists with the client.

The form notes the lump sum being withdrawn is in cash and cautions against swindlers, flim-flam and con artists.

"This bank does not conduct investigations or verifications of accounts by telephone," the customer is informed. "Police, FBI officials, bank regulatory authorities or bank officials do not conduct investigations by asking you to withdraw cash from your account for any reasons."

It also points out that "swindlers may pose as bank officials, police, or FBI in order to gain your confidence to withdraw your money."

The caution says that "Swindlers often arrange to have you 'find' or 'help find' a wallet containing a large sum of money or other valuables. One way or another, they have you put up some amount of money to show your 'good faith' - and then depart with the money."

Police Chief Francis X. Finn urges that any one approached by a person claiming to be an FBI agent, bank examiner, police officer or detective, contact the police department if that person requests information concerning a bank account.

The anti-flim flam program is part of the police department's expanding program to protect senior citizens. The program is designed to assist senior citizens in the prevention of burglary, larceny, assault, purse snatching, pickpocket and flim flam.

The Department has prepared a slide presentation which depicts ways to deter these criminal incidents.

The Operation Identification program is also available with special service to the elderly of Quincy. Crime prevention will, upon request, engrace a senior citizen's valuables at his home. It will also supply window decals warning that all valuables in the home have been marked and readily identifiable by law enforcement agencies.

3 Changes In Council Committees

Three changes have been made in the rosters of City Council committees since the list was published last week in The Quincy Sun.

Francis X. McCauley will be vice chairman of the Land Conveyance Committee, instead of Stephen J. McGrath, and Joanne Condon will be a member of the committee in place of Paul D. Harold.

Leo J. Kelly, not Mrs. Condon, will chair the Public Transportation Committee, and Daniel G. Raymondi, not Kelly, will be vice chairman.

Kelly will also be chairman of the Senior Citizens Committee with Mrs. Condon vice chairman.

To Introduce Legislation

Tobin Proposes 9-Member Park-Recreation Commission

Mayor and Sen. Arthur H. Tobin plans to introduce legislation in the State House to reorganize the Quincy Park and Recreation Board to give wider representation to areas of the city.

Plans were to be introduced for local approval at the City Council meeting Tuesday night.

Tobin's proposal would dissolve the present seven-member board and replace it with a nine-member commission, one from each of the six wards and three selected at-large.

The Mayor would name the six ward representatives and the City Council would choose the other three.

The Park Board was established in the 1800's and was responsible for park facilities and recreation programs until 1948 when a seven-member Recreation Commission was established to oversee municipal recreation activities while the three member Park Board was retained.

In the legislative acts of 1961, the Park Board and Recreation Commission was disbanded, and a merged Park and Recreation Board was created consisting of seven members, five appointed by the Mayor, with one required to be a member of the School Committee, and two chosen by the City Council.

Although the present Park and Recreation Board membership consists of representatives from every ward in the city, present legislation does not require it. All members could be chosen from one or two wards if the Mayor and Council decided to choose that way.

The new proposal would allow two additional citizens to participate in municipal government activities.

The administrative structure will remain the same with the executive secretary to the Park and Recreation Board responsible for the administration of the Park Department and Forestry Section while the director of forestry is supervisor of the forestry maintenance activities and the director of recreation, administrator of the municipal recreation program.

DRINKING QUIZ

Do you:

- need a drink the "morning after"?
- like to drink alone?
- lose time from work due to drinking?
- need a drink at a definite time daily?
- have loss of memory while or after drinking?
- find your drinking is harming or worrying your family?

If the answers are "yes", you may suffer from an alcohol problem. Alcoholism is a treatable disease. If you think you may have a problem with alcohol, see your doctor.

DRINKING AND DRIVING

This year alone, more than 23 million drivers will take to the roads while under the influence of alcohol. Some will be problem drinkers, most will be social drinkers, but all are equally dangerous behind the wheel. Drunken driving is responsible for mor than ONE HALF of all auto fatalities. When you drink, don't drive. It's a deadly combination.

'Woman To Woman' Workshops Planned

A second annual Woman-to-Woman day featuring workshops of special interest to women is planned by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College.

Scheduled for Saturday, April 8, the program will include six in-depth workshops, a keynote speaker, informational booths, and opportunities for women to meet informally.

Noting the success of last year's Woman-to-Woman Day which was attended by over 150 women, Mrs. Janice D'Avignon said "Workshops have proven to be an excellent way for women to increase their awareness and to hear different points of view on major issues. We want the workshops to be substantive - including some role playing and much discussion."

The Commission agreed to focus on six areas of major importance to women: Women's health and rights; alternate and changing life styles, problems of physical abuse; employment; alcoholism and drugs; and education.

Details of the program are being developed by a Committee consisted of Mrs. D'Avignon, Mrs. Alicia Coletti, Director of the Women's Center, and Commission members Rhonda Merrill, Toby Felton and Deborah Orman.

The program will be free and open to the public. Details of the scheduling will be announced later.

South Shore Secretaries Welcome Catherine Olson

Miss Catherine Olson, 74 Presidential Dr., Quincy Point, was introduced as a provisional member at the regular monthly meeting of the South Shore Chapter of the National Secretaries Association at The Hollow.

Miss Olson is secretary to Paul Keough, director of public affairs at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency in Boston.

A provisional member is one who has had secretarial training but does not have the two years' secretarial experience required for regular membership. They must be actively engaged as full-time secretaries at the time of admission.

Secretaries in the South Shore area interested in knowing more about membership can contact membership chairman Eleanor Fusoni at 696-4115.

Parenting Course Starts Jan. 25 At QJC

A Parenting Course, designed to help parents or primary caregivers in dealing with everyday problems, is being offered at Quincy Junior College from Jan. 25 to April 5 at 7 p.m.

The course deals with such questions as:

What are parent's rights in schools? Are parents born or made? What is a father? What is a mother? What resources are available to parents?

Parents who need the ideas and support of other parents and professionals in order to learn some alternative strategies for dealing with their problems, are encouraged to enroll.

Goal of the course is to encourage parents to develop a positive self concept, a problem solving process, alternative solutions and a support system. Parents will discover from each other that they have common concerns and that there are many ways to deal with those concerns.

It is a new and developing area of study that is trying to help parents to recognize and increase their skills because to be a parent is a skill. If interested call 471-9200.

Volunteers Being Trained For Family Planning Project

A volunteer program is now being conducted to train workers for the Quincy Family Planning Project, a component of the Quincy Community Action Organization Inc.

Volunteers will receive both background information and training relating to various aspects of women's health care.

The program, taught by staff members of Quincy Family Planning, will enable participants to assist in the operation of the family planning project.

Quincy Family Planning Project provides women's health services to individuals from the South Shore area. Offices are located at 372 Granite St. [Brewer's Corner], Southwest Quincy, and at 9 Bicknell St., Germantown.

Services [by appointment] include gynecological clinics, health counseling, pregnancy testing, community presentations, informal home discussions, and information and referral services for related health needs. For further details, call 471-8727 [Southwest Quincy] or 471-5187 [Germantown].

Two Quincy Men Elected To Top MDA Chapter Posts

Two Quincy residents were elected major officers of the Southern Massachusetts Chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association at the annual meeting of the organization.

William Lowry was elected president and Angelo DelGreco was elected treasurer of the chapter. Both men are members of the Quincy Fire Department and spearhead the department's annual firefighter canister distribution program for Muscular Dystrophy.

As active volunteers for the Muscular Dystrophy Association Lowry and DelGreco have served in a variety of capacities. During the past year they were co-chairmen of the Chapter's patient service committee.

They also conduct a weekly chute-bowling program in Wollaston for children and adults with muscular dystrophy.

The Southern Massachusetts Chapter of MDA covers Norfolk, Plymouth, Barnstable, Dukes and Nantucket counties, providing orthopedic appliances, clinical care, physical therapy and recreational programs for the afflicted.

Additionally, the Muscular Dystrophy Association supports world-wide research programs allocating a record $12 million in 1977.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

How often have you looked at an engagement ring and admired the flashes of color it gives off? The technical term for this display of light is 'fire', and it is most often associated with diamonds. The rainbow you see in a stone is caused by white light being broken up - dispersed - into its component colors. The 'luster' of a given gem describes how the stone looks in reflected light. There are different types of luster, such as pearly or metallic. The ruby, for example, has a silky luster, while the diamond's is called adamantine.

The first place to look for beautiful engagement rings is our store, GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490. We have a complete selection of styles and sizes including round, marquise and pear shapes. Let us help you select the ring you will be happy to wear for many years. Master Charge and other credit terms are available. Hours: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.

HELPFUL HINT:

If a gem allows light to pass through it perfectly, it is said to be transparent.

hardship for handicapped patients.

● A "visitors' holding room" at the east entrance so that patients being discharged will have a comfortable place to wait to be picked up.

● A survey to determine the possible medical uses for Gordon House, the student nurses' quarters, once the last classes in the nursing school leave the hospital.

During the 15 months in which he has been on the job, DeFalco said the hospital has reached the accreditation level and has been commended for being brought up to standard.

"The state is pleased with our progress," he said.

One of the hospital's aims right now, he said, is development of a family practice residency program.

"Family practice means a lot to a hospital," he said.

"When I came here, affiliation with a teaching hospital was a necessity. Now we have four second year medical students coming to us for training.

"It is our aim, by July 1 of next year, to have a full family residency program, which would attract younger doctors.

"Some 60 percent of the doctors at City Hospital are only five years from retirement. We hope we can attract the younger doctors to stay."

have an hour and a half to question them.

After that, they will either hold a roll call vote, with the winner selected by a simple majority of the 15 members, or they will postpone the vote for another day.

The last candidate to apply was Arnold Levine, a supervisor of health education in the Randolph public schools, whose application was received Tuesday.

Other candidates include the three men who were defeated for school posts in the November election, former School Committeemen Francis Anselmo and Charles T. Sweeny and J. Thomas Mullaney.

Also Janet Caristo, a teacher at Silver Lake Regional High School; Ronald Conway, a Boston police officer; Mary J. Mayo, a secretary in the Quincy schools; William J. Hurley, a Boston school teacher; and Patrick J. Conroy, who ran for City Council in 1977.

City Councillor Leo J. Kelly, architect of the five-minute statement, question and answer format, urged citizens with questions for the candidates to submit them to members of the joint convention.

Harold Calls For Hearing On Adams Birthplaces

City Councillor Paul D. Harold has called for a public hearing in February on a proposal that the National Parks System take over the Adams Birthplaces on Franklin St.

Harold and a special subcommittee on the Adams Birthplaces met Tuesday morning to discuss the hearing, a visit by Cong. Morris Udall [D-Ariz.] and installation of a fire alarm system.

Udall is to visit the birthplaces Jan. 28 and attend a reception at 4 p.m. that day in the Quincy Historical Society headquarters at the old Adams Academy.

Harold reported to the subcommittee that heat and smoke detectors have been installed in the birthplaces by the Fire Alarm Department under Jack Schmock, with a direct connection to Central Fire Station.

Attending Tuesday's subcommittee meeting were Mrs. William O'Connell, Miss Mildred Harrison and Mrs. Norma Gacicia.

QJC Offering Course In Outdoor Gardening

The Quincy Junior College Outdoor Gardening course is for anyone with a garden, small or large. It is a practical course in the growing of vegetables, flowers and plants.

Christos Mpelkas, of the Norfolk County Agricultural Extension Office and the University of Massachusetts, offers his expertise for growing vegetables and plants in the soil and land conditions of the South Shore area. A national authority on conservation, environmental affairs, and agriculture, Mr. Mpelkas recently chaired a seminar on the use of solar energy in the home.

Home gardening will concentrate on the proper way to handle plants, the proper culture and soil for various crops, how to control garden pests, the advantages of succession cropping, and the best harvesting techniques.

Learning to grow your own plants and vegetables is not only a pleasurable year-round hobby but, also, an economical way to save on food costs.

Home Gardening will be offered Monday evenings from 7 to 9 p.m. for 10 weeks. Classes begin Jan. 23. For more information and registration material, call the College at 471-2470.

Blue Hills Environmental Meeting

Friends of the Blue Hills are sponsoring an open meeting on environmental problems of the Blue Hills area, Wednesday at 8 p.m. at Trailside Museum on Brush Hill Rd, in Milton.

Purpose of the meeting is to gather support for a management plan for the Blue Hills Recreation Area and to revise Metropolitan District Commission regulations of the area. All who are interested in preserving the wilderness and recreational character of this unique region are urged to attend the meeting.

Flower tips from Andre Moreau

If you're sleuthing around looking for rare jewels, do not overlook the Anoectochilus Collection. Each one of the twenty tropical Asian species is an exotic jewel orchid plant - a miniature with marvelous leaves of lush silver, gold, red and olive. The best place to discover the three or four species available in this country is a terrarium setting. There they nestle in 70 percent humidity, protected from drafts, in a mossy bed out of the direct sun. The Anoectochilus treasure shines with breathtaking foliage and clusters of ½ inch flowers in tones of greenish - white.

At NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 you will find a wide variety of hand picked foliage and specimen plants. Keep in mind that a plant makes "The perfect gift for those who have everything and for those who have nothing...for the young and the old." Living plants are being used more and more by progressive companies so if you are a businessman let's discuss your needs. We can make arrangements whereby these plants and floral designs can be changed on a regular basis, as you desire. Hours: Mon. - Sat., 8-6, evenings by appointment.

HELPFUL HINT:
To take cuttings from plants, use a sharp knife -- cut a four inch piece just below a node, remove lower leaves and pot.

Mrs. M. Elizabeth Pickles Sterling, 74, Founder Of City's First Nursery-Kindergarten School

Services were to be held Wednesday at Wollaston Congregational Church for Mrs. M. Elizabeth [Hogg] Pickles Sterling, 74, known affectionatley to friends and hundreds of students as "Mrs. Pickles". Burial was to be in Blue Hill Cemetery.

Mrs. Sterling founded Quincy's first nursery-kindergarten school, the Babette Kindergarten and Nursery School, at her home on Newbury Ave., 47 years ago. She later developed it into an organized kindergarten and moved to Billings Rd. For the past 37 years the school has been located on Willow St.

When she retired in 1945 she turned the school over to her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth J. Curtis of the Willow St. address.

Mrs. Sterling has made her home at Fenno House, 540 Hancock St., Quincy for the past four years. She died there on Saturday.

With her first husband, the late John H. Pickles she also operated a summer camp at Greenfield, N.H. - from the early thirties until 1952. For several years she ran a store called "The Pickle Barrel" in the Colonial Village in the Parkingway. The store featured items made by senior citizens.

ELIZABETH PICKLES STERLING

Born in Chicago, Mrs. Sterling lived for some time in New Jersey and attended Rutgers University before coming to Quincy in 1928.

She was a member of the Wollaston Chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, the Stareme Club of Wollaston. She was vice president of the Heritage Senior Citizens Club of Wollaston and had been associated with several local and state educational organizations.

She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Curtis, and Mrs. Barbara J. Meister of Marshfield; two brothers, William C. Hogg of California, and James Hogg of New Jersey; two sisters, Mrs. Isabel Coepul of New Jersey and Mrs. Dorothy Bliss of Long Island, N.Y., six grandchildren, and six great grandchildren.

Rev. Charles McEachern is to conduct the services. Arrangements were made by DeWare Brothers Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Services Thursday For John Bartholomew, 52, Quincy Police Safety Officer

Funeral services for John T. Bartholomew, 52, of 247 Presidents Lane, Quincy, a member of the Quincy police department for 25 years, will be held at 10 a.m. today [Thursday] in St. John's Church.

Officer Bartholomew had been with the traffic division for 12 years and served as safety officer for the past four years.

He was a member of the Massachusetts Safety Officers League, the South Shore Safety Officers League and the Morrisette Post, American Legion. During World War II he served with the Marines.

He was born in Boston but lived in Quincy for the past 27 years. He died at Quincy City Hospital on Sunday after a brief illness.

He leaves his wife, Rose [Smyth] Bartholomew; a daughter, Julia Ann Bartholomew of the home address; two brothers, Albert Bartholomew of Cohoes, N.Y., and Joseph Bartholomew of Valencia, Calif.; two sisters, Mary Bilodeau of Somerville and Ruth Giudice, of Santa Monica, Calif.

Visiting hours at the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy, 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday. Burial will be in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Services Held For Ellis Swartz, 63, School Language Coordinator

Services were held this week in Hollywood, Fla., for Ellis J. Swartz, 63, retired coordinator of foreign languages for the Quincy Public Schools, and author.

He lived on Oval Rd, Quincy for many years, moving to Lauderdale Lakes three years ago. He died Saturday at the Florida Medical Center.

He had served 28 years with the Quincy school department at the time of his retirement. Prior to being named coordinator of foreign languages he had been a teacher of German and social studies at Quincy High School and also chairman of the foreign language department.

After being named coordinator of foreign languages he introduced the Amity Aide program to the school system. This program brings young South American and European university graduates to assist students learn about foreign languages and cultures.

He had numerous articles on education published and in 1969 was author of the novel "All Her Paths Are Peace" published by Christopher Publishing House, North Quincy.

In 1972 his biography appeared in Leaders of American Secondary Education.

He held a bachelor of arts degree from Williams College and a masters degree in modern languages from Harvard University. He also did graduate work at Boston College, Boston University and the University of Texas.

He was also a past director of the American Jewish Congress.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eleanor Swartz; a daughter, Mrs. Rita Pyenson; a brother, Sidney Swartz; two sisters, Mrs. Mildred Bookstein and Mrs. Rosalie Grunin, and two grandchildren. He was the father of the late Ronald Swartz.

Bethany Will Discuss Major Repairs At Annual Meeting Sunday

The annual meeting of the Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Center, will be held in the church social hall Sunday, Jan. 22, following the 10 a.m. service.

The Congregation will discuss the lack of funds needed for major repairs, improvements and redecoration in anticipation of the 50th anniversary of the dedication of the sanctuary which is scheduled for January, 1980.

Members of the parish will hear the usual reports, elect officers and committee members for the coming year, and adopt a budget.

William J. Lipp, finance committee chairman, is scheduled to submit a budget for 1978 which, for current expenses and benevolences combined, will total about $100,000.

The Administrative Committee has announced it will suggest a two or three-year campaign, similar to the successful "Project Advance." It will encompass such major improvements as protective windows for the sanctuary and chapel, a new 'return system' for the heating plant, and an auxiliary heating system for offices and parlor alone. It is hoped this would cut fuel bills.

Major repairs to be covered would include replacement of most gutters and downspouts and the rebuilding of the wall and parapet on the side of the walkway on the Spear St. side of the sanctuary. Cleaning and painting of the sanctuary would also be paid for through the special fund-raising.

The meeting will also consider a proposal to include in the capital funds project replacement of the $22,000 borrowed from endowment monies about 30 years ago. A gift from the Conference Center Fund (Framingham) would be part of this goal.

Preceding the meeting the members of the church will have a covered dish dinner in the social hall.

St. Chrysostom's Annual Meeting Jan. 24

The annual meeting of St. Chrysostom's parish will be held Tuesday, Jan. 24, at 7:30 p.m. in the crypt of the church, Linden St., Wollaston.

The meeting will receive and accept minutes of the previous annual meeting and receive and accept reports of the rector, wardens, treasurer, and the nominating committee.

Parishioners will also elect a junior warden, vestry people, and delegates and alternates to the diocesan convention and District 10. The nominating committee is asking for suggestions for nominees. They may be sent to James Woodford, 16 Gladstone St., North Quincy, 02171.

Youth Sunday At Point Congregational

Youth Sunday will be observed at the Quincy Point Congregational Church, Quincy Point, Sunday, Jan. 22, with members of the Senior and Junior Pilgrim Fellowships presiding over the 10 a.m. morning worship service.

At noon, the Junior Fellowship will sponsor a ham dinner in the social hall. The menu will include ham, scalloped potatoes, vegetables, beverage and dessert.

In past years the Church School Open House was held on Youth Sunday. This year it has been decided to have the Open House Sunday, Feb. 5, to accommodate the needs of teachers and students.

MSPCC District Director Salvation Army Speaker

Barbara G. Walsh, district director, Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, will be the guest speaker at 7 p.m., Wednesday at the Salvation Army, 6 Baxter St.

Her talk will follow the regular weekly meeting of the Ladies Home League.

Michael Perry Completes Navy Training

Navy Seaman Apprentice Michael Perry of Quincy has completed recruit training at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Ill.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Perry of 9 Lakeside Ave., Houghs Neck. His wife, Kathleen, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward O'Toole of 146 Kendrick Ave., Squantum.

During the eight week training Perry studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic occupational fields. He joined the Navy in Oct. 1977.

Guessing Game: What Will LaRaia Run For?

Joseph LaRaia is out of Quincy's political spotlight but still very much present in the minds of politician watchers when they get together.

The usual question: "What do you think he will run for?"

The answer? Take your pick.

If you're talking about 1978, some members of the Speculation Corps think he will challenge Mayor Arthur Tobin for his senate seat. If he does, the campaign would probably be a replay of the bitter battle for the mayor's office.

Others think he may take a shot at the new state representative district seat which will be a combination of the areas now represented by Reps. James Sheets and Michael Morrissey. It will include Squantum, Montclair, Upper Wollaston and West Quincy.

With Sheets all but a formally announced candidate for Congress, LaRaia would have to take on young Morrissey. And, that's a lot of taking on. Just ask Joseph Brett.

In addition to Morrissey, LaRaia might find City Councillor John Lydon in the arena, too. Ask Lydon if he plans to run for the new seat and you'll get a smile and the comment: "My heart's there." His hat could be very well there, soon.

Then, there are those who think LaRaia might step into the Congressional ring which would certainly make that picture quite interesting.

With Sheets just an inch or two from officially entering the ring and former Mayor-Senator James McIntyre thinking of getting in [if incumbent James Burke doesn't seek re-election], three Quincy candidates might knock one another off and let someone else take the prize.

If you are looking ahead to 1979, some observers wouldn't be surprised to see LaRaia try a political comeback at the municipal level. Either a run against Tobin for the mayor's office, or a "start it all over again" bid for City Council at-Large.

The guessing game is on, and your guess may be as good as anyone else's. But there seems to be agreement that LaRaia will be back in the political arena as a candidate--for something.

SOME OBSERVERS think Congressman James Burke may call it a career and not seek re-election this year.

But Burke certainly did not look or act like a man ready for pasture at the recent public hearing here on the controversial proposed Central Mail Facility. He was in fighting form as he led the assault on the proposal and postal officials -- even threatening a Congressional investigation to kayo it.

Mayor Tobin noted that Burke had brought about the public hearing so that people could get the facts.

"The Congressman might have suffered a physical disability in recent months, but it hasn't impaired his ability to represent the people of the 11th Congressional District.

That set off the partisan crowd. "Give 'em hell, Jimmy!" they roared.

Prospective challengers in the audience might have left the meeting that night thinking if they really want Burke's 11th seat they may have to dynamite him out of it.

CITY COUNCILLOR Paul Harold can attest that Hubert Humphrey was "a man for all people."

"During the summer of 1971 I was working in Washington," Harold recalls. I happened to be in the waiting room of an educational television station where Humphrey and Senator Jacob Javits [R-N.Y.] were waiting to go on the Martin Agronsky show.

"Humphrey wandered over to one of the vending machines, but found he didn't have any change. I was only too happy to supply him with the necessary 15 cents," Harold said.

Harold declined Humphrey's offer to send him the money and said "It's not every day you get a chance to buy a Senator a cup of coffee."

REP. ROBERT CERASOLI is getting his campaign for re-election off and rolling with a champagne reception fund-raiser Sunday, March 12 from 2 to 6 p.m. at the new Howard Johnson Motor Lodge, Granite St., Braintree. Tickets [$25 per] are available from Dolores McCray [773-5924].

SPEAKING OF CERASOLI, reports are he may be challenged for the new Quincy Point-North Weymouth state representative seat by John Nourse, director of the Norfolk County Development and Tourist Council and Weymouth assessor.

Nourse, who grew up in Quincy Point, is "seriously considering" a run according to sources close to him. He would have to take a leave from his county post to campaign.

ATTY. STEPHEN KEEFE, who had expressed interest in the School Committee vacancy, has withdrawn from consideration and for good reason. He has been named to the Secretary of the Air Force's Reserve Policy Committee, a job that will send him to Washington quite frequently.

Keefe, who holds the rank of major general in the Air Force, is one of five generals named to the committee as advisors to the Secretary on matters affecting the A.F. Reserve. His duties would have interfered with service time wise on the School Committe, prompting him to withdraw from consideration.

Quincy MDC Detective Recalls Serving As Humphrey's Driver

By PETER BARNICLE

MDC Detective Leo Q. Papile, 85 Quincy Shore Dr., North Quincy, and the late Senator Hubert Humphrey found a common bond during the Minnesotan's visit to Boston in 1965as Vice President.

The detective and the Vice President found they had a mutual friend in Quincy's Sam Mele, one time Red Sox outfielder and now batting instructor for the club.

Papile recalled his day with Humphrey after watching the impressive televised ceremonies from Washington as final tributes were paid to the highly respected leader.

Papile has been with the MDC police for the past 27 years, the last 15 as a detective. On that day he was assigned to the Vice President's party.

"All through the telecast on Sunday my thoughts kept going back to that day," he said. "I felt it a great honor to be given the job along with five of my colleagues. We were assigned to drive the Vice Presidential party from Logan Airport to Tufts University.

"None of us knew which limousine he would be assigned to, we just went and awaited orders."

Papile explained that the MDC police were picked for the assignment because most of the roads to be followed from the airport to Medford were under MDC jurisdiction and the Secret Service felt they would know the area.

"I was amazed to find out that I was to drive the car carrying the Vice President and then Speaker of the House John W. McCormack," Papile recalls.

"A Secret Service agent rode in the front seat with me. His first order was that in case of an accident of any nature I was to head immediately for the nearest hospital. Thank God, nothing happened.

"It was my first experience driving a VIP. I had been on details as a uniformed officer when Richard Nixon visited the area as Vice President and also during the visit of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Since then I have been assigned to the late President Lyndon B. Johnson and President Jerry Ford. There have been a lot of other celebrities, but Hubert Humphrey's visit remains most vivid in my mind.

"The Secret Service man carried a 'walkie-talkie' and at various points along the route to Medford he would contact other agents and the MDC police patroling the roads and bridges.

"Humphrey and McCormack were chatting in the back seat. A glass partition separated them from the agent and myself.

Along the way I asked the agent if I could speak to the Vice President.

"I wanted to tell the Vice President that I was from Quincy and that I was a friend of Sam Mele, who had managed the Minnesota Twins. I knew that Humphrey was a great baseball fan. I also wanted to get his autograph for my sons, Leo, who was then 14 and John A., who was 10

"The agent said he would relay the message. Humphrey responded quickly and leaning forward he asked, "How is my friend Sam? And how is his lovely wife Connie? When you see them say 'hello' for me."

"As we drove along the Secret Service man gave me two cards one for each of the boys. The cards, signed by the Vice President, were invitations to visit the U.S. Senate Chambers as his guests at any time. The boys still have them.

"I have been on the force for 27 years, the last 15 as a dectective. I've had a lot of assignments, but that was certainly the most thrilling VIP detail I have ever been on."

Bartley, Francis Bellotti, now Attorney General; Al Cello, Kevin Harrington, then Dist. Atty. George A. Burke, Michael Haynes, Judge Francis J. Larkin.

Burke: Humphrey 'Plain, Down-To-Earth'

"I always considered him one of the most outstanding men I every knew," Atty. George A. Burke of Quincy said in recalling his long friendship with the late Senator Hubert H. Humphrey.

"He was a law enforcement man and had been a crime buster when he was mayor of Minneapolis," the former Norfolk County District Attorney said. "In that way I related to him quite easily."

Burke headed the Norfolk County campaign when Humphrey ran for President in 1968.

"When he came to Boston we all met him at Logan. He invited us aboard his jet and talked about campaign strategies and told us what he had been doing up to that time.

"Then we went in a motorcade through downtown Boston to the corner of Washington and Summer Sts. for a noontime rally," Burke said.

The former district attorney says he can still remember clearly that Humphrey touched on the problems of poverty, education and civil rights.

"He had such a love for America and the American people you just felt it when you were around him," Burke said.

During the short campaign visit to Boston, Humphrey presented Burke with an autographed copy of "A Man for All People: A Pictorial Biography of Hubert H. Humphrey".

The autograph reads "To George Burke with Best Wishes - Hubert H. Humphrey."

"You can see by reading the captions which he wrote for the book that he was never a difficult man," Burke commented. "He was a plain, down-to-earth person and tried to make everybody feel at home when they were talking with him."

After the campaign Burke visited Humphrey in Washington and stayed in touch with him through the years.

City Clerk, Wife Receive 'Thank You' From Humphrey Hours Before His Death

A note from Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey [D-Minn] arrived at the home of City Clerk and Mrs. John M. Gillis, 23 Richard St., Quincy Point, only hours before the former vice president died in Waverly, Minn.

The note was in response to a Mass card that the Gillises sent to the senator at Christmastime when he was fighting the ravages of terminal cancer.

"Thank you for your thoughtful message and kind concern for my health," said the note from Humphrey.

"I have much to be thankful for, including the many friends and countless persons who have wished me well. Your kind thoughts and helpful suggestions mean a great deal to me."

Mrs. Gillis said her husband had met Humphrey several times and "we think so much of him. My husband always thought he was a great person."

Plan A Committee Celebrates Plan E Defeat

The Citizens Committee for Plan A held a victory celebration to commemorate the defeat of Plan E in the November election.

Laurence J. Curtin, one of the prime movers behind the Plan A Committee, told celebrators:

"Plan E promised lower taxes and better government. It produced nothing."

"Don't be carried away with the propaganda that we need an outsider to run our city," said former Public Works Commissioner Angelo P. Bizzozero.

"The task belongs in the hands of the people who love Quincy."

The Plan E charter, under which Quincy was governed since 1930, was voted out by a margin of 14,378 to 12,851.

HOSPITAL OVERCROWDED

Dr. Joseph P. Leone, director of Quincy City Hospital, said that "overcrowded conditions at the hospital are very bad and they are getting worse."

"There are three maternity patients in the corridors this morning," he said. "There are five more in the delivery room and some of these will have to be placed in the corridors also."

In the past few weeks, said Dr. Leone, it was necessary to deny admission to several acutely ill patients because the waiting list averages 25 to 35 and lengthening.

COMMUNISTS ASSAILED

Rev. Oswald A. Blumit, 45 Myopia Rd. Wollaston, told the Quincy Kiwanis Club that native communists and fellow travelers "are the most dangerous communists and enemies of our American way of life."

The way to handle the communist menace, he said, is to fight it and not practice appeasement.

Rev. Blumit advocated breaking off "every relationship with ungodly Russia. No matter how fair you are with the Russians they won't be fair with you."

BROCKTON BEATS NORTH

The North Quincy High School basketball team suffered its second defeat in nine games as Brockton rolled up a 36-14 halftime lead and coasted to 68-52 victory.

Doug Grutchfield had 18 points and Bob Walsh 15 for the Raiders.

The North Quincy roster included: Adams, Painten, Mann, Crowley, Hubar, forwards: Grutchfield, Fitzpatrick, centers; Stevenson, Cox, Walsh, Carney, Deane, guards.

LAUNDRY TO CLOSE

The City Hospital Board of Managers recommended to City Manager Donald H. Blatt that the hospital's laundry department be abolished "in the interest of economy and efficiency.

"The laundry work can be done more quickly and at less cost if it is let out on contract on a competitive bidding basis," said the Managers' report.

QUINCY-ISMS

Delcevare King was given the first Silver Beaver Award at the 37th anniversary banquet of the Quincy Boy Scout Council in the Woodward School Hall... Guy Salvucci, former Quincy High Star, was named football coach at American International College... The Quincy YMCA planned a reception for Floyd Folmsbee, who was retiring after 32 years as general secretary... Promises Wholehearted Support

Tobin Pledges 'Substantial Money' For ND Revitalization

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin has pledged wholehearted support of plans for revitalization of the Norfolk Downs business district and has promised "a substantial amount of money for public works in the area" Charles Alongi, representing the Mayor, told a meeting of the Atlantic Neighborhood Association.

Such improvements are considered necessary before any comprehensive revitalization can begin, Alongi said. The meeting was called at the request of Ward 6 Councillor Joanne Condon who explained that she wanted suggestions from residents and businessmen of the area before any improvement and rehabilitation plans are finalized.

Gerald Marquis of the department of planning and community development presented results of a study on the needs and potentials of the Norfolk Downs business district.

The Norfolk Downs businessmen, the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and the Department of Planning have been working with Sasaki Associates, Inc. as part of the comprehensive community development program for the North Quincy area.

Concern was expressed about traffic problems and inadequate public transportation, but most Atlantic residents expressed enthusiasm for the revitalization of the business district.

Thomas Nutley of the association said that most people feel that "the development of our business district is vital to the continued growth of our Atlantic neighborhood."

MONEY TALKS
Our European Ancestors Learned About Inflation 400 Years Ago
By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings
and Loan Association of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

A monumental work on the Mediterranean world in the sixteenth century by the celebrated French historian Fernand Braudel deserves reading not only by students of history but by any person alert to the lessons it provides for today's living.

The eminently readable 1,300-page tome, The Mediterranean and the Mediterranean World in the Age of Philip II [in two volumes], provides chilling insights into the effects of inflation upon other people in other times, witnessed as upon a theatrical stage. This is of course a small aspect of its total impact, but it is one of special interest to those concerned today about the dollar and its effect on how we live.

Europeans, Asiatics, and Africans in that era were totally unprepared for this novel phenomenon and its brutal characteristics. They were in fact stupified by it, seeing it only in its immediate manifestations.

"Today a pound of mutton costs as much as a whole sheep used to," complained a Spaniard in 1513.

"In my father's time, there was meat to eat every day, the meals were copious, and the wine flowed like water," a Frenchman wrote in 1560.

The heavy inflows of silver from the Americas, and the disastrous export of gold, mostly to the East in exchange for silks, spices, and other goods were blamed by many for what was happening. Spaniards at Vallodolid petitioned the King "to tolerate no longer the importing of candles, glass trinkets, jewelry, cutlery, and similar objects from foreign countries which are exchanged, although they are useless luxuries, for gold, as if Spaniards were Indians." Abundance of money in relation to supply of things to buy caused prices to skyrocket.

Nominal wages rose along with prices, but their real value tumbled so that lower-paid workers were in extreme poverty. Yet they were blamed for lack of productivity. An official report of 1588 said that rising prices existed because "the people of the lowlands eat and drink to excess in the taverns, where they pick up vicious and lazy habits, neglecting their fields and orchards."

Kings and states were likewise censured, the King of Spain for massive military expenditures in preparation for war on Portugal, other heads for continuing to spend on an impossible scale and then heavily increasing taxation, postponing payments of debts, and devaluating gold and other precious metals to pay bills. In Portugal, taxes were up to 20% on sales and 50% on fisheries. In Florence, the burden became so heavy that it led in 1582 to an exodus of the population.

The familiar inflationary picture is all there for us to review. The disquieting thing is that it was not a temporary matter but lasted throughout the lifetimes of many who were unfortunate enough to be born in that era.

Richard Corner Area Chairman For Suffolk Fund

Richard W. Corner of 66 Forbes Hill Rd., Wollaston, has been named area chairman for the annual fund for Suffolk University's College of Liberal Arts and College of Business Administration.

Announcement was made by John E. McDonald of Braintree, general chairman of the fund-raising effort.

Corner will be responsible for organizing alumni volunteers in the Quincy area for the 1977-78 annual fund campaign.

He was graduated from Suffolk University in 1969 with a bachelor of science in business administration degree.

Corner is a certified public accountant.

He is a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, the Massachusetts Society of Certified Public Accountants and the Municipal Finance Officers Association.

He and his wife, the former Carole A. Ricciuti, have one child.

January Is National Blood Donor Month

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

National Blood Donor Month
January 1978

A donation of blood is an unequaled expression of concern for one's fellowman and a source of deepest satisfaction to both donor and recipient. Millions of Americans recognize the nature of this act and participate in it regularly. Yet millions more who are eligible to donate do not. I welcome this opportunity to encourage these people to join with the rest of us in contributing to the creation of an adequate all-voluntary supply of blood for those in need.

January is traditionally the month when we honor the Americans who have given blood so that others might live. We recognize the importance of the act of giving and the vital necessity of making available an adequate supply of voluntary blood. We cannot meet our needs in this area by donations only during the month of January. We must be conscious throughout the year that these needs exist and respond to them generously and with compassion.

As a regular donor of blood, I appeal to those who have never seriously considered the importance and benefits of participating, and I urge all qualified Americans to join in this life-giving cause.

He's Himself On TV

Rex Trailer: A Man And Entertainer With A Heart

By ROBIN LORD

An entertainer at heart, the man beneath the cowboy hat and cowhide trimmed outfit sang Old West tunes and traded jokes with fidgeting youngsters as technical difficulties were remedied during a recent taping of "Boomtown".

Rex Trailer, New England television's western entertainer of many parents as well as children, is that man. His ability to work with children, off camera as well as on, is seen in his love for his "role" as host of "Boomtown" the children's series, [Saturdays at 8:30 a.m. on WXNE-TV Channel 25.

"What you see on television is me, as far as my personality is concerned," Trailer says. "I urge all of my students at Emerson College and in my video workshop to be themselves. If they can develop a character which is representative of their own personality, the audience will 'turn on' to it. Playing a role might be good if you're doing a play or series. But if you're going to host a TV series you're much better off being yourself than trying to play some sort of role that you're going to get caught at."

Having made an impression on quite a few children in his lifetime, Rex remembers his own childhood on his grandfather's ranch in Thurber, Texas. His work and learning experiences on the ranch became his whole way of life. Various cowboys on the ranch would teach him square dance calls, trick riding or a few chords on the guitar.

REX TRAILER

There was a sparkle in his eye as he remembered those days.

Rex performed in rodeos at the age of 16. "Rough riding wasn't the way to make it because you got too many broken bones," he remembers. "I found I could do something the others couldn't, trick riding and roping." His professional abilities won him a job as a contract performer where he was paid for appearances he made in corrals.

Rex considers his jobs at guest ranches, which included calling square dances with a band he had formed, as his first real entertaining job. He once worked for Gabby Hayes on the children's ranch he owned. It was Hayes who encouraged Rex to pursue a career in entertaining young children.

"I made it for myself in New York, pounding on doors," Rex says. "I knew I liked entertaining and the television business. However, anyone trying to get into the business must keep in mind that you might have to handle a variety of jobs before you reach your goal. A lot of disappointments are involved and my own career has taken many sidetracks. You have to be flexible and have an open mind."

Rex "came in through the back door" as he says, as a production assistant. He then worked his way up to associate producer, to directing and then to writing and starring in his own show.

"Boomtown", featuring games, cartoons, music, magic, live animals and informative feature segments, was Rex's own idea. He does his own writing and has written for other children's shows such as "Earth Lab" and television specials.

Rex views children today as much more sophisticated than when he first started his show. As for the development of his own show in keeping up with this sophistication, he has become quite aware of the pace of children's shows. Rex believes, as he puts it "the Sesame Street syndrome has taken hold." Many youngsters have been brought up with a machine gun pace in programming that they expect in all their learning experiences.

His analysis is that "the big problem teachers are having with youngsters today is that they get in a classroom expecting a teacher to keep the pace they are accustomed to on TV. As a result, when we produce "Boomtown", no segment lasts for more than five minutes."

As for violence on TV, Rex says, "when I was a kid we played cowboys and Indians, cops and robbers, 'shoot 'em up bang, bang'. There are many people who believe that this is a good venting of aggressions, if children can get them out by pretending."

"But TV has such atark realism today. A dramatization might seem quite real to a child. Still, I can't believe the majority of youngsters would view killing as being the right thing to do. They would have to have absolutely no moral upbringing at all at home."

Not only an entertainer at heart, but an entertainer with a heart. Rex has devoted much of the past 15 years to the Muscular Dystrophy Association. He is chairman of Carnivals Against Dystrophy and Special Events Chairman of New England. For four years Rex served as National Vice President of MDA.

"Muscular Dystrophy is a fine organization with fine people," says Rex.

And Rex Trailer is a fine man bringing educational entertainment to young New England viewers.

Quincy Still Chasing First, North Moves Toward Tourney

Quincy Basketball Coach Joe Amorosino, suffering through his most frustrating season, is using all sorts of maneuvers in an attempt to give the Presidents' their first win of the year.

Amorosino, whose team's record dropped to 0-11 last Friday, began using his sophomores several games ago and last Friday against Cambridge Rindge and Latin he opened the game with a stall but Cambridge broke it with an effective full court press and went on to win, 61-41.

"I went with a stall because we were 0-10 and Cambridge was much bigger than we are," Amorosino said. Quincy used the stall throughout the opening period.

Quincy had an 8-6 lead after a period but Cambridge outscored the Presidents, 7-3, to pull away, 23-11, at the half and took a big 50-29 lead into the final period.

John Connolly paced Quincy's scorers with 12 points.

Earlier in the week Quincy lost to Newton North, 65-40, but Amorosino again was pleased with the sophomores, who continued to play well.

Rich Finnegan had nine points, three assists and four rebounds from his guard spot, Andy Carrera handled the floor leadership duties well and Paul Bandera pulled down five rebounds, scored six points and played well both ways.

The Presidents will play at Weymouth North Friday night and will face North Quincy Tuesday.

Eddie Miller's North Quincy team came from 15 points behind last Friday to nip Sharon, 54-53, in a non-league game at Sharon.

The Raiders trailed, 32-17, with three minutes to go in the first half but outscored the home team, 12-3, to cut the gap to 35-29 at halftime. North tied it at 41 in the third period and set the stage for a dramatic finish.

With two minutes left in the game North led, 49-45, but Sharon tied it with less than a minute to play. Sharon went ahead, 53-51, but Pete Johnston sank a foul shot and Steve Germain hit for the winning basket.

Johnston led the Raiders with 13 points, Wink Phelan had 12 and Germain added 10.

North, with a 4-5 record, can lose only one more game and still automatically qualify for the state tournament.

However, if the sectional committees are unable to fill their eight-team brackets with teams winning 70 percent or more of their games, they can add teams with winning percentages lower than 70. They could go as far down as 59 percent, so if North loses more than one more game and doesn't win 70 percent, it will still have an outside chance of being selected.

Earlier in the week North bowed to Weymouth South, 51-44, due mainly to a bad third period which saw North outscored, 11-4, after being tied at 22 at the half.

"These kids won't quit, they are hustlers and haven't been really blown out of a game," Miller Said. "We are going to bust it until we are officially out of it."

Johnston again paced the Raiders with 14 points.

Friday night North hosts Waltham at the Vo-Tech gym and Tuesday will meet Quincy for the second time.

Crusaders Hope To Rebound

The month-long vacation break didn't help the Eastern Nazarene College basketball team one bit.

Enjoying a 4-1 record and four wins in a row before the break, the Crusaders returned to action last week and dropped two in a row, marking second-year coach Ron Bradley's first regular season home defeats.

In its first game after the break, ENC dropped an 80-69 decision to Roger Williams College.

Mike Barefoot and Jim Bryan sparked the Crusaders with 15 points each.

Last Friday's game with Barrington was postponed until Feb. 14, due to the weather but the following night fouls proved ENC's undoing as it dropped an 82-79 heartbreaker to Suffolk, number 3 in New England Division III NCAA ratings.

The Crusaders outscored Suffolk, 37-32, from the floor but Suffolk had a big 18-5 edge from the foul line.

Jerry Perrera scored 22 points and Barefoot had 20 for the Crusaders.

ENC will play at King's College Friday night, will be at Nyack Saturday night and will play at New Hampshire College next Tuesday night.

Don Constantine's ENC women remained unbeaten as they returned to action following the holiday break with a 76-58 win over Harvard to make their record 4-0.

Donna Fandel paced the Crusaderettes with 20 points and 17 rebounds. Christi Kottis had 19 points, Lois Malvesti 16 and Janet Ranstrom 13.

The ENC women will play at MIT tonight (Thursday) at 7 and Saturday will play at Southeastern Mass. at 6.

MacDonald's Team Winner Koch Women's First Half

Captain Betty Ann MacDonald and her team won the first half of the Koch Club Women's Candlepin Bowling League with 84 wins and 20 losses.

Other members of the team include Katherine O'Neill, Rita McLeod, Ellen McAdams and Auralie Bolster.

Adele Foley's team finished second with a 73-31 record.

Susan Batts has the high individual three string total of 318, while Linda Bowes holds high single string of 126.

Betty Ann MacDonalds team holds three string total of 1349, and Pauline Antonio's team has high team single string of 476.

The Koch Club Women's Bowling League now in its 24th season, bowls Thursdays at 8:30 p.m. at the Merrymount Daylight Alleys, Broad St., Quincy.

Officers include Mary Ellen Lorizio, president; Susan Batts, secretary, and Ellen McAdams, treasurer.

YMCA To Dedicate New Folmsbee Memorial Wing

The new Folmsbee Memorial Wing at the Quincy YMCA, 79 Codding St., will be dedicated at ceremonies at noon Saturday, Jan. 28.

Paul E. Hurley, president of the Quincy YMCA, will preside. Mayor Arthur H. Tobin will bring the greetings of the city. Following reports by W. Gordon Clark, a past president and house and grounds chairman, and George H. Ramsden Jr., executive director, Dr. V. James DiNardo will dedicate the new facility.

Floyd Folmsbee served as general secretary of the Quincy YMCA from 1924 to 1956. He had previously served as Boy's Secretary, 1916 to 1924.

He was a pioneer in the resident camp movement and in 1918 established the first permanent boy's resident camp, Kamp Kwinzy, at Robbin's Pond in East Bridgewater. Ten years later he played a major role in securing the 650 acre site in South Sandwich where the current resident camp programs for boys and girls are housed at Camp Burgess and Camp Hayward.

The year before his retirement he had the satisfaction of seeing the South Shore Memorial Y dedicated. He was active in church affairs and served as president of the Quincy Rotary.

The effective way to insulate your home

Insulation effectiveness is measured in its resistance to heat flow . . . either moving out of the house in winter or flowing in, during the summer.

Celsius foam insulation has a high "R" rating which creates an efficient thermal barrier in ceilings, attics and walls. Celsius foam is pumped into walls cavities and flows around pipes, electrical outlets and other protrusions. It effectively seals against heat loss and drafts by completely filling the spaces without settling.

With Celsius foam you save on heating/cooling costs all year round and you get a return on your investment every time you receive your utility bill. You'll enjoy extra living comfort too!

North Faces Weymouth S., Quincy Meets Waltham

The North Quincy track team, despite the absence of several key performers with the flu, still had enough last week to defeat Boston Latin, 47-39, in a non-league meet, to make its record 5-3.

"We were missing a lot of people and I am pleased with the result," said Coach Lou Tozzi.

North had six winners. Dan McIntyre in the 300, Tom Fennessey in the 600, John Saville in the 1000, Mike Barrett in the Mile, Paul McCormack in the two-mile and Bob Ferrare in the high jump.

Russ Chisholm was second in the dash, John Pawell second in the 300, Mike Ricciuti second in the mile, Bob Biagini Second in the hurdles and Mike Larsen second in the shot put.

Saturday the Raiders will meet Weymouth South at Newton in a Suburban League meet. Quincy will face Waltham at the same site. Both meets will start at 10 a.m.

The North girls, coached by Jeff Strungis, didn't fare as well as the boys last week, losing to Newton North, 51-26.

The Raiderettes had three winners, Betsy Johnson in the mile (her third win in a row), sophomore Eileen Mackey in the 600 and soph Linda Kelleher in the 1000. Joanne Clark was second in the 300, Sheila Beck second in the shot put and Marilyn McKenzie second in the high jump.

The North girls' next meet will be next Thursday against Weymouth South at 3 at Brookline, site of all Suburban League meets. Meanwhile, the Quincy girls will face Weymouth South today (Thursday) at 3 and next Thursday will take on Waltham.

Quincy Swimmers In Fine Form But Bow

The Quincy swim team made one of its best showings of the season last week but dropped a close 84-80 decision to Cambridge Rindge and Latin in a Suburban League meet.

Quincy's John Connolly took first place in the 100-yard breaststroke and teammate Alan Johnson was second.

Other scorers for the Presidents were: 100-yard backstroke, Ed Fenby second and Steve Cabezas third; 100 freestyle, Dave Burke second and Neal Flaherty third; 100-yard butterfly, Dave Notarangelo second; 200-yard individual medley, Connolly second and Fenby third; 200-yard freestyle, Notarangelo second and Steve Cabezas third; 200-medley relay, Fenby, Connolly, Notarangelo and Burke first; Steve Cabezas, Tim Cabezas, Regan and Peter Tautavaisas third; 400-yard medley relay, Bob Lavigne, Johnson, Tautavaisas and Regan first; Tom Rollins, Flaherty, Don Keene and Bill Mahoney third; diving, Ed Regan second; 50-yard freestyle, Burke second.

The Presidents will host Apponequet Monday at 3:15 at the Lincoln Hancock School pool. North Quincy will be home to Blue Hills Friday at 3:15 at the same site and Tuesday will swim at Cambridge at 7.

North Girls Gym Team Opens Season With Loss

The North Quincy girls' gymnastics team opened its season last Friday and made a fine showing against a more experienced Brookline team before losing, 77.15 to 70.50 in a Suburban League meet.

Coach Margaret Ryan has a young team with seven seniors and eight sophomores. Her only junior, Ann McCarthy, is out of action with a broken foot.

The seniors are Debbie Alessi, Jane Fitzpatrick, Linda French, Joan Grasselli, Maureen McKay and Karen Pagliaro. The sophomores are Sheila Beck, Diane Burke, Debbie Busquets, Melissa Glynn, Janet McNeice, Patty Nee, Nancy Pasquerello and Beverly White.

In the opening meet Miss Alessi finished second in floor exercise and second in vaulting with 8.05 points. Miss McKay was second in balance beam with 6.5 points and Miss Fitzpatrick made a good showing on the bars. Young Miss Busquets was in her first competition ever and was the only girl not to fall off the beam.

The Raiderettes will be at Waltham Tuesday at 3:30.

N.Q. Basketball Parents Dance

The North Quincy High School Basketball Parents will hold a dance Saturday from 8 to midnight at the Sacred Heart parish hall, North Quincy, to benefit the basketball scholarship fund.

Quincy Defeats Brockton, 5-2 North Edges Weymouth N., 3-2

Quincy's hockey team rebounded from its second loss of the year to defeat Brockton, 5-2, last Saturday and move into a four way tie for first place in the Suburban League.

The win raised the Presidents' record to 5-2. Waltham, Brookline and Newton North are tied with Quincy.

Meanwhile, North Quincy turned in its finest performance of the season to hand Weymouth North its second loss, 3-2, and knock the Maroons out of first place. It was the Raiders' first win and their record is 1-5-1.

Quincy will play at Brookline Saturday at 4:30 at the Charles River rink and North will host Waltham at 6:40 at the Quincy Youth Arena. Next Wednesday North will play at Brockton at 6:30, while Quincy has a bye.

Brian Bertoni, the Suburban League's top scorer, had two goals for the Presidents while Tommy Cahill, tied for second in league scoring, John Norton and Mark Giordani had one goal apiece. Quincy scored three unanswered goals in the final period to clinch it.

Coach Bob Sylvia used his third line extensively, something he hadn't been doing too often and he praised Mike Van Tassell, Jack Campbell and Scott Richardson, who alternates with Pat Clifford.

Kurt Olson, who had no varsity experience going into this season, continued his sparkling play in the North Quincy goal and had 22 saves to play a key role in the Raiders' first win.

"I'm really thrilled," said Coach Ron Erikson. "We haven't a tremendous amount of talent but we do have a lot of determination. We had a hungry group, this was the seventh game and the kids, despite some fine efforts, hadn't won. We haven't been able to score too many goals and our defense and goaltending have kept us in the games."

Trailing, 1-0, after a period, North scored two power-play goals, their first such goals of the year. Pat Ennis, with Mike Pitts and Paul MacDonald assisting, scored the first and four minutes later in the middle period MacDonald scored with Ennis and Pitts assisting.

The Maroons tied it at 2:56 of the final period but Bryan McGilvray scored the clincher for North at 8:51 as he slapped a hard one past Rick Mills, a league all-star last year. Pitts and Ennis again had assists.

Earlier in the week Quincy suffered an 8-4 loss to Waltham, while North was blanked by Brookline, 3-0.

Quincy Matmen Seek 10th At Brockton

The Quincy wrestling team continues to roll along unbeaten with a 9-0-1 record and Saturday will be at Brockton for a 6 p.m. meet.

The Presidents will be at Stoughton Tuesday, also at 6.

Coach Carmen Mariano's team made Weymouth South its ninth victim with an easy 46-9 win.

Quincy's winners were Paul Orlando, by forfeit; Dan Madden, Steve Venturelli, Rennie Crowe and Geof Caflisch, pins; and Martin Doyle, Mike Shea, Jim Mullarkey, Steve Picot and Tony Akoury, decisions.

In its previous meet, a triangular meet, Quincy had defeated the defending state champion, Chelmsford, 34-23, and Concord-Carlisle, 50-6.

The Quincy winners were John Fitzgerald, Don Heath, Akoury and Lenny Picot by pins and Lou Venturelli, Steve Venturelli and Steve Picot by decisions.

In their previous meet the Presidents had breezed past Marshfield, 42-15.

Winning for Quincy were Doyle, Steve Notarangelo, Madden, Lou Ventrelli, Mullarkey, Steve Venturelli, Akoury and Len Picot.

JUNIOR SPORTS SPOTLIGHT

MATMEN -- Point's Sal Lorenzano, in back, grapples with Dan Murphy of Broad Meadows in a Junior High wrestling match.

WINNING COACH -- John Bogan, whose Broad Meadows wrestling teams haven't lost in three years, shouts instructions as his team defeats Point.

Broad Meadows Wrestlers In 3-Year Win Streak

By WALTER McCARTHY

Maybe it is because Coach John Bogan doesn't give his wrestlers a day off or maybe because his team practices in the morning before school and then again after school that the Broad Meadows team is still unbeaten in three years.

Last week BM ran its season's record to five straight wins as it soundly defeated Quincy Point, 48-3.

Scoring on pins for Meadows were Dave Ducey, John Carvello, James Wilcox and Mike Monahan. Winning decisions were Jerry McSharry and Jim Lyons. Sal Lorenzano won for Point with a 6-2 decision.

Central outlasted Atlantic later in the week, 23-18.

Matt Fallon had a pin for Central and was joined by Joe Souza, Dan Farley and Ed Mackey in the win column. For Atlantic Steve Fitzgerald, Chris Butler, Pillard and Tom Malone won and Kallenberg of Atlantic and Central's John Taglieri battled to a scoreless draw.

Central Defeats North For 7th Straight

Mike Casali's Central Junior High varsity basketball team just continues to roll along as it defeated North, 49-26, to run its record to 7-0.

Even a change in time didn't throw Central off the mark. North's schedule was changed so that the players, who attend double sessions, wouldn't miss too many afternoon classes. This meant the game getting under way at 7:30 in the morning.

Mark Mullane led all scorers with 13 points. Sean Burnes had nine and Bob Bolster eight. Willy Dudley had seven for North and Charlie Cahill, Paul McAleney, Paul Gill and Tony Green had four each.

The game was close in the first period but Central managed to pull away under the playmaking of Ken Mann and the outstanding rebounding of Burnes. Mullane played well for three periods before he sat out the final session.

It wasn't all bad for North because it added a win by defeating Sterling, 50-46, earlier in the week.

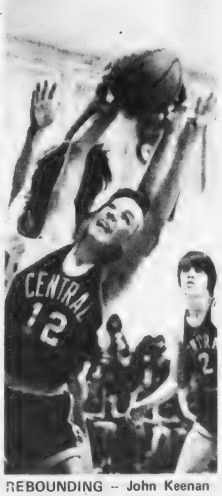
Point's coach, Doug MacFarlane, had reason to be happy as his team played its best game of the season to run away from Broad Meadows, 66-35.

Dan Whyte had 22 points for Point and Steve Priscella had 18. Gary DiNardo had eight and Peter Papile six. For BM Dave Grindle had eight points as did Ed Powers. Jeff Morrison and Bill Concannon had four each.

Point came back to defeat Sterling, 49-39, later in the week.

Steve Priscella had 19 points while Gary DiNardo scored 12. Steve Remillard paced Sterling with eight and Ken Gustin had seven.

In junior varsity action Atlantic squeezed by Sterling, 28-27, in a game which went right down to the wire. With two minutes left Sterling grabbed the lead for the first time, 27-26. Atlantic's Paul Murphy scored the clincher with 40 seconds remaining.



Broad Meadows walloped Point, 34-17, with Paul Novin pacing the winners with 10 points. Steve Goguen had seven for Point.

Sterling topped Point, 31-20, for its third win. Paul Calabro had eight points for Sterling, Roy Myatt had seven and Mike Ploof six. Steve Goguen and Javier Perez had six each for Point.

Central defeated Atlantic, 43-32, with Brian Reale, Wes Paul and Mike Sullivan having eight points apiece and Brian Donovan six. Dan Linnehan and Jim White had six each for Atlantic and Paul Murphy scored five.

Friday Entry Deadline

50 Teams Expected In Men's Candlepin Tourney

Fifty teams representing the same number of bowling leagues and the best of 2,000 bowlers are expected to participate in the 25th Annual Greater Quincy Men's Candlepin Bowling Tourney.

The tourney sponsored by the Koch Club of Quincy, starts Sunday, Jan. 22, at noon, at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome, Quincy Shore Drive.

Applications are still available and must be completed and returned by Friday, Jan. 20, to the Wollaston Boulevard Alleys.

Teams must be from an organized men's bowling league. No pickup teams allowed. Rules governing are the same as league competition. Top five bowlers in the league, as of Jan. 13, bowl in competition with the sixth and seventh bowlers in the standings used as alternates. If, for one reason or another, one of the top seven bowlers cannot compete, the league officials may continue to choose down in the league according to average. First and last name of bowlers entered with averages must be complete. Bowlers entered must have bowled half the season thus far with their respective leagues and may only bowl for one tourney entry. Any violations of the above rules will forfeit the team's participation.

All tournament matches will be decided on total pinfall. It is an elimination tourney; each team must win to continue in competition.

BUYING A LOT

Buying land involves risks. Contrary to popular belief, land is not a fail-safe investment. The Florida land boom of the mid-20's was not the only time people lost money speculating in land. It happens every day. Here are some guidelines which may help in reducing the risk factor.

Generally speaking, the more you pay for a lot, the surer you are of getting your money's worth. If you pay x-amount of dollars for a developed lot with utility lines already in, you may be better off than buying the same lot for one-half the amount before the roads and utilities are built out to it. Development costs vary, but almost anywhere they are rising every year.

If you are not a land expert, the most preferred method of buying a lot is to have a REALTOR do your negotiating. His most valuable asset is his knowledge of property values. You are far better off with him on your side.

McDermott Guest Speaker

Father's Club Football Awards Banquet Saturday

The 25th annual Quincy High School Football Awards Banquet, sponsored by the Quincy Fathers' Club, will be held Saturday at 7 p.m. at the Morrisette Legion Post, Miller St., West Quincy.

James Page, past president, will be master of ceremonies, and the guest speaker will be Bob McDermott, former Quincy and Harvard football player and now teacher-coach at Deerfield Academy.

Head table guests will include Mayor and Mrs. Arthur Tobin, Quincy High Principal Lloyd Creighton, Supt. of Schools and Mrs. Lawrence Creedon, Athletic Coordinator and Mrs. Carl Leone, Vo-Tech Principal Lawrence Babin and club officers.

Following a roast beef dinner, the following awards will be presented to Quincy football players: The Granville Award, Matthew M. Ivil Award, George Underwood Award, Frank and Elenior Osborne Award donated by Harold McCarthy, Munroe McLean Award, Armando Moscardelli Award and Paul Grasso Award donated by Bill Osborne.

Jackets will be awarded to seniors and juniors and plaques to the sophomores. Other awards will go to the Football Queen and the cheerleaders.

The Quincy Fathers' Club will hold its winter social Saturday, Feb. 4, at the Fore River Clubhouse. Dancing to the music of RSVP will be enjoyed from 8 to midnight.

Reservations can be made with Frank Osborne, 98 Gilbert St., Quincy.

Quincy Girls Track Team Bows

The Quincy girls' track team, still going with only six girls, made another creditable showing last week but lost to Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 47-30.

"Although our record is 0-3, these girls have been putting out 110 percent," said Coach Jim Piccini. "It is just too bad more girls haven't turned out for track."

Quincy winners were Donna Reardon in the mile (6:12.42), Paula Church in the 1000 (3:12.21) and the relay team of Heidi Dolan, Church, Tara Prince and Lois Guglielmi (5:25.27).

Second places were taken by Lois Guglielmi in the 300, Paula Constas in the 600, Prince in the hurdles and Dolan and Guglielmi, tied in the high jump.

Constas was third in the shot put and Dolan third in the dash.

"Tara Prince was running the hurdles for the first time and had practiced only once," Piccini said. "And this was also the first time for Lois Guglielmi in the high jump. They both did excellent jobs."

Today (Thursday) the First Ladies will meet Weymouth South at 3 at Brookline and next Thursday will face Waltham at the same time and place.

Girls C Team Wins 10th Straight

Quincy's Bob Charles Transportation Girls C team remained unbeaten in the league with a 6-3 win over Lowell last week. Quincy is 10-0-0.

Bonnie MacMurdo scored what proved to be the winning goal with Sheila Connolly and Kathy Hussey assisting. Other goals were scored by Hussey, Maria Burke, Karen Cullen, Laurie Barba and MacMurdo. Connolly had three assists and Cullen, Barba, Linda Bujarski and Hussey one each.

Tobin Commends Workers

Storm To Cost City Over $200,000

By TOM HENSHAW

Cleaning up after last Friday's massive snow storm will cost Quincy well over $200,000.

But it was worth it, said Mayor Arthur H. Tobin.

"It was the worst January storm in our history yet we managed to keep the main streets open and avoid a major catastrophe," said the Mayor.

"Now we are facing another decision, whether to listen to the Weather Bureau and let the rain take over or call the troops back out tonight [Tuesday] to work on the catch basins.

"Knowing New England weather, I lean toward calling the troops out. I'd rather be safe than sorry."

The weatherman was predicting 40-50 degree temperatures, rain and fog for Wednesday and Thursday, the worst possible conditions to follow such a big snowfall, according to Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti.

Ricciuti appealed to the residents of Quincy to locate and open as many of the city's 5,000 catch basins as possible "before we have another serious problem on our hands."

The storm, backed by a driving wind, began in the wee hours of Friday morning and before it wandered out to sea Friday night it dumped about 22 inches of drifting snow on Quincy.

The magnitude was such that the MDC was forced to shut down Quincy Shore Drive, drifts several feet deep were reported and snow removal vehicles dumped snow in piles as high as

Anselmo Sees Self As 'Good Balance Wheel'

"I felt very strongly that any person who is appointed to the School Committee should have faced the voters of Quincy as Frank Anselmo and I did for so many years," said Charles T. Sweeny.

And with that he released his committed votes to Anselmo, thus enabling the 79-year-old veteran committeeman to be named on the first ballot to succeed the resigned Francis X. McCauley.

"I saw the way things were developing," said Sweeny. "If I did not withdraw, some person who had never run before might have been elected. I did not think that was proper."

Anselmo finished fourth, just out of the money, and Sweeny fifth last November in their bids for re-election to the Committee. Sweeny had been a member since 1956, Anselmo since 1962.

"I got more than 12,000 votes in November," said Sweeny. "So did Frank Anselmo. And he got a few more than I did. I felt strongly that the runnerup should get the position."

"Charlie Sweeny acted like the gentleman that he is," said Anselmo. "Neither he nor I had sufficient votes to win on the first ballot. If he had not done it there would have been a

6 From Quincy Named Service Academies Alternates

Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton] has named six Quincy residents as alternate nominees to the United States Service Adademies for the class entering in 1978.

Quincy residents nominated as alternates for the first vacancy at Annapolis are: Bayani Montoye, 124 Kemper St., Wollaston; Louis Venturelli, 64 Cross St., West Quincy, Randall Nord, 122 Elm St., Quincy, and Donald Smart, 60 Harriet Ave., Montclair.

Margaret Durkin, 47 Warwick St., Norfolk Downs, has been named as an alternate for the second vacancy at the Naval Academy.

Thomas Miller, 203 Governors Rd, West Quincy, is an alternate for a second vacancy at the Air Force Academy.

Ten candidates receiving competitive nominations to the Merchant Marine Academy include Edward Teahan, 159 Reservoir Rd, Wollaston.

Complete Intensive Training

8 Auxiliary Police Officers Certify As Emergency Medical Technicians

By PETER BARNICLE

Eight members of the Quincy Police Auxiliary, including one woman, have been certified as Emergency Medical Technicians after completing an intensive course at Quincy City Hospital.

The course consisted of 81 hours of classwork and 150 hours of practical work after which the officers were given a written examination and were required to give a demonstration of their skills in performing various emergency techniques.

The examination covered cardiopulmonary resuscitation, splinting, bandaging and wound care, treatment of shock victims, lifts and carries, a general knowledge of ambulance equipment, with emphasis on fixed oxygen and suction apparatus.

Successful candidates were certified by the National Registry of Emergency Medical Technicians (EMT) and the office of Emergency Medical Services, Massachusetts Department of Public Health. The Quincy City Hospital also issued certificates attesting to completion of the course.

Qualified as certified EMTs are Lt. William O'Leary, Sgt. William Griffin, Sgt. Jeff Burrell, Sgt. Barbara Lawrence and Patrolmen Kenneth Noseworthy, Gary Saffer, Stanley Kogut and Steven Matthes.

Tuition for the course and the examination fee are paid for by the individual members of the force.

The 50-member force, under command of Chief Anthony Siciliano, works closely with the regular police on protection of property, safety and crowd control during parades and other civic functions.

The group is equipped with several motorcycles for patrolling schools, parks and playgrounds to prevent vandalism. Sgt. Lawrence, one of three women members of the Auxiliary, is one of the "Bikies".

The Auxiliary Officers also conduct security checks for commercial properties on request from the owners. More than 2,000 of these inspections have been made by two-man teams.

The purpose is to look for weak points in the security and to make suggestions regarding safety. The teams make their recommendations to the Planning and Research Board at the police department.

They also take part with members of the regular force in "Neighborhood Watch." This program is designed to assist householders in the protection of their property. An Auxiliary and a police officer show various types of locks and give tips on suggested ways to prevent break-ins and burglary.

Storm Highlights

100 Runs But No Serious Fires

By PETER BARNICLE

"The fire department was most fortunate during and after the storm in that we had no fires of any consequence," Capt. Francis Daly of the Fire Prevention Bureau, reported.

Over the week end the apparatus made approximately 100 runs, many of them for medical assistance. There were several false alarms and apparatus was sent when faulty alarms sounded, due mainly to leaks in buildings.

Almost all hydrants in the city have been cleared and in many instances residents helped shovel the snow away.

The major difficulty in answering calls was getting the apparatus up streets clogged with snow and blocked by parked cars.

"There were some delays, but the men got through," Daly said.

"So far the city is in good shape as far as fires are concerned," Daly said. "People are perhaps a little more careful and are practicing good fire prevention.

"They should continue because the emergency is not over yet. Firefighters would still have difficulty in negotiating many of the city streets and also in working through snow drifts around buildings," he said.

Nurses Work Double Shifts

Nurses at Quincy City Hospital on duty during the storm, worked double shifts. They were able to get a few hours sleep and went back on duty on Saturday.

Many of the night shift walked to work. Others came in by snowmobile or carpool. Police and civil defense vehicles were also made available to employees trying to reach the hospital.

Robert Bradbury, a blood bank technician, walked from Fields Corner, Dorchester, when all means of transportation failed, according to Richard Bertocchi, assistant administrator of the hospital.

Student nurses and the house mother turned to and made up 60 beds for stranded employees.

The medical staff and the administrative staff remained on duty to coordinate the all out efforts. The dietary staff worked through preparing meals, coffee and snacks for the employees.

Members of the maintenance, housekeeping and materials staffs assisted with shovels and snow-blowers to keep the entrances clear.

"I can't say enough for the assistance given to us by the police, civil defense and public works department in getting employees and patients to the hospital. They were terrific," Bertocchi said.

Worst Storm In MBTA's History

Robbie Ferris, a spokesman for the MBTA, called it "the worst storm since the subway opened in 1897."

The Red Line was shut down shortly before 4 p.m. Friday, at the height of the storm, and as late as Tuesday afternoon buses were transporting commuters from Quincy to the Andrew Station.

Ferris said it was not expected that trains would be running from Quincy through Wollaston and North Quincy to Andrew much before Wednesday.

"The Red Line is a real tough situation," he said. "Snow was blowing into drifts two to eight feet deep, there was ice on the rails and two disabled trains on the Dorchester line."

Auxiliary Police Work 829 Man Hours

Thirty members of the Quincy Auxiliary Police worked a total of 829 more hours during the emergency from Friday night to Sunday forenoon.

The Auxiliary's Emergency Medical Technicians [EMT] were assigned to police ambulances to assist patients being transported to the hospital. In addition the Auxiliary force was called on to get doctors and nurses to and from the Quincy City Hospital.

"We also picked up prescriptions and delivered them to senior citizens who were in dire need of medication," Auxiliary Chief Anthony S. Siciliano said. "Several times we made deliveries of bread and milk to senior citizens who were snowbound."

The Auxiliaries manned the emergency telephones and the police frequency on the radio from Civil Defense headquarters at 55 Sea St.

More than 20 people stranded by the storm were put up at the civil defense building. They were given meals of beef ravioli and chicken noodle soup.

Father Of Former District Attorney

A funeral Mass will be celebrated Friday, Jan. 27, at 10 a.m. in St. Ann's Church, Wollaston, for John F. Burke, 75, of 85 Lincoln St., Wollaston, a retired architectural engineer and father of former Norfolk County Dist. Atty. George G. Burke.

Born in Revere he lived in Saugus before moving to Quincy 35 years ago. He died Monday in Quincy.

He retired 10 years ago after being employed for many years as an architectural engineer at the Charlestown Navy Yard. He was a member of the Elks.

In addition to his son, George, he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ruth F. [Joyce] Burke; another son John F. Burke Jr., of Cleveland, Ohio; three daughters, Mrs. Ruth Joyce Welch of Needham; Mrs. Marion Dick of Eastham, and Mrs. Kathleen T. Mulkerrin of Norwell; and a brother, George J. Burke of Swampscott. He also leaves 19 grandchildren.

Visiting hours at the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston, are Wednesday 7 to 9 p.m. and Thursday, 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m.

Burial will be in Pine Hill Cemetery, Quincy.

Funeral Mass Celebrated For Mrs. Lena M. Cassani

A funeral Mass was celebrated Monday in St. Mary's Church, West Quincy, for Mrs. Lena M. [Orlando] Cassani, 66, of 28 Churchill Rd, Quincy. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

A lifelong resident of Quincy she died Jan. 19 at Quincy City Hospital after a lengthy illness.

She was a member of the Quincy City Hospital Auxiliary; the Ladies Auxiliary of Morrisette Legion Post, Stella del Nord Ladies Lodge, Sons of Italy, Quincy.

Mrs. Cassani was also a volunteer instructor in knitting and crocheting at 1000 Southern Artery.

She leaves her husband, Louis S. Cassani; a son, Capt. Henry Cassani, U.S.N. [ret] of Port St. Joe, Fla., a former commanding officer of the South Weymouth Naval Air Station; a daughter, Mrs. Lois J. Lewis of Northboro; a brother, James Orlando of Mashpee; three sisters, Mrs. Caroline Bersani of Pembroke; Mrs. Mary Martell and Mrs. Angelina Davenport, both of Quincy. She is also survived by nine grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were made by Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Donations in her name may be made to the Quincy City Hospital Women's Auxiliary Memorial Fund.

Angus D. MacDonnell, 85, Naval Architect

A funeral Mass was celebrated Wednesday in Immaculate Conception Church, East Weymouth for Angus D. MacDonnell, 85, naval architect, newsman, and considered one of the leaders in the Quincy shipbuilding industry.

Mr. MacDonnell died Sunday at the Colonial Nursing Home, Weymouth. Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

He was born in South Quincy and was raised in Quincy Point. He was educated in the Quincy schools and was a graduate of Franklin Institute and Suffolk University, both in Boston.

He most recently lived at 85 Old Country Way, Weymouth, and was a resident of the town for many years.

His career in shipbuilding spanned 50 years, much of it with the U.S. government. Starting as a "rivet passer" he rose to become a naval architect.

During his career he worked at 12 shipyards. He retired in 1962 after 26 years at the Fore River Shipyard. Over the years he served as instructor in shipbuilding at several technical schools including Quincy Junior College and Franklin Institute.

He is survived by two sons, Dr. John F. MacDonnell of Reading and Leonard T. MacDonnell of Nahant; six daughters, Mrs. Jane M. Stewart and Mrs. Margaret M. Burns, both of Weymouth, Mrs. Malvena M. Cangiano of Medford, Mrs. Mary M. Guglielmo and Mrs. Cecelia M. Hines, both of West Hartford, Conn., and Mrs. Barbara M. McLeod of Furlong, Pa; also 36 grandchildren and 17 great grandchildren.

His wife, Mrs. Malvena F. [Fougere] MacDonnell died in 1964.

Girl Scouts Cookie Drive Underway

COOKIE CHAIRMAN -- Mrs. Robert Johnson, 24 Stevens St., South Quincy, is the Neighborhood Product Sale Chairman for Quincy during the 1978 cookie sale by members of the Blue Hill Girl Scout Council.

Quincy Girl Scouts, member of the Blue Hills Girl Scout Council, will be out in force taking orders for six varieties of cookies and three types of nuts starting Friday.

The order taking campaign will continue through Feb. 12, and the cookies and nuts will be delivered between April 3 and April 28.

The product sale is the largest source of revenue for the council and, thus, extremely important. Volunteers coordinate and direct all facets in a well-planned procedure which includes informing and training everyone involved down to the littlest Brownie.

A portion of the profit from each box of cookies that a girl sells goes towards credit which is redeemable when she signs up to attend any Girl Scout resident or day camp. A portion of both cookie and nut profits goes to the girl's troop and to the council.

Neighborhood chairmen in each community kicked off the campaign on a slushy day in December by attending a luncheon where they learned of the new products, any changes in procedure, and reviewed all of the campaign printed material. Plans are now completed and order takers will be calling in each neighborhood soon. If a Girl Scout does not find you at home, please call the Service Center at 472-5960 and your order will be recorded and referred to someone in your area.

The Blue Hill Girl Scout Council, an agency of the Massachusetts Bay of United Way and the Norwood United Fund serves over 9,000 girls in 19 communities south and west of Boston.

Clement O'Brien Visiting Nurses President

Clement O'Brien was re-elected president of the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association at the 46th annual meeting of the organization held at the Neighborhood Club, Quincy.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

There are two major types of drinking glasses. Stemware is the term used to describe glasses of various shapes and sizes, but all of which consists of a drinking bowl set on a stem. Most of this glassware is formal, although some patterns blend well with informal china. The five types of stemware glasses are the cocktail, the cordial, the champagne, the wine, and the goblet. Barware can include some wine glasses, but it mainly describes all other types of glasses not included in stemware. Serving all your jewelry needs, in a friendly manner, is the reason we at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490 are in business. One of our services is to help discreetly dispose of unwanted jewelry for private owners, banks and estates. We also appraise and repair all types of clocks. Expert workmanship is provided. Open: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m. Mon. thru Sat.

HELPFUL HINT:
Stemware is used to serve drinks at the table, rather than at the bar.

Flower tips from Andre Moreau

Add one potato, two potato, three potato, four. Or multiply peas, beans, summer squash or turnip indoors and count on a bonus of beautiful flowering houseplants from ordinary vegetables. Plant a pot of lentils and delight in delicate leaves and small bluish flowers. Carrots grow feathery leaves right off the top of their heads. Beans have flowers that resemble sweet peas, beets produce dark green foliage with red stems, turnips have curly green leaves. Many vegetable plants sprout flowers and some produce new vegetables. All are inexpensive, easy to grow and will give you much pleasure.

NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 invites you to stop by soon and feel free to browse around our lovely shop where you will find many creative and unusual displays. If you are planning a late winter or spring wedding keep in mind that we offer a bridal consulting service. We welcome the prospective bride to stop by so we can give her guidance in selecting flowers to suit her personal taste and budget requirement. Master Charge and BankAmericard honored. Hours: Mon. - Sat., 8 - 6, evenings by appointment.

HELPFUL HINT:

Use an attractive bowl with a layer of pebbles to plant beets and radishes. Add water to the pebble level.

Pet Peeves, Anyone?

When it comes to pet peeves just about everyone has at least one or two.

Me, I seem to have wound up with more than my share of them. Maybe a basketful. Like, just off the top of my head:

The local Evel Knievel with the bald tires who brags he can get through snow as high as an elephant's eye or what the hell, a little ice isn't going to bother him. Then stupid gets stuck on a slight incline and snarls up traffic for a mile or so.

Or, his cousin who after a heavy rain storm gets his kicks speeding through deep puddles splashing pedestrians. You secretly wish he would drive into a cave-in, and disappear.

You're standing at a store counter patiently waiting for the clerk to wait on you. Along comes a woman, elbows her way in and gets waited on first.

The chowhound behind you in the movies is munching popcorn and slurping tonic in your ear.

So, you move your seat. And behind you now are two gals who aren't eating anything. But sit there just jakking back and forth in your ear like they haven't seen one another in 20 years.

You're stopped at a red light. The light turns green. Just as a pedestrian steps in front of your car, the guy behind you toots.

Or, you're stopped on a side street trying to get out onto the main street with cars and trucks whizzing by in front of you. Behind you again, The Tooter.

You're a big band buff and there's a special request program on TV starting and the emcee is saying that among those appearing will be Bob Crosby and his orchestra. So you watch for two hours for him to come on, putting up with a lot of comic drivel including a ventriloquist while you wait. Finally, Crosby is being introduced and the band swings into one of the all-time classics, "Rampart Street Parade". "Boy, this is going to be great," you say to yourself. Settling back to enjoy it. So what happens? They cut the number after a couple of bars and then kill the sound while they are rolling the closing credits. Program's over.

You're standing in line in the bank. A half hour or so later, you're just second from the teller's window. "Just a couple more minutes," you comfort yourself. Then the guy in front of you pulls out of his pocket, what looks like 50,000 transactions, including a deposit with rolls of coins, to purchase two dozen cashier checks.

You just can't stand that funny noise in the car anymore. So you take it to the garage. "Start her up and let me hear the noise," says the mechanic. You start her up. No noise. So you drive home. As you turn into the driveway - yep - that funny noise again.

You've quit smoking. Whatever function you go to, the guy or gal standing or sitting next to you is a nicotine fiend. Your eyes redden so that you look like you have a tank full. And by the time you get home your clothes smell like you've been battling a three-alarm fire.

A northeast snowstorm that keeps you home and sentences you to a day of TV soap operas.

The same storm and you finally get your driveway shoveled out. And along comes a snowplow and throws it all back at you.

You're at the supermarket with a couple of items. You go to the express counter. In front of you is a woman with enough groceries for two weeks, taking a short cut because she knows the checkout girl.

As you jounce, bounce and jar over snow ruts on the main streets after a snowstorm and you remember seeing those plows with their blades raised on high.

And, last but not least, the reader who doesn't like what you wrote about a certain political figure and sends you a blistering letter and concludes: "I bet you haven't got the guts to print this letter." But he--or she--hasn't got the guts to sign it so that we could print it.

VISIBILITY was slightly better than zero in Quincy Square at 10 a.m. Friday after the snow storm had been in progress for some eight hours.

15 feet.

Smaller pieces of equipment, up to two tons in weight, proved useless against the mighty snowfall and heavy front end loaders had to be rented from private companies, some at a rate of $90 an hour.

City workers toiled around the clock, some of them for two and three days, eating lunch and dinner of sandwiches and coffee on their vehicles in an effort to keep the main roads open.

"We had a lot of calls for help at DPW headquarters," said Mayor Tobin, "but very, very few of them were complaints. Considering the magnitude of the storm and the size of the city, they understood that 22 hours of snow could not be cleared away in an hour."

Stranded commuters from such places as Duxbury, Hingham and Weymouth, stuck in the drifts on the Southeast Expressway, were put up for the night and fed at several public buildings in Quincy.

Some 43 of them were accommodated in the Lincoln-Hancock School, about 20 in Gordon House at City Hospital and others, some of them taken out of stalled cars on the Shore Drive by snowmobile, were housed in the Civil Defense building and police headquarters.

They were fed hot meals from the Civil Defense store of canned good. Mayor Tobin said he sampled the food himself and "it was surprisingly good."

"I'm very proud of the job that our city employees did," said Tobin, "when you consider the state closed parts of Route 128 and I-93 and I-95 and the MDC closed the Boulevard while all the main thoroughfares in Quincy were open.

"We were even called upon to help the MDC on the Boulevard. In fact, a city of Quincy plow made the first pass down the Boulevard that led to its reopening."

Tobin gave this description of what went on at City Hall and the Public Works Garage during the storm:

The city got the word that the storm was a bad one about 2 a.m. Friday. At noon, Gov. Michael S. Dukakis declared a state of emergency. At 12:30 p.m., Tobin did the same for the city.

The Fire Department was notified to hold over crews on duty and call in more firefighters. Similar directions went out to the Police Department, the City Hospital and Civil Defense.

City clerical help was sent home at 2 p.m. Friday but essential people were retained at the Hospital and department heads were told to report to the commissioner's office at Public Works, where Tobin set up his headquarters.

City Clerk John M. Gillis manned the command post at City Hall where switchboard operators remained on duty until 10 p.m.

The decision made at Public Works was to direct the main effort toward keeping the main arteries, Hancock, Washington, Adams, Sea Sts., etc., open as a public safety measure.

"We also managed to keep the Causeway open so that Squantum would not be isolated at the height of the storm," said Tobin.

"I don't see how some of the city workers did it. They were taxed to the limit. They were plagued at every step by abandoned cars and people trapped in cars by the drifting snow."

Some heavy National Guard equipment was loaned to the Fire Department and was used effectively to keep the streets open around the city's senior citizen housing complexes.

Once the main roads were opened, the department turned to the secondary roads and to the ticklish job of widening the passage on the street already plowed.

"The unfortunate thing," said Tobin, "is that when you go back to widen the streets, the driveways that were carefully shovelled out get plowed in again. We apologize for that but we had to do it. If it's any consolation, mine got plowed in too."

Only two power failures were reported during the storm.

About 1,000 homes were powerless for 45 minutes Friday morning at 8 a.m. when a feeder blew out on South Central Ave., Wollaston, and 2,000 lost power a half hour later when the same thing happened in Germantown. That lasted about a half hour.

Ricciuti said the rule of thumb is that a snow storm costs the city roughly $2,000 an hour in snow removal. He estimated it will cost "hundreds of thousands of dollars" in all.

"We had to hire more and heavier equipment than usual," he said. "Bulldozers, rubber-tired payloaders, front end loaders were the only ones capable of handling such a storm.

"The price of hiring private equipment runs from $11 an hour to $85 or $90 an hour for the large front end loaders with tremendous capacity for moving snow."

The snow that was removed from around public buildings, schools, churches and business areas was dumped in the rear of the public works building, in the city dump and in selected parks and recreation areas.

"Abandoned cars were our biggest problem," said Ricciuti. "It takes a long time to locate the owner of the car and get the proper equipment to tow it. Some of the cars were still in place from the Jan. 13 storm.

"When we get rid of this snow and another storm is coming I would recommend that people park their cars on their lawns or even on the sidewalks."

Ricciuti said rubbish collections were skipped during the storm on Friday but a double collection on Monday placed collections back on schedule.

Schools Set To Reopen But . . .

School officials set the re-opening of Quincy schools for Wednesday... BUT hesitated to say "positively" until after hearing pre-dawn weather reports.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon's office said that the threat of rain was a factor. It was pointed out the rain would make the streets slushy and walking conditions treacherous.

The office reported a number of telephone calls had been received from parents expressing concern about children walking along streets where the sidewalks have not been cleared.

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS By Tom Henshaw

Strong Support For Biennial Elections

Quincy residents were out in force at a State House hearing in support of a bill that would permit biennial instead of yearly elections for mayor, city council and school committee.

The bill was sponsored by the Quincy Taxpayers Association and filed by Rep. Charles W. Hedges [R-Quincy], who estimated that it would save the city some $6,000 a year.

Previously, six wards councillors and two school committeemen were elected in odd years and the mayor, the councillors at large and two school committeemen were chosen in even years.

Hedges and the QTA were split on how to set up the new election, however, with Hedges suggesting an election for three years next fall and the QTA backing a year's extension for current terms.

John L. Blinn, leader of the opposition that was outnumbered 50 to 3 at the hearing, charged it was "a camouflage to give the present gentlemen another year in office without an election campaign."

QUINCY WINS SEVENTH

Coach Munroe MacLean's Quincy High School basketball team won its seventh game in eight starts with a 36-22 victory over Quincy Trade. Johnny Joyce led with 10 points.

Coach MacLean used three complete teams, including:

SCHOOL BUDGET UP

The School Committee approved a 1938 school budget of $1,274,772, an increase of $27,000 over 1937 and $3,100 more than that proposed by School Supt. James N. Muir.

Some items in the budget included $868,514 for teachers' salaries; $47,321.60 for fuel, light, power and telephones; and $12,000 for a complete renovation of the boys' showers and lockers at North.

PROBE HOSPITAL 'EXTRAS'

Federal investigators from the Works Progress Administration [WPA] began a probe of "extras" in the construction of the administration building at City Hospital, built with 45 per cent federal funds.

City Councillor Frank N. Orcutt charged that "one extra in the construction of the building was billed to the city at a cost of $5,000 although the actual cost was only $20."

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin demanded that Orcutt "retract, apologize or prove" the charge.

Bishop Maguire At St. John's Dedication Sunday

Most Rev. Joseph F. Maguire, Bishop of Springfield, will return to his former parish of St. John the Baptist, Quincy, Sunday, Jan. 29, to participate in the dedication of the new church hall.

Bishop Maguire served as eighth pastor of St. John's during 1971.

The dedication ceremony will take place at the 12:15 Liturgy, which will be concelebrated by Bishop Maguire, Bishop John J. Mulcahy, auxiliary bishop of Boston and the priests of the parish. Bishop Mulcahy will be the homilist.

A reception will follow downstairs in the new church hall following the service. All parishioners and friends of St. John's are invited.

Sacred Heart, St. Joseph's To Observe Catholic Schools Week

Catholic Schools Week will be celebrated the week of Jan. 29 through Feb. 4 in Quincy as well as throughout the country. Following is the schedule for schools participating in the observance.

Sacred Heart School, North Quincy, will begin the week with Bishop Daniel A. Hart celebrating the 5 o'clock Mass in Sacred Heart Church Sunday, Jan. 29. Parents, teachers and parishioners are invited. Members of the PTO have prepared and will participate in the Eucharistic Liturgy. The theme will be "Catholic Schools: Everybody Grows".

Following the Mass, refreshments will be served in the Sacred Heart School auditorium. Students' work will be displayed in the classrooms and corridors. The result of a research project, "Catholic Schools: Roots in Our Community" will also be displayed.

Opening exercises at Sacred Heart School each day will include a special prayer read over the public address system by selected students. Classroom activities throughout the week will develop and feature the theme of growth through art, posters, oral and written expressions.

On Friday, Feb. 3, at a 9 o'clock Mass in the church, students from grades 4-8 will participate in a liturgy emphasizing the many facets of growth.

Catholic Schools Week in St. Joseph's School, Quincy, will open Sunday, Jan. 29, at the 5 o'clock Mass. The priests, students and faculty will prepare and participate in the liturgy.

This will be followed by an Open House for parents, friends and relatives. Pupils' work and various projects reflecting the theme of growth will be on display. The library and media center will be open to visitors and refreshments will be available in the school hall.

Faith Lutheran Votes $66,460

A budget of $66,460 was approved by Faith Lutheran Church, 201 Granite St., at the annual meeting with Rev. James Kimmell, presiding.

Elected to the church council were: Douglas Luoma, Larry Johnson, Weikko Luoma, Mrs. Stina Olsson, Mrs. Edith Ruta and Miss Jeanne Sullivan.

Other officers for the coming year include Mrs. Elaine Cook, financial secretary; Mrs. Martha Kelley, treasurer; Miss Margareta Rundquist, auditor; Clarence Carlson, memorial fund treasurer; Mrs. Miriam Luoma, publicity and Mrs. Martha Carlson, altar guild.

Rev. Kimmell, Mrs. Loraine Blake and Mrs. Christine Ferguson were named delegates to the New England Synod.

The congregation voted to accept the new Lutheran Book of Worship which is intended to serve as a hymn and service book for all Lutheran Churches in America.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

Contrasting textures can add that 'designer touch' to a plain room

Texture contrasts are for those why shy away from a lot of pattern interest, and yet don't want plain-Jane rooms.

So says the Wallcovering Information Bureau, and offers the following hints for rooms that are easy on the eye, but anything but plain.

• If your room is formal and traditional, play soft velvet upholstery against softly gleaming wood and sparkling crystal accessories. A water-marked silk in some rich, deep color—harvest gold, burgundy or emerald—would be a beautiful choice for the walls. This may sound like a delicate choice, but it isn't.

Today's wallcovering technology has produced designs that look as delicate as butterfly wings, but are totally washable and very, very tough.

• If an antique Oriental rug is your prize possession, consider the grasscloth look for your walls. This beautiful texture now comes in such untraditional colors as pale blue, mocha, ebony and rust.

• Burlap wallcoverings, in better-than-nature vinyl, are fine choices for dens, the home office and every room throughout informal, contemporary homes. This is your opportunity to have dramatic, solid color all around you, but with the added design interest of deep texture and the elimination of constant repainting.

• If South-of-the-border ambience is your thing, you have probably collected colorful textiles, rugs, pottery and baskets. Then you can't go wrong with a stucco texture on the walls. Buy it by the beautifully efficient wallcovering roll, rather than having a contractor come in and produce the real thing.

The real thing, by the way, will be a permanent feature, whereas a strippable stucco wallcovering will peel right off the wall if your taste changes—or a prospective buyer of your home prefers country English to the hacienda look.

• Corduroy on the wall? Why not. It is warm-looking and terrific for any informal room. Just picture deep green corduroy walls as a background for country pine furnishings. Or bright red or ultramarine as the vivid background for white plastic furniture.

• Contemporary rooms, boasting lots of chrome and glass furniture, will benefit from something soft on the walls. A suede wallcovering, sensuous and luxurious, is the perfect choice.

• Consider the gleam of silvery walls for a small room. Like mirrors it'll give the illusion of a room twice its size. Mylar wallcoverings, by the way, look sensational with white-lacquered bamboo furniture a la Chippendale.

QUIET BUT BEAUTIFUL—The textures game is played to the hilt in this living room. Velvet upholstery and a plush oriental carpet contrasts beautifully with polished wood, ceramic and brass accessories. The grasscloth-textured wallcovering, Stauffer's "Luau," adds subtle design interest.

• Treat a child's room to a cork wall, or line it with denim (true jeans blue or deliberately faded.)

• Many, many more wonderful textures are available . . . from woodgrains to linen. So it's clear that if you just let your walls stand there—doing nothing—you're missing out on a lot of design interest.

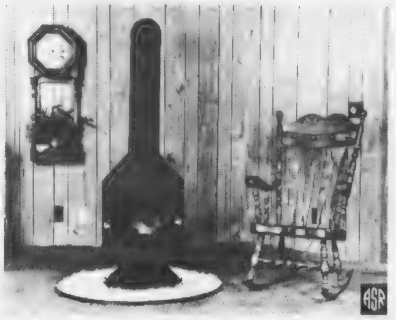
Fireplaces: Warm, Appealing, And Safe

Energy shortages, the high cost of gas, oil and electricity, and the growing fireplace romance have resulted in increased consumer interest in fireplaces. Modern fireplace systems are a long way from the smoked up (but picturesque) fireplaces of the pioneers. Today, fireplaces come in many sizes and shapes: fireplaces and fireplace stoves, built on-the-sight and factory built, and mounted into or against the wall — or even in a corner of freestanding.



Underwriters Laboratories Inc. (UL) believes that a fireplace should be more than warm and eye-catching. It should be operated safely, as well. The following are some safety tips for your "chestnut roasting" activities this year.

* Highly combustible materials, such as loose papers, cardboard and fabrics, should be kept away from the fireplace area. These materials could easily be ignited by stray hot ashes, glowing embers, or flying sparks. Ashes should be placed in a metal container with a tight fitting lid, pending final disposal.

* Check to see that the chimney and flue lining are clean. Is the damper in proper working order? If the flue is obstructed, carbon monoxide, other toxic gases, and smoke can escape into the living area. Soot and tar deposits can build up on the walls of the chimney and flue. These deposits are highly flammable, and if not periodically removed, can be the source of a fire.

* Open the damper before starting a fire, and keep it open until every ember is completely out — again, carbon monoxide gas can fill the living area, even causing death.

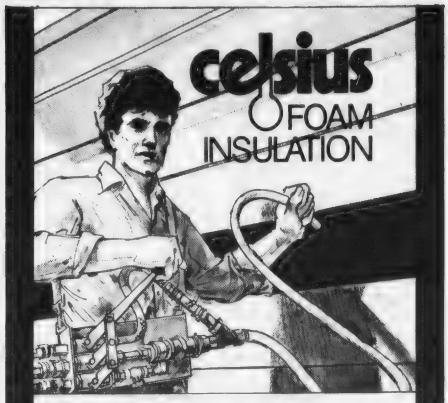
* A tight fitting screen or door should be placed over the front of the fireplace to prevent sparks and hot coals from popping out.

* When building a fire, don't overdo it. Overfiring can make the firebox and flue lining red-hot, causing a flue and chimney fire. Place a moderate amount of fuel in the firebox area. Also, people who use lighter fluid on a wood or coal fire are asking for trouble — a flashback fire can result, and invisible vapor can travel throughout the room causing a fire hazard.

* Fireplace fires consume oxygen while burning. Therefore, make certain that there is proper ventilation, both for burning efficiency and for the safety of the occupants of the house.

* Store wood in a dry area prior to burning. A six month storage period is desirable. The drier the wood, the more evenly the fire will burn. Using wood that is not sufficiently dry increases the possibility of soot and tar deposits, as well as flying sparks.

* Certain types of coal can be highly volatile. Coal should be stored in a cool (75°F or lower) atmosphere with no foreign material cluttering the area.



* Factory built fireplaces and fireplace stoves should bear the UL Listing mark, indicating that it meets recognized safety standard.

* When installing a factory built fireplace or freestanding fireplace stove, seek expert help and follow the manufacturer's instructions completely. Make certain that free-standing stoves are placed an adequate distance away from combustible materials.

Keep safety in mind and enjoy warm and pleasant nostalgic times using your fireplace.

Put Some Pizzazz In Your Floor

Perhaps you just need a lot of personality, pronto, in a room, and you're tired of busy scatter rugs trying to do the job. How about pulling a switch and letting a vinyl floor covering inject design pizzazz, topped with a solid remnant of carpet. This subtle reversal of traditional roles underfoot will really jazz up the room—and save you money as well.

The effective way to insulate your home

Insulation effectiveness is measured in its resistance to heat flow . . . either moving out of the house in winter or flowing in, during the summer.

Celsius foam insulation has a high "R" rating which creates an efficient thermal barrier in ceilings, attics and walls. Celsius foam is pumped into walls cavities and flows around pipes, electrical outlets and other protrusions. It effectively seals against heat loss and drafts by completely filling the spaces without settling.

With Celsius foam you save on heating/cooling costs all year round and you get a return on your investment every time you receive your utility bill. You'll enjoy extra living comfort too!

Plan a laundry center

Whether or not "it all comes out in the wash" can definitely be influenced by the kind of home laundry equipment you purchase—a decision that should be based on durability, serviceability, energy savings, and cost.

But careful thought and planning in home laundering should not stop there.

Today, with some 80 per cent of the fabrics in the home machine- or hand-washable, laundry areas are "coming out of the closet" and into prominent view.

A good "washing well" combines functionally with any number of other activities—an entertainment area with a sink and convenient cupboards, or a combination sewing-laundry area.

Fancy or plain, there are a few essential ingredients for planning efficient laundering facilities. Following are some basic "laundry laws":

• Install your washer and dryer in the area of your home that will require the least amount of traipsing back and forth—keeping in mind locations of existing plumbing, electrical and gas connections and dryer venting.

• Lighten laundry chores by installing an easy-to-clean work surface for sorting and folding.

A conveniently-located table could double as a sewing center that includes a machine, and space for laying out and cutting fabric.

• Choose stain- and mar-resistant counter tops, installing them at a comfortable level geared to your own height.

Wall paint, paper, and flooring or carpeting that are easy to clean will all pay easy-care dividends for laundry and play time.

• Allow room for several containers for soiled clothes, sorting each type appropriately, so later re-sorting won't be necessary before washing.

• Install adequate glare-free lighting or plan your laundry area around a window with natural sunlight to make it easier to check clothes for soil, stains or small mending to-do's.

Energy Saving House Is Also Good-Looking

Remodelers who replace dull, paint-hungry siding with easy-care, modern vinyl siding, along with good looks also acquire the energy-conserving characteristics of this modern siding material.

Soft shades of white, yellow, green, gray, tan, and gold are available in either a smooth or textured finish which looks just like wood.

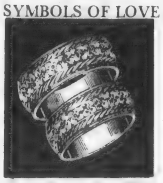
Vinyl siding is a product of space-age scientific research which is practically immune to the destructive forces which attack wood, corrode metal, cause colors to fade, and otherwise change and destroy commonly used building materials.

Vinyl is so durable that it is used as underground insulation impervious to rot; as plastic pipe resistant to corrosive liquids; and for highly resilient flooring that withstands the most punishing foot traffic in hard-use areas.

In addition to durability and resistance vinyl siding offers some other unique advantages.

The color is actually part of the vinyl itself. It can't peel, blister, check, flake, scrape, or wear off, as paint does.

Vinyl siding stays fresh and cheerful-looking year after year with only an occasional wiping with household detergent and water. It cannot rot or rust and is immune to insects and vermin. Unlike metal siding, which conducts electricity, vinyl siding is an insulator and therefore safe from lightning bolts and cannot interfere with TV or radio reception.



Quick Tip On Decorating

Perhaps your potting room, kitchen, working or sewing center has countertops that are marred and ugly. By cementing leftover pieces of vinyl flooring on work surfaces, you can perk them up, yet the vinyl's also dirt-resistant and durable. Water and stains mop up with a once-over-lightly with a sponge.

The critical factor in energy saving

Proper insulation is the critical home improvement to effective energy-saving in most American homes, according to the National Home Improvement Council.

It points out the American homeowner can save up to 50% of his fuel costs with the right kind of insulation—half his energy consumption.

There is a variety of types of insulation and a number of ways to install them. In wide use throughout the country are fiber glass, rock wool, vermiculite and cellulose. These products are set in place, poured, or blown by machine into walls, under floors, or above or below ceilings.

When the homeowner is checking for proper insulation in his home, he should place a thermometer on the wall inside the house. With the room at 68 degrees and outside temperature about 50 degrees, a well-insulated wall should register about 65 degrees. If it's much lower than 65, the wall is in all probability not insulated.

Insulation is rated by its resistance to heat flow. This is called its R value (R for resistance). The higher the R rating, the more satisfactory is resistance.

Ratings

A thickness of about 3 to 4 inches of blanketed fiber glass or rock wool is classified as R-11, meaning that it resists heat transfer as well as 9 inches of lumber or 4 feet of brick.

The National Bureau of Standards recommends R-11 insulation in exterior walls and floors and R-19 in the ceiling. The insulation industry claims a house meeting these standards needs less than 50% of the energy required to heat a non-insulated house.

Quincy Savings Bank's Energy Conservation Loan. At an Annual Percentage Rate of 9.00% for amounts between $1500 and $7500.

That's right. If at least half of a home improvement is to save energy, homeowners who are approved by the bank now may borrow between $1500 and $7500 from Quincy Savings Bank at an Annual Percentage Rate of just 9.00%. And, for similar projects between $500 and $1499, approved borrowers will pay a low Annual Percentage Rate of 10.00%.

Why are we offering what could be the lowest rates you'll find?
Simply because we want to encourage energy-savings in the home. Through such improvements as added insulation. Better siding or a new roof. Combination windows and doors. Weatherstripping and caulking. New heating systems, including solar panels. Turn our rate tables over in your mind as you think about the energy-saving project you particularly need. Then call us at 471-3500 to apply for your Energy Conservation Loan or for more information.

As Home Prices Rise

It Can Make Good Sense To Remodel

As home prices continue to rise to "out of sight" heights, the trend toward remodeling and modernizing older homes becomes stronger. It's particularly appealing to young families.

Home owners spent well over $100 million in remodeling projects during the past year — a new record. The reasons cited for going the remodeling route are nearly always one or both of the following: (1) The owner can't handle the price tag of the type of new home he needs and wants, or (2) such a new home is not available in the close-in location he prefers.

The type of couple who most commonly launch into a home remodeling project was sketched out in a recent survey. A profile of today's remodeler looks something like this:

The couple earns between $9,000 and $13,000 per year. The husband is just under 30 years of age. The wife is not steadily employed. The house they remodel is from 25 to 35 years old.

The results of the survey were reported by a noted architect, Henry Hastings, AIA. He also outlined the most popular types of remodeling projects now taking place across the country.

Modernizing the kitchen is No. 1 in the minds of most remodel-minded home owners. This usually includes the installation of modern new built-in components.

The remodeling of bathrooms is second on the list — or the addition of a bath. Adding other rooms — bedrooms, family room, den — is third. Fourth in popularity position is the addition of a patio.

Here is where architect Hastings throws up the yellow caution flag. If a family is adding a patio with the idea in mind of recouping their total investment when they sell the property, they had better take a second look. The average "patio addition" project will increase the value of the property by about half the cost of the project, he pointed out.

However, he stressed, in many cases the patio project is more than worth the investment because it satisfies a definite family need. This is also true of many other types of remodeling projects.

If planned and executed carefully, remodeling an older home can be an excellent investment. Older homes are often exceptionally sound and solid in their basic construction. Many feature raised foundations, large walk-in closets and other desirable elements not found in most new homes. And, of course, the locations are often far more convenient and desirable.

Storm windows and doors stave off high costs and chilly blasts

Aluminum storm windows and doors and replacement windows are a great energy-saving idea these days. What with higher heating fuel costs, expected tax incentives and memories of last winter's bitter cold, now may be as good a time as any to take that energy conservation step.

Storm windows can cut heating bills 10 to 20 per cent, according to the National Bureau of Standards. At average 1977 fuel prices in a 6,000 degree-day climate, such as Cleveland and Chicago, the investment in storm windows and doors can be recovered in five years, the NBS reported. That's based on current heating oil prices.

The payback period could be as few as two to three years for electrically-heated homes.

And with President Carter's proposed tax credits for home insulation the incentive is even greater. Under the Carter proposal, homeowners would get a tax credit of 20 per cent of the first $2,000 spent on "approved" conservation measures. Aluminum storm windows would fall under the "approved" conservation measures.

When approved, the tax credits would be retroactive to the President's message. Therefore, it is not necessary to postpone installation until final passage of the legislation.

Only about 23 million of the 75 million year-round, one-family homes in the United States have storm windows on every window, reported the Census Bureau. The most widely-sold type of storm window is the "triple track" aluminum window that comes with screens that can be simply slid into place

When shopping for windows, try to see a full-size sample, if possible, and compare the quality of the windows—particularly at the corners where joints should be neat, yet strong. Remember, the heavier the frame and general construction, the stronger and more durable the window.

Top quality windows also have thicker weatherstripping and heavier glass that weighs at least 18 ounces per square foot.

If your windows are loose and drafty—or hard to get up and down—consider replacement windows. They easily install in place of your old windows and cut down on air leaks. They are available with double-glazing that can take the place of storm windows.

A new type of highly efficient aluminum replacement that is popular has a "thermal break" of special insulation inside the aluminum to protect against energy loss and condensation through the aluminum frame.

Aluminum windows usually are available in mill finish (plain), clear anodized for added protection against pollutants in the air, or painted. Plain aluminum can be painted to match your home, if desired.

Dollar values from north to south

Things like new central air conditioning, a new carport or garage, depends largely on your climate and the desirability of the improvement of the house.

Air conditioning brings top dollar extra value in the hot South, obviously, especially in higher priced homes where it may be essential for resale.

Conversely, a new garage adds greatest value in a cold northern climate.

Redevelopment Timetable Expected To Remain On Schedule

The proposed time-table for redevelopment in Atlantic, Norfolk Downs and Southwest Quincy will be maintained despite failure of the federal government to promulgate new regulations governing the community development block grant program.

Gerald Marquis, principal planner of the Quincy department of planning and community development, said that the city will continue its program in accordance with the regulations promulgated last October.

Any major changes in the regulations, he said, are expected to be in the area of funding for projects not yet submitted to Housing and Urban Development for approval.

"We are assuming that most of the changes will be in the sections dealing with the filing of applications," he said.

Marquis said that after regulations governing grants under the Housing and Community Development Act of 1977 were published last fall, HUD was flooded with comments from cities and towns, states and community development organizations. As a result it was decided to amend the regulations to conform with some of the suggestions.

The new regulations were to be published by the middle of January but the federal government was unable to meet the deadline.

As a result a series of Small Cities conferences scheduled by Lieutenant Governor Tom O'Neil have been postponed. The conferences were planned to brief local Massachusetts officials on changes in the formula for distribution of grants and new eligibility requirements.

O'Neil's office said the conferences will be rescheduled when the final regulations are available.

Marquis said that he did not expect the regulations to be ready before late spring or early summer.

Dukakis Signs 'Son Of Sam' Bill

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy] announces the so-called "Son of Sam" legislation, of which he is a sponsor, has been signed into law by the Governor.

The legislation requires all monies accumulated as a result of a criminal's notoriety to be placed in an escrow account to aid the victims or families of victims of violent crimes.

"The purpose of this new law is to prevent a person convicted of a crime from being rewarded with large sums of money in return for rights to his or her story", said Morrissey. "Aside from this preventative aspect, a mechanism for victims or their families to recover damages from convicted felons is included," he said.

Morrissey said the crime victim's compensation account will be held in escrow by the Treasurer's office to hold monies paid to a person convicted of a crime, with respect to the re-enactment of the crime by way of a movie, book, magazine, or other means regarding the crime.

In order for the victims to receive monies from this account, he said the victims must bring civil action within three years of the date of the crime.

Morrissey added that the treasurer would advertise every six months during the three years that the funds were available to victims to satisfy any money judgements.

If three years elapse from the time the escrow account is set up and no civil actions are pending against the party in question, the treasurer will pay any monies in the account to that party.

Morrissey said the law further provides that funds from the escrow account could, upon the order of the court, be used for the exclusive purpose of retaining Legal Counsel.

Brenda Hughes Soloist

Quincy Symphony Orchestra Mid-Winter Concert Feb. 10

Brenda Hughes, a graduate of Eastern Nazarene College, will be the featured soloist at the mid-winter concert of the Quincy Symphony Orchestra to be presented Friday, Feb. 10 at 8 p.m. in the Milton High School Auditorium.

Miss Hughes will perform Saint-Saens' "Concerto for 'Cello, Opus 33". The program will also include "Festival Overture" by Shostakovitch and "Symphony No. 8 in G Major, Opus 88" by Dvorak.

A native of Boise, Idaho, Miss Hughes moved east to pursue her studies in music and the cello in particular. She received her degree in music education at Eastern Nazarene College in Quincy.

In addition she has studied with Gloria Johns of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra and is presently studying with Joel Moerschel of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Miss Hughes is currently a strings teacher in the Cambridge Public School system and is a member of the Quincy Symphony Orchestra and the Quincy Symphonette.

Ticket information may be obtained by calling 773-6350 ext. 200.

Quincy, North Girls In Action . . . .

ON HER WAY -- North Quincy's Betsey Johnson is shown on her way to a win in the mile run in a recent meet with Newton North.

HURDLING -- Tara Prince of Quincy clears the second hurdle on her way to a third place finish against Brookline.

6-Girls Quincy Team Valiant But Bow Again

The Quincy Girls' track team, still battling valiantly with only six girls, continues to make creditable showings but, with no depth in any event, still is seeking its first win.

The First Ladies, going with only five girls as high scoring Heidi Dolan was out of action, lost to Weymouth South, 51-26.

Lois Guglielmi won the 300 in 45.13, and Paula Constas won the 600 with her best time, 1:38.76.

The relay team of Guglielmi, Constas, Paula Church and Donna Reardon won with a clocking of 5:15.34.

Reardon was second in the mile [6:14.36], Church took second in the 1000 [3:07.38, her best time], Constas was second in the shot put [27-9½], Tara Prince was third in the hurdles [8.01] and Guglielmi took third in the high jump [4-6, her best jump].

Quincy, making its best showing of the year, lost to Brookline, 45½-30½, as it continued to improve in each meet.

Church won the 1000 in 3:08.2, Dolan took the high jump with her best effort, 4-6, Constas won the shot put with a toss of 28-1, and the relay team of Reardon, Constas, Church and Guglielmi won again with its best time, 5:11.39.

Reardon took second in the mile [6:06.75], Guglielmi was second in the 300 [43.73, her best time], Constas was second in the 600 [1:32.10], Guglielmi was third in the high jump [4-0] and Prince took third in the hurdles [7.96].

The First Ladies, coached by Jim Piccini, will meet Waltham and North Quincy, coached by Jeff Strungis, will face Weymouth South today [Thursday] at 3 at Brookline. Next Thursday Quincy will run against Newton North and the Raiderettes will take on Brookline at the same time and place.

BEST TIME -- Quincy's Lois Guglielmi on her way to a second place finish in the 300 against Brookline as she turns in her best time. At right are the North Quincy shot putters warming up.

A WINNER -- North Quincy's Eileen Mackey, only a sophomore, nears finish line in a victory in the 600-yard run in a meet against Newton North.

HANDING IT OFF -- Paula Church of Quincy receives the baton from Lois Guglielmi as the relay team picks up a win against Brookline.

Killilea Paces Bryan To Sweep Over Wollaston

Frank Killilea's 314 paced Bryan Post to a 4-0 sweep of the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome and moved the team to within one point of the league-leading George G. Burke Club in the Quincy Bowling Little Loop.

Dick Hallberg, captain of third place Granite Lodge 1451, rolled a high three of 339, marking the 4th straight week he has rolled 300 or better. Including last year, he has rolled 300 or better in 37 of the last 39 weeks.

He also had the weekly high single of 135. Bryan Post had high weekly team three of 1361, and the James R. McIntyre Club had high single of 462.

Only two points separate the top three teams in the league.

Other scores last week: McIntyre Club 4, Atlantic Fuel Oil 0; Granite Lodge 4, Joseph E. Brett Club 0; Dick Morrissey Club 4, Joseph J. LaRaia Club 0; Hennessy Plumbing Supply 4, Hutchinson Oil 0; Quincy Elks 3, Paul Harold Club 1; Burke Club 3, Montclair Men's Club 1.

The standings: Burke, 33-15 (total pinfall of 15,643); Bryan Post, 32-16 (15,736); Granite Lodge, 31-17 (15,414); McIntyre, 28-20 (15,536); Elks, 26-22 (15,459); Atlantic, 26-22 (15,338); Harold, 24-24 (15,432); Bowladrome, 23-25 (15,678); Morrissey, 22-26 (15,044); Hennessy, 21-27 (15,164); Montclair, 19-29 (15,187); Hutchinson, 19-29 (15,111); LaRaia, 16-32 (15,261); Brett, 16-32 (15,030).

The Top Ten: Hallberg, 112.4; Mike Hatfield, 103.2; Joe Crifo, 98.1; Chris Petrillo, 96.7; Paul Leonard, 96.7; Chris Butler, 96.6; Mike Sarruda, 96.6; John J. Sullivan, 96.2; Paul Anastas, 95.3; Frank Killilea and Jack Reardon, 95.1.

Amateur Boxing Show At Elks Saturday Night

Amateur boxing will be presented Saturday night at 8 at the Quincy Lodge of Elks, Quincy Center, when boxers in the senior and junior divisions from the South Shore Youth Boxing Club take on boxers from the Gloucester Boxing Club.

Among the Quincy boxers appearing will be Golden Gloves winners John Desmond, Tom Fallon and Bobby Wahlberg of Merrymount and 1977 Silver Mitten champions Pete Folkins and Kenny Golden of North Quincy.

The 18-year old Wahlberg, 1977 Southeastern and Lowell Golden Gloves Novice 112-pound champion, has won 23 of 24 bouts in less than a year. Two weeks ago in Providence he scored a unanimous decision over the veteran Joe Pelletier of Lawrence, 1977 Open Golden Gloves king.

Fighting in the Junior Olympics division [16 and under] will be Jimmy Lyons of Houghs Neck, Dennis Cronin of North Quincy, John Keady of Wollaston, Richie Ryan of West Quincy, Bobby Fitzgerald of South Quincy and other area youngsters.

The Quincy Boxing Club, formerly the South Shore Club, is a non-profit organization staffed by volunteers who were ring champions in both amateur and professional ranks.

The local club, now in its fourth year, has seven N. E. titleholders and this year hopes to double this number.

Tinker Picot, three-time Golden Gloves champion, will referee the bouts.

Tickets for the fights will be on sale at the Quincy Elks Saturday starting at 7 p.m.

Cheney Shines For Xaverian

Quincy's John Cheney, the team's captain, continues to be outstanding for the Xaverian High School basketball team.

In a recent 40-27 win over Abp. Williams, Cheney scored the first six points and finished with 12 points, 12 rebounds and five assists.

He was easily the outstanding player for the Hawks.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

FIRST AID FOR SCALDS

First aid for scalds is the same as first aid for other burns. For minor scalds or those confined to a small area, soak the burn in cold water. Usually in a few minutes, the pain will diminish and the cold can be felt. The objective is to cool the skin.

Cold water stops the destruction of tissue that can continue long after the burn is inflicted. However, too much cold to large areas of the body can bring the body temperature down to dangerous levels, causing shock.

For more serious scalds involving large areas of the body, wipe off the scalding liquid with a towel or other cloth soaked with cold water. Also, remove soaked clothing that is not stuck to the skin. Seek medical treatment as soon as possible.

Better than first aid, though, is not getting burned. Remember, anytime you're careless around hot liquids, you're playing with "fire".

Candlepin Tourney Shifted To Jan. 29

The 25th annual greater Quincy men's candlepin bowling tourney sponsored by the Koch Club of Quincy will begin Sunday, Jan. 29, at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome, 679 Quincy Shore Drive.

The opening was moved up a week due to the snowstorm of the past weekend.

Thirty entries have been scheduled to compete at noon and the remaining 20 teams will roll off at 2 p.m.

Applications must be completed and returned by the extended deadline of Friday, Jan. 27, to the Wollaston Bowladrome Alleys.

Started in 1954 with eight North Quincy teams participating at the old Norfolk Downs Alleys, the competition has expanded to 50 teams this year representing the same number of leagues and 2,000 bowlers. Last years winner was the Whitman Merchants.

The top five bowlers in the league standings as of Jan. 13, bowl in competition with the sixth and seventh bowlers in the standings used as alternates. If, for one reason or another, one of the top seven bowlers cannot compete, the league officials may choose down in their roster according to average to provide the full compliment of bowlers needed.

Bowlers entered must have bowled half the season thus far with their respective leagues and may only bowl for one tourney entry.

Any violation of the rules will forfeit the teams participation.

It is an elimination tourney and each team must win to continue in competition.

Opposition each Sunday is automatic according to the alley number drawn.

The Koch Club of Quincy has sponsored the event for the past quarter of a century and Richard J. Koch, Founder of the competition, is Tourney Director.

Quincy Matmen Win 12th

This was to be a rebuilding year for Quincy High wrestling coach Carmen Mariano, with only four seniors on his squad.

However, it appears to be no stopping the Presidents and last Saturday they defeated Brockton, 29-23, in a Suburban League meet to run their undefeated record to 12-0-1.

Quincy will host Newton North Saturday at 6 at the Quincy Armory and Tuesday will be at Plymouth-Carver at 6:30.

The win at Brockton was marred by an injury to heavyweight Len Picot, whose undefeated streak was ended with an elbow which opened up a cut near his eye, sending him to the hospital. He had to default, giving Brockton six points.

Steve Notorangelo, Dan Madden, Lou Venturelli, Steve Picot and Tony Akoury won by decisions, Steve Venturelli and Don Heath won by pins and Ronnie Crowe went to a draw.

In its previous match Quincy defeated Durfee, 32-20.

Winners against Durfee were John Fitzgerald, Len Picot and Tony Akoury by pins and Lou and Steve Venturelli, Rennie Crowe and Steve Picot by decisions. Martin Doyle fought to a draw.

Earlier Quincy had defeated Duxbury, 36-19, and Bridgewater-Raynham, 33-23.

Winners against Duxbury were Fitzgerald, Steve Notarangelo and Lou Venturelli by pins, Doyle, Steve Venturelli and Crowe by decisions. Akouy and Len Picot went to draws.

In the B-R meet the winners were Akoury by a pin, Paul Orlando, Lou Venturelli and Steve Venturelli by decisions, Doyle, Joe Irvine and Jim Mullarkey by forfeit.

North Swimmers Defeat Weymouth N

North Quincy's improving swim team took its second win and first in the Suburban League last week, defeating Weymouth North, 92-75. The Raiders will host Waltham Tuesday at 7 at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool.

North's Ed Melanson was a double winner, taking the 100-yard butterfly and the 200 individual medley. Melanson, Thor Hellested, Kevin Greene and Fran McLaughlin won the 200 medley relay.

Greene won the one-meter diving and Hellested won the 100 breaststroke.

The Suburban League meet will be held at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool Saturday, Feb. 4.

Crusaders Win Pair

The Eastern Nazarene College basketball team, which lost its first two games following the month-long holiday vacation, snapped back last week to win two games and improve its record to 6-3.

Saturday night the Crusaders at one time scored 24 unanswered points and walloped Barrington College, 62-38.

Earlier in the week ENC snapped its two-game losing streak with a 79-71 win over Rhode Island College.

The Crusaders moved into a 43-29 halftime lead but Coach Ron Bradley was disappointed in the team's play in the second half as Rhode Island began to narrow the gap.

Pete Rebeiro had 13 points for ENC, Mike Barefoot scored 11, seven in the second half, Steve Ames hit on five of six shots for 10 points, Barry Jones had 11 and Richard Scearce also had 10 and six rebounds.

The Crusaders have a rough schedule coming up with the Mid-America Nazarene Tournament this weekend, a game at Bridgewater State Tuesday at 8 and a home game next Thursday with Southeastern Mass. at 8.

Quincy Swim Team Bows To Brookline

The Quincy swim team continues to find the going rough but is still receiving some fine individual performances.

Last week the Presidents lost to Brookline, 96-64, in a Suburban League meet.

Quincy's Pete Sullivan won the 200-yard freestyle and the 500-freestyle, and John Connolly won the 50-yard freestyle and the 100-yard breaststroke.

The teams of Ed Fenby, Al Johnson, Connolly and Dave Burke, and Mike Busey, Sullivan, Tim Cabezas and Steve Cabezas, took second and third in the 200-medley relay.

Fenby was third in the 200 individual medley and second in the 100 backstroke. Burke took seconds in the 50 and 100 freestyles, Bob Lavinge was third in the 100 freestyle, Steve Cabezas was third in the 100 backstroke and Johnson, Lavinge, Busey and Steve Cabezas teamed up for a third in the 400 freestyle relay.

The Quincy swimmers will host Blue Hills Friday at 3:15 at the Lincoln-Hancock School pool and Tuesday will be home to Brockton at 4 at the same site.

Sun, Bersani Battle To 2-2 Tie, Burgin Edges D&H

The Quincy Sun maintained a two-point lead over Bersani Brothers in the Bantam House League as the teams fought to a 2-2 tie.

The rival goalies, Joe Lynch of Bersani and Mike Boussy and Dave McMurdo of the Sun stood out. Rich Durham had both Bersani goals and Joe Carroll and Bill Bomar assisted. John Gonzales and Mike Chiocchio scored for the Sun and Chiocchio, Darby Flaherty and Brian Strausberg had assists.

Burgin Platner edged Doran & Horrigan, 3-2, on goals by Paul Leonard, Mark Sayers and Bob Welch. Greg Freeman, Dave DiCarlo, Rich Milano and Welch had assists. Steve Hall and Bill Concannon scored for Doran with assists for Bob Flynn and John Verrochi.

free-for-all."

Anselmo had eight votes on the first ballot. J. Thomas Mullaney who finished sixth behind Anselmo and Sweeny in the election, had four. Ronald Conway, a Boston policeman who did not run, had three.

Sweeny had at least three votes committed to him.

"My main purpose on the School Committee will be to keep the ship on an even keel," said Anselmo.

"With my experience I'll be a good balance wheel. Some of the new members, without taking away from their ability, will need some time to learn the ropes."

Anselmo suggested that the city charter should be amended so that in the future the runnerup in the last election will automatically fill any vacancy that comes up.

"I'm going to try to use what little influence I have to work on it," he said.

"If someone else other than the runnerup had been chosen a lot of people would have had the sense of things not being on the up and up. Some would have shouted 'foul play'.

"If the runnerup got the job automatically it would have saved a lot of hours on the part of the City Council and the School Committee. We would not have had to put on the theatrical production."

Anselmo will serve for two years, until January 1980, the remainder of the term that McCauley gave up on Jan. 3 just before he was sworn in as an at-large member of the City Council.

As for Sweeny, he said he "probably" will run for the School Committee again in 1979.

Voting for Anselmo were City Councillors Joanne Condon, Daniel G. Raymondi and James A. Sheets; Mayor Arthur H. Tobin; and Christopher Kennedy, John J. Sullivan, Mary P. Collins and Patricia Toland of the School Committee.

Mullaney received the votes of City Councillors Paul D. Harold, McCauley and Stephen J. McGrath as well as that of School Committeewoman Joan C. Picard.

City Councillors John J. Quinn, Leo J. Kelly and John J. Lydon Jr. voted for Conway.

Other applicants considered were Janet R. Caristo, Patrick J. Conroy, Wilma J. Cardwell, William J. Hurley, Mary J. Mayo, Arnold Levine, Joseph E. McDermott and Lawrence S. Butler.

High School Midyear Exams Rescheduled Because Of Storm

Midyear examinations in Quincy High School, Quincy Vocational-Technical, and North Quincy High School have been re-scheduled for Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 30, 31, Feb. 1 because of the storm.

The regular daily schedules will be modified to accommodate the examination sessions.

Quincy High School and Quincy Vocational-Technical students will take 90 minute examinations beginning at 8:15 a.m. Monday, Jan. 30. All student lunches will be served in the QVT Cafeteria from 11:35 a.m. to 12:10 p.m. on the exam days. Faculty lunches will be served in the QHS cafeteria and in the QVT faculty dining room.

NQHS students in Grades 10-12 [morning session] start their exam periods of 90 minutes each at 7:30 a.m. on Monday, Jan. 30. Snacks will be available in the NQ cafeteria 9 - 9:15 a.m. Student and faculty lunches will be served from 10:45 - 11:15 a.m.

9th grade students at NQHS will begin 70 minute exam periods at 12:50 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 30. Dismissal on Monday will be at 4:45 p.m. On Tuesday and Wednesday the 9th grade session is from 12:50 - 3:30 p.m. There will be no physical education classes during the exam periods.

Students are required to be in attendance only during periods when they are scheduled for exams.

Specific announcements for exam schedules will be made to all students in all three schools.

The regular schedules for all buildings will resume on Thursday, Feb. 2.

Report cards are to be issued on Feb. 10.

Sheets Makes It Official: He's Running For Congress

James Sheets dropped the other shoe this week.

Sheets, a city councillor and State Rep who was reported on the verge for several weeks, finally announced that he will be a candidate for the 11th District seat in the U.S. Congress.

The post is currently held by Rep. James A. Burke [D-Milton], a veteran of 19 years standing, who recently underwent amputation of his foot to arrest a diabetic condition. He may run again.

"We are in this all the way, no matter who runs," said Sheets. "We feel there is a mood for change. That doesn't necessarily mean rejection of any person.

"It's just that people have reached a point where they feel there are new and different problems out there and it's time to allow someone else to have an opportunity to work on them."

Sheets said the fact that Patrick H. McCarthy of Randolph did well against Burke in the 1976 Democratic primary influenced his decision to run.

"If 5,500 votes had changed hands McCarthy would now be the congressman," he said. "Why did he come that close. The answer is obvious. There is a lot of soft voter support out there that can be won by an effective candidate."

Sheets said he would run in the September Democratic primary but not as an independent in November.

Two other candidates, McCarthy and Rep. Brian Donnelly [D-Boston] already are in the field and a third, former Quincy Mayor James R. McIntyre, is testing the water with a poll.

Sheets called McCarthy a stronger candidate now than in 1976 and he conceded Donnelly "a good chance if he can break out of the Boston area into the suburbs and make an impact."

"I would not want to see another candidate out of Quincy," he said, "but if Jim McIntyre wants to get in the race that's something that's going to happen."

Sheets said a survey of voters in Ward 4 taken a month ago drew about 150 responses and "almost without qualification people supported my decision to go.

"A lot of them said, 'we want you to go but we don't want to lose you as a ward councillor.' The general attitude was one of support for whatever I want to do."

He said 65 per cent of those surveyed indicate a willingness to work on the campaign.

Sheets said a campaign budget of from $100,000 to $150,000 is planned and the campaign will be kicked off formally with a major gathering in the latter part of March when the weather is better.

"An opportunity to seek a congressional seat comes once in a lifetime," he said. "It's an honor and a great opportunity. When the opportunity is there it's time to take it."

Had It Driving To Boston? Commuter Boat At Your Service

South Shore commuters exhausted from battling monumental rush hour traffic on 3A and other highways leading into Boston have been given an avenue of escape.

The commuter boat from the Hingham shipyard has expanded its service and added a second vessel. Starting Tuesday the 7:45 a.m. service was added to the schedule. It augments the 7:20 a.m. regular boat.

Whereas the regular boat had been carrying an average of 60 to 80 passengers, on Tuesday 106 commuters were on board. The 7:45 a.m. boat carried 203 passengers.

The afternoon schedule now includes a 4:30 trip, a 5:20 and a 6:30. The regular schedule was limited to the 5:20 p.m.

It was pointed out that, although there is no definite schedule, people wanting to get into Boston in the late afternoon could make the return trip with the commuter boat. It is estimated the trip from Boston takes about one hour.

The expanded schedule is part of a program designed to test the feasibility of maintaining a winter schedule for the boat. The legislature approved $50,000 in the supplementary budget for the test which has been going on since last November.

The expanded schedule was inaugurated to take advantage of the existing emergency conditions.

Physical Fitness Program At Germantown Center

A biweekly physical fitness and exercise group will start Monday, Jan. 30, at 10:30 a.m. in the Germantown Multi-Service Center, 9 Bicknell St.

The program will continue every Monday and Thursday from 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. with limited enrollment. Those interested should call the Center at 471-1189.

Other activities at the Center next week include:

Monday - Helen Sullivan will be available to assist with information on welfare from 1 to 5 p.m.

Tuesday - A story hour for 6-8 year olds will be conducted by Sheila Jordan at 2 p.m.

Wednesday - Susan Short will provide information and assistance to public housing tenants in rent redeterminations. State and Federal agencies allow provisions for certain expenses to be deducted from total family income which can greatly benefit the tenants of public housing.

Thursday - Well Baby Clinic, sponsored by the Quincy Health Department at 1 p.m. This service is offered free to all Quincy residents.

Friday - Information concerning emergency fuel situations may be obtained by calling Karen O'Neil or Trixie Phelan. Applications for the emergency fuel program will be accepted and held on file in hopes that a bill which is now pending in the legislature to refund the program is approved.

Paul Conley To Be Honored At Testimonial

Paul Conley, former Quincy resident and well known football player and boxer in South Boston, will be honored at a testimonial Saturday, Jan. 28 at 7 p.m. at the Boston Teachers Union Hall, South Boston.

Conley played for the Chippewas. He was a top amateur boxer, winning the Golden Gloves and New England championships

Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton] is an honorary co-chairman of the dinner and Edward J. Moore, his administrative assistant, is serving on the testimonial committee. Moore can be reached at 698-1403, for tickets to the testimonial which will include a buffet, dancing and entertainment.

BUSINESS NEWS / REAL ESTATE

John R. Herbert Named To Consumer Affairs Committee

John R. Herbert, president and chairman of The Quincy Co-operative Bank, has been appointed to the 1978 Consumer Affairs Committee of the United States League of Savings Associations.

The appointment was announced in Chicago by Stuart Davis, president of the League. Davis is also chairman of the board of the Great Western Savings & Loan Association, Beverly Hills, California.

The U.S. League is the principal trade organization for the savings and loan business and represents over 4,400 associations throughout the country. Savings and loan associations are the second largest type of financial institution in America and specialize in attracting savings accounts for investment primarily in mortgage loans on residential property.

Currently, savings associations provide approximately twice the amount of funds for home mortgage financing as all other lenders combined.

PREPAYMENT PENALTIES

You've sold your home. Your buyer obtained new financing with a new mortgage. Therefore, your old mortgage was, undoubtedly, paid in full with part of your proceeds from the sale. Paying off a mortgage in advance of its original loan length is known in the trade as "prepayment".

Many lenders today require a prepayment penalty if a mortgage is paid off prior to its original due date, and you'll find this can amount to several hundred dollars.

If you paid this penalty, don't forget that the Internal Revenue Service treats the prepayment penalty the same as interest - which can be a valuable deduction from your income tax.

But, in spite of the tax break, always try to bargain for the smallest prepayment penalty or no penalty at all. In fact, in many states, consumer-oriented laws have been passed which prohibit any prepayment penalties after the home loan has been in effect from three to five years.

Situation 'A Mess'

Tobin Asks Moratorium On NQHS Loose Talk

Mayor Tobin has asked for a moratorium on loose talk about North Quincy High School until problems surrounding the controversial construction project can be documented and explained.

He called it "a mess."

The $16 million addition and renovation job is said to be as much as a year behind schedule in readyness to receive students, who are currently attending school in double sessions.

Tobin said he has a task force of city officials "documenting the happenings at North Quincy High School in order to specify existing problems and prescribe alternative courses to be considered."

The task force is made up of Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti, City Solicitor Richard W. Barry, School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, Rev. Bedros Baharian and Assistant City Solicitor Dennis E. Harrington, former city councillor from Ward 6.

They are to report their findings to Tobin this coming weekend after which he said he plans to sit down with members of the City Council and School Committee "and bring them up to date on the city's financial picture."

Until then, said Tobin, it would be better if some of the rumors about the project ceased.

"There have been too many statements made to date about North Quincy High School," he said.

"It is not my intention to alarm the parents and youngsters who are to be commended, along with the teachers and

'Teachers Should Be Evaluated'

Be Cautious About New School Programs, Says Toland

Mrs. Patricia Toland, the newly elected vice chairman of the Quincy School Committee, says she feels any new school programs should be considered carefully in the light of the financial plight of the taxpayer.

But, she told The Quincy Sun in an in-depth interview, "I don't think Quincy wants to cut back on what we have considered essential to the learning process. I don't think we have any frills."

In the interview, Mrs. Toland also made these points:

- There should be an evaluation system for teachers, even those on tenure, since "that is basic to any good business, evaluate the workers and, what they are doing."
- There is a problem with test scores at the 10th grade level in the Quincy schools. Maybe more basic subjects, including reading, should be continued into the junior high schools.
- She has proposed that the vice chairman and the school superintendent make up the committee agenda together so that the school committee will have more input into school priorities.

PAT TOLAND: 'I think it's time to consider any new program very carefully in the light of its financial implications. I think we have a responsibility to keep the tax rate down.'

The text of the interview with Mrs. Toland follows:

SUN: You've been a member of the School Committee for two years now. You're vice chairman. What do you feel are the good things about the school system? The bad things? What are its strengths and its weaknesses?

TOLAND: Well, our student-centered learning system is going well.

SUN: What is that?

TOLAND: That's our basic philosophy. It's an individualized system of learning. Each child is evaluated at his particular level and then brought along as far as he can within his ability. If this is done properly everyone will be able to develop their own potential as much as he or she is

City's Water Will Be Fluoridated

By TOM HENSHAW

We won't notice it, the MDC assures us, but on Tuesday, Feb. 7, Quincy's drinking water will be fluoridated.

The chemical, which helps to fight cavities in the teeth of small children, will be added at the Sudbury Reservoir, from which point it will fan out into the water systems of the 32 cities and towns served by the MDC's Water Division.

"You won't notice the difference," said Michael Goldman, spokesman for the Metropolitan District Commission. "There'll be no change in taste, smell or color of the water."

Except for a dash of chlorine and ammonia to disinfect the pipes, the fluoride will be the first foreign substance added to the MDC water supply, which claims to be one of the purest sources of drinking water in the world.

It's so good, in fact, that it is well within the standards set by the Environmental Protection Agency last week when it announced the first rules designed to reduce potential cancer-causing chemicals present in drinking water.

Quincy's drinking water comes from Quabbin Reservoir, some 60 miles to the west, a 39-square mile man-made lake that wiped out four towns [Enfield, Dana, Greenwich and Prescott] when it was filled with water, a process that took seven years [1939-46].

The drop of water that comes out of your faucet today probably entered Quabbin in the winter of 1973 and spent the next five years circulating around the reservoir, a natural filtration process that helps to account for its purity.

It comes to Quincy by way of a series of aqueducts and tunnels through Wachusett Reservoir, north of Worcester, Sudbury and Chestnut Hill. The final 10 miles

Harrington Named Assistant City Solicitor

Dennis E. Harrington, who was defeated in the November election after serving two terms on the City Council, has been appointed assistant city solicitor.

The appointment was made by City Solicitor Richard W. Barry, who said it was based on a survey he conducted of members of the Quincy Bar Association.

"Attorney Harrington will bring to the solicitor's office a unique blend of proven legal competence, trial experience and expertise in municipal law gained during his years as an elected official of Quincy," said Barry.

Harrington, who has practiced law in Quincy for nine years and served on the City Council from Ward 6 from 1974-78, is a former assistant attorney general and assistant district attorney for Norfolk County.

He is treasurer of the Quincy Bar Association and has been an officer and member of the Board of Governors of the Association for the past three years. He is a member of the Quincy Elks, the North Quincy Knights of Columbus and the Montclair Men's Club.

Harrington and his wife, the former Ellen Boyd of North Quincy, live at 10 Hillcrest Rd, Atlantic. They have six children.

Tobin Proclaims February Heart Month

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin has been appointed honorary chairman of the 1978 Heart Fund Campaign and has issued a proclamation declaring February to be Heart Month.

The Mayor noted that in 1976, 509 deaths out of a total of 1,036 in Quincy were caused by heart and circulatory disease. He also said that over a million Americans are killed by heart and blood vessel disease annually and that more than four out of five of these victims die of heart attacks or stroke.

Tobin urged all citizens to "support the Heart Fund Campaign, so that through our efforts we can all look forward to a longer and happier life with our loved ones."

William Souden is serving as 1978 Heart Fund chairman for Quincy and Richard Koch is chairman of special events.

Chamber Seeking Nominees For Awards

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce is seeking nominees from its membership and the general public for awards to be given to three South Shore individuals at the organization's annual meeting, March 17, at Lantana, Randolph.

Candidates proposed must have been involved and made contributions that have forwarded the Chamber's objective of building a sense of community in the region south of Boston, and in providing leadership in matters of regional concern as it affects quality of life and economic prosperity.

Categories for the awards are not set, in order to allow for a broad range of individual possibilities and to emphasize the South Shore Chamber theme for 1978, "What a Spot To Be In."

Recipients at the Chamber's annual meeting in 1977 were: Larry Antonelli, founder of L. Antonelli Iron Works; Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Quincy Parks-Recreation Board and founder of the Koch Club, and Senator Allan R. McKinnon of Weymouth.

Members of the Leader Recognition awards committee who will make the final decision are:

Joan Hart of Lantana, Chairman; John W. Blake of Colony, Inc.; Jack Conway, Jack Conway and Company; Everett P. Grossman, Grossman's; Louise Tracy of Linwoods Fabric House; Jack Hill of Exide, E.S.B., and Attorney Federick Sheehan of Weymouth.

Nominations should be sent to Mrs. Joan Hart, Chairman Leader Recognition Awards Committee, South Shore Chamber of Commerce, Box 488, Quincy Ma. 02169, no later than Feb. 5, 1978.

City Seeks Authorization For HN Culvert Already Built

Quincy is seeking authorization for a culvert in Houghs Neck that was built nearly four years ago.

The city just forgot to get permission from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, that's all.

The area near Edgewood Drive and Rock Island Rd. was dredged, cleared of debris and 110 feet of 48-inch pipe installed in 1974 in order to bring clean water into the Third Marsh.

The work was performed without a Department of the Army permit.

Now Quincy has filed for permission and the Corps of Engineers is seeking public comment on whether or not the unauthorized work should be allowed to remain.

The city is also applying for permission to construct and maintain an additional 100 feet of 48-inch pipe and place about 23 cubic yards of clean sand around it.

Anyone who wishes to comment on the project should do so by Feb. 21 in writing to the Army Corps of Engineers, New England Division, 424 Trapelo Rd, Waltham, Mass. 02154.

Council On Aging Thanks Seniors For Survey Cooperation

The Quincy Council on Aging has conveyed its thanks to senior citizens of the city for their courtesy and cooperation with the six member survey team conducting an informational study.

Miss Kathleen White, director of the survey division, said that the helpful manner and the candid comments enabled the surveyors to gather pertinent information to aid the Council in assessing the needs and desires of the elderly in Quincy.

As of Dec. 31 the three survey teams had completed 2,582 surveys and physically walked door-to-door 418 streets in the city.

In the weeks ahead the teams will be visiting various senior citizens housing complexes as well as continuing door-to-door in the private sector.

Seek Special Commission

Sheets, Metayer Want MBTA Snow Removal Procedures Probed

Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy] is co-sponsoring a resolution that would set up an unpaid special commission of state representatives and senators to investigate MBTA procedures for handling snow removal and other emergencies.

The Commission of four senators and seven reps would "look into those methods used in keeping the MBTA service operational and the handling of the problems of those patrons who are caught in the middle of any such emergency."

"We had a tremendous amount of phone calls about the MBTA during the recent storm," said Ron Kaufman, Sheets' legislative assistant. "They complained not only about the service but about the lack of communication with those caught in stations waiting for trains.

"Representatives of the T appeared before the House Committee on Transportation early this year and told of all sorts of emergency procedures mapped out for snow removal and communication. This was a severe storm but at least communication should not have broken down."

Kaufman said the commission would not try to place blame for the breakdowns but would try to find out what the procedures were, if they were implemented and why they would not work.

Co-sponsor of the resolution is Rep. Elizabeth N. Metayer [D-Braintree].

Morrissey Wants Hearing On MBTA Red Line Conditions

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey (D-Quincy) has requested a public hearing with MBTA officials concerning present service and conditions on the Red Line as well as other branches of the "T".

In a letter to MBTA Chairman Robert Kiley, Morrissey cited "horrendous" plowing, slow service and other unpleasant conditions as hazards that many South Shore residents have to face in order to make their daily trip to Boston.

"A public hearing will give South Shore commuters, especially those in Quincy, a chance to have some input into the problems the MBTA has today," said Morrissey.

Morrissey also said that the parking lots, were plowed poorly to begin with, and have never been plowed correctly.

"The MBTA should be willing and able to answer any and all questions that South Shore commuters have about the conditions they must travel in. And the commuters should have the right to ask the questions. I'm hoping the public hearing will give everyone who wants to the chance to speak up, and let their voice be heard," said Morrissey.

NQHS Advisory Committee

The North Quincy High School Advisory Committee will meet tonight [Thursday] at 7:30 p.m. in Room 117.

This is an open meeting for all parents and guardians. For further information contact, Maryann P. Mahony, 222 Quincy Shore Drive, [328-9627].

Guinness Book Bid

Kertzman's Changes Volkswagen Engine In Record 1 Minute, 37 Seconds

By PETER BARNICLE

A six-man team at Kertzman's of Quincy, specialists in the repair of Volkswagens, has made a bid for inclusion in the Quinness Book of Records by changing a complete engine in one minute and 37 seconds.

The team, coached by Harvey Kertzman, owner of the auto body shop at 450 Quincy Ave., comprised Paul Sullivan, Quincy; Stephen Pierce, Randolph; Walter Devine, Hanson, and David Rovner, Randolph.

Under the watchful eyes of newsmen, television cameras and interested spectators the fast working group removed the engine from its mounts, put a new one in place and hooked up all the necessary links and lines in 97 seconds.

Kertzman said that the previous record was set in England, but the work was done on modified sports car and it is not eligible for listing in the garage work category in Quinness Book of Records.

He explained that the car must pass the state inspection test and be road worthy before it is accepted by the record keepers. Quinness does take the word of newspapers and TV news and the statements of those who were on hand during the operation.

"It was not a special car," Kertzman said. "We just asked a customer if we could use his car for a few minutes. He said sure and we went to work."

Once the record is accepted it can be challenged in any part of the world since Volkswagens are familiar in Europe and South America as well as throughout the United States.

READY, SET - GO! -- Team of mechanics at Kertzman's of Quincy, auto body shop, set about changing engine of Volkswagen to establish a new record for inclusion in the Guinness Book of Records. They completed the job in one minute and 37 seconds.

Quincy's Share In Lottery $3.2 Million

Quincy received $3,202457 as its share of the money earned by the Massachusetts State Lottery in the period April, 1972 to Nov. 30, 1977, according to State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane.

During the year ending Nov. 30, 1977 the city's share was $606,006.

A total of $51,462,876 was earned for the 351 cities and towns of the state during the Lottery's operations. Of this total $42,180,982 was distributed to the communities through the lottery's local aid formula. Another $9,281,894 was credited to the General Fund for distribution to the 351 cities and towns through the school aid formula.

The diversion of Numbers Game revenue to the General Fund ended June 30 of last year and in the future all money earned by the Lottery's various games will be credited exclusively to the Local Aid Fund.

RUBBER SWEATSUIT DANGER

Don't believe the myth that a good way to lose weight and get in shape is to sweat off fat in a rubber sweatsuit. Case in point:

"We were trying to melt some fat off," explained a high school football coach after one of his players died of heat exhaustion on the field. The boy had been wearing a rubber sweatsuit under his football uniform.

"You can't melt off fat," says Dr. Nathan J. Smith, professor of sports medicine at the University of Washington Medical School. "Sweatsuits can be very dangerous, especially the rubber one. The body eliminates excess heat by evaporation of sweat from the skin. You need as much skin exposed to the air as possible to allow the heat to dissipate. If the heat isn't eliminated, you could suffer catastrophic heat exhaustion."

You have to use up 3,500 calories to lose one pound of fat. Losing water won't do it, because water losses must be replaced.

Heart Time Ball For Senior Citizens Feb. 10

February, the month dedicated to the affairs of the heart, will have an added significance this year in Quincy according to Mayor Arthur H. Tobin.

Quincy's senior citizens, referred to by Mayor Tobin as "The Heart Beat of Our City", will be guests of honor at a "Heart Time Ball", Friday, Feb. 10, at the Quincy Armory.

Plans for the social event have been in the making for two months. Mayor Tobin has appointed Mrs. Marion Andrews to chair the committee consisting of representatives from various city departments, Mass. National Guard, veterans' organizations and businessmen.

Many features will highlight the program. The 60-piece 215th Army National Guard Band under the direction of C W 4 John Yunits will present a concert from 7:30 until 8:30 p.m.

Dance music for the ball will be provided by a 20-piece unit, also from the 215th Army National Guard Band directed by Yunits. Music from the 40's and 50's will be played from 8:30 until midnight.

Light refreshments, made by the culinary department of Quincy Vocational Technical High School will be served. Table centerpieces will be created by students from Central Junior High School. A three and a half foot wide heart-shaped cake, made by students of George D. Cole, food coordinator for the Quincy School Department, will be on display.

Several door prizes will be awarded during the evening. Expenses for the event will be paid with donations from various veterans' organizations and business groups.

Tickets, free of charge, will be available to Quincy Senior Citizens through the various housing units, Senior Citizen Clubs, and from Mrs. Andrews of the Recreation Department. Five hundred will be issued. Tickets will be available after Feb. 1. Senior citizens must present tickets at the door for admittance.

Mayor Tobin has announced the following committee members in addition to Mrs. Andrews: Mrs. Jane Wallace, secretary; Mr. Yunits, Dr. Lawrence Creedon, Edward Hannon, Dr. Richard Chrystal, Walter Lunsman, William Phinney, Cole, Basil Caloia, Carl Leone, Lt. Col. Arthur Allen, all of the Quincy School Department; Richard J. Koch, Executive Secretary, Quincy Park and Recreation Board; Thomas McDonald, representing the veterans' organizations; William Dwyer and Joseph Montillo, representing the businessmen; Herbert Blake, Charles Alongi, several members of the George F. Bryan VFW auxiliary under the direction of Mrs. Rita Kelleher, Lt. Robert Murphy, Quincy Police Department.

Bus transportation will be provided from the various housing units. Schedules will be posted. Many city officials will be special guests.

Awards Presented At Troop 26 Banquet

Members of Boy Scout Troop 26, Germantown, were presented awards at a recognition banquet held at Houghs Neck Legion Post, sponsors of the troop.

Awards were presented to Anthony Ansewitz, Douglas Bosse, Mark Cohen, Ralph Cross, James Cross, Charles Darcy, James Egala, Mark Gillard, Francis Garvey, Joey Hirl, Mark Holland, Daniel Kelly, Daniel McNamara, Jerry Nieters, Steven Rose, Randy Riley, Michael Taylor, Kenneth McCabe, George Kneeland, James, Peter and Paul Lennon and Carl, Wayne and Scott Lockhart.

Scoutmaster Henry Gillard made the presentations assisted by assistant Scoutmaster Edward McCabe, District Scouting Commissioner Adele Gromley, Norfolk County American Legion representative Robert Crandlemere and Martin Rose.

Certificates of appreciation were presented to the Houghs Neck American Legion Post for its sponsorship of the troop -- to Post Commander Mary Timcoe, her husband Will Timcoe, Martin Rose, Ronald Manchester, Kay Gillard, Barbara Kelly, Edward McCabe, Walter Koliatis and Al Crombie, American Legion drill instructor.

Hancock Representative Neighborhood Club Speaker

Richard J. Luschick, an accountant with John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company, will be the guest speaker at a meeting of the Neighborhood Club of Quincy at 12:15 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 7.

Luschick will speak on "Leadership Through Effective Public Speaking", explaining how a person's leadership potential can be enhanced by gaining poise and polish in public speaking.

A graduate of Boston College, Luschick is a member of Toastmasters International and has won a number of trophies in public speaking contests. He is also a member of the American Management Association and the National Association of Accountants.

Paul Gay Appointed To Judicial Planning Committee

Paul C. Gay, Register of Probate for Norfolk County, was recently appointed to the Supreme Judicial Court's Judicial Planning Committee.

Gay will serve as a member of the subcommittee on management information together with Judge Joseph Mitchell, chairman, Supreme Judicial Court Judge Ruth Abrams, Gerald Grossman, a director at Massachusetts General Hospital, John Kerry, Middlesex County District Attorney, Jeffrey Meldman, Sloane School of Management at MIT, Philip Murray, assistant district attorney of Suffolk County, Lawrence Raleigh, chief probation officer of Brockton District Court and Frederick Santarpio, assistant to the Commissioner of Probation.

Jim Burke Keeping 'Em Guessing

Will Congressman James Burke seek an 11th term this fall or call it a career?

That's the big local politcal question at the moment and right now your guess may be as good as anyone else's.

As the incumbent, Burke can exercise the privilege of "keeping 'em guessing" for as long as he wants. With only eight months to go before the primary election, the longer he waits to make known his decision, the bigger the effect it would have on the outcome of the election.

Some observers think Burke himself could be hurt regardless of his decision if he waits too long. Here's how they see it:

If he decides at a late date to run, he will have in the meanwhile given several candidates time in which to get their campaigns against him rolling as rumors he isn't going to run gain momentum.

Rep.-City Councillor James Sheets who officially announced his candidacy last week and vowed he is "in it all the way", will benefit, for one.

So will Rep. Brian Donnelly of Dorchester who already is putting out campaign literature although he has yet to make an official announcement.

But perhaps the one who would be helped the most might be Patrick McCarthy of Randolph who ran against Burke for the Democratic nomination two years ago.

McCarthy launched a vigorous, hard-hitting campaign two years ago and made some inroads in the 11th Congressional District. He really hasn't stopped campaigning since. He could win over some Burke followers who may figure Burke isn't going to run. Burke would thus be aiding McCarthy whom he has little fondness for.

If Burke does not run for re-election and waits too long to announce it, he will hurt someone like former Mayor-Senator James McIntyre, a long-time friend.

McIntyre is seriously thinking of running but will not if Burke does. He is serious enough about it that he is having a poll taken for him now in the 11th District.

If Burke waits too long and then announces he will not be a candidate, it would be too late for McIntyre to get a campaign going.

Some observers feel that if Burke has decided what he plans to do he should make it known very soon in fairness to candidates who have announced and to prospective contenders. They think he should do it sometime this month.

Burke, who underwent a foot amputation several months ago may not have made up his mind yet. He looked and acted like a man on the campaign trail here a few weeks ago as he led the assault on the proposed controversial central mail center. But maybe he isn't sure himself yet.

Meanwhile, though, observers think a long delay in decision making could boomerrang by hurting his own campaign for re-election or by damaging that of someone he might like to see succeed him.

FEELING AROUND City Hall is that City Treasurer-Tax Collector Robert Foy will keep that dual post. Foy, originally appointed by Mayor Walter Hannon, was retained by Mayor Joseph LaRaia. Observers are convinced he will come through the screening committee process with flying colors and be reappointed by Mayor Tobin. He's got to be a darn good man to have all three mayors want him.

INSIDERS say that Robert Tweedy will be replaced as director of the Quincy Council on Aging. Tweedy was a LaRaia appointee. Reportedly several applicants are under consideration. That department will probably be reorganized with another.

FORMER City Councillor Warren Powers is the proud owner of an autographed copy of "The Education of A Congressman" presented to him by its author, Congressman Morris Udall during his visit to Quincy Saturday. Powers and Paul Harold were the only two councillors to support Udall in his Presidential bid in 1976.

THERE WERE REPORTS last year that Rep. Robert Cerasoli was "close" to announcing his candidacy for city council at-large. Just how close he came to it can be seen in the current South Suburban phone directory, which was being put together back then. There's a listing in there for "Cerasoli Councillor At-Large Headquarters, 953 Hancock St."

ED KEOHANE, the Wollaston funeral director, read our list of pet peeves here last week and thinks we missed one. "How about," says he, "the smoker who flicks ashes on rugs?"

Udall Backs U.S. Parks Service Takeover Of Adams Birthplaces

Congressman Morris K. Udall [D-Ariz] says it is possible the U.S. National Parks Service can take over the operation and maintenance of the Adams Birthplaces during the current session of Congress.

Udall toured the Birthplaces on Franklin St. Saturday, escorted by City Councillor Paul D. Harold, chairman of the 10-member study committee that is pushing for the federal takeover.

Udall, who is chairman of the House Interior Committee, said usually it takes two or three years for properties to become part of the National Parks System.

Since there was a consensus of local opinion, he said, he would include the proposal in an omnibus bill currently under consideration and he would work with Massachusetts congressmen for early action.

The Birthplaces of John and John Quincy Adams have been owned by the city of Quincy since 1940 but they are in such poor shape that it is estimated it would take $500,000 to restore them.

A public hearing will be held Monday, Feb. 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chamber to hear citizens opinion. Then a vote of the City Council and the Planning Board would be necessary to transfer city property.

Udall, speaking at a reception at the old Adams Academy building, said he was impressed "by the fierce pride that Quincy has in its heritage."

But, he said, there comes a time when local communities cannot do it by themselves and must look to the federal government for help.

He noted that the Adams Birthplaces, believed to have been built in 1663 and 1681, are of more than local significance and are just as much national resources as the Grand Canyon and the California redwoods.

Councillor Harold told the reception:

"We've been studying the problems of restoration at the Birthplaces for the past 10 months and it has become quite evident that the city will never be able to spend the monies necessary to properly restore and stabilize the structures.

"We have an excellent opportunity to have the Birthplaces picked up by the federal government, ensuring that they will be properly taken care of and at the same time relieving the Quincy taxpayer of the burden of $500,000 for repair work."

The reception was attended by Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, former Mayor James R. McIntyre, members of the City Council and School Committee, the Planning Board, the Historic Districts Commission, the Adams Birthplaces subcommittee and directors of the Quincy Historical Society.

Udall was presented a medallion by William A. O'Connell, president of the Quincy Historical Society, made of copper cast from the copper removed from the First Parish Church during repairs. It bore the likenesses of John and John Quincy Adams.

Brian Alosi of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce reiterated the Chamber's support of the federal takeover and presented Udall with a tie bearing the seagull motif, the Chamber trademark.

Mrs. Margaret O'Connell, chairman of the Quincy Historical Society's House Committee, toured the birthplaces with Udall, pointing out the defects that are in need of repair.

A study made for the city of Quincy in July, 1975, and revised in November, 1975, by Historical Architect David Hart showed at least 15 major repairs needed on the John Quincy Adams Birthplace and 18 on the John Adams Birthplace.

Some of the major deficiencies include:

JOHN QUINCY ADAMS HOUSE

- There are areas where surface water is penetrating through the foundation walls. It was recommended that exteriors be excavated, sealer applied to the foundation and the soil regraded.
- Some walls exhibit a sag and the plaster is crushed, probably due to a stud which has dropped and is temporarily stabilized.
- Plaster cracks have been patched many times but are opening up again, which could indicate some additional settling of the chimney.
- The north chimney post in the Birthroom seems to be moving away from the wall or vice versa, indicating another area of settlement. The Chamber has been closed off due to stress problems with floor.
- There is quite a bit of evidence of insect activity at the ridge of the upper attic. Some rafters on the north side exhibit severe horizontal shear cracks.
- Flue caps should be installed on the chimneys to prevent water leakage that would cause deterioration of the mortar and brick of the fireplaces.

JOHN ADAMS BIRTHPLACE

- A shear crack in the east girt of the Old Kitchen is a potentially serious problem. It is probably caused by the wracking action in part due to the settling of the northeast corner post.
- Surviving frames in the basement show evidence of both dry rot and insect damage.
- The floor in the parlor bulges due to frame shrinkage and the fireplace has a crack in front due to some minimal settlement of the chimney foundation.
- The northeast corner post in the Birthroom is sinking and pulling the "N" plate out of its joint. Continued movement of the plate and post will allow more serious structural problems to develop.
- Some areas around both Birthplaces have soil buildup very close to the wooden exterior surface. The soil tends to hold water against the clapboards and rot them.

Legal Holiday Brochure Available At Chamber

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce announces the availability of its 20th annual "Legal Holidays in Massachusetts" brochure.

Since new legislation is introduced each year to add new holidays and to change their status from Sunday or Monday holiday status, confusion is caused for businesses and residents alike. The brochure distinguishes kinds of holidays and tells when public offices are opened or closed and what can and cannot be done on legal holidays.

The holiday brochure may be obtained by stopping by the Chamber's offices at 36 Miller Stile Rd, or by sending a 10-inch stamped self-addressed envelope to: The South Shore Chamber of Commerce, Box 488, Quincy, MA 02169 able. There has been a lot of work put into that and I think it's developing well. Teachers have become more attuned to it. I think we are beginning to see the fruits of it. Our standard achievement scores are holding and rising. This year they are better than last year. That's an indication that the learning program is improving. I think one of our greatest strengths is the 766 special needs program. In fact, when the state kicked off the 766 program they came to Quincy because it was being run so well. Of course, some people are not completely happy with the particular program outlined for their child but generally speaking this is a very well run program. I feel our career education program is developing well.

Toland: 'We Have To Assess Vo-Tech Programs'

SUN: What is that?

TOLAND: That's a program that places the emphasis on career areas of learning effort. I feel we have to reach kids early. Not that you like to lock them into something that they can't get out of. But there are so many kids who get out of school with no skills at all. I think that even at the seventh or eighth grade levels there ought to be a course called 'career exploration' so that kids at an early age can take general courses in the field they are interested in. The national trend is in career education because there are so many jobs that demand skills that begin in high school. I think that's a program that is developing.

SUN: But that's not a strength right now?

TOLAND: I think it will be. Right now we're not doing all we can. But the effort is a good one. And also we have to make an effort in the area of girls' career education because we have those new laws staring us in the face and we have to make accomodations for girls in any programs they want. We have to make an effort to encourage them into non-stereotype, non-traditional courses. I think guidance people in particular have to come to grips with that problem. I think our reading program is.....I don't think we're weak in reading but I do think we could look at our programs and perhaps consolidate them. We have a lot of reading programs. I'm not sure that all of them are as good as one or two programs. I shouldn't say that. I'm just saying that we could probably consolidate the reading programs in the elementary schools. I think we should have reading as a major subject in junior high and, after we get that going, extend it to high school. The Voc Tech school, I think we have to really take a look around and see what's going on in the world. We have to assess our programs over there and get rid of the things that are not up to date, that haven't much relevance on today's job market and find out what new programs we can bring in that will have much greater impact on the potential for jobs for kids. It's a competitive world out there. Perhaps the kids who are in the regular high schools ought to have more opportunity to take some vocational education courses.

EX-TEACHER PAT TOLAND holds a reading session with son, Brian. Mrs. Toland, the new vice chairman of the school committee, feels that reading, as a specific subject, should be extended to higher grade levels.

SUN: We seem to be getting into the weaknesses now.

TOLAND: I don't know if you'd call them weaknesses. I think two of the biggest deficiencies in the system are not directly related to the children. One of them is the non-evaluation of teachers. We should have an evaluation system for tenured teachers. That is basic to any good business, evaluate the workers. I think there should be more visitation from principals and department heads to help teachers evaluate what they're doing, improve their techniques and tighten up their teaching styles. In the old days there were supervisors who went around and looked in on teachers to point out their flaws and give them suggestions for improvement. That's one thing that doesn't happen as much as it should in the Quincy school system. Another deficiency I feel is the lack of a real comprehensive policy for the school system. We have a book of rules and regulations which have been collected through the years and deletions and additions have been made sporadically. I think we have to review those rules and regulations and undertake a real effort to make a comprehensive policy statement for our school system. That's our job, to make policy and set the school system in the right direction.

SUN: There is a movement that might be called "return to the basics" in education, the basics meaning the three Rs. How do you feel about it?

TOLAND: I think that's on everybody's mind around the country. It certainly is on our minds in Quincy. I know when we

1952 Tax Rate Seen At $52.34

City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. submitted a $12,220,206.41 budget for 1952 to the City Council and, in an unprecedented action, he also told the Council it would mean a $52.34 tax rate, up $5.54.

Deegan, who noted that the budget did not contain general raises for city employees, recommended that the Council declare a moratorium on all but the most necessary capital improvements.

At the same time, the City Manager submitted a $3,631,000 program for capital improvements, including $100,000 for a new fire station in Adams Shore and $130,000 for a Public Works garage.

The budget for 1951 had been $11,954,561.34.

EMASS, FORE RIVER STRIKES LOOM

Labor troubles loomed in the near future for the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. and the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Fore River Shipyard.

Some 1,600 AFL bus drivers, including 223 in the Quincy division, voted to strike Eastern Mass in support of their request for a 30-cent an hour wage hike. The company offered 13 cents an hour.

Local 5 of the Shipbuilders was authorized by the International to take a strike vote at Fore River to back up demands for a 20-cent an hour increase and a union shop. Average wage at the Yard was $1.80 an hour.

Andrew Pettis, national vice president of the International Union of Marine and Ship Workers of America, CIO, told Local 5 that the company had been stalling since the contract expired Dec. 31.

HOSPITAL DIRECTOR RESIGNS

Dr. Ensio K. F. Ronka, who had held the $9,700 post of director of Quincy City Hospital since 1946, was forced to resign by the Board of Managers, which was critical of his administrative procedures.

Ronka said that J. Brooks Keyes, chairman of the Board of Managers, called him on the telephone and asked him to resign or be fired. Dr. Frederick N. Manley was named acting director.

NORTH TAKES THREE

The North Quincy High School basketball team moved closer to a Tech Tourney invitation with victories over Weymouth, 34-31; Attleboro, 65-60; and Brockton, 42-41.

Spiro Coulacos' field goal with two minutes remaining was the key to the Weymouth win; Wally Frye scored 29 points against Attleboro; and Bob Murphy had 15 in the Brockton game. North's record was 13-3.

The Raiders' lineup included: Benson, Mahoney, Coulacos, Breighan, forwards; Frye, center; Murphy, Cambell, Elkhill, Gillis, guards.

Rev. Winston Clark Named Minister At Quincy Point Church

Rev. Winston E. Clark has been named minister of Quincy Point Congregational Church, succeeding Rev. Dr. Frederick M. Meek, who has been serving as interim minister.

Rev. Clark, presently interim minister at Payson Park Church, Belmont, is expected to start his new ministry Feb. 15.

The new minister is a native of Maine. He attended schools in Vassalboro and Augusta. After graduation from Cony High School in 1943 he served three years with the U.S. Army in Europe and Japan.

Following his discharge he entered Colby College in Waterville, Me., and received his bachelor's degree in 1950. He went on to Andover Newton Theological School, Newton Centre, and in 1954 was ordained as a Congregational Christian minister.

He has served rural churches in Maine and Hawaii and suburban churches in Portland and South Portland, Me. In South Portland he was Senior Minister of a three minister staff at First Congregational Church, United Church of Christ.

After leaving South Portland he accepted an Interim position at the First Church in Cambridge. Most recently he has been serving in Belmont.

Rev. Clark has served on numerous boards and committees of the Association and State Conference including being chairman of the General Administration Division and a member of the board of directors. He was an elected member of the executive council of the United Church of Christ for three years.

Mrs. Clark is the former Elizabeth Ann Langella. The couple have two sons, Richard, 15, and Timothy, 20.

The church has purchased a parsonage at 36 Pilgrim Rd, Braintree, for occupancy by the Clark family.

HOME IMPROVEMENT

FOR ABOUT $75 and an afternoon's work, you can have a new vinyl tile floor in an average-size 9 by 12-foot room. One person can do it.

Shut the storm door on the energy crisis

A surprisingly large percentage of a home's heating and cooling energy escapes through its doors. In fact, every time a door is opened it can cost as much as a nickel in lost energy.

There are several measures that can be taken to combat door-related energy loss: install weatherstripping, make sure that doors are hung properly, and see that they close and latch securely.

Even with these steps, though, there's still the problem of that nickel.

A homeowner can save at least part of that nickel, and save some other things besides, with a storm door.

Here's how: when the prime door is opened, the storm door is still closed. As a person opens the storm door, he's closing the prime behind himself. Then, when the storm is open all the way, the prime is shut and the person is outside. But heating and cooling energy isn't.

And there are further advantages. If certain people in the family have a habit of leaving the door open, at least the storm door will close itself!

A storm door can also do a lot to protect the prime door. It will keep moisture and dirt from deteriorating the finish, keep away many of those unaccountable scratches and gouges that "happen" to a door, and, of course, it'll keep out storms.

Storm doors are available in numerous styles and finishes, from colonial crossbuck doors to modern grilled doors to doors with glass sidelites in a variety of colors and textures.

There are even self-storing doors that hold glass and screen panels at the same time, eliminating the need to remove and store screen inserts in winter and glass inserts in summer. Installation is easy, and the price is reasonable.

And consider the return on the investment: if you could save nearly a nickel every time you used something, that something would be worth investing in.

One way to save money — and conserve energy in the process — is to invest in storm doors.

Beware Of Wet Hands

Never turn an appliance on or off, or change fuses, with wet hands or while standing on a wet floor. Use only one hand to touch the fuse box; then you won't be a conductor.

Decorating Corner:

Banishing the 'bland room' blues – wallcovering makes the difference

The bland, look-alike room is the most common decorating problem around. Apartment dwellers face it continually. And so does most anybody who moves into an affordable home.

But there is one easy way to banish those blandness blues: putting the pattern power and color clout of wallcoverings to work.

Remember, the walls constitute the largest area of any room. By far! So it stands to reason that if you treat them right, you'll have done a lot for the entire room.

And if you thought wallcoverings were an apartment no-no, you still haven't discovered those wonderful strippable products. They peel right off the wall, when it's time to move or redecorate. No messy scraping, sanding or steaming will be necessary. So the landlord won't object to your treating yourself to fashion walls.

Personality

Here, from the Wallcovering Industry Bureau, are some ideas for giving your place some instant personality.

- If you want a country mood (a nice antidote to steel and concrete living), swathe your place in pretty ginghams, calico or stencil designs. Add some fool-the-eye antique beams or Tudor-style framework, and it's easy to picture yourself back home on the farm.
- Plaids are always great in casual rooms. Pick peppy ones reminiscent of the Scottish tartans, or sophisticated, bold ones in strong primary colors if contemporary is your style.
- Today's many geometrics also go well with contemporary.
- Pick the sheen of Mylar if you want your room to look impressively larger than it really is. Mylar's silver look is also very dramatic.
- The velvety luxury of a flocked wallcovering, damasks and silk-like designs are for you, if you like formal and traditional surroundings.
- Florals are always cheerful and super. You can make your walls bloom with anything from tulips and daffodils to roses and orchids.
- If you don't want a lot of pattern, but love textures, there's a great wallcovering for you, too. The possibilities include grass cloths, linens, burlaps, cork, basket weaves and stucco.
- And if your travel budget leaves a lot to be desired, treat yourself to a mural. It'll give you an armchair view of most any locale around the globe.

Slash fuel bills with insulated siding

Homeowners in old, uninsulated homes can cut their heating fuel use by as much as 20 per cent through proper installation of insulated aluminum siding, according to a study by the Aluminum Association.

The study, according to Paul Mara, technical director of the Association, is based on standard engineering calculations for an average-size uninsulated home of 1700 square feet of exterior wall area (excluding windows and doors).

Typical estimated dollar savings per year for this average home heated with fuel oil at 46¢ a gallon are: Boston, Ma.—$125, Stamford, Ct.—$120, Philadelphia, Pa.—$100, Richmond, Va.—$85, Cleveland, Oh.—$140, Chicago, Il.—$150, Detroit, Mi.—$140, Denver, Co.—$140, Portland, Or.—$100, San Francisco, Ca.—$70, Atlanta, Ga.—$70.

Savings in a home heated with electricity will be greatest, and a home heated with gas the lowest, Mara says.

Over the past 30 years, aluminum siding has been purchased chiefly to improve the appearance of a home and eliminate periodic repainting costs.

Now, with fuel costs more than doubled in recent years, reduced heating bills can save the homeowner almost as much as reduced home maintenance.

Mara cautions that all siding materials, including stone and brick, have minimal insulating value. Aluminum siding has increased insulating value when installed with special backing materials such as polystyrene and reflective aluminum foil.

The combination of aluminum siding, aluminum foil, and polystyrene backer has an insulating value of R-2.5, equivalent to 12 inches of brick or concrete.

Installers can eliminate additional air leaks by caulking around window and door openings before installing the window and door trim and the siding.

"If you're re-siding your home, and it's uninsulated," advises Mara, "the additional cost that polystyrene backerboard and aluminum foil would add to a typical aluminum siding application can pay for itself in reduced energy costs just about anywhere in the United States.

"Since most homes are uninsulated, you could almost say insulated aluminum siding should be used whenever a home is being re-sided."

Probable fuel cost savings resulting from the installation of siding can be estimated reasonably accurately. However, actual dollar savings will vary with heating system efficiency, type of construction, local climatic conditions, solar exposure, and other factors, so it is impossible for a contractor or manufacturer to actually guarantee specific savings.

Fire hazards: bad news!

Are there many fire hazards in your house? "Nearly every house is beset by at least some of the many conditions that cause fire," says the head of the National Fire Protection Association, "although families seldom take time to think about this."

Topping the list of major causes of home fires, according to studies made by NFPA, is carelessness in the use and disposal of smoking materials.

Adults are the major offenders — including those who persist in smoking in bed — but children, too, are responsible for starting tens of thousands of dwelling fires each year by playing with cigarettes, matches and lighters.

Other major home fire hazards include those involving electricity — defective wiring, wrong size fuses, worn appliance and extension cords, and electric cords run under rugs.

Rubbish that piles up in the attic, basement, closets, garage and yard can be treacherous. So can paint and flammable liquids, used and stored improperly; chimneys and flues that are dirty and defective; heating and cooking equipment which needs cleaning and repair; and open flames and sparks.

SHORT SUBJECT

When you disconnect a cord from a wall outlet, don't pull the cord — pull the plug. Pulling the cord can break the wire connection, which can eventually cause a short.

The effective way to insulate your home

Insulation effectiveness is measured in its resistance to heat flow . . . either moving out of the house in winter or flowing in, during the summer.

Celsius foam insulation has a high "R" rating which creates an efficient thermal barrier in ceilings, attics and walls. Celsius foam is pumped into walls cavities and flows around pipes, electrical outlets and other protrusions. It effectively seals against heat loss and drafts by completely filling the spaces without settling.

With Celsius foam you save on heating/cooling costs all year round and you get a return on your investment every time you receive your utility bill. You'll enjoy extra living comfort too!

Call us today for more information on our homeowner's warranty and a free estimate. You need to insulate your home only once. Do it right. Call us today!

Toland: 'We Have A Responsibility To Keep Tax Rate Down'

talk about it our superintendent says we never got away from basics and if we did it was certainly not the intention of the school system. However, I do feel that there has to be a real effort made toward ensuring that children are well grounded in the basics before they leave the sixth grade so that when they get into junior high and high school they can benefit from the courses there.

SUN: Do you feel they're well-grounded in Quincy now?

TOLAND: I think they are becoming moreso than they were a few years ago.

SUN: How good were they a few years ago?

TOLAND: Our test scores have been going up in the last couple of years. This year they are slightly above the national norm. I would like to do much better than that. On the 10th grade level we seem to have a little problem. We give tests at the eighth grade, they're okay. Something happens between then and the 10th grade. Maybe more basic education, more basic subjects, should be continued into junior high school. For instance, reading. We have very little of it on the junior high school level. I'm talking about reading per se as a subject. I don't think reading stops at the sixth grade. The administration is taking a good look again at the eighth and ninth grade levels and see what it is that we have to improve upon. Also we haven't really had a standard by which to make assessments on where are children are. I'm going to propose that the school committee set as one of its goals development of a "grade expectations" program.

SUN: What is that?

TOLAND: "Grade Expectations" simply means what we can reasonably expect a child to learn at a certain grade level. The community, the parents want to know what is expected of a child in each grade. I think we should establish some kind of norms for every grade; what we can reasonably expect to be taught and learned by a child at every level.

SUN: Are there too many frills in school programs?

TOLAND: You mean plays? Musicals? Field trips?

SUN: That's it. Things like that.

TOLAND: I feel that things like field trips, if they are used properly, are important parts of the learning program. Sometimes it's a learning experience to help children understand a certain aspect of whatever they're studying. Musical programs, plays are enriching the children. We cannot take a significant amount of school time away from learning to put on a plethora of entertaining kinds of things but I certainly think that, in their place and in moderation, they have a part in the program.

SUN: People are concerned over property taxes. A lot of that money goes to the schools. Do you think it's time to start cutting back on some school programs?

TOLAND: I think it's time to consider any new program very carefully in the light of its financial implications. But it would be very hard to cut back on learning programs that we already have. We have to take care of the plant. There is so much money there in salaries. Every new program that we add has something to do with the learning process. But I would basically say that it's not time to add any new programs that will be costly, that they would have to be very carefuly evaluated and, if they are not entirely necessary, I think we have a responsibility to keep the tax rate down. But I don't think the city of Quincy wants to cut back on what we have considered essential to the learning process. We provide a fairly good basic education I don't think we have any programs that could be considered frills.

SUN: There has been some talk of closing some schools because of low enrollment. Yet there is a lot of neighborhood pressure to keep them open. How do you feel about that?

TOLAND: That's probably the hardest decision the school committee will have to make. We have to remember that we are representing the entire city, not some special interest groups. We have to think of what's best for the children at a reasonable cost to the taxpayers. We have not yet received the report of the task force that has been doing a special school needs survey.

SUN: That's overdue, isn't it?

TOLAND: Yes, it is. We will be getting it soon. We will have to look at it very carefully and share it with the public, whether it's going to be expensive to keep these schools open and if they want to foot the bill for it. Some people say the cost of busing the kids to other schools will outweigh the advantages of any savings. That may be. It is a fact that the children don't get the same services in a small school. But there is a lot to be said for the neighborhood school concept. Some people feel that they don't want their children to leave the neighborhood and I understand that with small children. I think we'll have to work it through together. I certainly want the community to be involved, to know the facts and then help to make the decision.

SUN: One of the new members of the school committee, Joan Picard, has come out against fiscal autonomy. How do you feel about that?

TOLAND: I've always been recorded in favor of fiscal autonomy. Traditionally it has been the school committee's decision on how much money should be spent on education. The people who are elected to the school committee have only the welfare of the school system to think about and are in a position to judge what is necessary for education. To have another elected body like the city council able to cut back on the school committee's autonomy doesn't make sense to me.

SUN: Do you feel, as does Mary Collins, that the school budget is going to get a more thorough scrutiny this time than ever before?

TOLAND: Yes, I do.

SUN: Why?

TOLAND: I think it has always been scrutinized fairly carefully but it's obvious that our new members want to go over it with a fine tooth comb. I'm very willing to join in that careful scrutiny. But costs have gone up so much in every area -- materials, plant maintenance, the fuel bill, the electric bill, plus, of course, raises for personnel -- that it's going to be a challenge to see where we can trim it to keep the expenditure at a reasonable amount.

SUN: It has been charged that the school committee in the past has been a rubber stamp for the school administration, that too many of the administration's proposals pass with little or no discussion. How do you respond to that?

TOLAND: I feel that's an unfair statement. Whether there is lengthy discussion or not at the meetings, I won't dispute that. The reason is that we usually have a very heavy agenda. When I get my agenda I usually call the superintendent with any questions. So I have a fairly good understanding of a particular item when I go to the meeting. Very often, too, the superintendent's recommendation reflects the feeling of the school committee that he has gotten in private conversation.

SUN: It sounds like a lot of the school committee's work is done in a smoke-filled back room.

TOLAND: No, it is simply.....

SUN: But if the work is done in a private telephone conversation and everyone says "yes," then much of what goes into a decision is not made public, is it?

TOLAND: Usually I am calling, not to reach a decision, but to enlarge my own understanding. Then when we get to the meeting I will raise any important points so that Dr. Creedon and the other members can discuss it in public. I don't feel it's being a rubber stamp. When you look back over the votes of the past year you'll find that sometimes the recommendation of the superintendent was upheld and other times it was not. The superintendent is our man in the system. He is supposed to make the best judgments he can. We are supposed to have faith in the superintendent. His job is to bring his expertise as an administrator to the problem and inform the school committee what is the best thing to do. Hopefully, we are going to agree with him more times than not.

SUN: You have proposed that the vice chairman join with the superintendent in making up the school committee agenda. Why?

TOLAND: Because I think the responsibility should be shared. Sometimes we have a crowded agenda and we have to set priorities on the matters that have to be taken up right away. I think that this also addresses itself to some community attitudes that the school committee reacts only to the superintendent's agenda. If the school committee has an active role in preparing the agenda then the members will be involved in setting priorities along with the superintendent.

SUN: Is that a criticism of the way the superintendent has been making up the agenda?

TOLAND: No. It is traditional in other cities and towns that the vice chairman or the chairman of the school committee prepare the agenda with the superintendent and to me it makes sense. It is a school committee agenda. It is the only time we get together. The business of running the school system is the superintendent's priority. There are other matters that concern the school committee and they certainly should be given priority, too.

SUN: There are now more women on the school committee than ever before. Do you think that's good, bad or doesn't it make any difference?

TOLAND: I feel it's good that these particular women have come on the school committee because they are very enthusiastic. The fact that they're women doesn't make them any more important than if they were men. What we are interested in is people who are interested in the school system. However, I do think that it's a good sign to see women becoming interested in volunteering in this capacity. Mothers of children in school are very close to the school system on a day-to-day basis and they know what's going on in a local school. They do have more time. But being a woman doesn't necessarily make you a better school committee person.

SUN: Is the school committee the height of your ambition in public life?

TOLAND: Right now it is. It's an all encompassing job. I spend a great deal of time at it. I don't dismiss the possibility that my interest someday will lie in another direction. People's interests change and broaden as they grow older.

SUN: Can you see yourself as Mayor Toland someday?

TOLAND: I don't know. Four years ago I didn't see myself as Vice Chairman Toland. I'm interested in education. That was my profession. I was a teacher for 11 years. So my very great interest is the school committee. There are so many other potential candidates for higher office that I don't think I would get into that fray, certainly not now.

administrators, for bearing up under the condition they have to live with. It's no way to receive an education."

The original schedule for the project called for Blount Brothers of Braintree, the prime contractor, to have the addition completed by June 2, 1978, so that it could be occupied the following September.

Then, according to the plan, students would attend double sessions for a year in the addition while the old building is renovated, a total of two years of morning and afternoon sessions.

But Supt. Creedon has figured that work on both the addition and the renovation might not be finished until January, 1980, "which will mean two more years of double sessions and if there is a further foulup then we could go into a third year."

Robert Gigilo Completes AF Course With Honors

Airman Robert S. Giglio, son of Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Giglio of 17 Edwards St., Quincy Point, has graduated with honors at Chanute AFB, Ill., from the U.S. Air Force technical training course for aircraft maintenance specialists.

Airman Giglio, now trained to maintain, repair and service aircraft currently in use by the Air Force, is being assigned to Pease AFB, N.H., for duty with a unit of the Strategic Air Command.

Completion of the course earned the individual credits towards an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Drinking Water To Be Fluoridated Feb. 7

is by way of the Dorchester Tunnel, which enters Quincy through Milton Lower Mills.

Quincy has been part of the MDC water system since 1898 when the City Council voted to enter the old Metropolitan Water Commission. The MDC is required by law to service cities and towns within 15 miles of the State House in Boston. Not all have joined.

Before the MDC, according to Owen J. Eaton, Quincy's water superintendent, the city was served by a private company, formed in 1883 and taken over by the city in 1892. The source of drinking water then was the Quincy Reservoir, also known as Braintree Dam.

If you stop by the Water Department some day Eaton will show you a card ordering the first hookup of continuous running water in Quincy at 26 Adams St., then the Howland House, now the Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home. It's dated Nov. 23, 1883.

"There are still some of the 1883 water mains in operation under Hancock, Franklin and School Sts.," said Eaton. "We hope to be able to replace them soon under a $1 million bond issue that was passed last year."

The first annual report of the Quincy Water Department [June 1, 1892 to Jan. 1, 1893] shows the city had 35 miles of main pipe, 121 hydrants and 1,456 service pipes, which means 1,456 customers. The average water use was 600,000 gallons a month.

Now there are 238 miles of mains, 2,555 hydrants and 20,869 customers using 10.5 million gallons a day, an average of 115 gallons per day per person. General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard, which still takes some of its water from Braintree Dam, uses 1.5 million gallons a day.

Right now, Quincy is the end of the MDC water line on the South Shore but such eligible towns as Stoughton and Avon have been asking in. For that purpose, Chickatawbut Reservoir in West Quincy was drained and cleaned to be used as a holding reservoir for the south.

Unfortunately, a leak was discovered in the 10-foot water tunnel between Morton St. and Milton Lower Mills and plans for expansion have been held in abeyance until repairs are made. Target date for repairs is 1979.

Although Quabbin Reservoir has a capacity of 412 billion gallons and the MDC uses only 3.9 billion annually, it may not be enough to serve an expanded water system, particularly in the years of draught that last occurred about 10 years ago.

If environmental and other obstacles can be cleared away, the MDC is planning to divert some water from the Connecticut River into the Quabbin to build up its reserves. The so-called Northfield Diversion has been in the planning stage for 12 years.

Water is probably the best buy in Quincy. It costs consumers 60 cents per 100 cubic feet or 750 gallons, having gone up from 40 cents in 1974. It's 89 cents in Braintree, $1.07 in Hull, which is served by a private company.

"We're a self-sustaining city department," says Eaton, who has worked for the city for 24 years, the last six as water superintendent. "We're not on the tax rate and we are in a position to retire our own bond issues."

Right now the Water Department is in the process of replacing old meters with new ones that can be read from outside the house simply by plugging a device called a "mini-reader" into a socket. To date some 11,000 have been installed, increasing the department's revenue.

"The older a meter gets the less it registers," says Eaton.

Eaton predicts that within the next 20 years, the water meter will be read over the telephone, rendering the meter reader obsolete, and without disturbing the homeowners either.

"There is a $3.50 transponder that can be wired through the phone into the water meter," he says. "You simply dial the number and read the water, gas or electric meter. The phone doesn't ring so it can be done at any time of the day.

"It's not economically feasible right now but it will be in the next 20 years."

It's Quincy And National YMCA Week

The Quincy YMCA has joined other facilities throughout the United States and Canada this week in observing National YMCA Week.

The period has been set aside to bring public recognition to the Young Men's Christian Association and to pay tribute to its services to youth and adults throughout the world. Since its inception in England in 1844, the YMCA is an established movement in 87 countries.

The YMCA, in policy and practice, supports all activities which help men, women, boys and girls realize their full potential as persons.

The Quincy YMCA is dedicated to serving the needs of our South Shore Community. 1978 marks the 86th year of service and the 'Y' prides itself in maintaining high standards of quality in instruction, programming, staff and facilities.

Today, the Quincy YMCA is truly a Family YMCA, serving over 5,000 members in aquatics, health and physical conditioning programs, young tots, variety of special interest programs, and a full range of youth programs.

Transactional Analysis Course At South-West Center

A course in Transactional Analysis, led by Howard Garval of the Family Service Association of Greater Boston, will start Monday, Feb. 6, at 7:30 p.m. at the South-West Community Center, 372 Granite St.

Transactional Analysis, popularized in such books at "Games People Play," and "I'm OK, You're OK," is a personality theory that provides an easy language to help people understand themselves and others.

Fees for the four week course are on a sliding scale. Registration may be made by calling Norma Barriere at the Center, 471-0796.

Sterling Parents Discuss Suggested Improvements

"How Can We Make Sterling Junior High a Better School for Our Students?" was the question the Sterling Parents' Home and School Groups worked with at their meeting last month.

The ten suggestions the parents came up with will be the focus of this month's meetings at the school on Thursday, Feb. 2, at 7:30 p.m. for Group I, and at 9:30 a.m. for Group II. At this meeting the parents will also work with the principal to establish a Title I Parents' Advisory Board.

Any parent who has a child attending Sterling is urged to attend either one of these meetings.

CURTAIN CALL THEATRE players Bob Carnes, Braintree, Karen Kennedy, Hull, Edye Burke, Braintree, and Larry LeCours, Quincy, got together to read over their lines for the forthcoming production of Neil Simon's comedy "Prisoner of Second Avenue". The play will be presented March 3 and 4 at the Braintree Central Junior High School. Tickets may be obtained by calling 925-3639.

Heart Fund Theatre Party March 7

The ninth Annual Theatre Party to benefit the Heart Fund will be held Tuesday, March 7, at 7:30 p.m. at the Strand Theatre, Chestnut St., Quincy Sq., announces Richard J. Koch, special events chairman of the Heart Fund Drive in Quincy.

The event is named "The John J. Daniels Memorial Night" in memory of the late Mr. Daniels who served as co-chairman with Mr. Koch in the first five years of the fund raising activity.

A feature motion picture will be shown as the main attraction with the title to be announced at a later date. Door prizes will be awarded for those in attendance.

Koch is chairman of the event while Mrs. Rita Daniels and Mayor Arthur H. Tobin are honorary chairmen.

The following members have served on the Theatre Party committee for the past eight years. However, additional members are needed and invited to volunteer.

John J. McGue, Hancock Bank, North Quincy branch is committee treasurer.

Committee members are:Mrs. Agatha Deschenes, Carmen Leone, Miss Gemma Fertile, Dave Donaghue, Andrew Walsh, George Lamb, Frank McLaughlin, Joseph Brophy, Miss Helen McGachie, Miss Violet Cellucci, Frank Glynn, George Page, Robert Page, Richard Morrissey, Sr., Joseph Lydon, Theodore DeCristofaro, John Daniels, Jr., Mrs. Claire Barry, Miss Nancy Kelly, Frank Osborne, Tim Tobin, Miss Helen Duffy, Mrs. Clara Yeomans, Thomas Morrissey, Mrs. Linda Bowes, Patrick Sullivan, Richard Koch, Jr., John J. Lydon, Jr., Charles L. Alongi, Jr., and Daniel Barry.

The event originated in 1970 with $921 raised and increased to $2,000 being presented to the Heart Association for the past two years. The eight year total is $11,185 presented to the Southeast Chapter of the American Heart Association for research.

Children's Hour Touring Players To Present 'Rumpelstiltskin'

Rumpelstiltskin, a fairy tale for all times, will be presented by the Children's Hour Touring Players at Atlantic Junior High School at 11:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 11, and at the same times Saturday, Feb. 18 at Sterling Junior High School.

The Quincy Education Association has made arrangements for the performances and flyers have seen sent to parents of students at the schools.

Over the past dozen years The Children's Hour, a professional company of adult actors, specializing in children's classics, have presented over 1,000 performances for the youngsters of New England. Last year they performed Hansel and Gretel under the sponsorship of the Quincy Education Association.

All profits from the performances will be returned to the individual PTOs in the city. This practice was inaugurated by the QEA last year and more than $700 was distributed to the PTOs.

Virginia Leguia In Flute Recital At ENC

Mrs. Virginia Leguia will perform a faculty recital on the baroque flute and the flute Wednesday, Feb. 8, at 8:30 p.m. in the Mann Student Center Auditorium at Eastern Nazarene College.

Her repertoire will include early through contemporary songs and dances and she will be accompanied by Neil Anderson on the guitar.

Admission is free to the public.

FOUR SETS OF Candlepin bowling balls and carrying bags to be awarded in Lucky Total Contest at Olindy's Lanes, Quincy Ave., are examined by co-owner John Mezzitti [left] and Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth. Bowlers can win by guessing or matching Bosworth's 3-string total each week during February. Proceeds will go to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

At Olindy's Lanes

You Can Win A Set Of Bowling Balls And Fight Muscular Dystrophy

Bowlers can help fight muscular dystrophy and win a set of new bowling balls at Olindy's Bowling Lanes, 170 Quincy Ave., during February.

To win, all they have to do is guess the three-string totals rolled by Henry Bosworth, publisher of The Quincy Sun, or to match his scores.

Each Sunday in February, Bosworth will bowl three strings.

Those who donate 50 cents to the Muscular Dystrophy Association will have a chance to guess or match his three string pinfall and the person who comes closest will win four candlepin bowling balls and a bag to carry them in.

Four sets of balls and four carrying cases will be awarded, a set each week. The sets are valued at $50 each.

Each Monday, a drum containing the guesses will be opened by John Mezzetti, co-owner, manager of Olindy's and the weekly winner declared. In case of ties, the winner will be drawn.

Then, all of the guesses, except that of the winner, will be put back into the drum for the following week's contest. Thus, each entry is good for all four weeks. You may enter as many times as you want.

Bosworth, who will bowl for the first time Sunday, Feb. 5, gives contestants fair warning. He says he's an erratic bowler with a three string average "of 290 -- give or take 50 pins."

Mezzetti said the winners who do not want the candlepin set of balls and bag can substitute a pool cue of equivalent value.

The prizes are being donated by Olindy's and Paramount, Inc., manufacturer of the balls.

The contest is being sponsored by the Quincy-South Telethon Committee of which Bosworth and Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Quincy Park-Recreation Board are co-chairmen.

The Quincy Sun was the headquarters for the first Quincy-South Shore area Jerry Lewis Telethon Pledge Center last Labor Day weekend and will be again this year.

The committee and the pledge center raised $63,638 in the Quincy area for the battle against muscular dystrophy.

Entry forms are available at Olindy's, or participants may enter the contest by filling out the coupon here and mailing it or bringing it to Olindy's Bowling Lanes. Please enclose 50 cents.

O'LINDY'S
LUCKY TOTAL CONTEST

You can win a set of four Paramount balls and bag if your three string total comes closes to or matches the total bowled by Quincy Sun Publisher, Henry Bosworth.

Mail or bring to O'Lindy's Bowling Lanes, 170 Quincy Ave., Quincy, Mass. 02169. Enclose 50¢ donation.

36 Points For Barefoot

ENC Takes 2nd Spot In Tourney

The Eastern Nazarene College basketball team, bouncing back after a heartbreaking loss in the opening round, finished second in the 10th annual Nazarene College Tournament at Olatha, Kansas.

In their final tourney game Saturday the Crusaders, now 8-5 on the season, defeated Mid-America, coached by former ENC coach Jim Smith, 100-79.

Mike Barefoot, 6-3 senior captain, led all scorers with 36 points. Barefoot scored 71 points in his three tourney games and was named to the all-star team. Jerry Perera, who had 41 points in the tournament, also made the star team. Jim Bryan had 14 points and 12 rebounds and Peter Riberio 14 points and nine rebounds in Saturday's game.

The night before ENC had defeated Mt. Vernon, 98-88, as Barefoot scored 22 points, Perera 16, Rich Searce 11 and Bob Dacey of Quincy 10.

The Crusaders had dropped an 85-84 squeaker to Northwest Nazarene in their opener after leading, 51-46, at the half.

Perera had 16 points, Riberio 15, Barefoot 14 and Bryant 13.

Prior to the tournament ENC had been defeated by New Hampshire College, 78-73, for its fourth loss of the season.

Barefoot led the way with 22 points and Pefera had 21 points and six rebounds.

Ron Bradley's Crusaders will host Southeastern Mass. tonight [Thursday] at 8 and Saturday will play at Gordon College at 8. They will be at Curry Tuesday at 7:30.

North Wrestlers Win 3rd

Steve Joyce's North Quincy wrestling team captured its third win of the season last week with a 45-23 decision over Weymouth South.

Ed Beck won by forfeit in the 114-pound class, Steve Sweet won by a pin at 121, Butch Montoya won by pin at 128, Dave Howley took a 7-2 decision at 134, Frank Costa won by forfeit at 140 as did Wayne Smith at 147, Ed Evanson won by pin at 159 and John Gorczyca won by pin at 187.

The Raiders earlier had lost to Newton North, 43-23. Liam Cataldo won by forfeit at 100, Beck took a 9-3 decision at 114, Butch Montoya pinned his opponent at 134, Rich Laskowski went to a draw at 157 and Evanson won by a pin at 169.

The win over Weymouth made North's record 3-9. The Raiders, who have had to forfeit at least one bout all year due to a lack of a participant at that weight, have had to forfeit two and three bouts in recent weeks due to an injury and illness.

North will be at Cohasset Friday at 7 and will be at Hingham Tuesday at 7.

Cullen Scores 11 Points In Babson Win

Following two road losses early in the week, the Babson College basketball team returned home to breeze past Norwich, 100-61, last Saturday.

Quincy's Mike Cullen had 11 points in the win.

In a 59-55 loss to Rhode Island College, Cullen had 12 points and in an 84-75 defeat at the hands of Bryant, North Quincy's Jay Nelson had 10 points.

North Trackmen In First Win Over Weymouth S.

North Quincy's track team improved its record to 6-3 last week and in the process accomplished a first -- a win over Weymouth South.

The Raiders, who hadn't beaten the Wildcats in winter track since joining the Suburban League four years age, finally did it, 44-41.

Raider winners were Russ Chisholm in the dash, John Saville in the mile, Mike Barrett in the two-mile, Bob Biagini in the hurdles, Bob Ferrara in the high jump and Mike Gallagher in the shot put.

Saville remained undefeated in the league and Gallagher set a new school record in the shot with his toss of 54-2½. This broke the senior co-captain's old mark of 54-0¾ set earlier in the season.

North will face Quincy today (Thursday) at 5:30 at Newton North and will compete in the all-league meet next Tuesday, also at 5:30.

North Girls Gym Team Drops Decision To Brockton

The young North Quincy girls' gymnastics team, following two wins in a row, dropped a 74.3 to 68.3 decision to Brockton last week to even its record at 2-2.

Earlier the Raiderettes, coached by Margaret Ryan, had compiled their highest score ever in defeating Weymouth North, 73.2 to 71.7.

Susan Cooper and Jane Fitzpatrick placed second and third on bars with scores of 6.7 and 5.5 respectively. Nancy Pasquarello was second in vaulting with a 6.6 and in all-around scoring Debbie Alessi led with 24.4 points.

North then defeated Waltham, 69 to 65.55, with Miss Alessi continuing to show good form in vaulting and floor exercises. Jean Grasselli continued to improve in floor exercise with a 6.4 and two sophomores, Sheila Beck and Melissa Glynn kept up their fine work on the bars. Miss Cooper scored 6.15 on the bars. Coach Ryan praised Maureen McKay for her continued excellent work on the beam.

The Raiderettes will be home to Weymouth South Friday at 7 o'clock at Quincy Armory.

Cheney Scores 15 For Xaverian

Quincy's John Cheney, the team's captain, continues to shine for the Xaverian High School basketball team.

Cheney led the scoring with 15 points and also had nine rebounds in a 56-52 loss to St. John's Prep. The Hawks ended their first half of the season with a .500 mark.

MIT, Suffolk, Tufts On Schedule

QJC Hockey Now In The Big Time

By TOM SULLIVAN

The hockey program at Quincy Junior College has undergone tremendous growth.

Four years ago the Jaguars had only nine games and this winter they are playing their longest and hardest schedule with 20 games against the likes of four-year colleges, MIT, Suffolk, Tufts and the Babson Jayvees and such other powers as Massasoit, Mass. Bay, Bunker Hill and Cape Cod Community Colleges, and Rhode Island Junior College.

Despite a large number of injuries and only two hours of practice a week, Coach Ken Hayes' team has been playing fine hockey and going into this week's games had an 8-5 record.

Hayes, a former North Quincy High standout, has seven returnees from last year's team, Dick Wilson, outstanding goalie from North Quincy; defenseman Gerry DeLuca of Quincy; center Brad Harland of North Quincy; Bill Shea, defenseman from New Prep.; Sean Canniff, wing from Revere; Wally Fieldhouse, center from Milton, and Bob Cross, wing from Hyde Park.

Newcomers this year are John Reardon, center from North Quincy; Kevin Pitts, center from Quincy; Tony Parziale, goalie from Braintree; Ed Nolan, defenseman from Dorchester; Tom Rines, defenseman from Roslindale; Dave Burke, wing from B.C. High; Jim Kinnenburg, wing from Braintree; John Chiavoli, defenseman from B.C. High; Glenn Gray, wing from Braintree; Mike Massarini, wing from East Boston, and Rich Juciano, wing from Braintree.

Hayes has been using a first line of Burke, Fieldhouse and Canniff, a second line of Cross, Gray and either Reardon or Harland, and a third line of Kinnenburg, Pitts or Mazzarini and Juciano.

Shea and Nolan make up the first defense pair and Rines, DeLuca and Chiavori have alternated on second defense.

"Wilson continues to be outstanding in goal and Parziale, who played for Braintree two years ago in the state schoolboy finals, also has done well," Hayes said.

"We have had more than our share of injuries and Nolan, Chiavori, DeLuca and Reardon have all been sidelined and we have had many other bumps and bruises.

"This has hurt us because it has meant juggling the whole team around. We have the numbers but don't have quality depth. Also, practicing only two hours a week means squeezing a lot out of our players. But they have risen to the occasion."

Cross and Gray have been the penalty killers and are working well together. Since moving from defense to forward, Canniff is one of the best scorers and is one of the team's fastest and most aggressive players. Although only 5-4, he is full of dynamite.

Fieldhouse, a scoring leader last year, is again setting the pace with 2.5 goals a game and Shea is proving again he is the Brad Park of the team, a good all-around defenseman, shining both on offense and defense. He is going to Salem State next year.

Last Saturday QJC edged Bunker Hill, 2-0, with Parziale earning the shutout.

Shea put the Jaguars ahead in the opening period and Reardon added the insurance goal in the final period. Parziale had 23 saves.

In their previous game the Jaguars had defeated Stonehill, 5-3, with Fieldhouse having two goals and goalie Wilson having a superlative night with 44 saves.

Fieldhouse scored in the first and third periods and Burke, Reardon and Canniff had the other goals.

Earlier, playing with only 11 players, QJC had defeated Rhode Island J.C., for the first time, 7-4, rallying for four goals in the last period.

Saturday QJC will be home to Tufts at 8:30 at the Quincy Youth Arena and Tuesday will host Suffolk Tuesday at the same time and place.

Newton N. Ties Quincy, 3-3

Quincy's hockey team improved its chances of making the state tournament but hurt its chances of copping the Suburban League title Saturday when Newton North scored in the final 17 seconds of play to tie the Presidents, 3-3.

The tie made Quincy's league record 6-3-1. A tie counts as a win in qualifying for the tournament but not for taking the league crown.

It was tough for Quincy and Coach Bob Sylvia to take because on the tying goal the officials didn't notice three Newton players in the Quincy crease without the puck.

Earlier Quincy had tough call against it when goalie Jim Deitsch was called for delay of the game for intentionally dislodging the net.

Tom Cahill had another big night for the Presidents as he scored the final goal and assisted on the earlier goals by Brian Bertoni and Scott Richardson. Bertoni and Mark Giordani also were praised by Sylvia.

Quincy outshot Newton, 44-21, but was constantly foiled by the outstanding work of goalie Felix LiDonni.

Earlier in the week Quincy lost a non-league decision to Catholic Memorial, 4-2.

The Presidents will host Weymouth North Saturday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena. Wednesday they will play at Cambridge at 4:15.

North Bows To Weymouth S.

North Quincy's undermanned hockey team continues to find the going rough in the Suburban League and last Saturday dropped a 4-2 decision to Weymouth South to drop its league record to 2-8-1. The overall record is 4-8-1.

North took an early lead on Jim Moore's goal but Weymouth came back to take a 3-1 lead. North's other goal late in the second period was scored by Pat Ennis.

Earlier in the week North bowed to Brockton, 6-1, as the Boxers shot out to a 4-0 lead in the opening period. The lone North goal was scored by Mike Pitts.

The Raiders are idle Saturday and next Wednesday will be home to Newton North at 6:40 at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Koch Club Termites First Half Winners

First half winners in the Koch Club Termites Bowling League are Karen Koski, Carolyn O'Reilly, Carol Jones and Kathy O'Leary.

Joanne Cormack's team has high team three and Debbie Mosher's team has high team single. Susan Cohane rolled the high three of 313 and Cormack the high single of 116.

The Top Ten: Cormack, 91.3; Christine Ridge, 87.9; Brenda Naughton, 87.6; Cohane, 86.2; Mosher, 85.8; Beth Cooper, 85.6; Susan Rathgeb, 82.0; Ann Duggan, 82.0; Kathy Koski, 80.3, and Lynda Feeney, 80.1.

The Koch Club Termites bowl Tuesday afternoons at 1 at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome.

Central 1 Win Away From Championship

By WALTER McCARTHY

Mike Casali's Central Junior High varsity basketball team has virtually clinched the city championship.

The unbeaten Central team [9-0] needs only one win in its last three games to clinch the crown.

In its latest outing Central defeated Broad Meadows, 38-27 as Mark Millane scored 14 points, despite sitting out most of the final period as Casali substituted freely. Bob Bolster had 12 points and Jackie Brown had eight. For BM Mike Mattson scored 15 points. John Cascarano and Dave Grindle had four each.

As the sun streaked into Atlantic's gym at 7:30 in the morning, Quincy Point held its hold on second place with a 48-38 win over North. Steve Priscella popped in 26 points, leading all scorers. Gary DiNardo had 15. Six of Priscella's points came from the foul line. For North Vic O'Leary was high with 22 points, while Willy Dudley had nine. Peter McDonough had four and Paul Gill three.

Later in the week North came back to defeat Broad Meadows, 40-30, for its fourth win. Dudley was praised by Coach Rick DeCristofaro for his defensive play. O'Leary had 17 points and McDonough and Charlie Cahill had six points each. BM was led by Mattson with 13 points. Grindle had seven.

In junior varsity action Broad Meadows and Central battled down to the wire with BM pulling out a 34-33 win.

The game was filled with drama as Central led, 33-32, with 30 seconds to play. It tried to freeze the ball but an alert Dan Dunn stole the ball for BM and scored the winning basket with three seconds left.

Jeff Morrison paced BM with 14 points and Paul Novin had nine. Steve Spencer had five points for Coach Peter Swanson's team. For Central Brian Reale had 10 points and Paul Mallory scored six.

Atlantic kept its hold on first place by topping Point, 38-24. Paul Murphy was high with 14 points. Teddy Woods, Mike Ellis and Pat King had four points each. Steve Goguen was high for Point with seven points and Keith McNulty had five. Dave Donnelly and Steve Walsh had four points each.

Women's Candlepin Tourney Feb. 19

The 23rd annual South Shore Women's Candlepin Bowling Tournament sponsored by the Koch Club of Quincy will open Sunday, Feb. 19, at noon, at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome, Quincy Shore Drive, Wollaston.

Amateur women's candlepin bowling leagues are invited and welcome to participate.

Applications are now available and may be obtained at the bowladrome.

Teams must be from an organized women's bowling league. No "pickup" teams are allowed. Rules governing are the same as league competition.

Top five bowlers as of Feb. 1, bowl in competition with the sixth and seventh used as alternates. If others are needed, continue to choose according to average.

Bowlers entered must have bowled half the season thus far with their respective league and may only bowl for one tourney entry.

Any violations of the above rules will forfeit the team's participation.

All matches will be decided on total pinfall in tourney competition.

It is an elimination tourney. The team must win to continue in competition.

A $50 cash prize and winning team trophies and trophies for high average, high three and high single will be awarded.

Opposition each Sunday is automatic according to alley number drawn each Sunday.

The tourney is sponsored each year by the Koch Club as part of its winter athletic and recreation program and Richard J. Koch is tourney director.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Nowadays when anyone speaks of the "ring-finger", we all know that he or she is referring to the third finger of the left hand. However, this is a relatively recent custom in the history of the wedding ring. Until the 1750's, Roman Catholics used the right hand for wedding bands. In fact, until the sixteenth century all European women wore their wedding rings on the right hand--on any finger. The little finger was frequently used because it is the least active one. Wealthy women favored their thumbs with huge wedding rings in order to impress their servants. And in India, women have worn their wedding rings on their thumbs since ancient times.

All types of jewelry including wedding bands are available from us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490. Valentine's Day is a nice time to replace wedding bands and you can find a large selection including plain bands in yellow or white gold, or rings with precious and semi-precious stones. Stop by and see us Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

HELPFUL HINT:

In the Middle Ages, desirable bachelors hung engagement rings from their hat bands in order to attract available young women.

ON SECOND MORTGAGES

When mortgage money is plentiful, lower down payments are common and lending institutions are looking for borrowers for mortgage money.

However, the picture changes when money is tight. Often, higher down payments are required. If you do not have the cash to meet the full down payment, second mortgages are also available and nothing to be afraid of. The seller or some other lender may agree to loan you the balance of the down payment in this manner.

The second mortgage on the property carries a higher interest rate and a shorter repayment time - usually from three to five years. The reason for this is the higher risk involved because the second mortgage cannot be satisfied in case of default until after the first mortgage is paid off.

The second mortgage can be an excellent way to complete the sale of property which would otherwise fall by the wayside. Listen very closely to your REALTOR in this situation because professional expertise is a MUST.

Before you make a deal... this deal or any other deal... investigate it thoroughly. Find out everything.

What is a 7-ELEVEN store?
Will it offer you and your family a fair chance at making a good living?
What is the company like that's behind the deal?

7-Eleven stores started popping up around Dallas, Texas in 1927. Today there are over five thousand of them doing business from coast to coast. Each one is a smaller-than-supermarket sized convenience food store. The product mix and merchandising plan appeal to customers of all ages and all income levels. The 7-Eleven store was the beginning of the convenience food store industry because of the 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. 7 day a week shopping concept. Nowadays, that convenience concept has been taken a step further since the majority of 7-Eleven stores across the country are open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

If you should elect to invest your time and money in one of these stores, almost a half century of 7-Eleven store experience will select a site for your store, will design, build and equip it. Your bookkeeping will be done for you. You'll benefit from several national advertising programs.

A specialized training program will teach you how to merchandise and operate the store and how to handle the public. That half century of experience is called The Southland Corporation and those people are just as interested in your success as you are.

If you think this thumbnail sketch of a 7-Eleven store way of life deserves your further investigation, call or write using the coupon below.

Seriously Injured Youth Desperately Needs Blood

George Bush, 19, of 37 Union St., Quincy Point, suffering serious internal injuries as the result of an auto accident on Dec. 26, is desperately in need of blood donations.

Bush, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Bush and the youngest of eight children, is in the intensive care unit at Quincy City Hospital. He has undergone surgery for a lacerated liver, ruptured spleen and fractures of the femur and humerous. Two blood clots dissolved, but a third had to be removed by surgery.

Donors are asked to call the hospital at 773-6100, ext. 440 to make an appointment. The hospital blood bank is open Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.; Monday through Thursday, 7 - 10 p.m., and Saturday 1 - 4 p.m.

During his hospitalization Bush has already received 55 unites of blood which must be replaced.

A senior at Quincy High School, Bush was a passenger in the back seat of a car operated by Frederick Weckbacker, 19, of Dedham, when the vehicle was struck by a second car at Coddington and Woodward Sts., Quincy, at 2:46 p.m. on Dec. 26, according to police.

Nancy Pagageris, 18, of Beloit St., Dedham, riding with Bush, suffered eight broken ribs, and a lacerated kidney. She was released from Quincy City Hospital two weeks ago.

Others involved sustained lesser injuries.

The Bush family is appealing to George's classmates and friends to make donations of blood to make up the many units already supplied. Hospital officials issued the reminder that those under legal age must have parents consent before making a blood donation.

WELL-WISHERS joined in reception tendered to Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Fox on the occasion of their closing the Adams Shore Pharmacy at Sea St. and Gannett Rd, after 25 years in business. At reception sponsored by the Adams Shore Community Association were [from left], Mrs. Shirley Tobin, representing Mayor Tobin; Councillor Leo Kelly; Sybil White of the Adams Shore Association; Mr. and Mrs. Fox; Councillor Paul Harold, holding proclamation from City Council; Mrs. Allen and Rev. Daniel D. Allen of the Adams Shore Community Church.

David C. Ahearn Sworn In As County Commissioner

David C. Ahearn, a former State Rep from Norwood, has been sworn in as Norfolk County Commissioner, succeeding the late Thomas K. McManus, also of Norwood.

The oath was administered by John J. Sullivan Jr. of 14 Marion St., Wollaston, commissioner to qualify public officers.

Ahearn, an attorney who served five terms in the State House, retiring undefeated in 1974, was chosen to fill the vacancy by the other two county commissioners and the county clerk of courts.

"We did our best to stand in the shoes of the voters of Norfolk County and represent them in selecting a man of whom they can be proud," the electors said in their announcement.

"Commissioner Ahearn, like Commissioner McManus before him, is from the western part of the county. Considering the dramatic increase in the population of this section of the county, we consider his geographical location as an important element of his selection."

DAVID C. AHEARN

The three commissioners must be from different communities in the county. Commissioner James J. Collins is from Milton and Commissioner George B. McDonald is from Quincy.

Frank Dooley To Head Family Counseling Board

Frank Dooley of Milton has been elected chairman of the South Area Board of Directors of the Family Counseling and Guidance Center in Braintree.

Frank Chase, Cohasset, was elected a vice-chairman. Re-elected were: Barry Hannon, Braintree, vice-chairman; Mrs. Wilma Spence, Hingham, secretary, and William DiPesa, Milton, treasurer.

Family Counseling and Guidance Centers, Inc., is a private, non-profit mental health facility with five area clinics in eastern Massachusetts. The South Area Board plays a key role in interpreting the work of the agency to residents of Quincy.

Board members advise the agency on ways to deliver their therapy services to the community more effectively.

The dollar isn't buying as much for travelers to foreign countries

By Philip J. Lawrence, President
Colonial Federal Savings and Loan Association of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

Back in 1969, a couple we know took a three-week early fall vacation in the Alpine areas of Germany, Switzerland, Italy and Austria. For reasons of economy and freedom of movement, they rented a car and followed a loosely planned itinerary, avoiding overnight stops in the big cities and tourist spas in favor of smaller towns and more modest accommodations.

Everywhere, they looked for and regularly found gasthofs, pensions, and "zimmer freis" in attractive settings, usually with balconies overlooking vistas and invariably neat and clean. Their average overnight cost, with continental breakfast included, was $8.10 in U.S. dollars.

Last fall, this couple made a two-week return to much of the territory they had covered eight years earlier. This time, in similar accommodations, their sleeping rooms with breakfast cost them an average $16.51.

A large portion of the differential, our friends pointed out, was attributable to the declining value of the dollar. "Our last night before flying home from Frankfurt, we stopped at a comfortable and immaculate pension at Bad Konig Zell in the 'Odenwalds,'" he said. "Our corner room had a balcony overlooking a valley, lavatory facilities, and a full bath directly opposite our door."

"The price for the room was 32 Deutsche marks -- or $14.04 at the rate of exchange last September. Back in 1969, that same room at 32 DMs would have cost only $8 in American money." Thus, 76% of the increased cost was attributable to the weakened dollar and only 26% to higher German prices over the past eight years.

The plight of the Italians, in contrast, was reflected in the rate of exchange between the dollar and the lira. Back in 1969, a U.S. dollar was worth 500 lira. Last fall, it commanded 880 lira, making the dollar worth 76% more in Italy than it was eight years ago.

"A vacation in the Italian Dolomites, one of the most beautiful parts of the Alps in our opinion has to be the best bargain in Western Europe," our friend believes.

He cited the difference between two perch dinners, one served on the shores of Lake Geneva, the other on Lake Maggiore. Practically identical menus of comparable quality cost $16.68 for two in Switzerland and $8.91 in Italy.

Devaluation of the dollar has had more impact upon this nation than the mere fact that Americans traveling abroad find that their money is not going as far as it used to. We'll attempt to discuss some of these implications in another article.

Raymondi Urges Safeguards At New A & P Site

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi has urged City Engineer Edward Leone to continue negotiations with A & P on proposed landtaking at the corner of Scammell St. and Quincy Ave. to widen the intersection.

Raymondi said that he had been contacted by many residents of the area who expressed concern that the intersection will be too narrow to handle traffic when the new A & P supermarket opens there.

He also requested that every precaution be taken to insure that residents of nearby Dysart St. be protected from water runoff and safeguards be taken to promote proper drainage.

Raymondi asked Building Inspector Allan MacDonald to advise him what plans have been submitted to the city for landscaping of the facility to enhance the aesthetic character of the neighborhood.

Student Program Selection Open House At QHS

An Open House for parents and students of Quincy High School and ninth graders who will enroll in Quincy High School next September will be held Thursday, Feb. 9, from 6 to 9 p.m. in the school's Method Center. It will focus on program selection and content for the 1978-79 school year.

Principal Lloyd M. Creighton indicates guidance counselors, department heads, and selected subject teachers will be available to explain specific courses, scheduling procedures, graduation requirements, and college entrance requirements.

The evening is designed to help both parents and students obtain information so that the courses selected for next year's program of studies will meet and satisfy individual needs and goals.

A member of the Alternative Learning Experience staff will be present to answer questions relative to the program. Refreshments will be served.

Flower tips from Andre Moreau

If you haven't got "Green Cross" insurance [and who can afford it these days], you might welcome some hints on how to keep your plants healthy. The most important thing to remember is not to overwater them. More plants expire from drowning than any other cause. The succulents and Cacti store water in their leaves and can be watered less, but all plants have their own individual needs. The first signs of trouble are the droops which mean water me, or stem rot means a terrible cold – stop all liquids. The best thermometer is your finger. Feel the soil about one inch below the top of the pot. If it's dry, rush to the tap for warm water with confidence that you are giving your plant family the best possible care.

If at any time you have particular questions on the proper care of your plants feel free to ask the experts at NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100. We are well known in this area for our long lasting house plants as well as our unique and original floral arrangements. Our fantastic selection, freshness and personalized service make us the full service florist of many in this area. We are multi-lingual so we can assist you in French, Italian and Spanish. Master Charge and BankAmericard honored. Hours: Mon. - Sat., 8-6, evenings by appointment.

HELPFUL HINT:

Rap a table knife on the side of your terra-cotta pot. A dull thud signals moist soil, a ring says it's time for a drink.

Sheriff Marshall Sends $2,502 To Treasurer's Office

The sum of $2,502.50 has been forwarded to the office of the treasurer of Norfolk County, representing the outside earned income of the Sheriff's Department for the period Oct. 1 through Dec. 31, Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall reports.

This figure represents $1,620 received from the federal government to reimburse the county for room and board costs related to federal prisoners incarcerated at the Norfolk County House of Correction during this period.

Fines collected totaled $105.00. The remaining $787.50 is income earned from inmates participating in the work-release program at the House of Correction. These inmates have room and board expenses deducted from their outside earnings.

Tobin QCA Speaker

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin was scheduled to discuss his goals and aspirations for Quincy last night [Wednesday] at 8 p.m. at a meeting of the Quincy Citizens Association in the Montclair Men's Club on Holbrook Rd.

The Big Dig Out Goes On . . . And On . . . and on. . .

Please, No More!!!

GHOST TOWN--Lone walker braves high winds and driven snow in deserted Quincy Sq. Tuesday during the height of the most furious storm to hit the New England area in recorded history. Nearly 27 inches were dumped here and winds reached gusts of more than 90 miles an hour during what was like a winter hurricane. Only the faint outline of South Shore Bank can be seen in the snowy background.

ONE WAY TO get around Quincy on Tuesday as vehicles were banned by Gov. Dukakis' state of emergency declaration was by skis demonstrated here as Pat Santacross makes his way along Woodward Ave. That's the Vo-Tech School in the background.

An army of weary workers struggled into the weekend to dig Quincy out from under what may be the worst snowfall of the 20th century, one that brought the city to a standstill for at least four days.

The northeast storm, backed by winds that gusted to more than 90 miles an hour, dumped at least 26 inches of snow, the heaviest since the Boston weather bureau began keeping records in 1870.

High tides, urged on by the winds, rose at least five feet higher than usual, flooding sections of Houghs Neck and Squantum where several hundred people were evacuated.

"This was something that happens once in a hundred years." said Quincy Police Capt. Roy Cavicchi. "I've been on the force 25 years and I've never seen anything like it."

No deaths were attributed to the storm in Quincy.

The Quincy Fire Dept. reported no serious fires during the storm, a fortunate turn of events since most of the side streets in the city were impassable for at least three days.

"We were very very lucky" said a Fire Department spokesman.

Under Gov. Dukakis' emergency declaration, all but the most essential traffic was banned from Quincy streets while crews with heavy equipment labored through the nights to clear the main roads.

There were isolated incidents of looting.

Smyth's Package Store, Newbury St., North Quincy once owned by former City Councillor J. Vincent Smyth was reported almost cleaned out by thieves. Two men were arrested after breaking into the Roman Gardens Cafe, Southern Artery.

There were other reports of looting in the hard-hit section of Houghs Neck.

Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt promised swift punishment for looters.

"I will expedite the prosecution of any cases of looting," he said. "I will avoid the district courts and go straight to the grand jury. I will ask high bail and recommend substantial sentences."

The MBTA's Red Line ceased to operate between Andrews Station and Quincy at the height of the storm Tuesday and the next day some 200 shovelers attacked drifts up to 18 feet deep on the tracks.

Limited service between Quincy and Ashmont was expected to begin early Friday.

The MBTA also took its buses off Quincy streets, said spokesman Rob Ferris, to allow cleanup crews to work unimpeded.

John Newsome of Mass. Electric said some 1500 customers in Quincy lost power mostly in North Quincy and Quincy Point during the storm but it was restored Wednesday afternoon. Isolated outages, particularly in Houghs Neck, were reported later.

"The problem was getting people to the source of the failure," said Newsome. "The

Kennedy Visits Quincy To Seek Federal Aid

Senator Edward M. Kennedy visited Quincy Thursday afternoon and promised that the Congressional delegation would be working on federal aid to pay for the enormous clean up job.

He said if Quincy is declared a disaster area it would mean that the federal government would pay 75% of the cost of snow removal and the state would pay 25%.

He said the delegation will also work on obtaining grants for persons whose homes have been devastated and other programs for small businesses.

Gov. Dukakis extended the emergency to midnight Friday but gave the banks, which had been closed since Tuesday, the option of opening their doors if workers could get to work without using their cars.

Emergency Telephone Numbers

Here are the telephone numbers to remember in these times of emergency:

Quincy Emergency Communications Center	773-1380
Quincy Civil Defense	472-6118
Quincy Police Emergency	911
MBTA Information	722-5050
Boston Edison	262-4700
Mass. Electric	337-7100
Mass Public Works	727-4800

The Mass Public Works number is useful in determining the fate of cars abandoned during the storm.

Brownell Urges Governor Sign Tax Exemption Bill

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] has requested Gov. Michael Dukakis to sign House Bill 6270 authorizing exemption from real estate taxes certain economic development corporations on the South Shore.

The bill was sponsored by Brownell and other legislators from this area.

In a letter to the Governor, Brownell said:

"I urge you to sign this legislation as it will allow the South Shore to have an economic development corporation similar to those established in the western part of the state. With this corporation we will be able to attract businesses and sorely needed jobs to the South Shore area which has experience a 10 percent unemployment rate up until fairly recently.

"Your prompt signature will deeply be appreciated by myself and the South Shore Chamber of Commerce."

To The Rescue

Snowmobilers Unsung Heroes

By PETER BARNICLE

Snowmobilers were out doing their thing--rescuing people--during this week's big storm.

Details of the aid they brought to many have still not been added up. Their exploits are hard to chronicle because they are usually so busy doing something they don't have the time to have it recorded.

They are among the unsung heroes.

But to give you an idea of some of the nice things they do you can look back to the Jan. 20 storm which was the record biggie until this week.

In that storm the snowmobilers patrolled Quincy Shore Drive looking for stranded motorists and assisted police in getting hospital patients through the snow drifts to police cruisers and ambulances.

Norman Forde of Wollaston was with one of the two-man teams which rescued a driver who had been shivering in his car for almost six hours.

"We almost missed him," Forde recalls. "The snow was sweeping in from the bay and had completely covered his car. In fact we nearly went right over the top of it."

The unidentified motorist was taken to a nearby civil defense shelter and the patrol continued.

ONE OF THE best ways to travel was by snowmobile as shown here in Quincy Sq. near The Quincy Sun office Tuesday.

The Emergency Snowmobile Team was the idea of Patrolman Stephen Berg. He conceived the plan several years ago, but has since left the police force to go into the Coast Guard.

The past storm with its howling winds and huge drifts was one of the first major tests of the effectiveness of the snowmobilers.

In addition to rescuing frostbitten drivers, the snowmobilers continued to patrol the highway to prevent vandalism of abandoned cars.

The emergency team helped members of the Emergency Medical Teams, with the auxiliary police, in getting medical assistance to persons in need.

"We had a woman on Station St., who was expecting a baby," Forde said. "The police could not get up the clogged street so we moved in and were able to get her to a cruiser which transported her to the hospital."

The snowmobilers were located at Wollaston and North Quincy fire stations and police headquarters. Some were assigned regular police officers and others were equipped with two-way police radios.

Forde pointed out that the snowmobilers were, not in heated cabs, but exposed to the elements and with gusts of up to 60 miles per hour the chill factor was minus 22.

Among those who participated were Firefighter Dave DiTullio, Police Officers, Peter Benedict, Ralph Ames and civilians Dom DeTomaso, Clark Maloof, John Bonomi, Tom Bonomi, Norman Forde, and Jerry Forde.

Storm Situations:

Shovel Out Hydrants, Cut Down On Fuel

The Quincy Fire Department urged residents to help shovel out snow hidden fire hydrants.

A spokesman for the department said "we are asking all able bodied people to shovel out the hydrant nearest their home. This could prevent a tragedy in the event of a fire."

He also asked residents to take special fire prevention cautions to reduce the chance of a serious fire. "Be careful with smoking materials and open flames," he cautioned.

And, he appealed to residents to "cut down on heat so that they will not run out of fuel."

Fuel supplies may be short over the next few days, he warned.

May Be Delays In Oil Deliveries

Christine Sullivan, the State Secretary for Consumer Affairs said there could be delays up to four days in getting oil deliveries. She estimated that a quarter of a tank was good for five days if used wisely.

The causeway to Squantum was flooded even after the high tides receded when high winds kept the water from flowing out but it was closed only during the first two days.

Some houses were flooded in the sand pit area near where the Causeway enters Squantum and 15 or 20 persons were housed for awhile at the Squantum School. Some piers in Squantum were swept away.

The Quincy City Council meeting, scheduled for Monday night, was postponed a week and Tuesday's license commission hearing also was moved ahead seven days.

All functions at the Senior Citizens complex at the 1000 Southern Artery were cancelled, except for the Blood Pressure clinic. The YMCA also called off its programs. The Thomas Crane Public Library was closed.

City hospital reported no unusual occurences but their was some difficulty in getting discharged patients out to their homes. Visitors were discouraged to keep parking areas open.

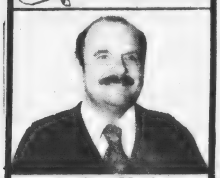
YOU COULD SEE Quincy Center once again Wednesday when the sun emerged to shine on a blanket of deep snow. This view is from the Quincy Center MBTA garage looking south.

Do-It-Yourself On Putnam St.

It was a do-it-yourself mop-up on Putnam St., Quincy Center.

Men and sons banded together Thursday to clear Putnam St. of snow between Greenleaf St. and Edgemere Rd.

William Potter of 153 Putnam St. brought his snowblower into action and between that and shovels, the men and youths had the street virtually down to the macadam. They also cleared the sidewalks.



The effort was to clear the area in event of an emergency.

Among those working with Potter were Kenneth Boyce, William Mahoney, Thomas McLaughlin, Al Holmberg, Ron Esser and Maurice Ostrow and a dozen strong-armed youngsters.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Today, the plastic revolution has almost completely taken over the coaster industry. But, did you know that in past centuries, coasters were fine household items crafted out of silver with the utmost care? The first coasters, made in the middle of the eighteenth century, were circular stands with low rims 2" to 3" in height. They were used for holding decanters or bottles. Most of these coasters had a wooden base with a silver disc inset in the center. The family crest or initials were engraved on this disc. Mother-of-pearl or bone were also used for the disc. The design in rims varied from pierced geometric patterns to ornate Bacchanalian scenes.

You'll find a wide variety of jewelry and other items, for gift or personal needs, when you shop with us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490. Pewter, Waterford Crystal, Cornwall clocks and Beleek china are handled, and we have pins, necklaces, rings and watches. Don't forget your loved one on Valentine's Day. Women's Commission Orientation Program For Elected Officials Feb. 12

The Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women is sponsoring an orientation for elected officials Sunday, Feb. 12, from 4 to 6 p.m., at the home of School Committeewoman Mary P. Collins, 116 Lansdowne St., Squantum. Mrs. Collins is a member of the Commission.

Purpose of the program is to familiarize newly elected officials with the objectives and programs of the commission as well as to provide an update on the commission's planned activities for 1978. Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, city councillors and school committee members have been invited.

Elizabeth Van Twuyver who is coordinating the event said:

"Since the commission was formed in 1974, we have worked on a number of programs which directly affect our elected officials or which require their support. For this reason, we feel it is important to reaffirm our goals and objectives as well as to hear the views and suggestions of our city officials."

She cited several programs which the commission will be discussing during the program. These included the CETA-funded project W.A.G.E. aimed at identifying employment opportunities for women; the second annual Woman-to-Woman Day, an all-day program of workshops; the Talent Bank aimed at increasing the number of women on city boards and commissions, and work on special boards such as the Rape Unit and the Hospital Board.

Family Planning Project Clinic Hours Changed

Clinic hours have been changed during the past month for the Quincy Family Planning Project, a component of the Quincy Community Action.

Clinic sessions, by appointment only, take place Wednesdays from 1 to 3 p.m. at the Germantown clinic, 9 Bicknell St. and Fridays from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. at the Quincy City Hospital Outpatient Department. To make a clinic appointment, new patients must first make a pre-registration appointment to fill out medical and financial forms and to receive health counseling.

Quincy Family Planning Project provides a variety of women's health services. Offices at 372 Granite St. (Brewer's Corner) South-West Quincy and 9 Bicknell St. in Quincy's Germantown section serve individuals from the South Shore area. In addition to gynecological clinics, services include pregnancy testing, speaking presentations, referral services for related health needs. We accept Medicaid and have sliding fee scale, based on income and family size.

During inclement weather, announcements of cancellations for the clinics and other family planning activities may be heard on WJDA radio (1300). Also, patients who cannot keep appointments for whatever reason are urged to call to cancel or reschedule as soon as possible. Call 471-8727 (Southwest Quincy) or 471-5187 (Germantown) for more information.

Young Volunteers Lend Big Helping Hand At Houghs Neck Library

By LINDA TRUBIANO

"We are the only branch in the city to still have the volunteer program," said Mrs. Helen Boyajian, librarian at the Houghs Neck Branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

She was speaking of the 10 neighborhood children, ages 10 to 14, who lend a hand at the library one day a week for two hours.

The young volunteers act as helpers to Mrs. Boyajian and her assistant Barbara McCollum. They file books, keep things neat, and help other children find information. With these odd jobs out of the way, Mrs. Boyajian and Barbara are free to perform other tasks and plan special events for the library.

"The library recognizes 100 hours of service with a pin," said Mrs. Boyajian, "200 with a thesaurus and 300 with a present from myself."

Michelle Beven, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Beven of 43 Macy St., has already put in 358 hours. She's been promoted to senior volunteer and now helps train new volunteers.

Twelve year old Cheryl Chapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chapman of 20 Shennen St., has just completed her 100 hours.

Cheryl, a Quincy Sun carrier for a year and a half, is in the seventh grade at Broad Meadows Junior High School. She is interested in math, sports, knitting and crocheting. "I want to be either a nurse or math teacher," Cheryl said.

Karen Chetwynd, 13, of 67 Ratchford St., will soon receive her pin. Also a 7th grader at Broad Meadows, she has completed 64 hours so far. "I think working here helps me in school," she said. Karen works at the school library also and wants to volunteer as a candy striper at a hospital when she is old enough.

Mrs. Boyajian feels the program teaches responsibility to its volunteers.

"We expect a lot from them, when they can't make it they are to phone in and tell us."

They also assist in special programs planned at the library to help stimulate interest in books and literature.

"There is a personal touch in a small library that you don't get in a large one," she said.

Mrs. Boyajian believes this to be part of why the tiny branch at 1186 Sea St., was not closed after the construction of the new Adams Shore Branch. She feels that the success of the library's service is "a joint effort, poeple helping people," and the volunteer program is part of that effort.

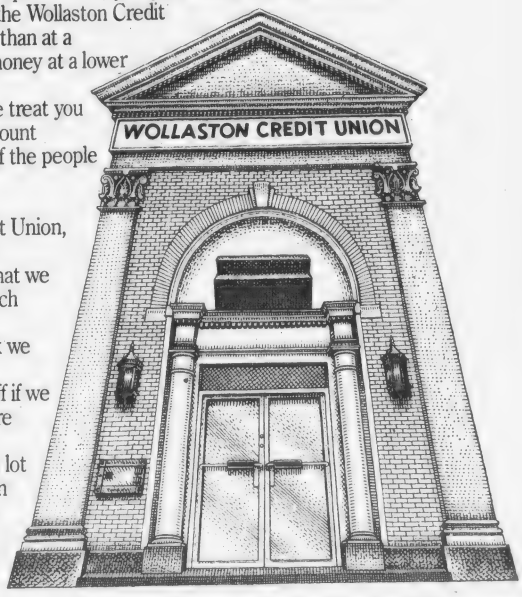
We're what a bank isn't allowed to be.

MASSACHUSETTS CREDIT UNION SHARE INSURANCE CORPORATION
INSURED SAVINGS

At first glance, you might think we're a bank. Because we do look like one. There are tellers here. And an enormous safe. You can deposit money here. And take out loans. And your account is always fully insured.* Just like at a bank.

But we're definitely not a bank. We're a credit union.



This allows us to do some things a bank can't do.

When you open an account at a bank, they put your money away and that's that.

But when you open an account at the Wollaston Credit Union, you become a member of the credit union and a part owner.

Which is no small point. Because as a part owner, you get a share of the dividends.

That's why your savings account at the Wollaston Credit Union almost always earns higher interest than at a bank. And why you can generally borrow money at a lower interest rate.

And because you're a part owner, we treat you differently here. You're not a face or an account number to our tellers. You're literally one of the people they work for.

One more thing.

As a member of the Wollaston Credit Union, you are invited to our annual meeting and encouraged to voice your opinion about what we ought to be doing. Your vote carries as much weight as our President's.

And that doesn't happen at any bank we know of.

Some people think we'd be better off if we were a bank. Because we'd make a lot more money for ourselves that way.

But we're not interested in making a lot of money for ourselves. We're interested in doing what our charter says we should do: serve the community.

So we wouldn't be a bank even if they asked us.

Quincy Banks To Sponsor Blood Program

The Blood Program being sponsored jointly by the banks in Quincy will be conducted on Tues., Feb. 28, according to Robert J. Quinn of South Shore Bank, coordinator of the program.

Blood banking hours will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the employees lounge of the South Shore Bank, 19 Chestnut St., Quincy.

Sponsors hope to increase the "Blood Bank Deposits" by 100 pints during the one day drive.

"In addition to donations from our employees, it is hoped customers will also respond to this call," Quinn said.

Those interested in making donations are asked to contact the American Red Cross office [472-2700] directly to make appointments between now and "Bank Day".

Other members of the sponsoring committee include: Francis J. Mitchell, Quincy Cooperative Bank; William B. Parker, Quincy Savings Bank; Roger E. Perfetti, Baybank Norfolk Trust Company; Philip J. Lawrence, Colonial Federal Loan and Savings Association; Mrs. Barbara Lynch, Granite Cooperative Bank; Francis X. McCauley, Presidential Cooperative Bank; William F. O'Malley, Hancock Bank & Trust Company; William Griffin, Metro Bank and Trust Company, and Frederick P. Sullivan, Old Colony Bank and Trust Company.

South Quincy Civic Association To Meet Feb. 14

The South Quincy Civic Association will meet Tuesday, Feb. 14, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lincoln-Hancock Community School, 300 Granite St., South Quincy.

Guest speakers will be from Norfolk County Chapter of Morality in the Media, featuring Nick Pizzella.

This organization combats pornography in all forms together with the Quincy clergy, Salvation Army, various civic groups, concerned citizens, and law enforcement agencies.

The membership will also discuss the South Quincy flooding, status of the federal take-over of the Adam's birthplaces and programs for the deaf community now in session at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School.

Montclair Men's Club Urges Adams Birthplaces Takeover

The Montclair Men's Club has voted unanimously to support the U.S. government takeover of the President Adams Birthplaces on Franklin St , by the National Parks Service.

The club sent a letter to Mayor Tobin asking his cooperation in the proposal and announced that it will send representatives to a public hearing on the takeover Monday, Feb. 13, at 7:30 p.m. in City Hall.

Dinner Chairman Joseph Gildea announced that the annual awards dinner, honoring NBC sportscaster Curt Gowdy on Saturday, March 4, is a near sellout.

Tickets are still available from Dick Post at 1-878-6354 or Andy Orrock at 479-1173.

Painting Exhibits At Crane Library

Rod Peterson of Quincy will exhibit his paintings in the North Quincy Branch of the Thomas Crane Public Library throughout the month of February. He works in mixed media leaning towards watercolor and most of his painting is done in and around the South Shore.

Peterson, who is in social service work, graduated from Eastern Nazarene College and received his masters degree from Boston University. He studied painting with Rubin Gold at the Adult Education Center in Boston, and with Margaret Dillon and Rosalind Farbush at the South Shore Art Center in Cohasset.

Also on display in the Main Hall Gallery of the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square, will be paintings by William Bureau of Foxboro.

Bureau, who has won many awards and exhibited his work in numerous galleries, studied at Vesper George and the New England School of Art in Boston. He taught painting at the Braintree Art Association and Quincy High School. He has also given painting demonstrations at many places including the Quincy Art Association.

Bureau paints in oil, using scenes from Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire and Cape Cod.

Correction

In the list of Central Junior High School honor roll students in last week's Quincy Sun, the name of 8th grader Charles C. Hajjar was omitted.

Picture Parade Open House At Atlantic Center

An Atlantic "Picture Parade" open house will be held at Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 150 East Squantum St., North Quincy, Sunday, Feb. 12, from 1 to 4 p.m.

All entries in the picture contest now underway for the 4th through 6th graders at the Myles Standish, Parker, Quincy and Sacred Heart Schools will be on display. Contestants are to draw or paint ideas of what the Atlantic Neighborhood Center is or could be to them.

The winner will be chosen at the open house and awarded a ten speed bike, donated by the North Quincy Professional and Business Association. The winning picture will also be printed in the first issue of a new monthly newsletter to be published by the Atlantic Neighborhood Center.

The open house will also include some Atlantic Picture contests for adults as well. A program idea survey will give the residents an opportunity to share their ideas for new programs or activities which they would like the Center to offer.

Refreshments will be served. All residents are welcome and encouraged to attend.

Other Programs

The programs for the week at the Center includes:

Monday, Feb. 13 - Energy information, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Rita Francione and Vern Eicker of the Norfolk County Extension Program will hold a weight control clinic from 12:20 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. with free lessons on dieting sensibly through low calorie recipes, exercise and nutrition. Mrs. Carol Bray will direct classes in ceramics for teenagers from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m.

Tuesday, Feb. 14 - Energy information, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Wednesday, Feb. 15 - Senior Citizens Day. Knitting, 10 a.m., Bingo, 1 p.m. Energy information, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Thursday, Feb. 16 - Mrs. Carol Bray will be available for information on winterization and energy for income-eligible home owners.

Friday, Feb. 17 - Energy information, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Roancy A. Horne, a nurse volunteer from RSVP, will hold a free blood pressure clinic from 9:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. Rosemarie Hanley, a volunteer from the Greater Boston Legal Service, will give legal assistance from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

NQHS Course Selection Program Feb. 14

North Quincy High School's counseling department will present a program on scheduling and course selection at the Teal Building, Newbury Ave., Tuesday, Feb. 14, from 7 to 9 p.m.

Parents and students interested in a better understanding of the course selection process, point system, and special programs are invited to attend. Speakers from the counseling center and academic departments will make presentations and be available to students.

Dom De Leo, counselor at North Quincy High School, says that creating the right program of studies for each individual is important in preparing for a career or for further education.

Feb. 28 is the snow date.

Sheets Urges Speedup On Town, Furnace Brooks Flood Projects

Rep. James A. Sheets (D-Quincy) has urged the Army Corps of Engineers to speed up its proposed flood projects on Town Brook and Furnace Brook in view of recent flooding in the areas.

"The flooding problems along both of these streams over the last few days have caused more than 700 families to suffer tremendous damage to their homes and left many without heat," he said in a letter to the Engineers.

He noted that the projects have been talked about for many years and a number of studies have been made, yet nothing has been done.

"How long can we expect the people to endure the hardship of water in their homes every time it rains?" he asked.

Sheets said the Furnace Brook project is currently before the Board of Engineers in Washington, which is the last step before it is sent to Congress for approval.

The Town Brook project, he said, is in the final draft stage and should go to the Board in the near future.

"After spending many hours walking through the cellars in homes of those affected by flooding, I feel it is incumbent upon every elected official in the area to do whatever possible to move these projects," he said.

Brownell Calls For Probe Of MBTA Service Failures

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell (D-Quincy) has joined several colleagues in the state legislature in calling for an investigation of service on the MBTA, particularly the Red Line Serving Quincy.

"In my opinion, the rapid transit system of the MBTA, especially the Red Line, has utterly failed to provide reliable and adequate service for its patrons," he told the Committee on Transportation.

"On more occasions than I like to remember, the MBTA has failed to perform for the citizens of Quincy and the South Shore when its services were needed most.

"Even in the absence of severe weather conditions, we on the Red Line have experienced breakdowns, delays, signal problems and accidents.

"The recent snowstorm clearly demonstrated to me and thousands of delayed and stranded commuters of the ineffectiveness of the 'T'."

He urged the committee to adopt a Senate bill establishing a comprehensive legislative investigation of the operation, maintenance and finances of the MBTA.

"Why is it that transit systems in other major cities such as Chicago, Philadelphia, Cleveland and Toronto are able to operate during severe snow conditions, yet our system bogs down and even closes when it confronts any abnormal conditions?" he asked.

"Despite the persistence and consistence of these many failures, the Authority has failed to come forward with any solutions."

Council On Aging Needs More Wheelchairs

The Quincy Council on Aging, 1 Cliveden St., Quincy, has issued an urgent appeal for wheelchairs.

In it's appeal the Council points out that while it is primarily intended to assist people over 65, there are many instances where younger people are desperately in need of the equipment. It also notes that while persons under Medicare can obtain wheelchairs at reduced rates, some do not qualify.

Over the years the Council has lent out wheelchairs to patients who no longer need them. The chairs were loaned, not donated, the Council says.

The Council requests that anyone who has a wheelchair - not in use - stored away return it so it may be made available to others.

Persons having a chair they would like to give to somebody in need may call 773-1380, ext. 243-244. A driver will be sent to pick it up.

The effective way to insulate your home

Insulation effectiveness is measured in its resistance to heat flow . . . either moving out of the house in winter or flowing in, during the summer.

Celsius foam insulation has a high "R" rating which creates an efficient thermal barrier in ceilings, attics and walls. Celsius foam is pumped into walls cavities and flows around pipes, electrical outlets and other protrusions. It effectively seals against heat loss and drafts by completely filling the spaces without settling.

With Celsius foam you save on heating/cooling costs all year round and you get a return on your investment every time you receive your utility bill..You'll enjoy extra living comfort too!

Call us today for more information on our homeowner's warranty and a free estimate. You need to insulate your home only once. Do it right. Call us today!

Storm Curtails Ash Wednesday Services

The solemn season of Lent opened on Ash Wednesday but traditional services were curtailed because of the storm.

In Quincy Catholic churches, ashes were distributed but to small numbers. Most people could not get out of their house.

Ashes will be distributed in Catholic churches at Saturday and Sunday Masses this weekend.

In most Catholic and Protestant churches the regular Lenten schedule is expected to be in effect beginning with the weekend.

During Lent daily Mass will be celebrated at St. John's Church at 7 and 8 a.m. and 12:10 and 5:30 p.m. The Stations of the Cross will be held at 7:30 p.m. Fridays during February and Vespers on Fridays in March, also at 7:30 p.m.

On Tues., March 14 there will be a lent communal penance service in the lower church at 7:30 p.m.

Sr. Laetitia Ann Campbell, O.P., will conduct a series of four evenings on "The Call to Conversion". The series will be held at 8 p.m. in the lower church on Thurs., Feb. 23, and March 2,9 and 16.

Quincy Jewish War Veterans To Honor 7 Students

Three Quincy students will be among seven to be honored by Quincy Jewish War veterans at the post's annual "Classmates Today Neighbors Tomorrow" breakfast to be held at Beth Israel Synagogue, Sunday, Feb. 12 at 9:30 a.m.

The Quincy students are Susan C. Kerman, Quincy High School; Paul M. Collins, North Quincy High School, and Edward F. Lawlor, Jr., Quincy Vocational Technical School. They were chosen by their classmates as best exemplifying brotherhood in their daily activities.

Past Commander David Freeman is chairman of the committee. Serving with him are past commanders Irving Isaacson, David Minkofsy, Ralph Paull, Ben Rudner and Commander Harvey Solomon and Senior Vice Commander Jason Stone.

Quincy Parochial Schools Explore Curriculum Development

The faculties of Sacred Heart, St. Joseph, St. Ann and St. Mary Schools attended a lecture on Curriculum Development, Jan. 17.

Guest speaker was Sister Ann Conway, C.S.J. supervisor of the Middle School at the Boston School for the Deaf in Randolph, Curriculum Coordinator and directress of in-service programs for the faculty. She has given workshops on Curriculum at the Catholic Schools Principals' Meeting.

At the meeting, she was introduced to the faculties by Sister Romula, Principal of Sacred Heart School, North Quincy. In her lecture, Sister Conway stressed the importance of setting goals and objectives that meet the needs of the individual student. Team work and cooperation with supportive services are essential to the development of a curriculum.

Tuesday afternoons provide an opportunity for the principals to set up in-service programs, invite guest speakers, hold faculty meetings for the school personnel of all the parochial schools in the area.

St. Chrysostom's To Host Breakfast

St. Chrysostom's Church, Wollaston, will host the Episcopal Diocese District 10 annual Washington's Birthday Communion Breakfast on Monday, Feb. 20, at the church. The communion service will begin at 8 a.m. followed by breakfast.

Guest speaker is Ernest Gordon, former pastor at Paisley Abbey, Scotland, and now Dean of the Chapel at Princeton University. In addition to receiving many honorary degrees and awards, Mr. Gordon is the author of several books on religion.

All are invited to attend. For information or reservations contact the church.

Workshop For Divorced, Separated

A workshop for divorced or separated persons will be held at the Family Service Association of Greater Boston, 1159 Hancock St., Quincy, starting Thursday, Feb. 9.

The six session workshop will meet from 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and is designed to afford interested persons an opportunity to share and learn from other people and an experienced social worker about the separation process.

Depending on group interest the workshop will also cover, the impact of separation and divorce, relationship with former spouse, effect of separation on children, coping with loneliness, dating and sex and transition to a new lifestyle.

Mrs. Linda Puretz, a professional social worker, will be the discussion leader. Information on registration may be obtained from John T. Eaton at 471-0630.

Turn Birthplaces Over To U.S.

"There sure is a lot of history here," Congressman Morris Udall remarked as he was being shown through the Presidents Adams Birthplaces a few days ago.

There sure is.

And, we shouldn't let anything happen to it.

The Congressman from Arizona, who is chairman of the House Interior Committee, was here at the invitation of City Councillor Paul Harold to tour the two historic sites.

Harold is chairman of a 10-member study committee that hopes to have the birthplaces of Presidents John and John Quincy Adams taken over by the National Park Service.

The Quincy Historical Society and the South Shore Chamber of Commerce favor the move. So does The Quincy Sun.

The city of Quincy, which has owned the two famed cottages since 1940, is finding it just too much of a job to properly maintain them. In fact, they are in such poor shape, it is estimated it will cost about $500,000 to restore them.

That's a lot of money. And as time goes on, the cottages--believed built in 1663 and 1681--will need more tender loving care as time goes on.

A 1975 study by Historical Architect David Hart shows at least 33 major repairs needed--15 at the John Quincy Adams Birthplace and 18 at the John Adams Birthplace. Included are dangerous structural defects.

In fact, the second-floor bedroom where John Quincy Adams slept as a boy, in the cottage in which he was born is in such poor condition, tourists are no longer allowed to step into the room. The floor sags under weight. The day Udall was there, he and several persons--William A. O'Connell, president of the Quincy Historical Society, his wife, Margaret, chairman of the society's House Committee, City Council President John Quinn, Harold and this writer--gingerly stepped into the room and the floor wobbled.

Others who were downstairs under the room said later they thought we would all come crashing through the ceiling. That's how bad it is.

It was only recently that the cottages were equipped with fire alarms. Burglar alarms are still needed.

In 1946, the Mansion was turned over to "the people of the United States" by the Adams Memorial Society to be administered by the Department of the Interior under the supervision of the National Park Service.

The handsome structure on Adams St., served as the summer White House for the two Presidents and was the home of four successive generations of the illustrious Adams family. The Old House, as it was affectionately known to members of the family, is kept in tip-top condition under the National Park Service and still has that "lived in look." When you visit there you find yourself thinking that John and Abigail are out for a walk and will be right back.

The Adams Birthplaces can also be given this same care if they are also presented to the people of the United States by the City of Quincy and maintained by the National Park Service.

The opportunity will be there at a public hearing Monday, Feb. 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chamber. The people of Quincy are invited to speak out first. If they indicate approval, a vote of the City Council and the Planning Board will then be necessary to transfer the cottages because they are now city property.

Congressman Udall said he was "impressed by the fierce pride that Quincy has in its heritage" but noted there comes a time when local communities cannot do it by themselves and must look to the federal government for help.

This is Quincy's time.

The Adams Birthplaces are unique in history. They are the oldest Presidential birthplaces in the country. They are the only side-by-side birthplaces of two Presidents anywhere. And they are the birthplaces of the only father-and-son Presidents, both of whom played major roles in shaping the destiny of this nation.

For anything to happen to them would be a tragedy. For Quincy to cling to ownership and let them deteriorate would be both a shame and plain selfishness.

It is up to you--the people--to see to it that these historic shrines are properly preserved for posterity. You can assure that by speaking out, the evening of Feb. 13.

Helicopters Bring Supplies To Hospital

Director Anthony DeFalco reported "everything fine" at Quincy City Hospital as of early Thursday.

A helicopter delivered needed blood Thursday morning and two more helicopters brought in drugs and other vital items Thursday afternoon.

The copters from Boston and Mansfield landed in the new Whitwell St. parking lot.

DeFalco said the hospital was in good shape as far as food and other needs were concerned.

He commended some 150 nurses and other hospital employees who stayed through the storm to aid patients.

He said he was asking doctors to discharge patients as soon as they could to allow beds for emergency cases.

DeFalco also cautioned residents with heart or other medical problems not to shovel snow. He said those in good health should take it easy shoveling.

MBTA RED LINE cars sit idly at Quincy Center Station Wednesday after being stopped cold in their tracks by snow that was blown as high as 18-foot drifts. Limited service between Quincy and Ashmont was expected to start Friday.

flooding along the shore kept our vehicles out."

The Patriot Ledger failed to publish a Tuesday edition due to weather conditions for the first time in memory and The Quincy Sun, normally on the stands Wednesday afternoon, did not make it until Friday.

Radio station WJDA was off the air for four hours Tuesday as the high tide from Town Brook rose into the first floor of the studio transmitter on Bracket St.

Public Works Commr. James J. Ricciuti said on Thursday he hoped to have all the streets in the city passable within 48 hours--"if we have the type of equipment we currently have and if the men can recover from their fatigue.

"But," he added, "that's only a calculated guess."

Quincy Police Lt. Jack Flaherty said ambulance crews and doctors were stationed in Squantum beyond the Causeway, in Houghs Neck beyond The Willows and in Germantown in case those areas were isolated by flooding.

He said eight snowmobiles were kept in action for medical assistance and two more were held in reserve at the police station.

"This is the worst I have seen in my 23 years on the job," said Flaherty.

Houghs Neck was particularly hard hit.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn said 60 or 70 families were evacuated from their homes, most of them by small boats.

"Motor vehicles were almost useless in the clogged streets," he said Thursday afternoon. "There are still areas we cannot get to with ambulances and certain fire equipment."

The Willows section near the corner of Sea and Babcock Sts. was totally submerged, cutting off the main part of houghs neck from the mainland.

Stoughton St. was inundated from water rushing down from The Willows. Kaye Gunning of 147 Stoughton St. reported water up to the top of her first floor windows.

Muriel Lyon, 613 Sea St., was one of those evacuated.

She said she lost power in her home about 11 a.m. Tuesday and water started coming in a few minutes later as high tides reached three to five feet above normal.

When a truck came to evacuate her about 9 p.m. Tuesday she was sitting by candlelight with no running water and the gas oven on as the only heat.

At one time, she said, the water was five feet deep in the house.

She was taken to the Houghs Neck School and later moved in with a friend.

There were close to 100 people in the school at the time, she said, with youngsters and dogs running around, blankets strewn on the floor and jars of peanut butter on the tables.

The porches of the Quincy Yacht Club in Houghs Neck were reported to have caved in with the bottom floor of the yacht club under water. The public landing was washed away.

SHOVELERS continued digging out MBTA cars on Quincy's Red Line Wednesday. The tracks were covered with up to 18 feet of the heavy white stuff bringing transportation to a halt.

"It's the worst I've seen in the 29 years I have lived here," said Mrs. Ruth Wainwright of 97 Manet Ave. "People who have lived here much longer than I said they have never seen it so bad."

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon threw open the kitchen of the Quincy Vo-Tech School to feed storm fighters including members of the National Guard, Civil Defense, highway crewmen, and refugees.

Fortunately, the custodian on duty at the Vo-Tech School, Harold Galvin, turned out to be a chef and he was pressed into service.

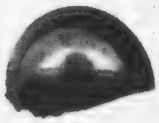
Creedon said some 1400 people were fed on Wednesday and by Thursday afternoon about 700 more had been given meals.

When food ran out in the Vo-Tech School, a Marine Corps bulldozer broke through the snow to the Central Commissary at the old Lincoln School to obtain more.

Some senior citizens were cared for in the Vo-Tech nursing school and the LPN quarters were turned into a nursery for youngsters, some as young as eight months.

School was cancelled for the week and Dr. Creedon said it might be late in the weekend before it was determined when classes can resume.

John Dillon of the New England Telephone Co. said some operators were on the job from 35 to 48 hours straight handling calls. An appeal was made for persons familiar with switchboard operations to fill in as volunteers.



Hundreds of evacuees were housed at the Quincy Armory on Hancock St., the Houghs Neck School and the Carlton House in North Quincy.

The telephone situation was such at the armory that incoming calls were being accepted but calls could not be made out causing some concern among those who could not locate relatives or friends.

Umberto Cardinal Medeiros announced that Catholic churches could distribute ashes on Sunday for those who were unable to receive them on Ash Wednesday because of the storm.

In all, more than 30 homes, most of them in the Edgewater Drive section, were damaged in Houghs Neck and more than 100 residents were still domiciled in the armory on Thursday.

Damage from the storm and the cost of digging out was expected to reach "many thousands dollars."

EXPIRED--YOU CAN say that again. Head of parking meter on Coddington St. near the old Quincy District Courthouse is mute evidence of just how much snow that fell.

Bates Fires 2 From Hospital Board

New Mayor Gustave B. Bates fired Chairman Walter F. Nichols and William J. Walsh from the five-member Board of Managers of the Quincy City Hospital, touching off a political controversy.

Mayor Bates said Nichols was ousted for failure to cooperate with his administration and Walsh was terminated "for inattention to duties in running the hospital and for the good of the service."

"I am prepared to accept the resignation of any member of the board who does not cooperate with the administration in the handling of this part of the city's business," said Bates.

The Mayor named his son, Russell T. Bates, to succeed Walsh and Fred G. Green to succeed Nichols. The younger Bates resigned from the board of trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library to take the post.

HIGH SCHOOL STALLED

Work on the new High School on Coddington St. was halted when the contractors, Coblo and Griffin, were unable to pay their workers. The $576,336.90 contract was about 50 per cent fulfilled.

John Coblo, one of the contracting partners, said the company was "caught in an increased market," then amended that to say, "We're pinched for funds at the present time ... We're broke."

Public Works Commissioner Crocker requested the bonding company to assume its liability and complete the high school project, the largest contract ever awarded by the city of Quincy.

SUPERINTENDENT REINSTATED

Bill Jones was reinstated as superintendent of streets for Quincy a few hours after his petition of a writ of mandamus was received by the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts.

Jones, who was fired Jan. 2 by Mayor Bates "for political activity and for the good of the service," claimed that his ouster was made outside the Mayor's authority.

He claimed $8 in pay for each day that he was out of work.

COAL SHORTAGE

Coal was so short in Quincy that Fuel Commissioner John F. Scott confiscated a ton that was delivered to a home in Atlantic "under false pretenses" and ordered it redistributed to the needy.

Five tons of coal was sent to Houghs Neck to be sold to the residents in 100-pound bags and Quincy coal dealers sent representatives to Boston to check rumors that several carloads were sidetracked there.

A barge with 1,500 tons of coal, overdue at the City Fuel Co. wharf, was reported sighted off Sandwich on Cape Cod, fighting headwinds and heavy seas.

BASKETEERS STAR

Quincy High School's basketball stars Herb Listman and Tommy Maskilieson scored 26 points between them as Quincy easily defeated Stoughton, 28-15. Listman had 14, Maskilieson 12.

The Quincy squad included: Bob Cliffe, Herb Listman, Tommy Maskilieson, Russ Milford, George Thompson, forwards; Ed Jacobson, center; Allan Cole, Ernie Vallee, Eric Sjorstrom, Gunnar Olson, guards.

Heart Saver Program Developing CPR Training Program

The Quincy Heart Saver Task Force has established a heart saver program for Quincy residents.

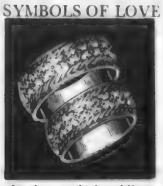
Carl Deyeso and Vincent Sullivan of the Quincy School Department are co-chairing the task force. Other members of the task force include representatives from the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, police and fire departments, hospital and health departments, the clergy and fraternal organizations and the American Heart Association.

The task force is currently developing a campaign to train as many of the city's people as possible, in the Heart Saver program's first course of Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation (CPR). The four hour course will be conducted both days and evenings. The first meeting is today (Thursday), from 6:30 p.m. to 10:30 p.m. at the Masonic Temple on Hancock St.

Persons passing this course will be covered under the state's Good Samaritan Law (Sept. 1977) which protects a person from being liable for acts or omissions, resulting from the rendering of emergency cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Certified instructors are badly needed to assist in this program. Certified volunteers would be welcome. Persons interested in the CPR course should contact the South Shore Chamber of Commerce at 479-1111.

Heart Fund Campaign



Over 12,000 volunteers in Quincy and throughout Southeast Massachusetts will be calling on their neighbors, Sunday, Feb. 12, in an effort to raise funds to support the programs of the American Heart Association.

David Connor, 1977-78 chairman for the Southeast Massachusetts Division of the Heart Association, urges all residents to give generously when their Heart Neighbor calls on or before Heart Sunday. "Cardiovascular disease is America's Number One Killer and we need everyone's help so that more will live in 1978," he said.

Donors Respond To Blood Appeal For Seriously Injured Youth

An appeal for blood donors in Feb. 2 issue of The Quincy Sun brought instant response from more than two score Quincy residents who offered to give blood needed by George Bush, 19, of 37 Union St., Quincy Point, in the intensive care unit at Quincy City Hospital.

Mrs. Ruth O'Connell, blood bank supervisor at the hospital, reports that 20 people have already given blood and an equal number have appointments for the coming week. She said 10 potential donors had to be put off because they were suffering from colds or virus. They have been asked to return at a later date.

Bush was a passenger in a car involved in an accident on Coddington St., on Dec. 26. He suffered a ruptured spleen, a damaged liver and several fractures. He has been confined to the intensive care unit on the danger list since that date.

Latest reports are that he is now showing some slight improvement.

Mrs. O'Connell had high praise for the number of people who answered the appeal and said it was heart-warming to see the response.

Chamber Supports Georges Bank Sales For Drilling

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce has reiterated its support of the sale of leases to drill for natural gas and oil off the New England shore on Georges Bank.

The sale, which had been scheduled for last Tuesday, was blocked at least temporarily by Federal Judge W. Arthur Garrity. The New England Council appealed Garrity's decision.

Chamber of Commerce President Gerald T. Reilly charged the state of Massachusetts and the Conservation Law Foundation with a long series of "delaying tactics" to block drilling in the fishing area.

"How long can an energy-starved nation, currently importing over half its oil and some of its natural gas with the resultant imbalance in foreign trade, put up with this impossible behavior?" said O'Reilly.

"While we have allowed ourselves to be led down the primrose path, always in the name of protecting the environment, Great Britain has drilled offshore and become self-sufficient in natural gas and will soon be exporting oil.

"It's about time we rejoined the real world with adequate domestic energy supplies, stimulating our economy and producing jobs."

Contract Awarded For Fore River Clubhouse Roof Repairs

Renovations to the roof of the Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Rd, Quincy Point, will get underway as soon as the weather permits, according to City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi.

The $13,800 contract has been awarded to the Paul J. Rogan Co. of Boston. Rogan said that, weather permitting, the work will be done in three weeks.

It includes removal of 5,000 square feet of shingles, replacement of rotten roof boards and reshingling of the entire roof with new windseal shingles.

Funding for the project is being provided through the community development bond issue for the Quincy Point section. The work will be supervised by a Park Department foreman.

The Fore River Clubhouse, the community center of Quincy Point, is municipally owned by the Park Department and its facilities are used by more than 40,000 people a year.

PRESENTATION of scrapbook dealing with Quincy Junior College affairs back to 1960 is made by Charles T. Sweeny [left], co-founder of the Community College Association of Quincy, to William O'Connell, president of the Quincy Historical Society and historian of the Association.

Quincy Junior College Growth Traced

Starting with six students back in 1955, Quincy Junior College, then College Courses, Inc., has grown until today it has 3,972 students, School Committeeman Charles T. Sweeny, told the first meeting of the Community College Association of Quincy at its inaugural meeting.

Sweeny and the late Dr. Charles Djerf, were co-founders of College Courses, Inc., to sponsor late afternoon courses for interested young adults.

"Now Quincy Junior College which evolved from this idea, provides excellent quality, accessible, low cost education. The QJC has consistently run those programs at no cost to the taxpayers of Quincy," Sweeny said.

Dr. Edward Pierce, president of QJC, reviewed the growth of the college from 1958, when it was established by the Board of Collegiate Authority, to the present. He paid tribute to the vision and dedication of members of the Community College Association for their work in making the college a viable educational institution.

During the program Sweeny presented William O'Connell, president of the Quincy Historical Society, with a scrapbook containing news clippings and pictures of events at the college from 1960 on. The book had been given to Sweeny by a former employee of the college. O'Connell said the scrapbook will become a part of the Historical Society's collection of memorabilia.

Scouts Mark 50th Anniversary Of Camp Massasoit

Scouts from Quincy, 250 of them from 13 troops, joined scouts and scoutmasters from throughout Greater Boston for a weekend on the shores of Elbow Pond, Plymouth, to mark the 50th anniversary of Camp Massasoit.

During the weekend, scouts participated in various activities ranging from canoeing, archery, handicrafts, hiking the shores of Elbow Pond and experiencing a "slide for life.".

A number of Quincy scouts who contributed to the building of the camp and who have since passed away, were remembered in services conducted at the camp circle.

At formal ceremonies, Harold Crowley of 3 Flagg St., Wollaston, president of the Massasoit Campers Association, introduced Boston Council President Marshall Sloane. Sloane was commended for his recent recommendation to the Boston Council Executive Board to remove Camp Massasoit from the market for sale.

Following the ceremonies, John and Buell Fuller of Quincy, whose association with the camp spans its entire 50 years, led all the scouts in a rededication to the ideals of the scouting movement.

The weekend's festivities closed with an anniversary campfire.

Those who were unable to attend the celebration and who might wish a copy of the anniversary souvenir booklet, may obtain one by contacting Crowley.

Performances In March

Community Theater In Rehearsal For 'The Gingerbread Lady'

The Quincy Recreational Community Theater, under the direction of Frank Moffett, will present Neil Simon's "The Gingerbread Lady", March 3 and 4, 10 and 11, at 8 p.m. in the Broad Meadows Junior High School auditorium.

"The Gingerbread Lady" is a realistic portrait of a woman and her struggle with alcoholism. The stark reality of "The Gingerbread Lady" is liberally laced with humor in the well-known Simon style. Simon's work included "Barefoot In The Park", the "Odd Couple" and the current "Goodbye Girl".

The cast for the Quincy Recreational Community Theater production includes:

Michael Coleman, Evelyn Griffin, Alyce Feathers, Jimmy Martorano, Sarah Poole, Mark Matthews, Geoff Chamberlain, Marilyn Flynn and Barbara Knowles.

Transportation will be provided for Quincy Senior Citizens for the March 4 performance. For ticket information contact the Quincy Recreation Department [773-1380].

Dana Cetlin Member Dartmouth Glee Club

Dana Cetlin of 10 Williams St., North Quincy, Class of 1980 at Dartmouth College will perform in Spaulding Auditorium at Dartmouth's Hopkins Center this year as a member of the Dartmouth College Glee Clubs.

Dana, along with the 120 men and women of the Glee Clubs, will present a repertoire of part songs, poems and Biblical texts set to music, medleys from musicals, and the traditional songs of Dartmouth. This year the Glee Clubs have as a part of their concert schedule, a four-state spring tour and performances for many of the big Dartmouth weekends at the Hopkins Center.

Dana has been with the Glee Club since his freshman year and is also a member of the Dartmouth Aires, an acappela male choir. He had had prior experience as a member of the North Quincy High School Choir.

Dana, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron M. Cetlin, attended North Quincy High School before entering Dartmouth.

EDA Designation Would Bring Federal Funds For Quincy-S.S. Area

Quincy and the South Shore is on the verge of being designated an Economic Development Administration area, which would give it access to Federal EDA funds.

Carla Johnson, executive director of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council, told members of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce recently that EDA designation for the area is "imminent."

She said the MAPC has completed its Overall Economic Development Plan for the Boston area, meeting all requirements set down by the EDA, and needs only EDA approval to give the South Shore access to funds.

Walter Hannon, executive director of the South Shore Economic Development Corp., said access to EDA funding can mean economic rejuvenation for the South Shore through the recently enacted state Jobs Bill.

The legislation aims to develop available, undustrially zoned tracts of land in area communities resulting in increased output of tax dollars and consequently hundreds of new jobs.

Ms. Johnson said that the EDA has delayed final designation because of the failure by the MAPC to meet certain affirmative action requirements. This problem has been rectified, she said.

The only possible holdup now, she said, is if the EDA chooses to wait fc the arrival of a formal letter com the minority caucus before approving actual designation.

She said she would not rule out the possibility of another delay because the EDA "keeps changing the rules."

MDA AWARDS -- Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Quincy Park-Recreation Board, Quincy Sun publisher Henry Bosworth, Ch. 5's Natalie Jacobson and Chet Curtis were among those receiving awards from the Muscular Dystrophy Association at a recent reception at the Backside Restaurant, Dedham. Koch and Bosworth were co-chairmen of the Quincy-South Shore Jerry Lewis Telethon Committee and The Sun was the local pledge center. Miss Jacobson and Curtis were Ch. 5 hosts for the Labor Day telethon. The Quincy area raised approximately $60,000 in pre-telethon activities and Labor Day pledges.

Brownell Would Lower State Meals Tax To 5%

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] is co-sponsor of a bill to repeal the current 6 per cent state meals tax and replace it with a 5 per cent sales tax on meals, effective July 1.

Brownell said the measure would save the state's taxpayers about $18 million a year and end confusion between the two taxes.

"The legislation will also benefit Massachusetts taxpayers by allowing the meals tax to be deducted as a sales tax on federal income tax forms," said Brownell.

The bill further clarifies existing law so that the sales tax on meals also will apply to alcoholic beverages and cover charges in restaurants.

And it provides that the sales tax on meals will not apply to children's summer camps and employers who provide meals to employees as part of their compensation and to waitresses' tips.

Brownell predicted that the repeal of the meals tax would not necessarily reduce state revenue because the reduced tax would probably stimulate the restaurant and fast food business.

Co-sponsor of the bill is Rep. David J. Lane [R-Essex].

Houghs Neck Council, School Committee To Meet

The Houghs Neck Community Council will meet with the Quincy School Committee in St. Aquinas Hall on Darrow St., at 8 p.m., Tuesday, Feb. 14.

For the third year the Houghs Neck Council will have the opportunity to discuss issues of concern with the School Committee. Topics will pertain to possible school closings, administrative efficiency and the six-day cycle.

Also, newly elected members will give their first impressions and feelings on traditional issues such as fiscal autonomy, spending, curriculum, etc.

Questions will be welcomed and encouraged.

South-West Credit Union Declares Dividend

The South-West Credit Union has announced a 6 percent dividend for the last six months of 1977, according to Dorothy Higgins, treasurer.

The 135 members of the credit union, headquartered at 372 Granite St., also earned a 6 percent dividend for the first half of 1977.

In addition to the savings and loan accounts, the Credit Union also has a Christmas club and family memberships. Shares are protected by Cuna Mutual Insurance Co.

Membership is open to anyone who lives or works in the South West Quincy area. Membership fee is 25 cents.

Flower tips from Andre Moreau

What grows in virtually every color except yellow, comes in hundreds of varieties, is native to tropical America, New Zealand and Tahiti and grows upright or trailing? It's the queen of the shade garden, the elegant fushia! Not temperamental, needing minimum care, fushias improve with age and are lovely to look at. They tend to be thirsty so never permit the soil to dry out. Water twice a day in hot weather but not in direct sunlight. Mist the top and undersides of the leaves to ward off insects and use an all purpose insecticide weekly. From pure white to deep purple, carmine orange, pink or blue, fushia will cascade into color in your garden.

Just a reminder that Feb. 14, St. Valentine's Day is only a few short days away and what better way to show your love than with a lovely plant or floral arrangement from NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100. We invite you to stop by our showroom where you are sure to find the perfect gift. Every day of the year make NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP your full service florist. CETA Gets $750,000 For Computer Job Training

Quincy CETA is establishing a Skilled Training Improvement Program with a $750,000 grant designated to train unemployed persons in computer programming and in the field of industrial health.

The program will begin March 1 and continue for eight months Monday through Friday on a fulltime basis with participants receiving a training allowance of $2.65 an hour plus travel allowance.

It will be offered by Bolt, Beranak and Newman, Inc., 50 Moulton St., Cambridge.

Eligible for the program are those who are economically disadvantaged or at an income below the living standard for the area; and those receiving aid to families with dependent children [AFDC].

The computer programming course will offer training in computer programming operations, systems and applications as well as skill enhancement in math, writing and communication.

The industrial health specialists will concentrate their efforts on the field of health protection and analyzing problems related to worker health in various manufacturing organizations.

Mayor Tobin, who announced the program, said there is a high demand for qualified personnel in both areas with earning potentials of up to $14,000 a year.

Persons interested in the program should apply at the CETA unit of the Department of Employment Security, 1433 Hancock St., Quincy, 02169. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply.

Ciampa, Donahue Re-elected At Huntington, Longwood

Two Quincy men were re-elected officers of the Huntington General and Longwood Hospitals at the annual meeting of the Board of Trustees.

Arthur Ciampa of 409 Adams St., Quincy Center, was re-elected vice-president and Joseph A. Donahue, 82 Crabtree Rd, Squantum was re-elected treasurer of both hospitals.

Ciampa, who is executive director of Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Area, Inc., previously served as secretary of the board and is also chairman of the Hospital's Membership Committee. He has been active in a number of civic and community organizations and presently is a member of the John D. Mackay Scholarship Fund Trustees of the Quincy Rotary Club, a member of the Board of Directors of the Children's Protective Services, South Shore District, and a Trustee of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

He is also a member of the RSVP Advisory Council, the South Regional Advisory Council, State Department of Education, and the speakers bureau of the United Way of Massachusetts Bay. Governor Volpe appointed him to the Massachusetts Vocational Rehabilitation Commission and he was Chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging for six years.

Donahue, who is also chairman of the Funds & Investment Committee of the hospital, is a well known Quincy Architect. He is a member of the American Institute of Architects, Boston Society of Architects, member of the Board of Directors of the Quincy Rotary Club, the Wollaston Golf Club, and a member of the Board of Directors of Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Area, Inc. He also is a former member and Chairman of the Review Committee of the Health Planning Council of Greater Boston Area, and has been associated with the Massachusetts Bay United Fund.

Also elected to the Board of Trustees of the Huntington General Hospital was Red Sox pitcher, Louis Tiant, who lives in Milton.

The Huntington General Hospital Complex which includes two hospitals, provides medical and surgical care to patients in a community hospital setting.

6 Others Benefit

7 Quincy Agencies Receive $234,352 From United Way

Seven agencies in Quincy have received a total of $234,352 from the United Way of Massachusetts Bay as their allocations for health and human care services.

The allocations are $46,052 more than the 1977 allocations with four agencies receiving increases, four remaining at last year's level and one new agency added to the list.

The agencies' allocations and the changes are:

Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore Area, up $9,252; Blue Hill Girl Scout Council, $58,300, up $3,300; Quincy YMCA, $45,000, up $1,500; South Shore Day Care Services, $28,000, the new agency; Quincy Visiting Nurse Association, $26,000, no change; South Shore Mental Health Association, $12,000, no change, and Homemaker Services for the South Shore, $5,000, up $4,000.

Six other agencies will benefit from United Way allocations to their parent organizations: Greater Quincy Chapter of the American Red Cross; South Shore Office of the Family Service Association of Greater Boston; Salvation Army Corps Neighborhood Center; South Shore District of the Children's Protective Services (Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children); Quincy office of Greater Boston Legal Services, and the Quincy Jewish Community Center, funded through the Combined Jewish Philanthropies.

The allocations were approved by the United Way Voluntary Board of Directors at its December meeting, following the examinations of agencies' financial accounting, management abilities, service delivery, and overall performance. The examinations were accomplished by 95 volunteers, comprising eight allocations committees. Dollar amounts are based on the result of the 1977 United Way Campaign, which raised a record $18 million.

The application of South Shore Day Care Services for United Way membership was also approved by the board of directors at its December meeting. With its administrative office in Quincy, South Shore Day Care Services has 11 day care centers located throughout the South Shore. The United Way's Social Services Review Committee, the 17-member voluntary allocations committee which examined the agency's application, recommended that the agency be accepted for United Way membership because expanded day care services are needed in the area and that the agency is well managed and has high quality programming. Currently, the agency has three programs: pre-school and after-school day care and family day care.

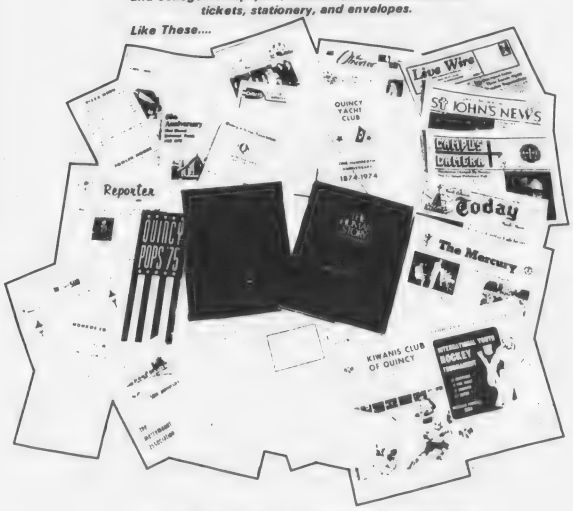
The total allocations made by the United Way to all of its member agencies for 1978 is $15,150,369, an increase of $1 million from 1977. The money will help to support 161 agencies in the Mass. Bay area.

Marshall Not Interested In Los Angeles Police Chief Job

Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford H. Marshall has been asked to submit an application for the position of Chief of Police of Los Angeles, but says "at the present" he does not intend applying for the job.

Marshall reports he has received a letter from the general manager of the Los Angeles Police Department stating that he is considered "A qualified and eligible applicant."

The Board of Civil Service Commissioners in Los Angeles requested that he become a candidate for the position.



Marshall says he is pleased by the request, but will not follow up on it.

Quincy, Bertoni Eye Titles

Quincy's hockey team is right back in the thick of the Suburban League title fight and the Presidents' Brian Bertoni is well on his way to the league scoring crown.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy team defeated Weymouth North, 3-1, Saturday to climb to within one point of league-leading Brookline, which dropped a 1-0 decision to Newton North. Quincy (8-3-1) is tied with Newton for second place.

Bertoni, the Presidents' co-captain, added two points to his total after scoring five points in the win over North Quincy earlier in the week. He now has 30 points.

Saturday, Quincy hosts Waltham at 6:40 at the Youth Arena and Wednesday will play at Brockton at 6:30.

North Quincy, idle last Saturday, will be at Brookline Saturday at 2:30 and will be home to Weymouth North Wednesday at 6:40 at the Youth Arena.

Quincy scored a goal in each period to beat Weymouth North. Bertoni scored in the first period with Tom Cahill, the league's number two scorer with 27 points, assisting. Sophomore Robbie Craig scored the winning goal in the second period with Mike Furey assisting and Cahill added the insurance marker with assists for Bertoni and Mike Bondarick.

Earlier in the week Quincy won the city championship with its second win over North Quincy, 6-3, sparked by Bertoni's hat trick and two assists.

North peppered Quincy goalie Jim Deitsch in the first period and Pat Ennis put the Raiders ahead, 1-0, with Mike Pitts assisting. Quincy tied it later in the period on Bertoni's first goal. Cahill assisted.

Quincy made it 2-1, with just 14 seconds gone in the second period, on Bertoni's second goal as Cahill again assisted, but Pitts tied it for the Raiders with John Cooney setting him up.

Quincy exploded for four last period goals. Scott Richardson made it 3-2 only 46 seconds into the period with Bertoni assisting. Bertoni added the winning goal at 1:37 of the period with Cahill again having an assist. Mike Marks scored North's final goal with Bryan McGilvray and Ed Marrella assisting. Cahill scored with assists for Mark Giordani and Bertoni and Jack Campbell capped the scoring with an unassisted goal on an empty net with 11 seconds left.

LETTER WINNER -- Quincy's Preston Carroll was recently awarded his second varsity football letter at Northeastern University. Carroll, sophomore halfback and return man, carried the ball 40 times for a 2.8 average and one touchdown. He also ranked second in return yardage averaging 15.5 yards per kickoff and 8.6 yards per punt. The 1975 graduate of Quincy High, where he lettered in football, baseball and basketball, is majoring in physical education.

3 North Wrestlers Await State Tourney

The North Quincy wrestling team, forced to forfeit two and three matches in each meet, is having its troubles this season but Coach Steve Joyce has three wrestlers whom he expects to do well in the upcoming state tournament.

Ed Beck (114 pounds) is unbeaten in three years and will be seeded number one in the sectionals Feb. 17-18 at Scituate. Joyce feels he has an excellent chance at winning the state crown. The state finals will be at Wayland Feb. 24-25.

Butch Montoya, who will enter at 128 pounds, and Ed Evanson, 169, also will be in the sectionals and are expected to do well.

The Raiders, again forced to forfeit three matches, were defeated by Scituate, 49-12, last Friday. Beck, Montoya and Evanson were the only North winners.

Earlier in the week North lost to Duxbury, 41-20, with the same three winners. Steve Sweet went to a draw.

North will face Quincy for the city championship Saturday at 6 at Quincy Armory.

Mancuso's Team Wins Koch Club Men's First Half

Captain Steve Mancuso and his team have captured the first half of the Koch Club Men's Bowling League with 72 wins and 40 losses.

Assisting in the victory were team members Dick Koch Jr., John Guinta, Frank Alibrandi and Charlie Moschella.

John O'Malley's team finished second with a 71-41, while Jim Moody's team compiled a 70-42 record dropping out of first spot in the final match of the first half.

Top 10 averages:

Al Mancuso and John O'Malley tied for top with 105.9 each, Steve Mancuso 102.8, Jim Moody 102.6, Jim Cocce 102.3, Leo Marshall 102.1, Walter Zukaaskus 101.0, Don Thomas 100.4, George Jakub 99.1, and Tony Monti, Dick Koch Jr. and Tom Grogan tied with 99.0 apiece.

Paul Koch Jr. holds the league's high individual three string total of 368, and high single string of 142, while Jim Moody's team holds the league's high team three string total of 1578, and high team single string of 548.

Now in its 28th season of competition the league bowls each Tuesday evening at 7 p.m. at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome on Quincy Shore Drive. Don Thomas is president of the league, Arthur Thomas secretary, and Jim Cocce treasurer.

Recreation Dept. Staffers Complete CPR Training

Members of Quincy Recreation Department's aquatics staff recently completed retraining in cardiopulmonary resuscitation [CPR] as required by Massachusetts State Law.

Each year all members of the Recreation Aquatics staff are trained in CPR and first aid so that they remain prepared to act in the event of a water based emergency. Those completing the American Red Cross course are recertified in emergency procedures for a one year period.

Instructor for the course was Nancy Joyce of the Recreation Department's staff and an instructor of CPR assigned from the Greater Quincy Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Staff members who completed the course are Janice Costello, Robert Gordon, Laurie Gullage, Lee Gullage, Nancy Ellis, Joanne Kussman, George McCall, Joseph Moran and Steven Orlando.

North's Tourney Hopes Shattered

It looks like no tournament this year for North Quincy's basketball team, but the Raiders have one consolation, they are the city champions.

After defeating Quincy for the second time, North lost two more games last week to the Suburban League co-leaders for their seventh and eighth losses. Five of the Raiders' losses have been by one point, and one of last week's was by two.

Eddie Miller's North team will play at Weymouth South Friday night and will be home to Sharon in a non-league game Tuesday night at the Vo-Tech gym.

Last Friday North bowed to Cambridge's Suburban League co-leaders, 59-50, as Rindge and Latin's sensational 6-6 freshman scored 16 points, had 13 rebounds and seven rejections.

Earlier the Raiders had dropped a 48-46 squeaker in overtime to Brockton, the other co-leader.

North had a chance to win it with eight seconds left in regulation time and had another opportunity when it held the ball for 2:55 of the three-minute extra session.

After holding the ball for nearly the entire overtime period, the Raiders missed the only shot taken from the floor. Brockton got the ball, Jay Kelleher was fouled and hit on both shots to win it.

For North, Pete Johnston had 18 points and Wink Phelan scored 13, including three key baskets in the fourth period when North rallied to tie.

Earlier North had edged Quincy, 39-37, for its second win over the Presidents and won the city title.

North rallied from a 17-12 first period deficit. The inspired Presidents, who hadn't won a game, led until 3:50 of the final period when Joe Dean's jumper, the only basket of the period, put the Raiders in front.

Phelan was the only North player in double figures with 11 points.

Victory Comes Hard For Presidents

This has been the most frustrating season in Quincy basketball coach Joe Amorosino's career, but at least he won't have to suffer through a winless year.

After 13 straight losses during which the Presidents handicapped by a lack of experience and size, never quit and staged numerous rallies only to fall short, finally gained their first win last week with a 49-47 squeaker over Brookline.

And Quincy did it with two of its top players, John Connolly and Ken Ames, on the sidelines with injuries. Connolly sprained his ankle in the opening period to join Ames but, even with the team's best scorers missing, the Presidents stayed with Brookline all the way.

"It was like Quantrill's Raiders in the second half the way these kids played," said a happy Amorosino. "Ron Donovan was the only senior on the court with three sophomores and a junior, but he had these kids fired up stealing passes and diving for the ball."

Soph Dana Guidice was the high scorer with 12 points and seven rebounds. Ron Donovan had seven points, seven rebounds and a number of assists. Soph Brian Donovan scored two of his three baskets with two minutes left to give Quincy the lead for keeps, John Faulkner had five key rebounds and Soph Andy Carrera had four assists to go with his six points.

Quincy couldn't make it two in a row Friday, however, as it bowed to Franklin, 59-54, despite a furious last period comeback.

Trailing, 43-26, after three periods, the Presidents combined a pressing defense with the scoring of Dave Austin and Ron Donovan to pull within four, 52-48, with 1:54 remaining.

But Franklin's 6-6 John Walls, who had 19 points, hit on two quick turnaround jumpers to nail it down for the Hockomock League entry which is 14-2 on the season.

Ames had 13 points, Ron Donovan and Sophomore Austin nine each and Guidice eight.

Earlier Quincy, leading 17-12, after a period, was nipped by North Quincy, 39-37, to give the Raiders the city crown. Ames had 20 points.

The Presidents will host Newton North Friday night and will play at Cambridge Rindge and Latin Tuesday night.

Ann Woodman Wins Elk Free Throw

Ann Woodman of 113 Oxenbridge Rd., Wollaston, representing the Mass. Fields School, won the Elks basketball free throw contest for the City of Quincy recently and then won the Southern Division contest.

Ann will be in the state finals Saturday, sponsored by the Massachusetts Elks Association, Inc.

President's Physical Fitness Demonstration At Broad Meadows

Mass. Commissioner of Education Gregory Anrig and Charles Grigsby, chairman of the Mass. Board of Education were among those present Monday for a physical education demonstration at Broad Meadows Junior High School, one of 10 schools selected as a demonstration center for the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports.

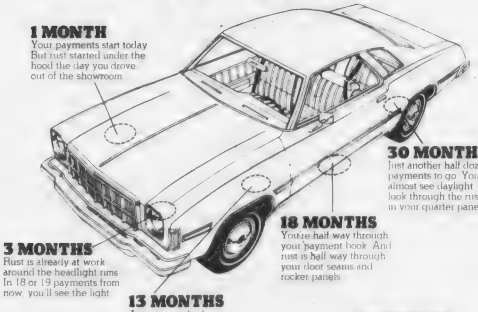
Following the physical ed demonstration a ceremony was held with Comr. Anrig and Chairman Grigsby and a business meeting was held among the demonstration center schools to determine future programs and plans.

A review of the regular physical education class demonstrating various physical education activity and movement offerings was held in the gym under the supervision of instructors Denise Martin and John Bogan.

Greetings were extended by Principal David Tenney of Broad Meadows, Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon and Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, followed by a gym exhibition by the Broad Meadows team directed by Miss Martin and Bogan.

Michael Willey, Mass. Director of Health/Human Development presented demonstration center certificates. Willey, Creedon, Anrig, School Committee Vice Chairwoman Patricia Toland spoke.

Broad Meadows and the nine other schools will serve in an advisory capacity to the State Department of Education's Bureau of Student Services, Programs in Health and Human Development, as support sources in the area of physical education.



Each year the President's Council on Physical Fitness requests that the Dept. of Education cooperate with the Council by identifying ten physical fitness demonstration centers in the Commonwealth.

The Council's aim in establishing this project is to focus attention on individual schools recognized as having outstanding programs in health and physical education.

All school systems in the Commonwealth were afforded the opportunity to apply for this distinction and more than 20 did so.

The other schools selected were Randolph High, Brockton High, Central Berkshire Regional School District, Dalton; Kiley Junior High, Springfield; Elmwood Street Elementary School, Millbury; Rockport Public School System, Triton Regional High, Byfield; Wayland Public School System, Wayland, and Worcester East Middle Junior High, Worcester.

YOUR NEW CAR IS RUSTING AWAY FASTER THAN YOU CAN PAY FOR IT.

If you want to have any car left at the end of your money, insist on professional Tuff Kote Dinol rustproofing the moment you buy it. Only Tuff Kote uses a two step rust proofing system. You get: (1) An exclusive rust neutralizing penetrant that goes down to the bare metal and stops existing rust in its tracks. (2) A special aluminized sealant that keeps out moisture and prevents rust from ever starting again. That's why Tuff Kote can guarantee its new car rustproofing for five full years.

And that's why only Tuff Kote can effectively rustproof used cars, and guarantee them for two years. If you own a used car, Tuff Kote is the only one who can effectively rustproof it. If you own a new car, Tuff Kote is the only one who should.

North Trackmen Seek 3rd Straight State Crown

The North Quincy track team seeks its third straight state championship today (Thursday) in the annual meet at Reading.

The Raiders are defending champions in Class C and two years ago they won the Class B crown.

Coach Lou Tozzi has three boys who are among the favorites, John Saville and Mike Barrett in the two-mile and Mike Gallagher in the shot put.

Quincy failed to appear for last week's scheduled Suburban League meet with North, which won by forfeit to raise its record to 7-3.

The Raiders, credited with sweeps in each event, competed against other league teams.

North's results: Mile, won, sophomore John Barrett; 2, Dave Abbott; 3, John Ricciuti.

1000, won by John McGuiggan; 2, John O'Hare; 3, Mike Linehan.

600 - won by Tim O'Neil; 2, Tom Kane; 3, Rich Schactzel.

300, won by Dan McIntyre; 2, Tom Fennessey; 3, Pat Carroll.

220, won by Paul McCormick; 2, Mike Ricciuti; 3, John Cassy.

High jump, won by Bob Ferrara; 2, O'Neil.

Shot put, won by Paul Ahern; 2, Ted Koberski; 3, Joe Venezia.

Hurdles, won by Bob Biagini.

Dash, won by Russ Chisholm; 2, Mike Gallagher.

Two-mile, won by Mike Hatfield.

Relay, won by Fennessey, McIntyre, McGuiggan and O'Neil.

"We had some fine performances," Tozzi said. "Barrett did 5:08 in the mile for his best time, and McGuiggan, who fell, did a fine job. O'Neil's time of 1:21 was his best in the 600, and the relay time of 3:49 was our best."

Incidentally, one of Tozzi's stars of the past three years, Jerry MacKenzie, now a Northeastern University freshman, made an excellent showing in last Saturday's Greater Boston College meet at Harvard, placing third in the 880.

Quincy Girls Defeat Brookline, North Bows To Brockton

The Quincy girls' basketball team, which earlier clinched the city championship with its second win over North Quincy, improved its record to 6-5 last week with a 48-33 win over Brookline.

Debbie Russo paced Barbara Webster's First Ladies with 18 points and Laura Riley added 10.

North Quincy's luckless team, winner of only one game, dropped a 63-34 decision to Brockton as Patty Bellotti paced the Raiderettes' attack.

In its previous game Quincy had edged Weymouth South, 46-44, with Paula Lynch scoring the winning basket with 1:20 to go. Lynn Powers had 14 points, Riley 12 and Russo sank some key foul shots down the stretch.

Earlier Quincy had clinched the city crown with an easy 50-36 win over Brian Tilley's North girls, leading all the way.

Powers scored 23 points, 10 in the final period, while Linda Ayles paced North with 12.

The Raiderettes bounced back from that loss to top Brookline, 49-40, for its only win as Ayles sparked a last period surge to insure the win. She had 23 points and Phyllis Germain added 14.

Quincy will play at Newton Friday at 3:15 and Tuesday will host Cambridge Rindge and Latin at 3:15. North will be home to Weymouth South Friday at 3:15.

Beechwood Knoll, Snug Harbor Bombardment Tourney Winners

The Quincy Recreation Dept. recently completed its fifth annual bombardment tournament with the Beechwood Knoll Center winning the girls' elementary championship and Snug Harbor taking the boys' crown.

Bombardment is a game similar to dodge ball. This year's tournament had more than 370 participants in both divisions. Twenty-four centers were represented by players who played in a single elimination format until a champion was decided.

Snug Harbor coaches Bob Uhlar and Bill Hebert watched as the tournament final with Wollaston went the full seven games and their team won the city title for the third time in five years.

Assistant Director of Recreation Barry J. Welch presented championship trophies to Snug Harbor players Thomas Richardson, Sean Glynn, Michael Notorangelo, Michael Flynn, Robert Stein, Tony Cascarano, George McGinnis, Steve Austin, William Michaud, Matthew Hanley, Scott Verria, Scott Dolley, Daniel Turbucco, James Norton, Steven Walker, Daniel McCaully, William Burghead, Joseph Cullen, Steven Montgomery, Randy Riley and Patrick Keefe.

Among the standouts for the other centers were:

Mike O'Connor and Charlie Murphy of Gridley Bryant, Joe O'Hare and Robert Kane of Parker, Bobby Foreman and Jerry Dobbes of Atherton Hough, the Jolley brothers, Eric and Kevin, of Adams; Morgan O'Shea, Mark Callahan, Jim Burke, Larry Leonard, Brian Spring and Tom Cook of Sterling; Mike Molloy, Mike Novak and Adam Rosen of Merrymount Center; Danny Morris, Mike Bates and Paul Marsters of Central; Mike Killilea and Jim Capone of Quincy Center, Jim Kennedy, Chris Bunker and Tim McGrath of Montclair; Brian Gibbon, Steve Maloney and Dennis Cronin of Mass Fields; Paul Ryan, Jack Bolster, Shawn Kennedy of Wollaston, and Matt McGuiggan and Rance Gillespie of Squantum.

The girls' final between Beechwood Knoll and Snug Harbor also went the full seven games before Coach Cheryl Walsh's Beechwood team took the title.

Welch presented trophies to the Beechwood Knoll players, Dawn M. LaPenna, Kathy McGregor, Catherine O'Brien, Mary Ellen Colon, Eileen Crehan, Jean Shea, Laura Kelleher, Karen Koski, Kathy O'Leary, Laura Micelli, Brooke Smith, Kathy Koski, Ann Duggan, Carol Jones, Elizabeth O'Brien, Shelby Canty and Maryann Kelleher.

Among the top players for the other centers were Karen Cullen, Kathy Mund and Susan Cook of Snug Harbor; Susan Boudreau and Paula Shaw of Atherton Hough, Ann Sousa, Cheryl Murphy and Kris McAulduff of Parker; Sandra Austin and Donna Woods of Mass Fields, Susan Barclay and Jennifer Johnson of Wollaston, Julie Clark and Julia Baker of Montclair, and Carolyn Mercier and Joanne Sullivan of Squantum.

A Team Takes Choate Hall Tournament

Quincy's Slap Shot Photo Girls A team successfully defended its Choate Rosemary Hall Invitational Tournament in Wallingford, Conn., by defeating West Haven, 2-1, in sudden death overtime in the title game.

Lisa Norling had the winning goal with Eileen Marr assisting.

Quincy, coached by Paul Hussey, Frank McAuliffe and Bill Lewis, blanked host Rosemary

Quincy, coached by Paul Hussey, Frank McAuliffe and Bill Lewis, blanked host Rosemary Hall, 3-0, in the first game on goals by Mary Ellen Riordan, Peggy Burchill and Eileen Marr.

In the next game Quincy trampled St. Lawrence College, 13-0, as Maureen Santry and Lauren Apollo each had a hat trick, Marr, Kathy Flynn and Nancy MacDonald had two goals each and Riordan one.

In the West Haven game Santry put Quincy on the scoreboard early in the first period with a slapshot from the point. West Haven pulled its goalie and scored with 15 seconds left in the game. Marr got control of the puck and made a perfect pass to Norling, who tucked the puck in behind West Haven's goalie.

Co-Capt. Riordan was chosen on the all-tourney team as center and Santry was named on defense. Goalie Lynn McGoff was outstanding.

Foul Shooting Contest Winners In Regional Competition

The Quincy Recreation Dept. recently co-sponsored with the Quincy Lodge of Elks a foul shooting contest for boys and girls 9-13 years of age.

The Recreation Dept. held contests in each of its 19 centers with the winners advancing to the city finals. More than 1000 boys and girls took part.

The City of Quincy winners will advance to regional and state competition with a chance to take part in the national competition.

The City of Quincy winners: Girls 8 and 9, Mary Ann Kelleher; girls 10 and 11, Anne Woodman; girls 12 and 13, Lisa Ventola; boys 8 and 9, Larry Taglieri; boys 10 and 11, Jackie Bolster; boys 12 and 13, Jeff Morrison.

Koch Club Girls First Half Winners

Winners of the first half in the Koch Club Girls Seniors Bowling League are Patrice McDermott, Rita Falcetta, Faith Carnley and Theresa Jones.

Maureen O'Toole's team has high team three and high team single. Carol Flynn rolled high three of 369 and Joanne Meehan has high single of 132.

The Top Ten: O'Toole, 101.6; Meehan, 98.7; Peggy Burchill, 96.5; Debbie Koch, 93.5; Tricia McKay, 93.3; Lynn Doherty, 92.9; Flynn, 92.8; McDermott, 92.0; Karen O'Reilly, 91.8; Jean Doherty and Maureen MacDonald, 91.4.

The Koch Club girls meet Friday afternoons at 4:45 at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome.

The first bicycle, invented in 1839, weighed 59 pounds.

Wes Cobb 1st Winner In MDA Bowling Contest

Wes Cobb of 8 Mears Ave., Houghs Neck, helped to fight muscular dystrophy and won himself four bowling balls at the same time Sunday at Olindy's Bowling Lanes.

Cobb matched Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth's 318 three string total. He donated 50 cents to the Muscular Dystrophy Association for the privilege.

Actually, six contestants tied at 318 but Cobb's name was drawn as the winner.

The others were M. Eklund, 89 Baxter Ave., Quincy Point; Antonio Chiocchio, 24 Richie Rd., South Quincy; Ed Kallio, 82 Dayton St., West Quincy; Frank D'Angelo of Braintree and James Hatfield of Weymouth.

Their names, as well as those of the hundreds who guessed wrong, will go back into the barrel for second, third and fourth chances on the next four Sundays.

There is still time for others to make their guesses and get into the contest by donating 50 cents to MDA. There is no limit to entries.

The weekly prizes, four candlepin balls and a bag to carry them in, were donated by Paramount, Inc., the manufacturer, and Olindy's Lanes, 170 Quincy Ave., operated by John, James and Stephen Mezzetti.

O'LINDY'S

LUCKY TOTAL CONTEST

You can win a set of four Paramount balls and bag if your three string total comes closes to or matches the total bowled by Quincy Sun Publisher, Henry Bosworth.

Mail or bring to O'Lindy's Bowling Lanes, 170 Quincy Ave., Quincy, Mass. 02169. Enclose 50¢ donation.

FALLING THROUGH THE ICE

What would you do if someone fell through the ice while skating on a frozen pond? Perhaps it's more important to tell you what you shouldn't do first. Don't try to pull him out with your hands. You may break through the already weakened ice also. Then it's double trouble.

Get a pole or ladder or long board or similar object and crawl on the ice until you are close to the victim. Lie prone and inch forward. This distributes your weight over a larger section. Extend the pole or board so that the victim can grab it. Pull him slowly forward, breaking the ice if necessary, until he reaches a firm spot. Help him out when you can do so without breaking through the ice.

To prevent frostbite, keep the victim warm with heavy blankets. Bring him inside as soon as possible and give him a warm drink.

Always be wary of frozen ponds, lakes or rivers and never skate alone if possible.

Burke Club Leads Tight Race

Only three points separate the top four teams in the Quincy Bowling Little Loop as Atty. George Burke Club leads Bryan Post VFW by one point.

Last week's results: Bryan Post 4, Hennessy Plumbing Supply 0; Quincy Elks 4, Montclair Men's Club 0; Hutchinsol Oil 3, Harold Club 1; McIntyre Club 3, Morrissey Club 1; Burke 3, Brett Club 1; Bowladrome 3, LaRaia Club 1; Granite Lodge 3, Atlantic Fuel oil 1.

The standings: Burke, 38-18 [total pinfall of 18,230]; Bryan Post, 37-19 [18,330]; Granite Lodge, 36-20 [17,995]; McIntyre, 35-21 [18,065]; Elks, 31-25 [18,026]; Bowladrome, 28-28 [18,213]; Atlantic, 28-28 [17,867]; Harold, 27-29 [18,008]; Hutchinson, 25-31 [17,712]; Morrissey, 25-31 [17,633]; Hennessy 23-33 [17,697]; Montclair, 22-34 [17,763]; LaRaia, 20-36 [17,827]; Brett, 17-39 [17,578].

Bryan Post had high weekly team three of 1329 and Brett had high single of 476. Mike Hatfield of Burke Club and Rich Hallberg of Granite Lodge, rolled high individual three of 331 and Bill Yovino of Brett had high single of 125.

The Top Ten: Hallberg, 111.6; Hatfield, 103.7; Joe Crifo, 98.9; Chris Petrillo, 97.2; John Sullivan, 96.6; Paul Leonard, 96.4; John Reardon, 95.9; Paul Anastas, 95.3; Tom Doherty, 94.9, and Frank Killilea, 94.5.

Track Club Presents Awards At Banquet

The Quincy Track Club recently held its first cross country awards banquet at Atlantic Junior High School.

Coach Jeff Hennessy was toastmaster. Each member of the club was given a certificate for his or her participation in the program. Others were given trophies for their selection to the all-star and All-New England teams. Film highlights of the trip to New York for the nationals and some films of last season's races were shown.

Selected for the all-star team were Mark and Chad Grimshaw, Pat Murphy, Paul Murphy, Harry Morash, Matt Killilea, Steve Libby, Peter and Dave Murphy, Bill Barclay, Cliff Burgess, Deirdre Murphy, Kathy Shea, Geraldine Murphy, Janice Libby, Donna Hassey, Linda Kennedy and Mary Crehan.

Chosen for the All-New England AAU team were Clare Murphy, Colleen O'Connor, Elizabeth O'Connor, Sheila Barrett and Margaret Osterman.

Special awards went to Cliff Burgess and Michelle Millane for being the most dedicated members of the team and to Robbie Sheehan and Kara Crehan for making the most improvement over the year. Linda Cellini was given the Coaches' Award for her running in national competition.

Parents receiving engraved mugs for helping out with the fall program were Gerry Libby, Dick Murphy, Jim Killilea, Bob Kalayjian, Sandra Hassey and Marie Shea.

The QTC continues to run over its opposition in the Franklin AAU development meets. For the third meet in a row the Quincy team dominated.

In boys 13 and under, Kevin Wood won the 440 in 60.8, and the high jump at five feet, both personal bests. He also took second in the 440. Brad Kenyon took thirds in the dash and 440.

Cliff Burgess was second and Brian Garrity third in the mile.

In the girls' division, Denise Santo remained undefeated in the dash with a record-tying 6.3. Penny Sawyer, beaten only by Denise, was second.

Sheila Barrett placed second in the mile with Linda Kennedy clocking 6:16 for her best ever for third place. Janice Libby set a club mile record for girls 9 and under with a 6:58.3.

Kara Crehan won the high jump.

In the men's division, Bart Petracca was second in the mile in 4:25.7. Hennessy placed second in the hurdles.

In women's competition, Mary Crehan ran her fastest mile (5:42.0) for second place and she also ran 2:36.0 in the 880 for a club record but could do no better than fourth. Donna Reardon also ran her fastest time for the mile, 5:59.2, for third place.

Bodil Wahlstedt, a Swedish exchange student, set a club record of 37-9 in the shot put. She had done more than 40 feet prior to joining the QTC. Michelle Millane continued to improve and threw 31-3½ for third place.

Several QTC girls did well in the recent Dartmouth College relays.

Wahlstedt broke her own club record and turned in her personal best with a toss of 40-7½, but finished only sixth, proving the tremendous talent in the meet. Later in the week she did 42-6½, best in the state, for Weymouth North High School to qualify for the AAU junior nationals to be held in Indiana in June.

Karen McCarthy, long jumping indoors for the first time this year, did 16-5, but placed only seventh. She fouled on two attempts at 17 feet-plus.

Denise Santo took third in the 55-meter dash. Linda Cellini did 2:23.5 for fifth place in the women's invitational 880-meter run.

The 220-yard relay team of Cellini, McCarthy, Santo and Susan McLaughlin placed second in its heat.

Coaches Hennessy and John Jacoppo felt the team did well in a meet which featured the finest athletes in the East and Canada. Several Olympians and many national champions were competing as were some foreign athletes.

Mite A's Score 12th Straight Shutout

Quincy's Mite A team scored its 12th shutout in 18 games with a 6-0 win over Braintree. In the 18 games goalies Chuckie Hughes and Kyle Robertson have given up just 16 goals. The defense has played an important part in the team's success.

Richie Connolly had two goals and Matt Furtado, Jon Havs, Mark Zimmerman and Billy Connolly one each. Dave Young, Jon Hart, Mike Benson; Billy Ferrera, Billy Roche and Adam McGregor had assists.

Pee Wee B's Edge Canton, 2-1

The Pee Wee B team edged Canton, 2-1, with Paul Marshall and Tim Barry scoring the goals and Brian Chase, Keith Smith and Chris Hurley having assists.

Quincy dropped a 2-1 squeaker to Milton. Smith had the goal and Barry and Hurley had assists.

Team 4 Wins First Half In Koch Boys N.Q. Loop

Team 4 won the first half of the Koch Club Boys North Quincy Bowling League. Team members are Larry Nialetz, Alex Kesaris, Leo LeMay and David Murphy.

Ken Boyce holds the high three of 320 and George Tenaglia has high single of 122.

The Top Ten: Tenaglia, 86.7; Dan Logue, 86.5; Scott Mosher, 84.7; Boyce, 81.8; Ken Southwick, 79.4; Nialetz, 78.7; Tom Logue, 75.8; Brian Wilk, 75.5; Stephen Mahoney, 74.4; Nick Gelsomini and Peter Johnson, 74.3.

The Koch Club boys meet every Tuesday afternoon at 1 at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome.

Telephone Company Opens New Quincy Office

The New England Telephone Company has opened a new business service center at 152 Parkingway, Quincy, to serve all business and residence customers in Quincy.

The office at 1229 Hancock St., Quincy Sq., which handled all business and residence accounts, has been closed and all transactions transferred to the new quarters.

Accounts of business customers in Plymouth and Weymouth will be consolidated in the new Quincy office. Residence customers in Plymouth and Weymouth will continue to be served at the present office locations.

Manager of the office handling business accounts will be Donald C. Buron of Bridgewater, former manager of the Quincy business and residence office. Manager of the residence office will be Mary F. Norton of Quincy, former manager of the Plymouth business and residence office.

Buron said, "transferring the business and residence offices to Quincy was necessary in order to provide the area's customers with the very best and most efficient service in meeting their communications needs."

Thirty commercial service representatives will staff the new facility in addition to a number of specially trained sales personnel. Fourteen representatives will handle business accounts and 16 will handle residence accounts.

"Both the sales and commercial departments deal closely with business customers on service matters and will have access to common records for the benefit of all served by the center," Buron said.

All business and residence customers can continue to call their service representatives direct at the new office by dialing the number printed at the upper right corner of their telephone bills.

Hancock Group Assets Increase

The Hancock Group, Inc., a Massachusetts bank holding company, and its subsidiary Hancock Bank and Trust Company, headquartered in Quincy, report a 7.3 per cent increase in total assets during 1977 over the previous year.

William E. Kelley, president, said total assets grew to $115,742,726 as of Dec. 31, compared to $107,291,887 on that date a year ago.

Earnings began to stabilize in the fourth quarter of 1977 with net income of $155,641 or 55 cents per share as compared to $147,409 or 53 cents per share a year ago. Net income before security transactions was $159,308 or 57 cents a share compared to $160,464 or 57 cents a share last year.

Deposits increased 14 per cent during the year. On Dec. 31, they aggregated $100,781,897 compared to $88,337,263 the final day of 1976.

However, the consolidated 1977 report shows a net loss of $327,030 or $1.17 a share compared to net income of $600,449 or $2.14 a share at year-end 1976.

Kelley said the 1977 loss before security transactions was $352,611 or $1.26 per share compared to a gain of $585,830 or $2.09 a share Dec. 31, 1976.

Hancock Bank operates 16 offices throughout Norfolk County.

We hope you won't franchise a 7-ELEVEN store just from reading this ad.

Before you make a deal... this deal or any other deal... investigate it thoroughly. Find out everything.

What is a 7-ELEVEN store?
Will it offer you and your family a fair chance at making a good living?
What is the company like that's behind the deal?

7-Eleven stores started popping up around Dallas, Texas in 1927. Today there are over five thousand of them doing business from coast to coast. Each one is a smaller-than-supermarket sized convenience food store. The product mix and merchandising plan appeal to customers of all ages and all income levels. The 7-Eleven store was the beginning of the convenience food store industry because of the 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. 7 day a week shopping concept. Nowadays, that convenience concept has been taken a step further since the majority of 7-Eleven stores across the country are open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

If you should elect to invest your time and money in one of these stores, almost a half century of 7-Eleven store experience will select a site for your store, will design, build and equip it. Your bookkeeping will be done for you. You'll benefit from several national advertising programs.

A specialized training program will teach you how to merchandise and operate the store and how to handle the public. That half century of experience is called The Southland Corporation and those people are just as interested in your success as you are.

If you think this thumbnail sketch of a 7-Eleven store way of life deserves your further investigation, call or write using the coupon below.

INTERIOR SELLING TIPS

Remember - when you are showing the inside of your home to a prospective buyer, first impressions are lasting and have an important effect on a potential sale.

A clean, well-kept home shows a home that has had good care and has been properly maintained. Repaint the interior if it needs it, but use neutral colors, if possible. An attractive, comfortable living room is a major attraction, but a sparkling kitchen will appeal to the lady of the house. It's the heart of any home, so keep it spotless. No dirty dishes. Women are also sensitive about bathrooms: keep them clean and orderly.

Bedrooms are important - arrange their furnishings neatly. Shiny, clean windows not only are a great asset, but let sunlight in and brighten the entire atmosphere. Clean out the clutter in the closets, basement, and garage. And, if you have pets, clear them out too when showing.

The bidders may obtain one [1] complete set of Plans and Specifications at the Office of the Commissioner of Public Works, upon deposit of the following amount: For Proposed City Hall Annex $100.00 in the form of cash or by check made payable to the City of Quincy for each complete set, after 12:00 noon, February 13, 1978. Additional sets may be obtained at the cost of reproduction. Copies of the Form For Bid are available at no cost at the Architect's office and at the office of the Commissioner of Public Works. The full amount of deposit will be refunded to all persons returning plans and specifications in good condition within ten [10] days after date of Bid opening. The Contract Documents may be examined at the office of the Architect, T. Owen Trainor Associates, Inc., 29 Cottage Avenue, Quincy, MA 02169, and at the office of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts.

Every bid shall be accompanied by cash or a certified check on, or a treasurer's or cashioer's check issued by a responsible bank or trust company, payable to the City of Quincy or a Bid Bond in the amount of five percent [5%] of the bid.

The successful bidder will be required to furnish a performance bond and also a labor and materials or payment bond for 100% of the Contract Price.

Attention is called to the fact that no less than the minimum wage rates as set forth in the schedules contained in the specifications must be paid on this project.

Time for completion of the work shall be as stated in INSTRUCTION TO BIDDERS

The Awarding Authority reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive any informalities in the bidding if it be in the public interest to do so, provided such rejection or waiver be in conformance with Section 44A to 44L inclusive, of Chapter 149 of the General Laws, as amended.

Up To $600,000 For Snow Removal Alone

$70 Million Damage Feared Here In Storm

By TOM HENSHAW

Quincy may have suffered as much as $70 million worth of damage during the Great Storm of '78 and the price tag for snow removal could be $600,000.

But, as yet, no one knows who is going to foot how much of the bill.

Mayor Tobin on Tuesday named Asst. City Solicitor Dennis E. Harrington as agent for the city of Quincy in negotiating with the state and federal governments on picking up a share of the tab.

"It's too early to estimate damage," said Tobin.

"But the federal disaster people who were touring the city Saturday were talking somewhere between $50 to $70 million damages right then and there.

"Unles we come up with state and federal funds to pay a large part of the damage then we had better brace ourselves for a city budget that is going to go haywire through no fault of anyone."

Harrington went to Boston Tuesday to meet with state and federal agencies to determine reimbursement procedures. The meeting in the McCormick Building was still in progress at press time.

Public Works Commissioner James J. [Pete] Ricciuti estimated "a ball park figure of $500-$600,000 just for snow removal."

Some of that tab, he said, will be picked up by the Army Corps of Engineers which contracted with four outside contractors to work in Quincy and will pay them directly.

Much of the damage in the city was to private homes but a good deal of city property was destroyed or damaged too.

Tobin listed damage to sea walls, roads, water mains and sewers as well as vehicles and communications systems. At least one fire engine in Houghs Neck was ruined by salt water, he said.

The Mayor, who is also a state senator, filed legislation that would enable the state to float a $50 million bond issue to reimburse disaster area counties

City Lifts Travel Ban

Quincy was among the last communities in eastern Massachusetts to lift the emergency ban on non-essential traffic that followed the storm.

Mayor Tobin ordered the ban continued in Quincy for as long as it was imposed in Boston so that MBTA-bound commuters would not clog the Quincy streets with their cars on Monday.

"The Red Line stops right in the heart of the city," said Tobin. "For the public safety I cannot in good conscience allow a massive traffic jam on the roads of Quincy."

Thus traffic was prohibited on Quincy streets until 6 p.m. Monday, and for good measure, parking was banned in downtown Quincy from 6 a.m. to 10 a.m. Tuesday morning.

Grand Jury Convenes

25 Arrested For Looting, Delahunt Takes Action

Some 25 persons were arrested for looting in Quincy during the first week of the storm emergency and Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt promised swift trial and jail commitments for those convicted.

"Many persons, particularly in the Houghs Neck area, are not going to be able to get back in their homes for a while," said Asst. Dist. Atty. Gerald Kirby of Quincy.

"We decided we would move immediately on those we have arrested and treat them firmly so we can forestall others by showing them that we are serious about it."

Delahunt ordered a grand jury convened yesterday [Wednesday] "to present for immediate indictment the cases of any persons charged with looting or looting-connected offenses."

"The majority of them, hopefully all of them, will be on trial in 30 to 45 days," said Kirby.

He said the looting arrests were primarily in the Houghs Neck and Germantown areas with some instances in North Quincy and other sections still being investigated. Those arrested were mostly young.

"Two package stores and two Daceys were hit in North Quincy," said Kirby, "but the Houghs Neck looting was residences and vandalism to cars – garbage work like ruining cars that were damaged in the storm.

"We have to do it swiftly. We can't let it run its course and be forgotten. The longer we wait too often we forget how angry we are now."

MAYOR TOBIN and his 'snow cabinet' meet in Civil Defense headquarters to discuss the city's next move in the battle against the snow during the Great Storm of '78.

At VoTech Gym

FDAA Center Processing Claims For Storm Losses

Two officials from the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration arrived in Quincy on Sunday to begin the long procedure of processing claims of families who suffered heavy losses when wind, water and snow swept away many of their possessions during last week's blizzard.

A two-man advance team arrived at Quincy High School at 2 p.m. Sunday and immediately went into conference with Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, superintendent of Quincy schools. Sam Head, and FDAA coordinating officer from Atlanta, Ga., and Robert Shapiro from the agency's New York office explained their needs to school officials.

Dr. Creedon assured them that he would provide any space or facilities they needed. It was decided to take over the Vo-Tech gymnasium for registration and interviewing.

Prior to arrival of the federal agents more than 100 Houghs Neck, Squantum and Germantown residents, all of whom had suffered heavy storm damage, gathered at the Red Cross Disaster Center set up at the High School on Woodward Ave., to file claims.

A corps of volunteers, many of them school personnel, took down the information and informed the claimants of just what information would be needed.

All were strongly advised not to throw away furniture, hi-fi sets, clothing or other possessions which might have been ruined by the waters that ravished their homes. It was pointed out that such items might be needed as evidence to substantiate their claims.

Mayor Arthur Tobin told the storm victims that federal officials had authority to provide one percent loans up to $10,000; three percent loans from $10,000 to $25,000; three percent loans to small businesses; and, where necessary, provide free rent for one year - or until a family could re-locate.

He also told the group that the FDAA starting at 10 a.m. on Tuesday the federal disaster agency would have two-member teams to aid in processing their claims. The teams will work daily until 7 p.m. "until the job is done," the Mayor said.

Agencies represented include: Housing and Urban Development [HUD], Small Business Administration; Internal Revenue Service, Social Security, Veterans Administration and people from the food stamp program, Division of Employment Security, insurance advisors, legal aid and the Individual Family Grants program, for those eligible for such state aid.

On Sunday the victims made out preliminary claims and were told to return later in the week with more information to meet with the federal agents.

It was suggested that whenever possible photographs should be taken of the damage. Also, proof of ownership might be required as part of the detailed claim to be filed.

Later, at a meeting of all municipal department heads held at Civil Defense headquarters, 55 Sea St., some concern was expressed that many people were unaware of the major relief program.

Peter Macdonald, Red Cross coordinator, assured city officials that radio and the press had carried announcements of the plans. To augment such notification it was agreed that auxiliary police and volunteers would undertake a door-to-door campaign to personally inform people. It was pointed out that many elderly and disabled did not understand the extent of the program.

Auxiliary Police Chief Anthony Siciliano said his people would go into the stricken neighborhoods and "knock on doors" until such time as all concerned have been notified.

Burke Seeks To Widen Storm Aid Eligibility

Congressman James A. Burke (D-Milton) has been in contact with the White House seeking to widen the categories of storm victims who would be eligible for aid under the Federal Disaster Assistance Agency.

Burke has been in touch with Jack Watson of President Carter's office asking that the category of "storm damage by formation of excessive ice and snow" be added to the present categories approved by the FDAA relative to the recent storm.

The three presently approved are high winds, tidal surge and coastal flooding.

Congrssman Burke feels that if the "snow and ice category" so-called, is added by the President many more worthwhile claims might be processed and approved if eligible.

'I Must Have Said The Lord's Prayer 20 Times'

It Was Hell In Houghs Neck

By TOM HENSHAW

"About 9 o'clock," said Larry Mirick, "just before the lights went out, I went to step off the porch and I was up to my waist in water.

"An then I realized we really had a problem going here."

Mirick was standing in the street in front of his home, 126 Turner St., Houghs Neck. The porch, one pillar gone, sagged a bit. Men were stringing a yellow cable and a black hose to Tom Gannon's house next door.

"I'm just helping him out," said Mirick. "At least I've got power so I'm running it next door to them so they can unplug their cellar."

If any section of Quincy bore the brunt of the Great Storm of '78 it was Houghs Neck. And if any section of Houghs Neck can be said to have been the focal point it was where Turner St. joins Edgewater Drive behind the low concrete sea wall.

"We've been down here 25 years," said Mirick. "We figured, hell, we've been through this before. It's nothing new. My neighbor and I parked our cars up the street there. I figured I was well out of the high water mark.

"We came back to the house for a cup of coffee. About 8:30 he came out the door to go across the street and he stepped off into eight inches of water. The first thought I had was, 'My God, we got two hours to go to high tide!' You gotta figure there's at least another four to five feet coming.

"I couldn't believe it. In 30 minutes the water had gone from the first step, over the second and the third and it was up level with the porch.

"My wife, Doris, and I started moving everything up to the second floor. About 9 o'clock, just before the lights went out, I went to step off the porch and I was up to my waist in water. And then I realized we really had a problem going here.

"We sat on the bed together upstairs in the little bedroom. It may sound crazy but I must have said the Lord's Prayer 20 times in a row.

"At about the height of the tide, about 10:50 or 10:30, I came down stairs. I was up to my knees in the water in the living room.

"I looked out the front porch and I could see the sea wall. It was well lit by the new lights down there. The sea wall was completely under water. It was about two feet over the sea wall and the waves were crashing in against the houses.

"It took the garage out across the street. It moved those two trailers over there, one of them against the fence, the other one in the other yard. It took the guy's porch off across the street.

"I'll never forget those lights. I never saw them so bright as they were that night. You could see the whole ocean right in here. You can see the high water mark on that guy's house over there. Right across there, nothing but solid water.

"When I saw my front porch going I thought that was it. I thought the house was next. I never could have gotten my wife out of here. There was ice in the water and driftwood. You should have seen the size of some of the debris down there.

"We stayed here all night, all during the storm. Every time a wave hit the side of the house it would shake. I looked up the street and my car had gone under water. It never did that

Check Wiring In Flooded Homes

Householders whose homes were flooded during the storm should have an electrical contractor or licensed electrician check any wiring or electrical equipment that may have been under water, Thomas E. Purpura, acting Quincy inspector of wires, has cautioned.

If there are any questions, Purpura asks that residents call his office at 773-1380, ext. 269 or 270.

Kelly's Tribute To His Houghs Neck

'Their Lives Are So Broken But They Are So Strong . . .'

By TOM HENSHAW

"Once the snow is gone, it's gone, melted, disappeared," said Leo Kelly, kicking at the base of a great mound of dirty white. "And we're going to have summer. We know that. It always happens.

"But what happens to the poor guy whose family is spread all over the map? His home is gone or it stinks of fuel oil and his furniture or the whole interior of his house is gone. What happens to him?"

Kelly, the city councillor from Ward 1, and Rev. Bedros Baharian, pastor emeritus of Quincy Point Congregational Church, were named by Mayor Tobin to head a committee to determine the amount of damage in Quincy caused by the Great Storm of '78.

Much of the damage was done in Kelly's Ward 1, Houghs Neck.

Kelly and Rev. Mr. Baharian, along with Sara Carroll of the Coastal Zone Management Office; Lucius Holton of the State Department of Environmental Management, and Mary Ann McDonald of the National Red Cross, toured the Houghs Neck disaster area Saturday.

Kelly was shaken.

"These are not just people I happen to represent," he said. "These are people I've known since I was a baby. To see them the way we saw them today; to stand in a man's living room and see most of it in the cellar.....

"To see their lives so broken and yet to see them so strong and willing to carry on.....

"Everyone we talked to today told us, 'Gee, if you can help us financially.....we've got the physical ability to get in and do it.....just help us financially'."

Stories of heroism and neighbor - helping - neighbor abounded in Houghs Neck, a tight-knit community even in the best of times.

There was Warren Sines of 100 Stoughton St., who organized a bucket brigade to put out a fire on Stoughton St., that could not be reached by the fire trucks.

There was James (Red) Riley of 23 Marine St., custodian at the Atherton Hough School, who stayed at the school to help refugees despite the fact that his own home was flooded.

"Sylvester Ray, who probably owns most of the heavy equipment down here, was taking people out of Edgewater Drive and Turner St. in the bucket of a front loader," said Kelly.

"He was taking them off the second floor in bucket loads of eight or nine people and bringing them out to Lt. Frank Mullen of the Police Department and John McGuire of the Highway Department.

"He must have picked up 50 people that way and took them out.

"We hear people say, 'Thank God we didn't have any deaths.' It's people like that we've got to thank God we didn't have any deaths."

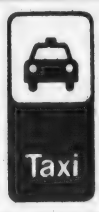
One of the curious aspects of the storm in Houghs Neck is that the extent of damage is not readily apparent on the outside of the buildings.

"You can walk by a house," said Kelly, "and say, 'Gee, that doesn't look too bad.' But get inside and there's nothing there. It's gone. Stand on the floor and the living room is shaking.

"The Quincy Yacht Club looks super from the outside. Nothing wrong with the Quincy Yacht Club, you say. But get inside and there's no floors. They just dropped right out of the place.

"Jerry Lyons' place, where the young kids make money cleaning fish and boats.....all those places are gone. They've had it."

There were instances of looting in Houghs Neck. The abandoned home of Tom Logan, 85 Edgewater Drive, was broken into and some money taken.



"I don't want to dwell on things like that," said Kelly, "so many just super great kind of things that have been done that those little jerks.....I just don't want to dwell on them. I don't even want to remember them.

"The person we're trying to remember now is the one who is going to be physically and mentally and financially down come next week. That's what we're working on now. That's going to be the hard part now."

for damage.

"Without special legislation," he said, "the three major snow storms and the ice storm since Jan. 1 would be an astronomical burden on the taxpayers."

Private losses also could be felt by the taxpayer in the form of lower assessments or rebates, said the Mayor.

"How do I assess a piece of property that is absolutely devastated?" he said.

"I've got a Mathewson Machine Shop in the north end of the city right now that employs 200 people under 18 inches of water. How am I going to get full assessment out of that building?

"How can I provide for public safety and ignore requests for replacement of all the equipment and vehicles that have sustained thousands of dollars worth of damage?

"Where is the money going to come from?"

It's up to Dennis Harrington to find out.

Tobin Files Bill To Finance Relief For Storm Hit Communities

Legislation offering financial relief to Massachusetts cities and towns hard hit by the Great Storm of '78 has been filed by Mayor Arthur H. Tobin.

Tobin 's proposal would allow the state treasurer to borrow $50 million to be set aside as a special fund to aid communities within the eight county emergency area.

The plan calls for the governor to review applications for aid from individual cities and towns and if an application is accepted, the city or town would be reimbursed for money spent on police, fire, snow removal and civil defense services during the emergency.

"This storm and its ensuing clean up costs will be a catastrophe for every homeowner and taxpayer in our area," Tobin said. "I'm filing this legislation because I anticipate that federal aid alone will not be enough to cover the actual costs of this blizzard."

Tobin said he expects his bill to see speedy action on Beacon Hill.

QCBPA Thanks City For 'Tremendous' Snow Removal Job

Richard D. Barker, president of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, has expressed his "heartfelt thanks" to Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, Public Works Commissioner James Ricciuti, and the entire municipal work force for their efforts in the aftermath of the storm.

Barker said he was expressing the appreciation of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and all the membership, including merchants, banks, professional people and others "for the tremendous snow removal job performed in the downtown Quincy shopping area.

Barker, in a statement on behalf of the QCBPA said: "I wish to extend to Mayor Arthur Tobin, Public Works Commissioner James (Pete) Ricciuti, and the entire work force on snow removal, the heartfelt thanks and appreciation of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and all the membership, including merchants, banks, professional people and others for the tremendous snow removal job performed in the downtown Quincy shopping area.

"The action of these leaders and snow removal crews have made it possible for merchants, who lost a full week due to the tremendous storm and the emergency that followed, to prepare for business in a near normal manner. All of us in the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association express our sincere thanks to Mayor Tobin, Commissioner Ricciuti and snow removal crews for accomplishing this enormous task."

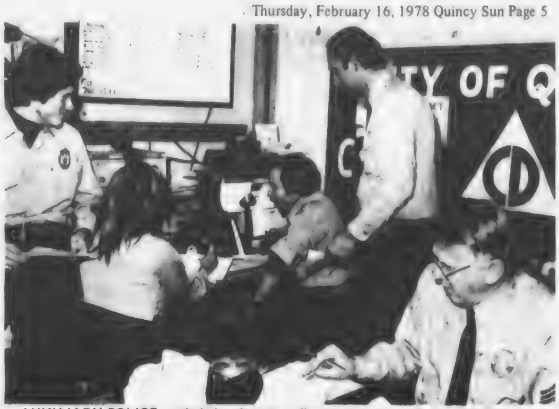
There are several techniques for adding patterns or designs to plain glass. Cut glass is produced by the use of a revolving wheel which actually cuts into the surface of the glass. All fine cut glassware is crafted by hand. The cutting is a delicate process which is used primarily for creating traditional designs. In etching, glass is not cut away from the surface. Instead, acid is applied to the glass and eats the design right into the piece. Many pieces of fine art, in addition to tableware, are created by artists who use etching to draw scenes into glass.



There are many fine pieces of crystal and other items available from us at GRONO & CHRISTIES, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490. Stop by and let us show you our fine collection of Waterford. The workmanship that goes into these pieces are a delight to behold and would be a welcome gift for any occasion. Master Charges and other credit terms are available. 400 CBers Aid As Emergencies Came At 4 A Minute

By PETER BARNICLE

Citizen band radio operators working closely with Quincy police, auxiliary police and National Guard troops performed monumental tasks during the storm.

All volunteers, they set up a command post at Civil Defense headquarters, 55 Sea St., and worked around the clock throughout the week.

Roy Driscoll and Frank Frustaglia, CB coordinators for civil defense, were in charge of the operations.

"We had 400 CBers working on different shifts," Driscoll said. "We used trucks, all kinds of four-wheel drive vehicles and snowmobiles."

During the height of the storm and the days that followed, Driscoll said the dispatchers were sending out vehicles on emergencies at the rate of four a minute.

"As soon as a call came in the next vehicles up was called to the desk and was on his way out the door before the call was completed," Frusaglia said

The CBers made emergency runs to get stranded victims out of storm ravaged homes, particularly in the Houghs Neck, Germantown, and Squantum sections.

Clogged streets proved difficult, but not impossible to penetrate. John Wright, of the general services division of the police department and a volunteer driver for the CB task force found himself faced with a 10-foot pile of snow at Bell and Macy Sts.

"Wright was driving his own truck," Driscoll said. "He just backed up and pounded at the wall of snow until he broke through and was able to pick up a group of people huddled in a heatless house."

In another instance the operator of a front loader operating in the Willows was able to lift stranded people up with the scoop of his machine to get them to rescue trucks.

When roving bands of youths were reported harrassing the rescue equipment, Auxiliary Police Chief Anthony Siciliano assigned members of his force to accompany the vehicles on their missions.

The operations were coordinated at a control desk at Civil Defense headquarters, using Channel 9, the emergency channel.

Doctors, nurses, hospital technicians and patients were transported to and from Quincy Hospital. A number of patients requiring twice-weekly treatment on a dialysis machine were taken to Boston hospitals equipped with the apparatus.

"In a number of cases," according to Siciliano, "We had to bring the patient back home after the treatment because the hospital did not have beds available."

Siciliano and his 50-member force logged over 5,000 hours duty during the week. Many of them, including the chief, slept and ate at CD headquarters for the duration.

Some residents alarmed by the rising water telephoned to say frantically they were going to the roof.

"We told them to go to a second level, but not to venture out on a roof," Siciliano said. "Such calls, of course, were given priority and equipment was sent immediately. In some cases we used scuba-divers to battle through the water to get people out of their homes."

Driscoll and Siciliano both had high praise for the cooperation of the residents and those who turned to assist their less fortunate neighbors.

"It's a shame that some hoodlums have to spoil what was a great record by so many people," Driscoll commented.

Upper Classes Return

$250,000 Damage To Schools

Some Quincy schools opened (Wednesday) for the first time since the big storm struck on Feb. 6, giving youngsters an unexpected six-day vacation.

Students in grades seven through 12 in the junior and senior high schools as well as those in the Vo-Tech post graduate courses and day and evening classes at the Junior College went back Wednesday.

A decision was due to be made Wednesday on when those in grades one through six in the elementary schools would return.

Classes for pre-school, early childhood, kindergarten and special needs students at Quincy High School were cancelled for the rest of the week. So were adult evening courses, except for the CETA program.

All schools will be out for the annual February vacation next week, Feb. 20-24.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon said the State Department of Education has given all towns in the storm disaster area a waiver of the rule that requires schools to be open 180 days a year.

The waiver is good for the number of days that a state of emergency was declared in the community.

Creedon said the Vo-Tech gym, where the various disaster teams have set up headquarters, will be out of service and the Red Cross disaster people have taken over the special needs area of Quincy High School.

Creedon estimated damage to the school system's physical plant at $250,000, most of it to the Broad Meadows Junior High School, where damage to the heating and electrical capabilities was set at $140,000.

"Due to the extraordinary efforts of the maintenance people," he said, "we were able to get the building functioning on a temporary basis but all of that equipment, damaged by salt water, will have to be replaced."

The shuttle bus for physical education students resumed between North Quincy High School and Atlantic Junior High and, on Wednesday only, 10 buses were assigned to pick up students walking on the main streets.

There was no student parking at the high schools and members of the faculty who usually park in the Vo-Tech parking area were instructed to leave their cars in the student parking area on Coddington St.

Quincy High School swimmers were to be bused to the Lincoln-Hancock School pool.

Creedon said the high schools yesterday were on Day 4 of the six-day cycle and were to operate on the regular time schedule.

Rubbish, Garbage Collections Slow

Rubbish and garbage collections in Quincy started back on schedule on Monday with trucks moving into the Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown and Merrymount districts.

On Tuesday the trucks made their regular runs - as far as possible - in North Quincy and Squantum.

Wollaston is scheduled to be collected on Wednesday.

Today [Thursday] pick ups will be made in Quincy Point and South Quincy. Friday the trucks will be in West Quincy and the Hospital Hill section.

Residents have been cautioned that furniture and storm damaged household possessions will not be picked up. Rubbish should be packed in barrels or trash bags and placed in a firm position atop a snowbank so the trash collectors can see them.

Mrs. Margaret Behenna, dispatcher for Brown & Ferris, a rubbish contractor, said that residents should remember collections will be slow, because the trucks are endeavoring to collect two weeks rubbish in one week.

quincy cooperative bank

A Genuine Sense of Pride

Once again, under adverse conditions, the magnificent staff of The Quincy Co-operative Bank met the challenge of reopening on Friday. In their characteristic "can do" way, our employees made it to our main office, to our Hanover branch, to our Braintree office, and to our 1000 Southern Artery branch. Our Cohasset branch could not be opened because it is located in a center that was unplowed Friday morning.

The Quincy main office opened at just before 7:00 a.m. on Friday, and we had a few customers and a large number of people seeking shelter from the cold while waiting for a bus. We were happy to provide both help to those who wanted bank service and those who needed shelter.

Those who looked at our Hanover branch sometime after 7:00 a.m. would see two Vice Presidents of the Bank: Frank Mitchell and Ronald McKee shoveling out the entrance. But we were able to open by 7:30 a.m. Our limited service operation for residents of 1000 Southern Artery opened on time with a CD truck delivering Manager Nance Stier: Teller Joanne Buckley walking to work: and Teller Violet Pace merely walking downstairs [she lives there].

And at Braintree, Assistant Treasurer Doris Morford and Leo Sheehan, our Internal Auditor, walked in from Weymouth to help open the Braintree operation. Many other employees walked to the main office or to our branches; in fact several walked over two miles to get to their jobs.

Some weeks ago when we were developing our storm contingency plans, we designated Director of Training Joan Ilacqua, who lives nearby, to open the main office in case of a storm. We referred to her as our "Storm Warden". And at 6:45 a.m. Friday morning when we arrived at the Bank, there were Joan and Penny Fuller, both of whom had walked to work. The Bank was ready for a 7:00 a.m. opening.

Cranking up a bank, after being closed a record three days, is not an easy thing. We were concerned about having enough money for our customers, and there had been no word about deliveries by Brinks or Wells Fargo. But thanks to our local commercial banks: Hancock Bank & Trust Company, South Shore Bank, BayBank/Norfolk Country Trust, and Rockland Trust Company, we received all the money we needed. We are indeed grateful to all of them for their cooperation.

We believe we have the finest staff of any bank on the South Shore. The enthusiasm and esprit de corps is contagious, and this blizzard crisis demonstrated the personal interest each of our staffers has in our Bank. And in passing out credits for good work, we do have to mention Vice President Bob Keddy who volunteered his four-wheel drive car to the Civilian Defense organization on Wednesday, and he drove it for 12 hours taking people to hospitals and helping to rescue stranded families. That's the kind of personally concerned people we have here. That's why we are so proud of all of them.

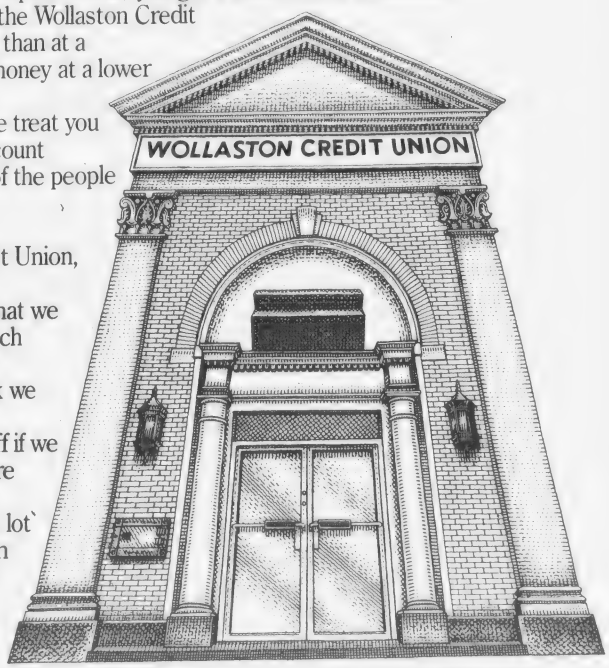
We're what a bank isn't allowed to be.

MASSACHUSETTS CREDIT UNION SHARE INSURANCE CORPORATION
INSURED SAVINGS
ALL ACCOUNTS FULLY INSURED UNDER MASSACHUSETTS LAW

At first glance, you might think we're a bank. Because we do look like one. There are tellers here. And an enormous safe. You can deposit money here. And take out loans. And your account is always fully insured.* Just like at a bank.

But we're definitely not a bank. We're a credit union.



This allows us to do some things a bank can't do.

When you open an account at a bank, they put your money away and that's that.

But when you open an account at the Wollaston Credit Union, you become a member of the credit union and a part owner.

Which is no small point. Because as a part owner, you get a share of the dividends.

That's why your savings account at the Wollaston Credit Union almost always earns higher interest than at a bank. And why you can generally borrow money at a lower interest rate.

And because you're a part owner, we treat you differently here. You're not a face or an account number to our tellers. You're literally one of the people they work for.

One more thing.

As a member of the Wollaston Credit Union, you are invited to our annual meeting and encouraged to voice your opinion about what we ought to be doing. Your vote carries as much weight as our President's.

And that doesn't happen at any bank we know of.

Some people think we'd be better off if we were a bank. Because we'd make a lot more money for ourselves that way.

But we're not interested in making a lot of money for ourselves. We're interested in doing what our charter says we should do: serve the community.

So we wouldn't be a bank even if they asked us.

Wollaston Credit Union, 651 Hancock St., Tel.: 723-3500. Open Mon. & Thurs. 9 to 8 PM. Until 5:00 PM Tues., Wed. & Fri.

Well Done, Quincy

It was a storm you would like to forget but will vividly remember for as long as you live.

Awesome. Devastating. Furious. Horrendous. Mean. Terrible. You may have even a stronger one word description.

But as bad as it was with the suffering and the losses it brought--in lives and damage--and the inconveniences, it had one nice side effect: it brought out the best in most people.

People opened their hearts and extended helping hands to those in need. Not just neighbor helping neighbor, but stranger helping stranger.

A feeling of togetherness and unity descended upon the area in a way we hadn't seen since World War II. People were united again by catastrophe. They shared a common cause: survival. And they were more than willing to make personal sacrifices to help one another get through the ordeal. Most important: they cared for one another.

Houghs Neck and Germantown were the hardest hit in Quincy. Squantum got pretty well battered, too.

Compared to neighbors Hull and Scituate, however, Quincy overall was lucky, as far as damage and other losses were concerned.

But Quincy got it's full share of the record near 27 inches of snow. The city was virtually paralyzed during most of the week. Business came to a costly standstill.

Overall, we think, the city of Quincy deserves a "well done". New Mayor Arthur Tobin certainly has gotten his baptism under fire. He had been in office just 34 days when he got hit with the two worst snowstorms in our history.

We got a chance to personally observe him during this second storm--the all-time champ in fury and meaness--and saw a man calm and in complete control of the situation. He never reached for the panic button.

And so it was, all down the line.

Public Works Commr. James [Pete] Ricciuti proved an able general as his army of weary workers fought around the clock to win the Big Battle of the Snow.

There were many others who did an outstanding job during the long hard week: Police, firefighters, Civil Defense units, nurses and doctors and hospital employees, snowmobilers, school personnel, and many volunteers of varying shapes and sizes who all pitched in to help Quincy residents in need.

There were many unsung heroes--and many of their heroics will never be known except to those directly affected.

Of course, it wasn't all 100 per cent peaches, cream and let's-all-sing-together. A lot of people came down with cabin fever in their homes. And even in snowfighting command centers where workers were cooped up for days under very trying circumstances, tempers flared now and then.

And there were gripes. About, for example, some people who managed to slip their cars by officials during the travel ban to stock up on food while most people had to trudge to stores on foot and lug small amounts of groceries home in their arms or on sleds.

Some didn't like the way their streets were plowed. Someone complained about snow being pushed against his fence, and another into his driveway. And there was the story about the guy who harrassed one of the plow operators to the point where the latter stopped his truck, got out and flattened him.

And there was another one about the weirdo who telephoned a resident to report that his wife, who was in the hospital, had died. Police brought the grief-stricken man to the hospital, the story goes, where he found his wife very much alive.

That cruel prank, meanwhile, delayed police from taking needed medicine to another resident with high blood pressure.

Most of those and other similar incidents will be forgotten by the time the first robin gets up enough courage to put in an appearance here.

But there is one character we hope will not be forgotten: the looter.

Fortunately, for Quincy, there were only isolated cases of looting although some homes are still empty and could yet be plundered.

The looter, in our book is a creep--a wart on humanity. He takes advantage of a tragic situation to steal from homes evacuated because of floods or lack of heat. Or steals from stores where windows have been blown in.

We hope anyone arrested for looting and convicted after a fair hearing gets what he should: severe punishment.

We hope judges here in Quincy and elsewhere feel the same way about that. The looter deserves no sympathy.

He is as bad as the thief who steals from the blind, the bully who picks on the invalid and the rapist whose victim is the innocent.

Overall, Quincy came through it well. And most of us may even be better off in the long run for the experience. It sure humbled us.

Fr. Daniel Graham of St. John's Church told an anecdote at Mass Sunday that might give us all food for thought.

He said he was walking down Hancock St. just after the storm and met a man who said to him:

"Well, Father, I guess He showed us who's boss."

Adams Birthplaces Hearing Wednesday

The public hearing on the proposed federal takeover of the Adams Birthplaces, scheduled for Monday, Feb. 13, at City Hall, was postponed until last night (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m.

It Was Hell In Houghs Neck

before, not even on a 13½-foot tide.

"Funny thing, though, the house is a lot more solid than I thought it was. It's only a remodelled summer bungalow. We've had the heat and the lights and the telephone working again. But we haven't got any water yet.

"I don't know whether or not the foundation has shifted. That's for the landlord to find out."

Across the street, at 93 Edgewater Drive, the seven children of Tom and Mabel Rollins were scattered around safely at neighbors' houses.

"We went out the back door in waist deep water about 9 o'clock at night during the storm," said Rollins. "The water came over the wall. Within 20 minutes it went from the wall to waist deep behind our house. And this was about an hour before high tide.

"I've never seen it like that before. I've seen tides come over the sea wall but never that fast, never with that much destructive force from the wind and stuff.

"We have a fellow, Jack McDonough, who's lived here 50 years. He's 62 years old. He said, 'I've been in this house for 54 years and I've never seen it like this before.'

"We came back Tuesday morning after the tide went out to see if we could salvage anything. There was nothing. It was just total destruction down in the cellar. Everything is gone.

"I don't know what we're going to do. We're just totally wiped out. The furnace is frozen. Everything down there is frozen, the freezer, the washer, the dryer. I've got eight or nine inches of ice. After the water was pumped out that was left. I don't know how we're going to get it out of the house.

"The house was submerged in the water up to the first floor for three days. It's got a concrete foundation but I don't know if it's still sound. You look at it and you wonder."

Tom Rollins, 15, the youngest of the Rollins' kids, was upstairs getting ready for bed at the time.

"All of a sudden I heard one of my little brothers yell, 'Water's coming in the cellar!' I heard my father say, 'Everybody get your coats!' I put on my shoes and grabbed my coat and we atarted carrying out the little kids."

Up the street at 59 Edgewater Drive, the National Guard took Paul Murphy, 63 and disabled, out in a snowmobile. He had been some 12 hours in the kitchen of his home with three gas burners going and water up to his knees, said his daughter, Mary.

"The waves were splashing over the lights down there," said George M. Reams of 55 Edgewater Drive. "The water came over the wall just like a river.

"There was a car parked next door to my house. It sent down in front of my house, down Edgewater and up Charles St. My two cars were washed up against the garage. They pushed the garage doors in. The water washed the foundation out from under my front porch."

Arthur DaRosa of 115 Turner St. arrived home at 11 o'clock the night of the storm after driving for five hours from his job in Lawrence.

"My wife and four children were still there," he said. "I had a hard time getting into the house because the water was up to my hips. I got them all out and we went to my mother-in-law's house up the street.

"The house is a mess. I had all kinds of tools and stuff down cellar there. It's a mess. I lost the furnace. See the big hole in the side of the house there. One of those big branches came right through it."

Across the Neck, on Stoughton St., water poured in from Quincy Bay through the low-lying area known as the Willows.

"At 9 o'clock Monday night the road was dry," said Maurice Houlihan of 156 Stoughton St. "The plows were coming by and there was very little snow.

"The next thing it hit all of a sudden -- the water. We didn't have time to get out really. We were lucky to get out the back. We went up the back and then tried to help pick the other people out."

Dominic J. Conso of 45 Stoughton St. got a call for help from his sister on Rockland St.

"I tried to help her but I couldn't reach her," he said. "By the time I got back from Rockland St. the tide had already risen a foot in Stoughton St.

"The phone went out while we were talking on it. My electricity went out and the gas. Then we smelled smoke and we got the hell out of here. We evacutated as fast as we could and went to Weymouth.

"We found this when we returned. It's a mess. There's mud from the ocean. You can see it on the floor here. The water was about a foot deep in here.

"It's unbelievable downstairs. The pipes are frozen. Everything's gone in the house. You can still smell gas fumes. I'm trying to get the gas company to come by and fix it.

"I lost my boat and the motor. The trailer's around here somewhere but the boat's gone. Anything that was at water level, it's just gone."

Al Harvey, commodore of the Quincy Yacht Club at the tip of Houghs Neck, estimated damage to the club house might reach $400,000.

"We've had two or three different figures," he said. "The guy who just walked out said a half million dollars damage. But I doubt that. Maybe $300,000 or $400,000 damage.

"I feel pretty sick about it. But I'm pretty sure we can get together and get this place back into operation."

The wind and water sheered the front and side porches from the yacht club and the beer chest, refrigerators, ice machine, radar range and a new $1,600 cash register were lost when the floor collapsed into the ice-choked water.

Pagnano Tower Residents Thank Raymondi, Lyons

Editor, Quincy Sun:

The residents of Pagnano Towers, Quincy Point, wish to express their thanks to Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi for getting bread to them when it was urgently needed.

We also wish to thank Past President Jim Lyons of Ward 2 Civic Club for offering any help to the residents.

May God bless them both.

It Took Some Doing But The Sun Got Out

Like other newspapers, The Quincy Sun had its problems trying to "get out" during last week's big storm.

It took a lot of effort -- and dedication -- on the part of a skeleton crew to do it.

The Thursday Sun did not make it Thursday. But it was out Friday.

It took from 11 a.m. Thursday to 4:30 a.m. Friday to have the 28-page issue ready for printing. And we started distribution a few hours later.

Mail subscribers' copies were in the Quincy Post Office Friday afternoon. Then began the "long haul".....getting papers to the newsstands and to The Sun's more than 300 news carriers.

That effort continued through Sunday.

We got all but a few hundred copies out.

We would like to thank our young carriers who trudged through the snow to bring The Sun to their customers.

If they delivered the paper late to you, please don't blame them.

We were sorry to hear that several of our carriers, after tramping through snowdrifts were told by some customers,

"The paper's too late, we don't want it."

The Sun only costs a dime. Frankly, we were a little disappointed in those few who would not take the paper considering all the effort to get it to them. Disappointed, not for us, but for the young carriers.

For those carriers who had that kind of experience, The Sun will make financial adjustments so that they will not be charged for the papers.

We would also like to thank the owners and managers of newsstands who graciously allowed us to drop many news carriers route papers off there so the carriers could pick them up. Ordinarily, the papers are delivered to homes of all the carriers.

And to the vast majority of our readers who were kind enough to forgive us for a late paper, we want all of you to know that all of us at The Sun appreciate your patience.

And last but certainly not least I would like to give a personal "well done" to the staffers and others who worked so hard under very trying circumstances to get The Sun printed and delivered.

To Tom Brady, Tom Henshaw, Elaine German, Jonathan Burak, Jack Tolson Donna Bosworth, David Gray and William Sawler a sincere "thank you."

RED CROSS INFORMATION -- Peter F. Red Cross Disaster Center Helping With Food, Clothing, Shelter

The American National Red Cross has opened a Disaster Service Center at Quincy High School, 107 Woodward Ave., to serve storm victims of Quincy, Braintree, Holbrook and Randolph who have emergency housing, clothing, food and/or medical needs.

The center will be open from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. daily to handle immediate needs of those who need assistance. Those unable to visit the center in person may call 471-0106 for information.

Dan Prichard, executive director and Peter Macdonald, Quincy Red Cross Chapter chairman, said the Red Cross can help with food, clothing and rent; urgent household needs; medical, nursing and hospital care; temporary repairs to homes to make them habitable; replacement of personal occupational supplies and equipment.

It was emphasized that the Red Cross aid is for immediate emergency relief. The program set up at Vo-Tech by the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration is keyed to more long range aid.

Services to disaster victims by the Red Cross are provided without charge. To help the work, the Red Cross is asking those who were fortunate enough to escape the rigors of the storm to contribute to the organization.

Contributions can be made to American Red Cross and earmarked Greater Boston Blizzard & Floods, 1978, 57 Revere Rd., Quincy, MA. 02169.

South Shore Bank Offering Financial Assistance On SBA Loans

William B. Austin Jr., President of South Shore Bank, announces a special effort of the bank to provide financial assistance to individuals and businesses qualifying for Small Business Administration loans as a result of the storm and many regions being designated Federal Disaster Areas.

Austin said:

"In our discussions with the SBA, we've learned that applications for disaster funds are processed relatively quickly but from the point of approval to the point of the distribution of funds there may be a processing delay until a Treasury Department check is issued.

"We recognize the needs of many families and businesses require immediate attention so we are prepared to advance funds to approved SBA disaster loan applicants. Just as SBA loans are granted at a low interest rate, the bank's disaster related loans will be based on the prime lending rate rather than on the prevailing competitive area rates which could be as much as two to eight percentage points higher."

The program to provide interim financing has been discussed with the Small Business Administration. The SBA has assured the bank of cooperative support. Applications and information concerning SBA disaster loans will be available at all South Shore Bank offices.

A Lot Of Things Going On At Red Cross Center

By the end of the second day of operation the Red Cross Disaster Center had interviews and provided emergency service for several hundred families in the area.

In retrospect some of the problems brought to the Red Cross may not seem now to be important. At the time they happened they were extremely important to those involved, according to Dr. Luleen S. Anderson of the Quincy School Department, volunteer press secretary for the Red Cross.

One woman walked to the center from a neighboring town because she heard it was the only place she could obtain emergency food supplies.

A diabetic walked several miles to request special food which was destroyed when her apartment was flooded.

A team of Red Cross volunteers back-packed food for five days to 75 persons stranded at the Carlton House.

When the statistics are compiled they will show how many families were provided temporary shelter. They will also include one elderly man who refused to be evacuated without making sure his companion, a dog, was taken care of by the volunteers.

Arrangements were made to place the dog in a nearby kennel. Red Cross volunteers drew a picture of the dog in his new surroundings, autographed it, and sent it to the owner, safely located in a nursing home.

Red Cross officials found that one volunteer was himself a victim of the storm, having lost property in Hull.

A young lady from Cambridge was asked how it was she was doing volunteer work in Cambridge.

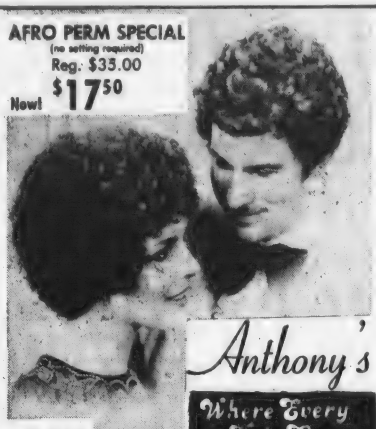
"I had a date and this is where he brought me," she explained.

You Can Get This Help At Red Cross Center

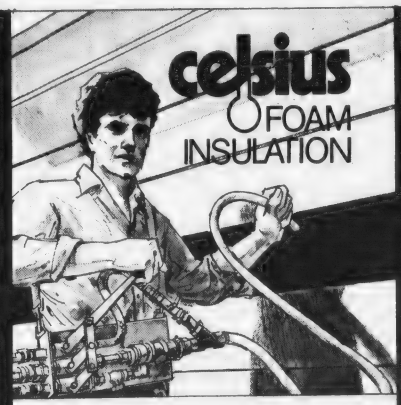
If you need help, go to the Red Cross Disaster Service Center.

Red Cross will assist you with:

- Food, clothing, and rent
- Urgent household needs
- Medical, nursing, and hospital care
- Temporary repairs to your home so that you can move back in
- Replacement of personal occupational supplies and equipment
- The Red Cross will provide information regarding government and other private agencies that may be of further help to you. If no such resources are available, Red Cross may give you additional assistance for your recovery.



Red Cross deals personally with each family's situation. Your Red Cross is the agency through which the American people voluntarily help you to recover from the disaster.



Red Cross disaster services are financed solely by voluntary contributions.

Please bring identification that shows where you lived at the time of the disaster. This will help us to help you.

celsius FOAM INSULATION

The effective way to insulate your home
Insulation effectiveness is measured in its resistance to heat flow . . . either moving out of the house in winter or flowing in, during the summer.
Celsius foam insulation has a high "R" rating which creates an efficient thermal barrier in ceilings, attics and walls. Celsius foam is pumped into walls cavities and flows around pipes, electrical outlets and other protrusions. It effectively seals against heat loss and drafts by completely filling the spaces without settling.

With Celsius foam you save on heating/cooling costs all year round and you get a return on your investment every time you receive your utility bill. You'll enjoy extra living comfort too!

MD Victims Trapped In Wheelchairs

In Houghs Neck, Neighbors Rescue Neighbors

By PETER BARNICLE

The stories that will become the legends of tomorrow began to emerge on the week-end as residents of Houghs Neck, one of the hardest hit sections of Quincy, gathered at Red Cross Disaster Center in Quincy High School to file claims and compare notes.

Most agreed that a great surge of water swept across the low-lying area shortly after 8:30 p.m. on Monday, smashed cellar windows and poured into family rooms, laundries and knocked out power and heating units. Automobiles also went in the onslaught.

With all their own problems residents were quick to consider the possible fate of neighbors.

Thomas Grenham, 61, of 135 Edgewater Dr., his wife, Anne, and their three sons, Thomas, 33, David 28, and Robert, 22, opened their home to neighbors who were forced to evacuate homes.

David and Robert, accompanied by Robert Galligan, another neighbor, raced over to the McGrath home next door. They found William McGrath, 25, and his brother, Joseph, 23, both afflicted with muscular dystrophy, and confined to wheelchairs, sitting in water up to their waists, and fearful they had been trapped.

The rescuers were able to get the McGrath men over to the Grenham house. The National Guard was notified and after plowing out the street were able to transport the McGraths to Houghs Atherton School.

"The sea came in with one big gush," said Arthur Brennan, 131 Edgewater Dr. Brennan retired as an MBTA repairman a month ago.

"I was scheduled to take off for Florida today," he said on Sunday. "I bought a new mini-motor home for $10,000 - in cash. It has been ruined. The sea water just swept in and flooded the whole thing."

Brennan was one of the residents who took refuge at the Grenham home.

"We had 42 people at the house on Monday and Tuesday," Grenham said. "There's plenty of damage, but we were more fortunate than the others."

Joseph McArdle, 35 Hooper St., his wife Nancy, 35, and their two sons, found their home cut off by the rapidly rising water. McArdle braved the storm to go to the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Kett, who live 200 feet away. Kett, 76, is blind, and his wife, Juanita, is 68.

McArdle was able to guide the elderly couple back across open space. At one point he had to lift them over a fence before reaching the safety of his home.

As in other homes in the area, water poured into the basement ruining the furnishings in two bedrooms occupied normally by the McArdle boys. It also damaged a washer, dryer and a freezer loaded with meat.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Buckley, 22 Doane St., Germantown, lost power and heat when their home was innundated. However, Buckley's ingenuity came to the rescue.

"He took the heating unit out of the oil burner and we used wood," Mrs. Buckley said. "When the wood was gone I started rolling up newspapers and tying them in a knot to use as fuel. When power was restored my husband cleaned out the furnace and replaced the oil unit."

At one point during the emergency, Buckley, a self-employed insulator, rigged up a blow-torch in a soapstone sink in the basement and was able to boil water for tea and also prepare some hamburg and a baked potato.

Mrs. Buckley, who is with a Boston investment firm and is also a member of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women, had a dual purpose in being at the high school on Sunday. She was there to file a damage claim - and also to volunteer to work with the Red Cross.

Flaw In National Guard Equipment

The Great Storm of '78 uncovered a flaw in, not the National Guard, but it's equipment.

Sen. Arthur H. Tobin has filed a bill in the legislature that would order all National Guard vehicles to be equipped with chains and an A-frame in front for attachment of a plow in an emergency.

"I'm not criticizing the National Guard because its people did an exceptional job for us during and after the storm," said Tobin.

"But the vehicles that were given us were neither equipped with chains nor A-frames for plowing. They could only be used for transportation when we needed them to push snow.

"They were simply not equipped for this type of emergency."

Quincy: The Blizzard Of '78

PEDESTRIANS are dwarfed as they trudge by the enormous piles of snow in Quincy Square before public works cleanup crews removed the remnants of the Great Storm of '78 five days after the first of more than 26 inches fell on the city.

GHOST TOWN -- Lone walker braves high winds and driven snow in deserted Quincy Sq. Tuesday during the height of the most furious storm to hit the New England area in recorded history. Nearly 27 inches were dumped here and winds reached gusts of more than 90 miles an hour during what was like a winter hurricane.

Thanks Those Who Helped

Tobin: 'It Brought The People Of Our City Together'

"There's always some good that comes out of every happening," said Mayor Tobin, "and the blessing of this blizzard was that it brought the people of our city together."

Whereupon he issued an official list of thanks to the following people for helping to restore Quincy to normal after the Great Storm of '78:

Chief Francis X. Finn and his staff and members of the Quincy Police Department.

Deputy Chief Joseph McShane and all the deputies and the fire fighters of Quincy. Fire Chief Edward Barry was ordered to bed with a back problem by doctors so McShane and the other deputies ran the department in shifts.

The director of Civil Defense and his staff and his people.

The auxiliary police chief and his staff and his volunteers.

Roy Driscoll and the volunteer Civil Defense CBers who manned the CB communications and transported medical patients on dialysis and chemotherapy treatment to major hospitals.

The snowmobilers who transported nurses and medical staff to the hospital during the height of the storm for emergencies.

Nurses and medical doctors and medical staff of the hospital.

The underwater recovery team that took their clothes off and put their scuba diving suits on and walked the rescue boats through the floods to rescue people.

A private contractor who took his operator off the machine and manned the machine personally and rescued, eight at a time, people on the bucket of his front end loader.

Peter MacDonald and his staff of the Red Cross.

Col. McSweeney and Capt. Lawlor and their staff and their men of the National Guard.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon and his administrative staff and the school employees, the commissary people and the maintenance department for coordinating the feeding of all these people. The Red Cross obtained the food. The National Guard transported the food. Creedon and his staff cooked the food and coordinated the program. We were feeding in excess of 1,300 meals a day.

The elected officials, city councillors and state representatives who came to my assistance and not only helped at the command posts but went out into the neighborhoods and rode the equipment to help open the roads for public safety.

And one city councillor in particular, Joanne Condon: In the five days of the storm and after I believe she averaged one two hour sleeping period in five days.

Rev. Bedros Baharian, who came out of his home to the Civil Defense command post to help in the decision making.

The Mayor's office staff, who came in during the storm.

The Civil Air Patrol youngsters and adults.

Last but not least, the commissioner of Public Works, his administrative assistant, Helen Duffy, all the superintendents and foremen and laborers under his jurisdiction.

The private contractors who assigned their men and equipment to the city of Quincy.

The Quincy citizens at large, who not only gave of themselves to help their fellow citizens, a very, very special thanks.

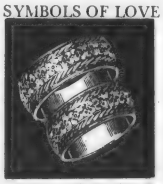
Coffee And Doughnuts At St. John's Church



Despite the travel ban, Masses at St. John's Church, Quincy Center, were crowded Sunday.

Rev. William McCarthy, pastor, and the associate pastors, had a special treat for the many who trudged through the snow to church -- coffee, tea and doughnuts.

Following the six Sunday Masses, an estimated 1,500 cups of coffee and tea and 40 to 50 dozens of doughnuts were served.

Brownell, Morrissey Seek Tax Abatements For Storm Victims

Representatives Thomas F. Brownell and Michael W. Morrissey announce they have filed legislation which would allow storm victims who qualify to apply for a one year tax abatement under the state 408 program.

The bill also calls for a $5 million contingency fund to aid storm victims. Hardship cases can receive up to $5,000 under the 408 program.

Brownell said the additional $5 million would supplement the 408 program and provide additional aid for those who suffered severe hardships.

Rep. Morrissey said "the legislature should provide as much help and relief to the storm victims as possible, especially to those in coastal areas such as Quincy."

Senior Citizens Get Assistance During Storm

Many of Quincy's 20,000 senior citizens were given immediate assistance during last week's storm when their needs came to the attention of the Council on Aging, Robert Tweedy, executive director of the Council, said in extending his thanks for a well done job by the Council staff and those who aided them.

"Commencing Thursday and working right through the week-end two Council staff was on hand to man their telephones and give supportive services to those elderly in need," Tweedy said noting that some of the staff walked to their posts.

Several Council members took on the task of delivering medical and food supplies and making emergency hospital runs.

Tweedy also had praise for organizations which cooperated with his group. He specifically mentioned the South Shore Home Care who, he said, made food vouchers available to the elderly of the city. Miss Ann Grimshaw and director Leonard Delorey also offered effective cooperative aid, he said.

He commended Gerald Ciprianno, owner of "Store on Wheels" for getting his vehicle on the road, after receiving city permission, and called at several senior citizen complexes.

"On Saturday he made an additional 6 p.m. run to the senior citizen housing units to assure they had bread and milk," Tweedy said.

He also complimented the pharmacists of the city for allowing citizens to charge their medical needs "thus making one-way prescriptions possible when driving was as a priority."

"We hope all of our combined efforts have helped in some small way to alleviate the hardships endured by some of our seniors," he said.

Clear Path To Mailbox

Postal customers seeking to telephone the Quincy Post Office may run into some difficulty if they call 773-0740, according to Vincent Noe, manager of the Post Office.

The number 773-0740 has been out of service for a year.

Calls may be made by dialing 223-5070 or 773-0568, Noe said. He said people with special problems should contact his office on either of these lines.

As of Monday morning, he reports, all carriers were on their routes. He said the carriers would make deliveries after determining the accessability of mailboxes.

Noe appealed to all homeowners to clear a path to their mailboxes and salt and sand the path if necessary.

He also urged residents to help clear collection boxes which have been buried in piles of snow. The Post Office has crews out doing this work, but welcome any assistance.

The Post Office is expediting delivery of express mail, first class mail and parcel post.

He also assured the young at heart that St. Valentine's Day mail is going out as rapidly as possible.

$32,637 In New Plumbing

The Quincy plumbing inspection department processed 54 applications for plumbing permits during January and received fees of $210 for work which will cost an estimated $32,637.

During the month 138 inspections were made, according to James A. Erwin Jr., inspector of plumbing and gas fitting.

Forty-six gas fitting permit applications were filed and fees of $144 collected on work to cost an estimated $13,103. The department made 74 inspections.

$1,400 In Savings Bonds Prizes In Washington's Birthday Promotion

The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association is sponsoring a "Win a Share of America" promotion in downtown Quincy during a four-day George Washington's Birthday celebration today [Thursday] through Monday, Feb. 20, with $1,400 in U.S. Savings Bonds as prizes.

Grand prize will be $500 with a second prize of $100 and 32 Savings Bonds of $25 each.

The downtown section of the city has been completely cleared of snow in preparation for the long week-end bonanza of bargains.

Details of the merchandising extravaganza will be found in a special supplement in The Quincy Sun and The Patriot Ledger.

Participating customers may clip the coupons and deposit them at the designated stores. No purchase is necessary. Drawing for the prizes will be held at 2 p.m. Monday, Feb. 27, at The Quincy Sun, 1372 Hancock St., in Quincy Sq.

Stores, banks and services participating in the promotion include:

Morrissey Suggests City Take Over One MBTA Parking Lot

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy] has asked Mayor Arthur Tobin to investigate the feasibility of taking over the lease of one of the MBTA parking lots in Quincy.

Morrissey noted the leases on the parking lots are up March 30.

"Many residents of Quincy have complained about the parking and lot conditions," he said, "and I feel that the City could provide better service and maintenance of a lot or a parking garage."

Morrissey and Rep. James Sheets met with Walter Henneberry of the MBTA's Treasurer's office concerning the upcoming lease renewal. Sheets is one of the South Shore legislators who called for a special commission to investigate the MBTA's operation and snow removal.

The two legislators suggested the City investigate a one year lease with a 30 day notice clause. The city currently owns and operates a municipal garage in the Parkingway lot.

Sheets said the takeover would not involve buying any special equipment for plowing or cleaning because the city now owns the necessary equipment.

Morrissey is compiling a report for the Mayor and City Council. The report will outline the lease agreement, insurance requirements and payroll responsibilities.

Morrissey said he would like the city to take over a lot on a one year trial basis. In this way the city can fulfill the residents needs for efficient, dependable public transit parking facilities.

Would You Believe It? Not Enough Snow On Top Of Ski Area!

Quincy has more snow than it knows what to do with except for the one place it could be useful -- at the top of the Heavenly Hill ski area in Wollaston.

The blasting wind accompanying the record snow swept the top of the hill clear, although at the lower level three feet of snow covers the ground.

Lionel Buckley of the Recreation Department says efforts to remedy the situation are underway. Bill Ellis, former ski supervisor for the Recreation Department, has provided a snow-blower which will be used to move the snow and put it where it will do the most good.

The new ski tow constructed by the Recreation Department and Voc-Tech students and faculty went back into operation Tuesday and from Wednesday through Friday will be operating from 2 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m.

The department's instructional ski program schedule is: Wednesday, 3 p.m - 7th, 8th and 9th grade; 7:30 p.m. - senior high and adult. Thursday, 3 p.m. - elementary. Friday, 7:30 p.m. - senior high and adults. Saturday and Sunday, 1 p.m. - elementary; 2:15 p.m., 7th, 8th and 9th grade, and 3:30 p.m. - adults and senior high.

Participants are asked to walk, or car pool to the area as parking is limited. All lessons are held at the Heavenly Hill Ski Area off South Central Avenue in Wollaston.

MONEY TALKS

The Devaluated Dollar Portends Problems For American Way Of Life

By Philip J. Lawrence, President

Colonial Federal Savings and Loan Association of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham

8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

A recent newspaper headline read: "Strong yen pushes Datsun up 3.3 pct." The article noted that this increase in prices of the 1978 Datsun, on top of two others in 1977, meant a total boost of 11.2% with no assurance of any future letup.

Frequent revaluations of the Deutsche mark are having similar effects upon Volkswagen and other German import prices. The American dollar has lost substantial purchasing power in foreign markets.

The consequences are much deeper than making foreign products costlier to the American consumer. They seriously affect the position of the United States as a world power.

This country has been buying from [or giving and lending] foreign countries more than we are selling them. This is attributable in part to the fact that since World War II our prices have risen more than they have abroad, and our products have been harder to sell. The trade imbalance that has resulted can be made up by giving dollar deposits to other countries or by selling them gold.

In the Depression years, we stored up more gold than we needed and therefore could stand a policy of selling gold freely to foreign treasuries and central banks. In doing so, we were in effect setting the world price for gold or, in other words, making the dollar as good as gold internationally.

When the U.S. strove to maintain the price of gold at $35 an ounce, gold flowed out of the country so heavily that President Nixon suspended gold sales in 1971. This led to expectancies that the U.S. would soon be forced to devalue its currency. Speculators sold their dollar claims for other currencies, anticipating a profit if they could later trade their yens or marks back into dollars at large profits.

Recalling the plight of Great Britain, whose pound was traditionally valued at $4.86 in the 19th and 20th centuries and declined by stages to $1.86 currently, one economist comments forebodingly about Britain's decline from commanding international status: "The position of the bankrupt firm and the position of the government that devalues its currency or stops selling gold are disturbingly similar." The U.S. dollar that in 1969 could command four Deutsche marks today is worth hardly more than two DMs.

Reductions in the value of money, which is another way of defining inflation, have an insidious effect on us all. They touch on investments and savings, old age provisions, living standards, even our jobs. They undermine our political and economic position in the world. But halting the forces of inflation requires spartan measures and political courage that neither the American public nor its leaders seem prepared to accept.

This situation recalls the story told in a national newsmagazine in which one Israeli comments to another: "It's simple. We let the Israeli pound fall in value, allow free exchange of dollars, Israeli exports become dirt cheap, and in the long run the economy is strengthened." The second Israeli asks: "And in the short run?" The first replies: "We starve."

School Sports Revised Due To Storm

By TOM SULLIVAN

The Blizzard of the Century put a serious crimp in the schoolboy and schoolgirl sports schedules and the athletic directors and coaches huddled a few days revising the schedules.

It was voted to push the cutoff date for qualifying for the state basketball tournament from Feb. 25 to Feb. 28. However, due to Boston Garden commitments, the cutoff date for the hockey tournament qualification had to remain at Feb. 25.

Athletic Coordinator Carl Leone announced the following revised schedules for the Quincy and North Quincy teams and Junior College hockey:

Today (Thursday): Quincy-North Quincy swim meet, Lincoln-Hancock School pool, 7 p.m.; boys' track, North at Reading, 3:30.

Friday, Feb. 17: Girls gymnastics, Quincy vs. North Quincy, Quincy Armory, 7 p.m.; girls' track, state meet at Lexington, 5; wrestling, Quincy vs. North, Vo-Tech gym, 7; boys' swimming, Eastern tournament at Brockton; boys' basketball, North at Newton, 3:30; Quincy at Waltham, 8; girls' basketball, Newton at North, 3:15 and Quincy at Waltham, 3:15.

Kiwanis Hockey Tourney Starts Feb. 21

The seventh annual International Youth Hockey Tournament, sponsored by the Quincy Kiwanis Club, will be held at the Quincy Youth Arena on Feb. 21, 22, 23, 24 and 25, with the finals being held on Sunday, Feb. 26.

This year the Quincy Kiwanis Club is sponsoring four divisions, Mites (7 and 8 years of age), Squirts (9 and 10), Pee Wees (11 and 12) and Bantams, (13 and 14).

There will be 55 games played between Tuesday at 7:30 a.m. and Sunday at 5 p.m.

The Kiwanis Club and Quincy Youth Arena invite everyone to stop down and enjoy some outstanding youth hockey.

Quincy has teams entered in every class and the following outside teams will compete:

Mites - South Boston, Braintree, Brockton, Newton, Melrose, Pembroke, Randolph, Everett, Acton, Arlington, Nashua, N.H., Tewksbury, Billerica, Abington and Malden.

Squirts - Brockton, Melrose, Arlington and Malden. Quincy has two teams in this division.

Pee Wees - Canton, Wilmington, Windsor, N.B., Brockton, Lowell, Malden and Waltham.

Bantams - Braintree, Brockton, Lexington, Everett, Walpole, Randolph and Newton.

Women's Candlepin Tourney Rescheduled For Feb. 26

The 23rd annual South Shore Women's Candlepin Bowling Tourney scheduled to start Sunday, Feb. 19, has been postponed one week later due to the snowstorm.

The tourney will now open Sunday, Feb. 26, at noon at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome Alleys, Quincy Shore Dr.

Applications are available at the alleys for league officials wishing to enter a team in the competition. Deadline for filing registration forms has been extended to Thursday, Feb. 23.

The championship team will receive a $50 cash award and individual members of the team will receive a trophy emblematic of their achievement. Trophies will also be awarded for high tourney average, high individual three string total and high tourney single.

Teams must be from an organized women's bowling league. "No pickup teams allowed." Rules governing are the same as league competition.

Top five bowlers as of Feb. 1, bowl in competition with the sixth and seventh used as alternates. If others are needed, continue to choose according to average.

Bowlers entered must have bowled half the season thus far with their respective league and may only bowl for one tourney entry.

Any violations of the above rules will forfeit the team's participation.

All matches will be decided on total pinfall in tourney competition. It is an elimination tourney. Each team must win to continue in competition.

Opposition each Sunday is automatic according to alley number drawn each Sunday.

The tourney is annually sponsored by the Koch Club of Quincy as part of its winter athletic and recreation program.

Legislature Back In Session

The Massachusetts Legislature is currently back in full swing. The House is currently acting on the Worcester County Budget. The Governor has introduced a Deficiency Budget that will provide money for the General Fund [$8.2 million], Children of Need of Services [$2.3 million] the Administration of the Merit Rating Board [$840,000] and money for Elderly Home Care [$1.5 million]. A vote on the budget should take place this week or early next week.

The House is also expected to discuss an order to set up a Blue Ribbon Commission to investigate construction over payments in the Commonwealth, especially the firm of McKee-Burger and Mansueto. A vote on this matter should be forthcoming.

The House is also expected to start on Court Reform in the near future. Debate will probably center around judicial payraises.

The Committee of Ways and Means held a hearing on a bill to provide emergency fuel allotment for the elderly and people on fixed income. This should be reported on sometime this week.

Men's Candlepin Tourney Resumes Sunday After Storm Halt

The 25th annual Greater Quincy Men's Candlepin Bowling Tourney competition, curtailed last Sunday due to the snowstorm, will resume Sunday, Feb. 19, at noon at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome.

Twelve teams remain in the Koch Club sponsored event and will meet in Sunday's rolloff: The Tuesday Quincy Merchants, East Weymouth, Hull Thursday Men, Quin-Wey, Carlyle of Whitman, John Quincy Adams, Wollaston Men's League, Adams Heights Men's Club, Quincy Eagles, Webster Lanes Monday Men, Dante Couples Men and the Quincy League.

The championship unit will receive a team trophy and a $100 cash award from Richard J. Koch, tourney director, while the runnerup team will receive a $25. consolation award.

One of the oldest candlepin bowling tournaments in New England, the competition was started in 1954 with eight teams participating at the former Norfolk Downs Alleys in North Quincy and has continually increased to its 48 team competition in the 25th season.

The tourney has been sponsored by the Koch Club of Quincy for the past quarter of a century as part of its winter athletic and recreation program.

In the second round of the Greater Quincy Men's Candlepin Bowling Tournament the Quincy Tuesday Night Merchants bowled the high total in ousting Boston Gear Works, 1817-1640. East Weymouth Bowl-A-Way eliminated Weymouth Landing Recreation, 1805-1627, with the second high score.

In the remaining 10 matches of the Koch Club-sponsored event, Hull Thursday Night Men defeated Beau's Place, 1764-1745; Quin-Wey romped over International, 1763-1573; Carlyle Merchants of Whitman trampled Emanon, 1760-1532; John Quincy Adams downed Montclair Men's Club, 1711-1594; Wollaston Men's trounced John Hancock, 1704-1516; Adams Heights Men's Club toppled Supreme, 1697-1538; Hull Monday Night outlasted St. Mark's VFW, 1619-1608; Quincy Eagles outscored Stop and Shop, 1630-1550; Dante Couples Men squeezed by Sawyer-Campbell, 1601-1596, and Quincy League edged North Quincy Associates, 1531-1530.

Tuesday Night Merchants jumped off to a 41-pin first string lead and coasted to a 177-pin victory over Boston Gear. Ron Johnson led with 372, followed by Paul Vickers, 368; Jim Boyle, 363; John Catrambone, 362, and Bob McDonough, 352. Top scorers for Gear included Dennis Bertoni, 350; Fred DiCarlo, 346, and Jack Hatfield, 335.

East Weymouth bowled an 1800 for the second straight week and had little trouble topping Weymouth Landing.

TV bowler Mike Fardy led the winners with 404 and was aided by Joe Lamm, 366; Rick Cassani, 362, and Paul Paton, 360. Top scorers for Landing were Bob Glassett, 367, and Paul Alconada, 328.

Hull pulled out its win over Beau's in the final string. Bob Smolinsky Jr. paced Hull with 377, followed by Steve McGunnigle, 369; John Leeber, 346; Mike Robertson, 352, and Bob Smolinsky Sr., 330. Jim Blake was high for Beau's with 378, followed by Fred Connolly, 370; Ron Leone, 348, and Bob Russell, 331.

Quin-Wey won two of its three strings over International for its second win. Al Markella with 382 was high for Quin-Wey, followed by Bill Anhila, 354; Bill Nicholson, 353; Tom Wiencek, 340, and Tom Nicholson, 334. Tom Stapleton had a 337 for International and Paul Perkham had a 334.

Carlyle had little trouble with Emanon, winning all four points. Jim Rigo had a 368, followed by Dave Landay, 361; Dick O'Connell, 353; Dennis Chick, 347, and Lou Alberghini, 331.

Gerry Thomas was tops for Emanon with a 316.

John Quincy Adams displayed a consistent attack in topping Montclair after trailing in the first string. Len Simes paced Quincy Adams with a 360 and was aided by Joe Marini, 360; Frank Nota, 349, and Gino Marini, 327. Mark Smith was tops for Montclair with 374, and Mike Martinelli had 335.

Fr. Joseph Manton To Speak At Morrisette Post Military Mass

Rev. Joseph Manton, pastor of the Mission Church in Roxbury will preach the sermon at the 49th annual Military Mass of the Cyril P. Morrisette Legion Post at 10 a.m. Feb. 20 at St. Mary's Church, West Quincy.

Fr. Manton was ordained as a priest of the Redemptorist Order in 1929. In 1939 he was assigned to the well known Mission Church of Roxbury.

Fr. Manton has presented an annual series on NBC's Catholic Hour network for the last 16 years, and has appeared on local and national television. The Shut-Ins from Cape Cod to Maine know him from a weekly radio broadcast over Boston's WHDH, a program now in it's 18th year.

Preceding the Mass, there will be the placing of memorial wreaths at the graves in St. Mary's Cemetery of Cyril P. Morrisette, after whom the Morrisette post was named, and John A. Boyd, after whom the John A. Boyd Camp, United Spanish War Veterans, Quincy, was named. They will be placed under the direction of Robert LaFleur, post historian at 8 a.m.

Flag raising ceremonies will take place on the grounds of the Morrisette Post home, 54 Miller St., at 9 a.m.

The parade will form at the post grounds at 9:15 a.m. The parade roster:

Quincy police detail with colors, American Legion state and county details with colors. Paul W. O'Neill, a past commander of the post-Chief Marshal. Edwin Boland, Chaplain; Fr. Manton, honorary Chaplain.

Invited guests, including American Legion department officers; city officials, headed by Arthur Tobin, Mayor of Quincy; county and state officials.

All veterans organizations and their colors; 215th Army Band; Morrisette Post color detail; Morrisette Post members, led by Commander Kevin P. O'Leary and Morrisette Post drill team, led by Past Commander Mario A. Ghilardi.

At 9:30 a.m. memorial wreaths will be placed at the West Quincy War Veterans Memorial, adjacent to the West Quincy Fire Station, by Commander O'Leary and Mayor Arthur Tobin.

After the formal ceremonies at the church, the parade will reform and return to Morrisette Post Home, where open house will be held for the rest of the day.

Honored guests will be Gold Star Mothers and the families of all the deceased.

Faith Lutheran, Good Shepard Churches In Union Services

Faith Lutheran Church and the Church of the Good Shepherd of Quincy will hold union worship services during the Lenten season.

They will recreate the trial of Jesus of Nazareth with Pastor James Kimmell of Faith Church and Pastor Darrel Urban of the Good Shepherd as prosecuting attorneys. Members of the two congregations will be defense attorneys and the following witnesses, Peter, Mary Magdalene, Judas, Nicodemus and Caiaphas.

Services will be at Faith Center, 65 Roberts St., Feb. 15, March 1 and 15 and at the Good Shepherd, 308 West Squantum St., Feb. 22 and March 8. All services will begin at 7:30 p.m.

During Holy Week, each congregation will hold services at its own church. Faith Church will observe Maundy Thursday with a Seder Meal and a Tenebrae Service on Good Friday.

St. John's Holy Name 'Day Of Recollection' Feb. 18

The Holy Name Society of St. John the Baptist Parish, 44 School St., Quincy Center will sponsor a Day of Recollection for all men of the Parish on Sat., Feb. 18 beginning with the Mass at 8:30 a.m.

Mass will be followed by breakfast in the rectory hall and a discussion in the church led by Spiritual Director Rev. William McCarthy.

A talk by Anthony DeFalco, Director of Quincy City Hospital will follow luncheon and the day will close with the recitation of the rosary and benediction.

Tickets may be obtained by contacting Fr. McCarthy at the rectory or by calling Anthony Quintiliani 471-2788, Jim Connell 1-878-8456, Vincent Villard 773-2347, Fred Fostello 773-5164, Alfred Saluti 479-1607, Aldo Saluti 843-4776, Dick Fettig 773-1018, Joseph Ciccolo 479-1730, Ettore Grilli, 479-3014 and after each mass in the back of the church.

'Call To Conversion' Lenten Series At St. John's

"The Call to Conversion" will be the subject of a series of four evenings of scripture study, discussion and prayer led by Sister Laetitia Ann Campbell, O.P., at the St. John's Church, Quincy Center.

The series will be held on four consecutive Thursdays, Feb. 23, March 2, March 9 and March 16.

Sr. Laetitia Campbell of St. John's Seminary in Brighton will trace "The Call to Conversion" from Genesis through the Gospels.

The series, sponsored by the St. John's Adult Education Committee, will be held in the lower church hall at 8 p.m.

Bishop D'Arcy Hour Cancelled

The Lenten Holy Hour that Bishop John D'Arcy was scheduled to lead at St. John's Church tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. has been cancelled because of the storm.

Bishop D'Arcy, Vicar for Spiritual Development for the Boston Archdiocese, will be at St. John's St. Patrick's Day for the 7:30 p.m. Mass.

POSITIVE ID -- Robert Sullivan, Boston Gas Co. employee displays identification card carried by all of the company's representatives. Customers have been cautioned to demand identification from persons claiming to be employees of the utilities company.

Get Positive ID

Be Sure He's A Boston Gas Representative

Boston Gas Company is cautioning its customers in Quincy and throughout the area to demand positive identification from persons representing themselves as Boston Gas employees before allowing them to enter their homes.

"This action is necessary," said James S. Parkhill, executive vice president, "because several recent incidents have occurred in which visitors falsely identified themselves to homeowners as utility company representatives."

Parkhill stated that all Boston Gas servicemen and meter readers are furnished with distinctive uniforms. Both the shirt and jacket have prominent "Boston Gas" patches sewn on them.

"In addition," he said, "all Boston Gas employees are issued identification cards on which their photograph appears. Any person claiming to be a Boston Gas service representative or meter reader should be wearing a uniform and carrying this card."

If anyone claims to be from Boston Gas and fails to show proper identification, Mr. Parkhill urges that both the local police department and the Boston Gas legal services department be notified immediately.

"When in doubt, demand positive identification," he warned. "This precaution applies not only to persons purporting to be from Boston Gas, but to anyone requesting entry into someone's home."

Before you make a deal... this deal or any other deal... investigate it thoroughly. Find out everything.

What is a 7-ELEVEN store?
Will it offer you and your family a fair chance at making a good living?
What is the company like that's behind the deal?

7-Eleven stores started popping up around Dallas, Texas in 1927. Today there are over five thousand of them doing business from coast to coast. Each one is a smaller-than-supermarket sized convenience food store. The product mix and merchandising plan appeal to customers of all ages and all income levels. The 7-Eleven store was the beginning of the convenience food store industry because of the 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. 7 day a week shopping concept. Nowadays, that convenience concept has been taken a step further since the majority of 7-Eleven stores across the country are open 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

If you should elect to invest your time and money in one of these stores, almost a half century of 7-Eleven store experience will select a site for your store, will design, build and equip it. Your bookkeeping will be done for you. You'll benefit from several national advertising programs.

A specialized training program will teach you how to merchandise and operate the store and how to handle the public. That half century of experience is called The Southland Corporation and those people are just as interested in your success as you are.

If you think this thumbnail sketch of a 7-Eleven store way of life deserves your further investigation, call or write using the coupon below.

ON OLDER HOMES

Every year, twice as many American families buy older [or previously-occupied homes] than they do new houses. Depending upon the age of the home, naturally, there may be some unknown risks in the area of construction, plumbing, or wiring. However, these can be obviated by a professional inspection.

But there are also some major advantages to buying an older home. It normally contains far more space than a new home in the same price range, and there are a great many more older homes than new homes for sale which gives you a wider opportunity to make a good buy. Also, many older homes have a charm, location, and graciousness that can't be found in a new home.

True, a new home will give you fewer maintenance problems and more modern built-in appliances, however, there is much to be said for the older home too. The best approach is to look at both and weigh the merits. We'll be happy to show you a fine selection of both older and new homes to choose from.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

INTRUDER IN THE HOUSE

If you sense that someone has forced entry into your house, do not turn on the lights. With a light behind you, you will make a perfect target. As a safety precaution, if possible, have a telephone by your bed. If you do not, go quietly through the dark to your phone, dial "O" and tell the operator your address and that you need help immediately.

Police advise that if you are awakened at night by an intruder, do not try to apprehend him. He might be armed. Instead, lie still, observe carefully, and at the first chance, call the police.

Having a safety room in the house is a good idea, although most people will never have to use it. The room - it can be any room in the house - should have a telephone and a strong inside lock. Everyone in the family should be instructed that in case an intruder enters the house, to run for that room.

If you have a basement with windows or doors, have a lock on the door at the top of the basement stairs. Burglars often break into the basement, and a lock at the top of the stairs may prevent them from entering the living quarters, or give you time to summon the police.

NOTICE TO BIDDERS

City of Quincy, Mass.
Invitation to Pre-Bid Conference and Invitation for Bids

Due to the storm, the City of Quincy has been forced to revise its schedule for the Pre-Bid Conference and the bid schedule for the proposed Quincy City Hall Annex, Quincy, Massachusetts. The revised schedule is as follows:

The City of Quincy, the Awarding Authority, acting through its authorized agent, James J. Ricciuti, Commissioner of Public Works, will conduct a PRE-BID CONFERENCE for: General Contractor and File-sub bid contractors and suppliers who are interested in submitting bids on the proposed Quincy City Hall Annex, Quincy, Massachusetts, in accordance with the plans and specifications prepared by T. Owen Trainor Associates, Architects, 29 Cottage Avenue, Quincy, Mass. 02169.

The PRE-BID CONFERENCE will be held at 9:30 A.M. on Tuesday, February 21, 1978, at 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Mass. The Conference will begin promptly at 9:30 A.M.

The purpose of the Pre-Bid Conference is to familiarize interested parties with the Federal Economic Development Administration requirements pertaining to minority business participation and to review bid procedures, prevailing wage rates and equal employment opportunity requirements.

The City of Quincy, the Awarding Authority, will receive sealed bids for the Proposed Quincy City Hall Annex, Quincy, Massachusetts, in accordance with the plans and specifications prepared by T. Owen Trainor Associates, Architects, 29 Cottage Avenue, Quincy, Mass., 02169.

Bidding procedures shall be in accordance with Chapter 149 of the Massachusetts General Laws, as amended.

Sealed bids for the Contracts will be received by the Awarding Authority at the Office of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts, until 12:00 noon, local time, March 14, 1978 [File-sub bids] and March 21, 1978 [General bids], at which time all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The bidders may obtain one complete set of Plans and Specifications at the Office of the Commissioner of Public Works, upon deposit of the following amount: For proposed City Hall Annex $100.00 in the form of cash or by check made payable to the City of Quincy for each complete set, after 12:00 noon, February 21, 1978. Additional sets may be obtained at the cost of reproduction. Copies of the Form For Bid are available at no cost at the Architect's office and at the office of the Commissioner of Public Works. The full amount of deposit will be refunded to all persons returning plans and specifications in good condition within ten [10] days after date of Bid opening. The Contract Documents may be examined at the office of the Architect, T. Owen Trainor Associates, Inc., 29 Cottage Avenue, Quincy, Mass. 02169, and at the office of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts.

Every bid shall be accompanied by cash or a certified check on, or a treasurer's or cashier's check issued by a responsible bank or trust company, payable to the City of Quincy or a Bid Bond in the amount of five percent [5%] of the bid.

The successful bidder will be required to furnish a performance bond and also a labor and materials or payment bond for 100% of the Contract Price.

Attention is called to the fact that no less than the minimum wage rates as set forth in the schedules contained in the specifications must be paid on this project.

Time for completion of the work shall be as stated in INSTRUCTION TO BIDDERS.

The Awarding Authority reserves the right to reject any or all bids and to waive any informalities in the bidding if it be in the public interest to do so, provided such rejection or waiver be in conformance with Section 44A to 44L inclusive, of Chapter 149 of the General Laws, as amended.

The fastest, easiest, safest way to pay bills is right under your nose.

It's called Pay-by-Phone.

Pay-by-Phone is a brand new bill-paying service that's faster, easier and safer than writing checks. You can use this modern service to pay many of your bills to leading department stores, credit card companies, utilities and lots more. No checks. No stamps. No worries about payments being lost or stolen in the mail. And our charge is only 13¢ a transaction (the same amount you save on a stamp.)

Pay-by-Phone service is easy to get. You can add it to your present checking account. Or, open a new account with us and tell us you want the convenience of Pay-by-Phone. We'll do the rest. You may never lick another stamp.

Former Mayor Returns

Tobin Names Hannon City Planner

By TOM HENSHAW

Former Mayor Walter J. Hannon, who has been working for the South Shore Chamber of Commerce for the past two years, has been named director of planning and community development for Quincy.

Mayor Tobin also announced on Tuesday the following appointments:

- Robert E. Foy III, treasurer and tax collector, a post he has held since 1972.
- Francis L. Sullivan, director of veterans services, after being assistant director since 1962.
- Charles L. Alongi Jr., director of recreation, a position he occupied briefly in 1975.
- Mrs. Marion Andrews, acting director of the Council on Aging.

All but Mrs. Andrews were sworn in Tuesday in ceremonies in the City Council Chamber at City Hall.

Tobin said he will announce in a week or 10 days his choices to fill the posts of assessor, purchasing agent, citywide development coordinator and director of the Council on Aging.

Hannon's appointment as director of planning marks the first time a former mayor has returned to an appointive position in city government since ex-Mayor Thomas J. McGrath was named treasurer in the 1930's.

Hannon served as mayor from 1972 to 1976 when he was defeated for re-election to a third term by Joseph J. LaRaia. Since then he has been manager of economic development for the Chamber of Commerce.

"Subsequent to his leaving the office of mayor," said Tobin, "he made known to me that this was his city. He loved this city and if there was ever an opportunity to serve the people of this city again that he would like to have it."

Tobin said his screening

Final Campaign Figures Show:

Tobin, LaRaia Spent Total $134,088 In Mayoral Race

Arthur H. Tobin and Joseph J. LaRaia spent a total of $134,088.28 to run for Mayor of Quincy last fall.

It cost Tobin $73,438.65 to win – or $3.85 for each of the 19,096 votes he got.

It cost LaRaia $60,649.63 to lose – or $4.32 for each of his 14,046 votes.

The Tobin campaign finished with a balance of $706.06 on hand while the LaRaia Committee wound up affairs with an empty treasury after repaying $2,635.83 of a $5,000 loan to LaRaia.

The final tally of contributions and expenditures for the Sept. 20 preliminary election and the Nov. 8 final were filed recently with the Election Office at City Hall.

The biggest expense in both camps involved public relations and advertising consultants. Tobin spent $19,050.50 with David Duffy, 1 Jackson Walkway, Providence, R.I., and LaRaia $14,004.14 with Edwards Group, 51 Sleeper St., Boston, for such work.

Printing and advertising costs took a big chunk of each budget, too.

Ads and commercials cost Tobin $11,305.89 in The Patriot Ledger, $5,445.22 in The Quincy Sun [including $667.80 for printing flyers] and $2,200 over Radio WJDA.

LaRaia spent $9,266.32 with The Ledger, $559 with The Sun, $2,775 with WJDA, and $11,480 with the North End Press, 7 Prince St., Boston, for tabloids.

Postage costs were high, with Tobin spending $4,109.70 and LaRaia contributing $3,610.00.

The New England Telephone Co. also benefitted from the campaign, $4,845.08 from Tobin and $5,255.12 from LaRaia. Only LaRaia bought signs, $2,358.37 worth, according to his financial statement.

Some items of interest from the reports:

The LaRaia camp was very security conscious, spending $3,030.90 with First Security Service, 92 State St., Boston and

Volunteers Being Organized

Houghs Neck In 'Operation Mop Up'

By PETER BARNICLE

Houghs Neck residents are undertaking their own clean-up campaign in the wake of the devastating snow storm which left a number of homes in the area in a shambles.

The Houghs Neck Disaster Relief Council was formed at a meeting held Sunday at Blessed Sacrament Church and plans were discussed for a massive volunteer mop-up to start on Saturday at 9 a.m. Volunteers have been asked to meet at the LaBrecque Field on Sea St. and at St. Thomas Aquinas Hall on Darrow St.

Rev. Richard Uftring of Blessed Sacrament Church, was named chairman of the council. Assistance was pledged by Blessed Sacrament Church, Houghs Neck Congregational Church, the Houghs Neck Community Council, the Rock Island Improvement Association, Houghs Neck Legion, Houghs Neck Businessmens Association, Rep. Thomas Brownell, City Councillors Francis McCauley and Leo Kelly.

The Department of Public Works will provide trucks to haul away debris and the city dump will be opened to facilitate disposal of the rubbish. It is also expected that CETA

Have Salt Water Immersed Electrical Equipment Checked

Any circuit-breakers, fuse-boxes, switches, wall plugs, or other electrical equipment that was immersed in salt water during the recent storm should be replaced, according to Thomas E. Purpura, Quincy's acting inspector of wires.

Purpura warned that while the casings of such equipment may not indicate the extent of the damage, examination of the wiring will show extensive corrosion.

"In circuit-breaker units this damage could prevent the unit from tripping properly in case of an overload," Purpura cautioned.

He advised all home owners whose homes were flooded to have an electrical contractor or a licensed electrician check all wiring and electrical equipment that may have been under water.

He pointed out that if the damaged equipment is not replaced it constitutes a hazardous condition which could result in a fire, even a year from now.

Purpura personally visited 200 homes in the Houghs Neck, Squantum and Germantown sections advising householders of the danger. He found that Massachusetts Electric Company had removed some internally damaged circuit breakers, others had been taken out by electricians and he removed some badly corroded units.

"Power may have been restored and the lights work, but this does not mean everything is all right," Purpura said. "I cannot emphasize strongly enough the extreme hazard resulting from salt water immersion of electrical equipment."

Flu Epidemic On Wane At ENC

The flu epidemic that swept Eastern Nazarene College last week is currently on the wane, a spokesman for the college in Wollaston said.

Mrs. Beverly Dolan, the school nurse, said 115 of the college's 820-student enrollment had been confined with the flu during the epidemic.

Several events were cancelled or moved, notably basketball games with Gordon College and Southeastern Mass University which were played in Hamilton and Dartmouth respectively.

Daily chapels were cancelled as were most events that would have brought a large number of the student body together at close quarters.

$70,467 In New Wiring

During January the Quincy department of wire inspection issued 72 permits for work which will cost an estimated $70,467, according to Thomas E. Purpura, assistant inspector of wires.

Fees collected during the month totaled $820.25. In the same period 125 inspections were made and 13 defects noted. There were 11 re-inspections and two fire calls.

Thirty-four certificates of approval were issued to Massachusetts Electric Company and one to a nursing home.

The major wiring projects during the month were new additions to the Quincy Savings Bank, 138 Franklin St., and Woodward Spring Shop, 111 McGrath Hwy.

Tax Assistance At Council On Aging

The Quincy Council on Aging will again provide counseling to seniors who require assistance in preparing their income tax forms.

An expert will be on hand at the Council on Aging office, 1 Cliveden St., Room 309 from 2 to 4:30 p.m. on Thursday, beginning today, Feb. 23.

Salvation Army Aiding Storm Victims

By PETER BARNICLE

"You know something? There are plenty of people who are worse off than we are. Those poor people in Hull and 'Scituate,'" said Mrs. Lillian Winders, Sea St., Houghs Neck, sympathetically as she clutched a box of food and clothing at the Salvation Army Community Center, Baxter at Elm St., Quincy.

Mrs. Delia Aldrich, Sea St., nodded in agreement.

The women were but two of the scores who sought help from the Salvation Army after the storm left them without most of their household goods.

Capt. Charles L. Waddington, officer in charge of the Salvation Army Corps in Quincy, reports his staff and volunteers have been providing lodging, meals and counseling since the storm began Feb. 6.

"Hot food and beverages were taken to the fire stations throughout the city," he said. "We made several trips to the more remote fire houses."

In some instances families were transported to stores to buy groceries and then to homes that were habitable. In one case a mother and her new born baby were driven from Quincy City Hospital to their home when all other modes of travel were stalled.

Capt. Waddington had high praise for the people throughout Quincy and the surrounding communities who generously donated food and clothing to the Salvation Army for distribution to families in need.

SALVATION ARMY AID was made available to hundreds of Quincy residents forced from their homes during the great storm. Mrs. Delia Aldrich (left), Sea St., the Willows, picks out frozen food with Capt. Charles Waddington (center), officer in charge, Salvation Army Corps Community Center, Baxter St., while Mrs. Cyril Winders, Sea St., holds carton of clothing and food. Both women were evacuated from their homes during storm.

Mrs. Aldrich, a widow who lives alone, said she lost gas, lights, heat and her furniture. Part of the back of her home was heavily damaged.

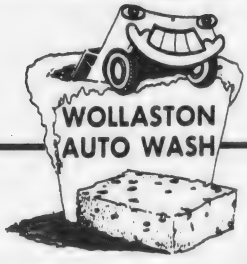
"I spent five hours in the attic on Tuesday watching the water come up - up - up," she said. "In the afternoon some firemen came and took me out piggy-back to a big red truck.

"I've always wanted to ride on a fire truck, but not under those conditions."

Mrs. Aldrich was not able to get back into her house and is presently staying with the Winders.

Mrs. Winders and her husband, Cyril, have also taken in three neighbors who were forced to flee their home. However, all five were evacuated by the National Guard and taken to the Armory for shelter.

Two days later the heat at the Winder home was restored and all moved back in.



"We had a trailer, but it was swept away and is now down in the marsh," Mrs. Winder said.

The elderly Mrs. Aldrich is sleeping on a couch and the three neighbors are sleeping on the floor.

Mrs. Aldrich and the Winders have filed claims with the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration and are waiting for an agent to examine the damage.

At the FDAA center set up at Vo Tech gymnasium they were referred to the Salvation Army which provided the food and clothing for their immediate needs.

The effective way to insulate your home

Insulation effectiveness is measured in its resistance to heat flow . . . either moving out of the house in winter or flowing in, during the summer.

Celsius foam insulation has a high "R" rating which creates an efficient thermal barrier in ceilings, attics and walls. Celsius foam is pumped into walls cavities and flows around pipes, electrical outlets and other protrusions. It effectively seals against heat loss and drafts by completely filling the spaces without settling.

With Celsius foam you save on heating/cooling costs all year round and you get a return on your investment every time you receive your utility bill. You'll enjoy extra living comfort too!

Call us today for more information on our homeowner's warranty and a free estimate. You need to insulate your home only once. Do it right. Call us today!

City To Continue Help As Disaster Assistance Center Closes

The Disaster Assistance Center at the Quincy Vo Tech School gym closed up shop Tuesday night but Mayor Tobin has promised that the city will continue to help victims of the big storm.

"We are putting together a program, with the assistance of Paul Ricca of CETA, which probably will operate out of the DPW garage adjacent to the Civil Defense headquarters," said Tobin.

"Mainly, the Center will be involved in assisting people and in cleaning up debris left by the storm."

Tobin said that Commissioner James J. [Pete] Ricciuti and Helen Duffy of the DPW and Auditor Charles L. Shea are still putting figures together for a final assessment of storm damage.

"We won't know how much the property damage is for several months," he said. "We still don't know the extent of the hidden damage such as erosion to sea walls and roads."

Lt. Gov. Thomas P. O'Neill III, who visited Quincy by helicopter last week, listed Quincy along with Marshfield as the fifth most devastated community in the storm.

Only Hull, Scituate, Revere and Winthrop suffered more damage, he said.

"I've gone out of my way not to give an estimate," said O'Neill. "We're still compiling data. It may be four to six weeks from now when we'll know exactly what the extent of damage is and what we can do about it."

Jim Licklider, a spokesman for the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, said the Quincy disaster center serviced 1,102 people. It was closed when the number of applicants for aid dropped off sharply.

Mrs. Ann Clasby, registrar at the Center, said follow-up assistance teams are available at 15 Beacon St., Boston, and at the Lincoln School, 86 Central St., Hingham. Inquiries can be made by using the toll-free phone number, 1-800-392-6110.

Mayor Tobin said the immediate priority for the city now is the disaster payroll.

"The people who were called in to work during the storm and after naturally want to get paid," he said. "But we're not sure how to set it up until we learn what expenses are reimbursible by the state and federal governments."

Tobin said specific queries that have been called in to city department heads have been turned over to Asst. City Solicitor Dennis E. Harrington "who talks to state and federal officials and gets answers for us."

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Fashion in jewelry changes along with everything else, but the basic custom of engagement and wedding rings has lasted for centuries. Originally the prospective groom gave his future bride a valuable ring at the time of betrothal as a sign of their agreement. In fact, it was only after the English Reformation that two rings came into use -- one for the engagement and a separate one for the marriage ceremony. There is little doubt that early wedding rings signified the husband's possession of, and control over, his wife. However, even in Roman times the ring symbolized other things as well. For example, some rings had little keys attached to them which indicated the wife's power within the household.

For fine examples of engagement and wedding rings come to us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490. We handle loose and mounted diamonds and are pleased to have the opportunity to help you choose the rings for these happy occasions. We can custom design a setting for you or you can choose the diamond and put it in a setting we have already set up. Open: 9 a.m. - 5 p.m., Mon. thru Sat.

HELPFUL HINT:
Germans and Scandinavians brought the double ring ceremony to America in the late nineteenth century.

Today's Women

At Lincoln-Hancock School

Women's Center To Sponsor 'Challenge Of Parenting' Series

The Women's Center at Quincy Junior College is sponsoring a discussion series entitled "The Challenge of Parenting".

The discussion group will begin March 1 and will meet each Wednesday from 9:30 a.m., to 11 a.m. at the Lincoln Hancock Community School on Granite St. Cost of the six-week course is $12 and babysitting will be provided.

Parents will probe into the complex and challenging subject of child-rearing. They will examine with the discussion leader and with one another, alternative solutions to difficult problems which all parents face. Topics to be explored during the series include: strenthening a child's self-concept, setting limits, sibling rivalry - minimizing feelings of jealousy, understanding a child's fears and anxieties, providing positive sex education and explaining death to children.

Discussion leader will be Jeanne Evans of Quincy, who has a B.S. in Education from Ohio University and a master's degree in Counselor Training from Boston State College. As a member of the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women in Quincy, she compiled two booklets which are in great demand throughout the city. Her Directory of Pre-School Facilities in Quincy and Human Services for Pre-Schoolers have been distributed by City Hall, community action centers, the Women's Center and the Quincy Public Library as valuable resources for parents. Miss Evans has experience as a teacher and as a counselor of elementary school children and their parents and is the mother of two children, ages 3 and 5.

Miss Evans notes:

"I look at this group discussion series as a time when we think of ourselves as "gardeners" trying to learn more about growing things--in this instance growing people. The topics which we will explore, we have all experienced as children and now as parents. Our experiences as children, to a large extent, influence our behavior as parents."

The discussion series will be limited to 12 participants. To register for the series or for more information, call Alicia Coletti at the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College [479-8445], beginning Monday, Feb. 27.

Mayor's Commission Urges Agencies To Utilize Talent Bank For Appointments

The Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women is urging private and non-profit agencies on the South Shore to utilize the Talent Bank for appointments to their boards.

In a letter to 14 such agencies the Commission's Task Force on the Talent Bank noted: "Close to 100 women have submitted Talent Bank applications, totalling over 300 areas of interest. Therefore, the Talent Bank can offer you a useful resource when recruiting members for your Boards."

The Talent Bank was established by the Commission in the spring of 1977 to encourage women to play a larger role in the affairs of the city. It is a resource not only for city boards and commissions, but is also available to regional groups, non-profit agencies, and commercial interests which are interested in locating qualified Quincy women to serve on their boards or special Task Forces.

Toby Felton, speaking for the Talent Bank Task Force said:

"With close to 100 women expressing interest in a wide range of areas, including health, human relations, finance, arts and humanities, conservation, legal, etc., the Talent Bank provides an excellent roster of women for any group which is making appointments. It would certainly increase the pool of applicants from which the agency could choose."

The Talent Bank was first made operational in September and has been used for a few city boards and a non-profit agency.

Miss Felton noted that the Commission was working with the city administration to increase the use of the Talent Bank, but was also hopeful of expanding its use to private and non-profit groups.

Any agency wishing to use the Talent Bank should contact Miss Mary Weafer, 16 Gilmore St., [773-2323]. The Commission has a sample list of the types of Board and Commissions which could use the Talent Bank to assist women who join the program.

Stay Alive!

By Jack Silverstein

IF ACCELERATOR STICKS

Nothing will pump your adrenalin faster than a gas pedal that stays down on the floor when your foot is lifted off. If this happens to you, don't hit your brakes, even with a pumping action, as this will burn up the brakes and jerk the car. If you have the time, try to raise up the accelerator pedal with your foot. This may free the linkage. DO NOT bend down and try to free the accelerator with your hand. This will only increase your chance, the chance of disaster.

If you are in heavy traffic and cannot lift the pedal with your foot, shift into neutral and apply your brakes and move out of the traffic. The car's engine will race in neutral but it is far safer than in gear.

If you are not in traffic and there is a little danger of being hit from another direction, turn off the ignition. Then brake to a stop as you manouver to the side of the road. Remember that, with the ignition off, your power steering will be inoperative. In any event, once you have stopped, do not drive the car again until it has been repaired.

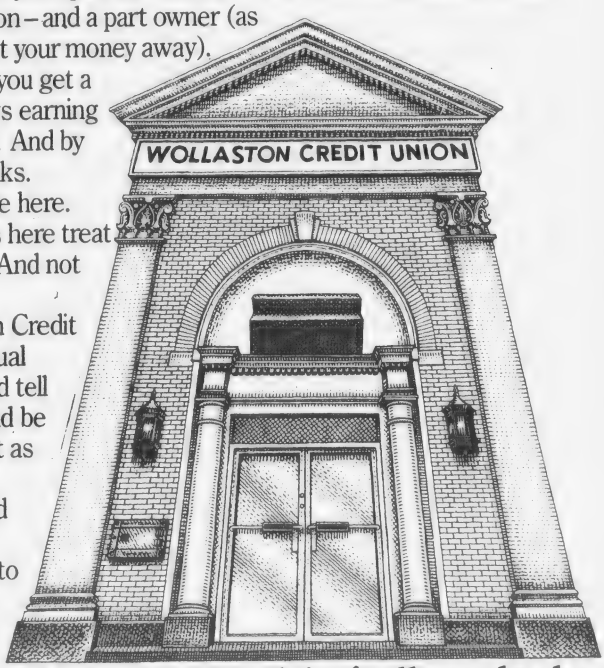
MASSACHUSETTS CREDIT UNION SHARE INSURANCE CORPORATION
INSURED SAVINGS
ALL ACCOUNTS FULLY INSURED UNDER MASSACHUSETTS LAW

Come down Hancock Street towards Boston.
Right at the corner of Beale Street you'll see the Happy Chef Pizza Parlor. And right up the street, the Keene Pharmacy.
In between is a building that looks suspiciously like a bank.
But it's not. It's the Wollaston Credit Union.
And because it's a Credit Union it can do some things a bank can't do.
For one thing, when you open an account at the Wollaston Credit Union you become a member of the credit union – and a part owner (as opposed to a bank, where they simply put your money away).

And because you're a part owner you get a share of the dividends. By almost always earning higher interest on your savings account. And by borrowing at a lower rate than most banks.



There's also a difference in attitude here. Because you're a part owner, the tellers here treat you as one of the people they work for. And not simply a face or an account number.

And as a member of the Wollaston Credit Union you are hereby invited to the annual meeting and encouraged to stand up and tell the Credit Union what you think it should be doing. Your vote carries as much weight as the president's.

Can you name any bank that would do that?

So if you'd like to put your money to better use than you may be doing now, head for downtown Wollaston.

And look for the building that looks like a bank.

We're what a bank isn't allowed to be.

Wollaston Credit Union, 651 Hancock St., Tel.: 773-3500. Open Mon. & Thurs. 9 to 8 PM. Until 5:00 PM Tues., Wed. & Fri.

Deposits fully insured by the Massachusetts Credit Union Share Insurance Corporation. Up to $33,000 for single accounts and to $66,000 for joint accounts.

QCBPA Presents Christmas Festival Parade Awards

Trophies, plaques and certificates of appreciation were presented to winners, workers and sponsors of the 1977 Christmas Festival Parade at Quincy Center Business and Professional Association award ceremonies at Sons of Italy Social Center on Quarry St.

Quincy High School's Marching Presidents topped the winners by capturing first place among the New England high school bands and also the competition among bands from Massachusetts.

The band declined an invitation to represent New England at the 1979 Cotton Bowl Parade in Dallas. However, it has accepted in invitation to participate in the Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival to be held at Winchester, Va., May 2-7.

Band director Michael J. Cahill has indicated the band may seek an invitation from the Orange Bowl in Miami to march in the festival there on next New Year's Day.

Accepting the honors for the Quincy High School Band were band officers, Theresa Ferris, president; Anne Marie Thurston, vice president; Valerie Pierce, treasurer, and Debra Ricciardi, secretary.

First prize for the best float in the adult category went to the Quincy Lodge of Elks for its entry "Everybody Loves Snoopy". Exalted Ruler John MacPherson, Esteemed Loyal Knight Robert Graham, and Esteemed Leading Knight Martin Blake accepted on behalf of the lodge.

The parade committee also acknowledged the cooperation of the banks in the city which sponsored a number of the floats. Representing the banks were, Aldo Saluti, Quincy Savings Bank; Patricia Jones, Quincy Cooperative Bank; June Wilson, Old Colony Bank and Trust Company, and Mrs. Barbara Lynch and Bernard Cohen, Granite Cooperative Bank. Hancock Bank also received a certificate of appreciation.

Mayor Arthur H. Tobin spoke briefly and commended all who took part in the Christmas Festival Parade for their work over the months in preparing the event.

George Fay, general chairman of the committee presented the Mayor with a wall clock for his cooperation with the group.

Other awards, plaques and certificates were given to the runners up in each category

William Morrill, coordinator of the bands was given the chairman's award for his work in rounding up 46 bands from all parts of New England to march in the parade.

Richard Koch, executive secretary of the Parks and Recreation department, was master of ceremonies

TOP HONORS -- Quincy High School's Marching Presidents received the award as best marching band in both the New England and the state competition during the 1977 Christmas Festival Parade. Trophy was presented at Awards Night by William Morrill, band coordinator for the parade. Accepting were [left to right], Deborah Ricciardi, band secretary; Theresa Ferris, band president; Bill Morrill; Valerie Pierce, treasurer, and Anne Marie Thurston, vice president. All four girls play in the unit.

Tobin Names Hannon City Planning Head

committee told him that Hannon "is perceived by the business community as a man who can make things happen.

"He possessed the drive, the enthusiasm and the leadership ability to work with the professional staff of the planning department to revitalize the downtown business district, to attract federal funding and grants and to do the long-range planning necessary to make Quincy a good place in which to live and work."

Hannon, 46, who once operated a tire business, served eight years in the City Council and six years in the state legislature before becoming mayor in 1972.

In addition to his work with the Chamber of Commerce, he was executive director of the South Shore Economic Development Corporation.

He and his wife, the former Pat Tully, live at 45 Forbes Hill Rd, Wollaston. They have five children.

Foy, 51, was appointed treasurer by Mayor Hannon in 1972 and was reappointed in 1976 by Mayor LaRaia.

He has also served as regional head of finances for the CETA program, head of the employees' insurance program, director and treasurer of the Quincy Detoxification Center, and treasurer of the Woodward School Trust Fund.

Foy, a graduate of Boston College in business administration and a World War II Army Air Corps veteran, received a certificate in financial municipal administration from Bently College in 1973.

Sullivan, 56, was an investigator from 1959 to 1962 when he was appointed assistant director of veterans services. He has also worked in the Water and Park Departments.

In 1971, he was named to a task force on jobs for veterans.

A 1940 graduate of Quincy High School, he completed graduate courses in counselling sponsored by the AFL-CIO.

Sullivan is a member of the Morrisette Legion Post, the Quincy Amvets, the Mass Veterans' Agents Association, Southeastern Mass Veterans Services, the Officers Association, the Montclair Men's Club and St. John's Holy Name Society.

He and his wife, the former Eileen Johnson, live at 130 South St., Quincy Point. They have two children.

Alongi, 32, worked in the Recreation Department from 1965 to 1976, being named director in 1975 following the death of William F. Ryan, the director for 20 years.

His specialty has been retarded children. He started with the Recreation Department as a counsellor at Camp Happy Acres for Retarded Children and co-authored a chapter "Day Camping for the Retarded" in a standard recreation textbook.

Alongi is a 1963 graduate of North Quincy High School and received a degree in community recreation from Northeastern. He has done graduate work in community and therapeutic recreation.

He has been a guest lecturer in recreation administration and programming at Northeastern.

Alongi was the first fund raising chairman of the Massachusetts Special Olympics Association, Norfolk District, and aided many Quincy retarded children to compete in the 1970-72-75 special olympics in Chicago, Los Angeles and Pleasantville, Mich.

He and his wife, the former Elizabeth A. Mahoney, live at 9 Hughes St., South Quincy.

NEW APPOINTMENTS made by Mayor Tobin are sworn in by City Clerk John M. Gillis. Left to right, Mayor Tobin; Charles L. Alongi Jr., director of recreation; Francis L. Sullivan, director of veterans' services; Robert E. Foy III, treasurer; Walter J. Hannon, director of planning; and Gillis.

Robert Fleming Named Assistant City Solicitor

Robert J. Fleming of 102 Gardiner Rd., West Quincy, has been named an assistant city solicitor to serve in his third city administration.

Fleming, 40, was an assistant city solicitor in the administration of Mayor Walter J. Hannon for two years and was retained for a year by Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia.

City Solicitor Richard W. Barry said Fleming was chosen for his wealth of experience in the office as well as his experience with the District Attorney's office.

Fleming and his wife, Janice, have four children.

Chamber Vandalism Seminar

The second session of the seminar on vandalism, sponsored by South Shore Chamber of Commerce, will be held in the conference room of the South Shore Bank, 11 Chestnut St., from 3 to 6 p.m. Thursday, March 9.

Police, educators and businessmen will discuss what is currently being done about the problem and listen to proposals for future programs.

WJDA: A Real Public Service

If you were going to give an award to the many dedicated people who did so much during the so-called "Great Blizzard of '78" you would need a truck load of commendations to hand out.

And you still wouldn't have enough.

There were so many worthy of citation: police, Civil Defense units, CB'ers, snowmobilers, city personnel, nurses, doctors, telephone operators, Civil Air Patrol, etc., etc.

But The Quincy Sun would like to nominate for a very special public service award, a very good friend of ours: radio station WJDA.

During most of that hectic period with the storm furiously lashing the coast, flooding streets and homes, smashing sea walls, and burying us under nearly 27 inches of snow, WJDA was on the air with vital information.

It was the quickest--and for one day--the only means of communication between local officials and the public.

James [Jay] Asher and staffers Herb Fontaine, Win Bettinson, Kenneth Fallon, Charles Ross, John Nicholson and Don Baird and Roy Lind kept the information coming to snowed-in and or flooded out listeners. And along with it, appeals for needed equipment such as snowmobiles and four-wheel drive vehicles.

The station stayed on after normal broadcasting hours two nights to keep the information coming.

During the height of the storm Feb. 7, WJDA really showed its grit--and dedication. That was when an abnormal high tide rolled over the insulator of the antenna at the transmitter in Germantown and knocked the station off the air for four hours.

After four hours of radio silence, Asher and his staff couldn't stand it any longer. Without really knowing if the water was still dangerously above or safely below the insulator the decision was to try to get back on the air.

As Asher recalls it: "...we got tired of sitting around so we turned on the power. It was a lucky shot. It worked but it could have burned everything out."

It could also have knocked Asher out of business.

To Jay and his gang: WELL DONE!

FORMER School Committeeman Charles Sweeny will be honored at a testimonial March 9 at Morrisette Legion Post. Social hour starts at 6:30 with dinner at 7:30.

School Committeewoman Mary Collins is committee chairman and Steve Moynihan is treasurer. School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon will be the emcee. Tickets are $12 per person or $22 per couple. The committee includes:

School Committee Vice Chairman Patricia Toland, Dr. Edward Pierce, president Quincy Junior College, Mary Curtin, president Quincy Education Association, Arthur Woodward, Carol Lee Griffin, Fred Nolan, Basil Caloia, Richard Chrystal, Carl Leone.

PATRICIA TOLAND, who is second in command on the School Committee, has had enough of that "vice chairperson" jazz.

The School Committee last week got hung up on whether she was the vice chairman, the vice chairwoman or the vice chairperson of the committee.

It was so confusing that veteran committeeman [not person] Frank Anselmo began referring to her as simply "the vice person".

"If I'm being addressed," said Mrs. Toland, "I prefer Madam Chairman.

"If you're talking about me, it's Chairwoman.

"And let that be the end of it."

REP. JAMES SHEETS returns to his alma mater, Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston, as an instructor. Sheets will teach a course in state government for the spring term and one in local government in the fall. And, did someone wonder about a course in federal government?

HERE'S THE REASON Dave Leitch of Burgin, Platner Insurance, is growing a beard: he lost a bet on the Great Blizzard. His son, Ken, 17, who already has a beard bet his father the storm would surpass the Jan. 20 storm in snowfall. Dave said it wouldn't. If Ken lost, he would shave his beard. If Dave lost, he would have to grow one. And--keep it until the ground is bare again.

THIS CONVERSATION REPORTEDLY was overheard on a bus between two Scituate residents, as they made their way back to work after the big storm.

"Boy," said the first, "I'm glad to get back to work. If I had to stay home one more day, my wife and I would have been throwing the furniture at one another.

"You're lucky," his companion said. "We don't have any furniture left."

An American radio engineer and pioneer of radio astronomy, Karl Jansky, discovered radio emission from the Milky Way.

Hectic Days And Nights For Staff

WJDA A Beacon During The Big Storm

By TOM HENSHAW

"It was like an adventure out of Star Wars," said Jay Asher.

"Going down Route 3A in a blinding snow storm, no cars, no lights, except every now and then an electrical transformer would short and there would be a brilliant blue flash."

It was 5:30 a.m. Tuesday, the day of the Great Storm of '78, and the beginning of the most hectic few days in the 30-odd years history of Radio Station WJDA.

For those few days, WJDA was indeed, as it bills itself, "the primary news medium of the South Shore." As a matter of fact, for one of those days it was the only one.

Some of the most familiar names on the air, Herb Fontaine, Win Bettinson, Ken Fallon and Asher, the owner of the station, slept over Tuesday night in the studio.

The station went off the air for four hours Tuesday when an abnormal high tide sent water over the insulator of the antenna at the transmitter in Germantown.

Almost all the regular programming was scrubbed in favor of emergency announcements during the critical days and twice the station stayed on the air past its dawn-to-dusk license.

Tuesday began at 3 a.m. for Asher when he got up to shovel out of his South Weymouth home. He left the house at 5 a.m., found Quincy Ave. closed, took the alternate route through the "Star Wars" setting in North Weymouth.

"I walked down Brackett St. thinking, 'Gee, if nobody else gets here it might be my announcing debut,' " said Asher, whose voice rarely is heard on the air. "I wondered what it would be like to be on the air all day."

Fortunately, Fontaine, the news director who lives in Merrymount, was already on hand. Quincy police, aware that the station would be needed in an emergency, drove him down.

Bill Malcolm, the early engineer, was totally snowed in but Don Baird was able to walk from his home around the corner and that's all a radio station needs to operate, an announcer and an engineer.

Just as Asher arrived, so did John Nicholson from North Weymouth, Fallon from his home on Furnace Brook Parkway and Bettinson after a complicated police relay from Braintree.

Bettinson arranged with Braintree police to get him to Capen's Circle where Quincy police picked him up and took him to the Southern Artery end of Brackett St. Fallon and Nicholson walked and hitched rides on snow plows.

"They arrived like the cavalry landing," said Asher. "All different directions and methods."

WJDA went on the air as scheduled at 6 a.m. Tuesday, with Fontaine and Bettinson reading news bulletins and emergency announcements. Charles Ross was summoned from vacation and, as he arrived, the station went off the air.

JAMES [JAY] ASHER and KEN FALLON

HERB FONTAINE

WIN BETTINSON

Everything was fine until the incoming tide reached the insulator of the antenna in Germantown. No one was at the transmitter to see it but there were "bad readings" on the dials back at the studio.

"We figured if we were ever going to be on the air again during the storm we had better shut everything off and wait for the tide to go out," said Asher.

The trouble was you couldn't tell when the tide had fallen below the insulator so the staff spent the time calling people in Germantown and asking them if they could see the transmitter and would they please say how far the water was above the insulator.

"Finally," said Asher, "around 2 o'clock we got tired of sitting around so we turned on the power. It was a lucky shot. It worked but it could have burned everything out."

WJDA was on the air until 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, two hours and 15 minutes beyond the time authorized by the Federal Communications Commission [FCC].

"There is a provision in the FCC regulations that you can stay on the air as long as the broadcast is limited to emergency information and there are no commercials," said Asher.

They used an open telephone line, like that on the daily Party Line program, and officials who called with information were put right on the air when they had something important to say.

"We just gave Win the name of the person on the phone, his title and where he was calling from and Win would take him right on the air," said Asher.

When the broadcast day was over, Nicholson made it home to North Weymouth on a snow plow and Ross and Baird walked. But Asher, Fontaine, Bettinson and Fallon stayed at the station overnight, sleeping on couches and air mattresses.

The next morning, Wednesday, Nicholson returned with a couple dozrn eggs and Asher scrambled them for breakfast.

"We really ate well," said Asher. "The Quincy Sub Shop opened and they provided us with Greek salad and subs that night. I think I ate twice as much as I usually do during the two days."

The emergency broadcasts continued during Wednesday but the station was returning to normal. A bulldozer came down Brackett St. and cleared a passage of snow. A plow from Woodward's Spring Shop across the street made a pass through the station parking lot, opening room for a half dozen cars.

On Thursday, Roy Lind showed up for work from his home in Scituate. He almost made it Tuesday but got stuck on 3A in North Weymouth and spent several hours in the Red Coach Grille before turning back home on a snow plow.

WJDA, of course, serves an area far larger than Quincy. For a time it was probably the only significant communication between hard-hit places like Hull and Scituate.

More than a week after the storm, the wife of Hull Selectman Simmie Hartstone called to tell Bettinson that power had been restored to another section of the beleaguered town.

"I don't know what we would have done without you," she told him. "While we were without lights, you were the only ones that kept us informed."

Remember The Storm Of '26?

GREAT STORM OF '78 was not the first nor will it be the last snowfall to paralyze the city of Quincy, as these photos will attest. They were taken Feb. 6, 1926, and were loaned to The Sun,by Nels E. QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS By Tom Henshaw

St. Valentine's Day Blizzard Snow Cost $34,629

City Treasurer Harold P. Newell announced that the total cost to the city for snow removal after the Great Valentine's Day Blizzard would be $34,629.21.

Newell said the figure did not include $4,800 paid out of emergency funds at the height of the storm for the purchase of a new snow loader.

Meanwhile, City Auditor Leo E. Mullen refused to authorize payment of a $17,502.77 bill for the hiring of outside cleanup equipment, claiming the bills were not itemized.

But about 1,200 men, some of them relief recipients and WPA workers, were paid a total of $17,126.44 for cleanup work. They worked 27,400 man hours at 62½ cents an hour.

The storm, which deposited up to 20 inches of snow that was whipped into drifts 10 to 12 feet deep by winds that reached 80 miles an hour, was called the worst blizzard of the century.

SEVENTH STRAIGHT FOR QHS

The Quincy High School basketball team rallied behind its second stringers to come from behind and beat Brockton, 39-35, for its seventh straight win in the series dating back to 1933.

Coach Munroe MacLean inserted his junior varsity in the game with Quincy trailing 17-4 in the second period and the benched varsity players were so stung that they walloped the visitors when they returned.

Members of the varsity team included: Flip Vergobbi and Sonny Nicholson, forwards; Mike Barba, center; Russ Maver and Warren Broberg, guards.

The Jayvees included: Lou Kotzen, Mando Reggiannini and Glenn Fleischer, forwards; Ernest Caddy, center; Berger Sjostrom and Bob Mathieson, guards.

EDMONSTON PROTESTS

William M. Edmonston, executive secretary of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, criticized a plan to pay the Quincy and North Quincy football coaches an extra $200 out of athletic association funds.

"If the city decides to pay a man for services he should be paid out of city appropriations and not out of some side funds," said Edmonston. "Such a practice would set up a bad precedent."

Obituaries

Alexander Smith, 68, Former City Auditor

Funeral services were held Tuesday for Alexander Smith, former member of the Quincy School Committee and City Auditor for 25 years until his retirement in 1975.

He died Friday, Feb. 17, at his retirement home in Plymouth at the age of 68. Burial was in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

A native of Wilkes Barre, Pa., he was graduated from Quincy High School and Bentley School of Accounting. For a time he worked for the Bethlehem Fore River Shipyard.

Mr. Smith was elected to the School Committee in 1947 and served one two-year term which expired with the advent of Plan E government in 1950. He was named auditor that year.

He was one of the founders of the Quincy Lions Club and served as treasurer. He was also a member of the board of directors of the Presidential Cooperative Bank.

Mr. Smith was past master of the Manet Lodge, past president of the Massachusetts State Auditors Association, past president of the Massachusetts Retirement Board and past treasurer of the Quincy Chapter of the American Red Cross.

He leaves his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth [Abbott] Smith of Plymouth; a son, David H. Smith of Quincy; a brother, John R. Smith of Sandwich; a sister, Mrs. Eleanor Gomez of Plymouth; and three grandchildren.

In lieu of flowers, contributions were made to the Quincy Lions Club Eye Research Foundation.

Funeral arrangements were by Deware Brothers Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Civil Air Patrol Praised For Storm Efforts

By PETER BARNICLE

The untiring round-the-clock work performed by the teenage members of the Civil Air Patrol has drawn kudos from all sectors involved in the hectic activities at Civil Defense headquarters during the recent major snowstorm.

Working under the direction of Capt. Robert Peters, deputy commander of the CAP squadron, and Sgt. Joseph Gottron, cadet-in-charge, the cadets gave unstintingly of their time during the disaster.

More than a score reported to CD headquarters at the height of the storm and remained for the week, sleeping where they could, when they could.

The boys and girls, all in their mid-teens, helped man the telephones taking messages from those who needed medicine, food or evacuation. In some instances they were called on to make trips to deliver medical supplies.

As they gathered information the cadets relayed it to the proper area for expediting rescues or deliveries.

They were called on to go out in the field to help monitor radios and send back information on the need for help when it was found.

Stephen and Robert Parsloe, communicators with the squadron, relieved the regular operators on the Radio Amateurs Citizens Emergency Services [RACES], the 'net' working on the two metre frequency.

The Auxiliary police, the CBers and other units working at Civil Defense had the highest praise for the efficient and willing manner in which all members of the group responded.

In addition to working closely on the rescue work they also helped out preparing sandwiches, and in keeping the quarters clean.

"What's more, they did it willingly," one civil defense official said.

Among the 26 members of the squadron who put in approximately 3,000 hours during the storm were: Major Laura Lee I. Gottron, Squadron Commander; Capt. Robert A. Peters, Senior Coordinator; C/MSG. Joseph M. E. Gottron, Coordinator; Ltc. Virginia Shea, Deputy Wing Commander; Senior Member Irene C. Eldridge; C/2LT. James B. Morrissey, Steven M. Parsloe; C/W.O. Jeanine Hynds, Robert Parsloe; C/TSG. Mary E. Leonard, Brian P. Donovan; C/SSG. John Cunningham, Michael Bradbury, John Hopkins, Daniel Nolan; C/SGT. Steven Weaver, John J. Eldridge, Louis Reardon, Barbara Cataldo; C/1C Lawrence Reardon; C/A Ellen M. Eldridge, Paul McGuire, Edward Norton, Edward Gargano, Mark Copson, Gerald Copson, Elizabeth Leonard.

Anyone interested in joining Civil Air Patrol may attend a meeting on Friday at 6:30-7 p.m. at the Quincy Naval Reserve Center, 85 Sea St., Quincy. Contact Major Laura Lee I. Gottron, Squadron Commander, or United States Air Force Recruiter, Quincy, for more details.

Public Hearing Endorses Plan

Burke To File Bill For Adams Birthplaces Takeover

Federal takeover of the Adams Birthplaces has moved a step forward with unanimous approval by the Quincy City Council following a public hearing at which opposition was completely absent.

Councillor Paul D. Harold, chairman of the council sub-committee studying the proposed transfer, said that a bill will be prepared for presentation to Congress.

Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton], who has expressed his approval of the move, will be asked to present the bill.

It is hoped the bill will become part of an omnibus bill dealing with a number of National Park Service properties throughout the country and be enacted into law later this year.

Rep. Morris K. Udall [D-Ariz.] chairman of the House Committee on the Interior, has assured Councillor Harold that once local authorities approved the move he would seek its inclusion in the omnibus bill.

Udall recently visited the two 300 year old saltbox homes and at that time pledged his help in obtaining Congressional approval.

About 75 people were on hand for the public hearing held in the City Council chamber a week ago.

Edward Moore, administrative assistant to Congressman Burke, spoke in favor of the proposal. Others who endorsed the transfer included: Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, Quincy Historical Society, Quincy Taxpayers Association, Norfolk Development Council and the city planning board.

Harold, a prime mover of the plan, told the hearing "If we are going to keep these properties open to the public we're going to need the help of somebody besides the taxpayers of Quincy."

An architectural study completed two years ago found that $500,000 will be needed to re-lay foundations, replace several main posts and beams and put at least one new roof on the houses which, according to historical records were built in 1663 and 1681.

Mrs. William O'Connell, member of the committee which maintains the Adams houses and keeps them open for tourists, told the hearing that the problem is not one of neglect by city officials but rather of limited resources.

Harold Harvard Curriculum Advisor

City Councillor Paul D. Harold has been named a curriculum advisor at the Kennedy Institute of Government at Harvard University.

Harold was among five city councillors from around the state chosen by Director Jonathan Moore to help formulate plans for a two day conference for councillors in April.

The conference, which is co-sponsored by the Massachusetts League of Cities and Towns, will be similar to one held previously by the Kennedy Institute for mayors and congressmen.

It will focus on four broad areas of concern for councillors --- finances, intergovernmental affairs, economic development, and personnel management.

Two councillors from each of the state's 39 cities will participate.

Other councillors named to plan the conference were Judith Robbins of Attleboro, Francis Duehay of Cambridge, Richard Neal of Springfield and Lawrence DiCara, president of the Boston City Council.

Cerasoli Scholarships Awarded At QJC

The Robert A. Cerasoli Scholarships have been awarded to two students at Quincy Junior College to aid them in continuing their studies for the second semester.

Leonard Seitz of Quincy and Nancy Camardo of Weymouth, both QJC sophomores, are the two scholarship recipients.

Leonard is an honor student in a liberal arts program. Upon completion of his Associates Degree he plans to transfer to a four year institution for a Bachelors Degree and then continue on to law school. Nancy, also an honors student, is pursuing an Associates Degree in Business Administration, with a concentration in Accounting.

The scholarship was established last fall as a result of Representative Cerasoli's donation of all his earnings from teaching an evening course in American Government at the College last summer and fall. When elected State Representative, he pledged to be a full-time representative and receive no outside earnings.

The college community has benefited both by Cerasoli's teaching as well as the donation of his salary to help students attend Quincy Junior College, President Edward Pierce said.

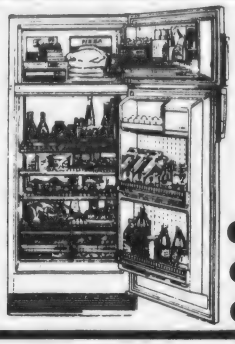
Flower tips from Andre Moreau



The iris has long been used in heraldry and for ornamental designs because of its distinct form. In our ancestors' old gardens, only a few irises were found. These were known as "flags" or flower-de-luces. There was a gray-white, the old time orris, from which was obtained the fragrant powder of orris root used in cosmetics and tooth powders. Another purple iris for a time gave its name to an entire section of tall bearded irises. Intercrossing some of these varieties gave the start to the thousands of varieties now in commerce and cultivation.

As your full service florist NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 will provide you with creative floral designs, a large selection of flowers and plants and most important our personal service at all times. If you are a businessman we encourage you to give us a call so we can show you how to dress up the decor of your shop or office with living plants from NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP. We can make arrangements whereby these plants and/or floral arrangements are changed on a weekly or monthly basis, as you wish. Hours: Mon. - Sat., 8-6, evenings by appointment.

HELPFUL HINT:
Sun and good drainage are all that are needed to cultivate most bearded irises.

Mayoral Race Cost Tobin, LaRaia Total $134,088

$488 on police details. Tobin paid $41.53 for locks and $80 on police details.

The Tobin campaign apparently traveled on its stomach. It spent $3,578.38 for food at various social functions, including $472.50 for one batch of shrimp, $252.84 at the Hollow Restaurant for cheese and $117.78 at Spring Spumoni, Federal Ave., South Quincy, for the unusual combination of pizza and Egg roll.

On the other hand, the LaRaia organization, apparently lean and hungry, spent only $1,534.88 on foodstuffs, most of it [$1,200] with Fasano Catering of Braintree.

LaRaia spent twice as much as Tobin for liquor [$1,691.39 to $825.30] but Tobin was more lavish with ice in his drinks [$197.25 to $40.].

The Tobin campaign had legal expenses of $1,015.51 while the LaRaia Committee spent $2,160 to hire fund-raisers, $2,799.99 for a survey of voters and $900 for a statement of the candidate's income and net worth.

Those LaRaia-for-Mayor T-shirts and sweatshirts that you saw around town during the campaign cost $1,390 at Nobile Sporting Goods of West Quincy and the Tobin people laid out $849.07 for flowers at the Norfolk Flower Shop.

The balance sheet of political expenditures for Tobin and LaRaia, from March, 1977, through December, 1977, reads like this:

Houghs Neck Mop Up

personnel will be on hand to aid the volunteers.

Plans call for volunteers to go into the homes of the elderly, handicapped and others who suffered damage to help in pumping out and mopping up cellars, cleaning walls and floors and making such temporary repairs as may be necessary to make the homes liveable.

Leaflets have been distributed to all homes in the area informing residents of the program. This was followed up during the week by a house-to-house survey of the damage and the dwellings in most need of assistance.

It is also hoped the survey will enable the council to assign volunteers to tasks to which they are best suited. Thus, carpenters or those with experience in building will take on the job where a house needs to be shored up.

Any funds contributed to the mop-up will be used exclusively to obtain materials to complete the project.

How To Make Insurance Claims For Storm Damage

The State Office of Consumer Affairs has recommended the following steps to take in making an insurance claim for property damage as a result of the storm:

- Call your agent. Your agent will be most able to help you determine whether your insurance policy covers the damage. Please be patient because they are very busy.

He or she will send an adjuster to your home as soon as possible to analyze it and give you a dollar figure for the amount of damage. The same applies to your car.

- If you are presently covered by national flood insurance, call the agent who sold you the coverage or the Flood Insurange Program 223-1300. The Federal government will help you with your claim.

We strongly recommend that if you do not presently have national flood insurance, you take out a policy immediately. Flood insurance policies take 15 days to become effective. When the thaw comes and the snow melts, flooding will present a major problem.

- It is helpful to collect all available documentation of coverage and loss before you contact your agent. Photos and receipts for any expenses incurred in home improvements are good examples of useful documentation.

- You should not sign a contract with any home repair or auto body repair shop until the adjuster has assessed your claim and given you a dollar figure. If you enter into a contract agreeing to pay more than the amount of the settlement from your insurance company, you are liable for the difference.

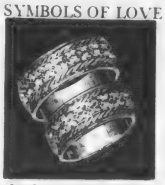
Disaster Committee To Meet In Houghs Neck Feb. 28

The City Council's Special Committee on the Blizzard Disaster will hold a public hearing Tuesday, Feb. 28, at 7:30 p.m. in St. Thomas Aquinas Hall on Darrow St., Houghs Neck.

Chairman Leo J. Kelly said anyone in the city who suffered storm damage is invited to ask questions of people from the Small Business Administration, the Department of Housing and Urban Development, and the Internal Revenue Service.

Heart Fund Sunday Feb. 26

Some 600 volunteers will be out on Heart Fund Sunday, Feb. 26, in Quincy, seeking contributions to the Heart Fund Drive to support research in the field of heart disease and related illnesses.



"Great strides have been made in the field of heart disease," said Michael E. Faherty, this year's residential Heart Fund chairman.

"My own mother is alive today because of heart surgery.

"Our goal this year is $10,000, which isn't much if it could shed just enough light to save one life."

Volunteers who need assistance or who wish to have returns picked up should contact Faherty at 773-6598.

PUBLIC LANDING at the tip of Houghs Neck lost some boards during the Great Storm of '78 and the end of it careens crazily, a victim of battering from the sea.

QUINCY YACHT CLUB in Houghs Neck looks like it survived from the outside but the interior and the furnishings are a total loss following the Great Storm of '78.

Storm Unemployment Benefits Available

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy] recently attended a meeting with John F. Hodgeman, director of the Division of Employment Security in Massachusetts concerning unemployment benefits for the storm week of Feb. 6-12.

The unemployment compensation comes under the emergency act signed by Governor, Michael S. Dukakis last week.

According to Morrissey, the one page filing form is now available at companies, banks, post offices, labor unions and other locations.

Eligible to file are those who have worked for 13 weeks and are employed by an employer who is covered under the Massachusetts Employment Security Law; they were out of work during the storm due to the severe weather or prohibitions in travel; they have not filed an unemployment claim with DES during the past 52 weeks [those who have should go to a DES center to initiate a claim]; if they returned to work by Feb. 13. Those who did not return by then may be eligible for more benefits.

"When the employee has completed the first part of the form he should give it to his employer who will complete it and then mail it into DES," said Morrissey. "This should be done in seven days," he added.

DES will mail the check directly to the employee. The filing deadline is May 31.

"Any employee who has accepted sick time, vacation or personal leave as pay for the week is also eligible for the benefits," said Morrissey.

Morrissey asked that people not call DES unless it is an emergency. "They will be bogged down with literally thousands of calls in the next few weeks to come," he said. "They have asked that no one call the agency unless it is of the utmost importance."

Those people who are self-employed are not eligible for the special benefits, said Morrissey, but if they had suffered extensive damage due to the storm, they may be eligible for Federal Disaster Funds. The filing deadline for this program is March 15.

Morrissey said if anyone needed further help with this program, or more information, they could contact him at his office at 328-0900 or 727-7035.

Licensing Board Approves McGrath Taxi Addition

During the recent 'blizzard John J. Burns Jr., owner of McGrath's Taxi, 641 Hancock St., Wollaston, assigned two of his cabs to carry out assignments for civil defense and this week it paid off.

Burns was before the licensing board for a hearing on his petition for a license to add another vehicle to his six-cab fleet.

In the course of questioning Fire Chief Edward Barry noted that Burns' cabs had delivered prescriptions and food to snowbound handicapped and elderly residents during the storm. No charge was made for the service which was directed from civil defense emergency headquarters.

The board noted the company's clean record over the years and praised Burns' work in the disaster, then unanimously granted him the license.

In other action the board postponed until next week a hearing on the request of Ernest Bettuchy, owner of Ernie's Salvage, for a 'junk wagon'. Attorneys were instructed to be present at noon, next Tuesday, with witnesses for a hearing on the question of garaging of the firms vehicles. Assistant City Solicitor Dennis Harrington was asked to be in attendance to advise the board on questions of law.

Charles Magnarelli To Be Honored

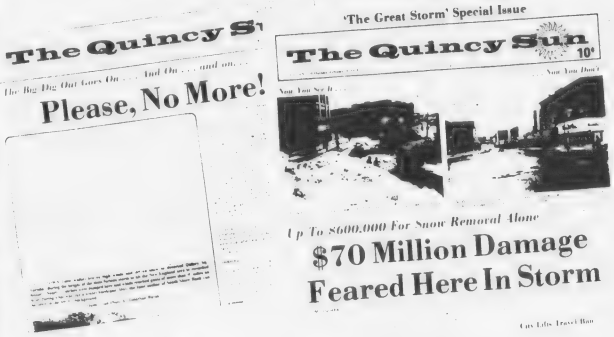
A retirement dinner for Charles Magnarelli, a veteran of 30 years in the automotive department of Quincy Vocational Technical School, will be held at the Lantana, Randolph, on Thursday, March 2.

Originally scheduled for Feb. 9, the testimonial had to be postponed because of the snow storm.

A social hour will start at 6:30 p.m., followed by a roast beef dinner. Dancing will be to the "Touch of Class."

Magnarelli has spent his entire career in the automotive department at Voc-Tech where he taught auto body work for many years. More recently he has been coordinator of the power mechanics division.

"I have no immediate plans other than to relax for a while," he said when asked about retirement. He did hint he might take some kind of a job -- but not teaching.



A resident of Holbrook, he also maintains a home in Wilmot Flat, N.H. He has three sons, Gary of Quincy, Charles of Braintree, and Robert, who lives with his father.

Storm Victims:

Beware Of Fly-By-Night Repair Contractors

The Massachusetts Consumers' Council has issued a list of warnings about fly-by-night contractors who may be hired to make repairs to homes damaged in the Great Storm of '78.

Before you hire someone to make repairs on your home:

- Be sure you get the name, address and telephone number of the contractor. Ask for references and make sure you're dealing with a reputable, stable business.
- Get the contractor to specify in writing exactly what work is to be done and what materials are going to be used -- and make sure the contractor lets you know if used or rebuilt materials are to be used.
- Insist that the contractor give you an itemized cost breakdown of the job -- and that the absolute upper limit of the cost is given.
- Make sure that the contractor's work is guaranteed for a reasonable period of time. Have the contractor specify the time period during which he expressly agrees to repair any defects at no added cost to you.
- Agree in writing how the contractor is to be paid. Make sure you get receipts for any deposits or other monies paid. If the job is a big one, consider a system of progress payments whereby the contractor gets a certain percentage of the money when specified parts of the job are completed. Consider an agreement which allows you to hold off on the last payment until all work is properly completed.
- Specify the date by which the contractor is to start work and the date by which work is to be completed.
- If a local building permit is required for the work you are having done, make sure the contractor obtains one.
- Remember that electricians, plumbers, professional engineers, land surveyors and architects must be licensed by the state.
- Have the contractor write into the agreement the name of the company which insures him or his workers for any injuries or damage that might occur in the course of the work.

Remember that you can make changes and adjustments in the contract if the need arises, even after the agreement has been signed. But make sure that any changes are made in writing and that both you and the contractor fully understand and agree on the changes. If you make changes, the price may change too. Be sure such price changes are agreed upon in writing.

Any contract signed in your home for work costing $25 or more, may be cancelled by you within three business days. The contractor must inform you of your right to cancel a contract signed at other than the seller's principal place of business or branch office. Information regarding your right to cancel a contract must be written on the first page of the contract -- and the seller must provide you with a cancellation notice form.

If you have questions contact your local consumer protection office, legal aid, or one of the state agencies charged with protecting the consumer. They are:

Quincy Consumers' Council, 1 Cliveden St., Quincy, 773-1380.

Massachusetts Consumers' Council - 727-2605.

Executive Office of Consumer Affairs - 727-7755.

Attorney General's Office - 727-8400.

Sally, Millie Did Their Part

In any disaster of the magnitude of the Blizzard of '78 telephone operators are often the unsung heroines.

It was true during the recent storm. The two regular operators at City Hall who worked 16-hour shifts during the storm and in its aftermath want to remain known only as "Sally" and "Millie".

"Millie" made her way to her post at the Public Works Building after having been evacuated from her Houghs Neck home. She was able to stay with her sister for a few days and then returned to her own home on Feb. 15.

FILLING OUT FORMS held no interest for these youngsters who were entertained by volunteers at the Quincy Vo Tech gym while their parents filed damage claims at the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration emergency center.

Food, Clothing, Beds Available At Salvation Army

Storm victims in need of clothing or non-perishable foods may apply for them in person through the Salvation Army Headquarters, 6 Baxter St., Quincy.

Capt. Charles Waddington, commanding officer of the Salvation Army in Quincy, announced that there is an exceptionally large quantity of clothing due to the generous response of the public.

Residents who lost their beds in the storm should call the Salvation Army at 472-2345.

Capt. Waddington said 25 beds are currently available with a similar number being released weekly over the next month. They are Hollywood-style beds, including box spring and mattress.

Elks Election Feb. 28

The Quincy Lodge of Elks will hold its annual election of officers at the regular monthly meeting to be held at Elks Hall, 1220 Hancock St., Quincy, at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Feb. 28.

Balloting will be conducted from 7:30 to 9 p.m. The business session will be followed by a collation.

MBTA To Set Aside Parking Spaces For After 9:30 A.M. Commuters

Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy] has been notified that the MBTA is acting on his suggestion that parking spaces be set aside for Red Line commuters who use the subway after 9:30 a.m.

Walter F. Henneberry, supervisor of concessions for the MBTA, told Sheets in a letter that he is considering setting aside such spaces in bid proposals for the new parking lot at the North Quincy station.

Sheets made the proposal after he said he received many calls over the past few years from constituents who could not find parking spaces in the MBTA lots after 9 a.m.

He said this is unfair to taxpayers who use the "T" after the rush hour.

Quincy, S. S. Realtors Have Houses, Apartments For Storm Victims

The Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors has been canvassing its members for a list of vacant houses and apartments to house people made homeless by the recent storm.

"If the Red Cross or anyone referred to by the Red Cross should contact your office, the board of directors urges you to offer as much assistance and help as possible," said the board.

"This is a time when realtors can really aid those communities and individuals who have suffered tremendous loss. It is a time of crisis for many people and they need all the support, understanding and help we can give them."

The Board said it had been contacted by several state and local agencies and by the Red Cross in regard to assistance for displaced families. It provided a list of member offices to the Red Cross.

Some of the realtors and their offerings are listed here as a public service by The Quincy Sun:

Councillor McGrath Chairman

Task Force To Help ENC Solve Expansion Problems

SNOW FORT BUILDING on Hobart St., Wollaston, produced this mammoth triple-tiered fortress - which could double as a wedding cake. The builders included James Stanos, Rick Hernon and Richard Hernon, John Connolly, Anne Hernon, Kathy Hernon, Joanne Connolly and Joanne Hernon.

An eight-member task force, including five residents of Wollaston, has been named to help Eastern Nazarene College solve its expansion problems and keep the school in Quincy.

City Councillor Stephen J. McGrath of Wollaston was named by Mayor Tobin to chair the task force. The members include:

Mrs. Peg Betts, 33 Franklin Ave.; Richard Coleman, 103 Wendell Ave.; Harold Crowley, 3 Flagg St.; Dr. Nicholas Santacross, 118 Elm Ave.; Richard Meade, 31 Greene St.; Richard Pritchard, ENC public relations director; the Rev. Bedros Baharian of the Quincy Planning Board; and Dr. Don Irwin, president of ENC.

"The task force will begin meeting very soon to determine the projected needs of the college and hopefully to convince college officials to remain in Wollaston," said McGrath.

"In addition, I visualize the task force coming up with some concrete proposals and alternatives with an eye toward allowing the college to increase its projected enrollment of about 1,500 students.

"I believe anyone who gives this problem any thought will conclude that it is vital that ENC remain in Quincy. The void the college would leave would be tremendous and not easily, let alone satisfactorily, filled.

"At the same time, I would remind college officials that they are the benefactors of a unique and ideal location by being in Wollaston. Its close proximity to Boston and the advantages of its neighborhood "park" location can't be overstated.

"I am confident, because of the capable and concerned makeup of the task force that we will be successful in achieving our mutual goals."

Rep. Morrissey Carries 'The Word' To Squantum

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey took it upon himself after the storm to knock on doors in Squantum to make sure householders were aware of the Federal Disaster Assistance Agency center at Vo-Tech School.

Morrissey, accompanied by his father, Arthur and Robert Dolbec, visited homes on Heath, Deerfield St., and surrounding streets. Dolbec is a Boston College student and an intern in Morrissey's office.

The representative said he found more than a dozen homes in which cellars had been completely flooded out and four or five with severe damage. In addition, a number of people lost their cars.

Morrissey said few people have flood insurance. He informed them they should immediately make application for federal relief by applying at the FDAA center.

NQHS Scheduling, Course Selection Night March 2

The Counseling Department of North Quincy High School will present a program on Scheduling and Course Selection Thursday, March 2, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Teal Building, Newbury Ave.

Parents and students who are interested in a better understanding of the course selection process, the point system and special programs are invited to attend. Speakers from the Counseling Center and the Academic departments will make presentations and will be available to students.

Creating the right program of studies for each individual is important in preparing for a career or for further education.

Home Care Services Offer Meals For Seniors

Senior citizens lunch is provided by South Shore Home Care Services, a federally funded, non-profit organization, at noon five days a week in the Atlantic Methodist Church, East Squantum St., Atlantic.

Reservations must be made 24 hours in advance by calling Mary Gifford at 328-0242. A nominal donation is requested.

Miss Gifford, manager of the Quincy program, says that at present most of those partaking the meal come from senior citizen complexes in the area. She is hoping that other senior citizens will avail themselves of the program.

The menus for the coming week are:

Thursday, Feb. 23 - Zitti & Meat balls, tomato sauce, green beans, tossed salad, Italian dressing, fresh Tangerine, Italian bread.

Friday, Feb. 24 - Presidential soup, baked fish, lemon sauce, potato au gratin, carrot coins, cherry pie, rye bread.

Monday, Feb. 27 - Roast beef au jus, oven brown potatoes, green peas, vanilla pudding, whole wheat bread,

Tuesday, Feb. 28 - Cream of tomato soup, baked liver, onion gravy, whipped potatoes, wax beans, strawberry whip, dinner roll.

Wednesday, March 1 - Orange juice, chicken a la king, rice, chocolate cake frosting, biscuit.

Edward Lape Completes Court Reporting Course

Navy Hospital Corpsman First Class Edward G. Lape, whose wife, Kathleen, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Riley of 137 Billings St., North Quincy, has completed the legal clerk and court reporting course.

Lape joined the Navy in September, 1963.

Koch Club Committee Planning 30th Anniversary Program

Final plans for the 30th anniversary programs of the Koch Club were formulated at a committee meeting on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Koch, 241 Newbury Ave., North Quincy.

Persons wishing to assist in any of the activities are welcome to serve on one of the committees and may contact Koch.

Goals in 1978 are to recognize three decades of community involvement with a series of events beginning with the 30th birthday dinner-dance, Saturday, May 6, at the George F. Bryan VFW Post hall, Quincy. The 27th annual flag day parade and exercises will start the series of events Wednesday, June 14, at Veterans Memorial Stadium. A number of other activities are being planned for the six-week program and will be announced at a later date. They include memorial services for deceased members and friends, and a night at the Quincy Historical Society Home at the Adams Academy when a number of Koch Club mementos will be presented as permanent records for future generations to observe and enjoy.

In April of 1978, a new souvenir anniversary booklet will be provided to commemorate the 30th anniversary of the Koch Club highlighting in writing and pictures the 30-year history of the organization. The publication will be available in April and distributed to several thousand members and friends during the spring at bowling and basketball award banquets and boys' baseball and girls' softball league registrations.

Koch Club alumnus of the varied recreational, charitable and social programs are invited to participate as a patron, sponsor or booster and join in one of the events.

Proceeds realized from the anniversary booklet will be applied to an account that will be used to establish a Koch Club Christmas charity fund again on the golden anniversary of the club at Christmas 1998 and in each continuing year, the interest accrued annually will be used to provide food baskets and gifts for needy families and children.

It is hoped that at least $5,000 will be received from the fund raising effort toward the above project. The fund will guarantee assurance that the heritage of the Koch Club Christmas charitable program will continue perpetually should the organization no longer exist.

On the 25th anniversary of the Koch Club in 1973, the organization combined the $3,000 dollar proceeds of the souvenir programs with a $1,000 dollar donation from each of the North Quincy and Broad Meadows districts. A $5,000 dollar Koch Club scholarship fund was established in the city of Quincy to take effect in 1998, the 50th anniversary of the Koch Club, when then the interest accrued annually will provide scholarship awards to graduates of the Quincy schools perpetually.

Since 1973 with the gifts and interest accumulated, the fund now totals $8,000 and continues to grow.

The above action has insured that the tradition of the Koch Club scholarship program will continue should the organization disband in future years.

The present scholarship and Christmas charitable endeavors sponsored by the Koch Club shall continue and be conducted by the present officers and members. However, the future generations will also derive direct benefits from the fund in future years.

New Funding Program For Arts, Humanities Projects

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy], announces the initiation of a new funding program for community arts and humanities projects.

Through this program, the Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities encourages community-based arts and humanities activities as well as assisting community organizations in providing the highest quality artistic services.

Morrissey noted the program is flexible, and said: "It can provide small amounts of money quickly, and can also support projects designed in response to local needs."

This, he said, should play an important role in Quincy since the city is involved with many community arts activities.

Morrissey said the Local Project applications are accepted only from community organizations. Request for up to $1,000 will be accepted.

Applications for professional artists are especially encouraged, he said, but requests for administrative support of an arts or humanities project will also be accepted.

Morrissey lists the following as typical projects that would be eligible for the project.

- Publicity for a lecture series
- A craft course as part of an elderly education program
- Installation of an exhibition
- Rental of a film on the arts or the humanities
- Planning of a membership drive.

Morrissey said non-profit, community organizations incorporated in Massachusetts are eligible to apply. All applications must include a copy of the organization's certificate of incorporation. No organization receiving fiscal 1978 funding from the Council's Financial Assistance Program may apply to the Local Project Program, and no organization may receive more than one grant under the new program.

Any organization wishing to apply should send a letter describing this organization and their project as well as an explanation of how they intend to use the Council money if funded.

Applications are reviewed according to the following criteria: extent and quality of artistic service to the public, community need and support; fiscal responsibility and sound management; involvement of Massachusetts artists and humanists; financial need and an effort to broaden the base of financial support.

Deadline for applications is May 1, 1978. For further information, contact Mia Goldman at 727-3668.

Guide To Educational Financial Aid Available

A pamphlet prepared by the Massachusetts State College system is now available to college students seeking financial assistance, announces Rep. James A. Sheets [D-Quincy].

The booklet is written for high school, college and graduate students looking for financial assistance to begin or to continue their college education. It discusses various financial assistance programs and the many sources available for the student to consult for information.

It also lists the Federal and State programs available to Massachusetts residents. Sheets said, "anyone wishing a copy of this guide should contact his office at the State House at 727-2584."

Blue Hill Girl Scouts Plan Trip To N.E. Aquarium

The Blue Hill Girl Scout Council will sponsor a special trip Saturday, Feb. 25, to the New England Aquarium for girls of Junior and Cadette ages and their fathers who are Do-Dads.

Buses will leave the council area at 9:30 a.m. and return at 1:30 p.m. The cost includes bus and admission to the Aquarium and Discovery Show.

The Blue Hill Do-Dad program which is unique in the Northeastern United States area, encourages fathers to register as Do-Dads, and help their daughters' troop in various ways through career exploration programs, teaching skills, and community projects. The fathers and daughters have special camping week-ends and special trips which give them a chance to spend time together.

Registrations for the Aquarium trip must be made by February 21, and girls and fathers are advised to bring a lunch to be eaten on the bus.

Blue Hill Girl Scout Council is a United Way Agency and member of the Norwood United Fund serving girls in 19 communities south and west of Boston.

Raiders' Best Season

North Swimmers Defeat Quincy In Finale

North Quincy's swim team finished its best season last week with a 95-67 win over Quincy for a 5-5 season's record.

Quincy, despite some fine individual performances, finished with only a 1-9 mark.

In last Saturday's Eastern Mass meet at Brockton two North performers qualified for the state championships Friday and Saturday at Harvard.

Ed Melanson placed third in the 200 individual relay and fourth in the 100 butterfly to qualify in both events, while Kevin Greene, fourth in diving, also qualified.

Melanson and Greene set school records as the Raiders captured the city championship. Melanson won the 500-yard freestyle in 5:16.56 and Greene compiled 225.15 points in the one-meter dive.

Melanson also won the 200 individual medley in 2:15.9 and Greene took the 100 butterfly in 1:06.4. John Conley was another double winner as he took the 50 freestyle in 24.2 seconds and the 100 freestyle in 55.29.

Conley also swam the anchor leg of the winning 400-yard freestyle relay [4:08.6]. Bob Farmer, Fran McLaughlin and Jim Stockless completed the team.

Winning for Judy Appleby's Presidents were Peter Sullivan, 2:08.2 in the 200 freestyle; Ed Fenby, 1:12 in the 100 backstroke, and John Connolly, 1:13.3 in the 100-yard breaststroke.

City Club To Finalize Plans For Road Race

The Quincy City Club will hold its opening meeting of the 1978 season Sunday, Feb. 26, with a breakfast at 10 a.m. in the Quincy Room of Walsh's Restaurant, North Quincy.

Highlight of the morning will be the completion of plans for the annual three-mile road race to be held Sunday, May 14, at 2 p.m.

The race has been sanctioned by the New England Association of the A.A.U. and trophies will be awarded to both men and women in various age categories.

Michael C. Regan is chairman of the event and the proceeds will be donated to the Leukemia Society of America.

Entrants are welcome and invited to participate in the road race as representatives of organizations or as individuals.

A report will be given by Richard J. Koch, club president, as to the success of the Christmas projects sponsored by the City Club.

Plans will be announced for the annual school students poster and essay contest to be sponsored by the Quincy City Club.

North's Gallagher Takes State Shot Put Title

North Quincy's track team sought its third straight state championship Tuesday at Reading and Coach Lou Tozzi was cautiously optimistic.

In last week's qualifying meet at Reading the Raiders scored 24 points in Class C after three finals., Mike Gallagher was North's top performer, winning the state championship in the shot put with a toss of 54-9, a new school record. He held the previous mark of 54-1.

Tozzi gives assistant coach George Liset most of the credit for Gallagher's improvement.

"George, who was an All-American discus thrower at Wheaton College, has done a wonderful job with our field event men," Tozzi said.

"Mike throws his best in the big meets and comes through in the clutch," Liset, a former schoolboy standout in Weymouth, said.

In other finals Mike Barrett was second and John Saville a disappointing fifth in the two-mile.

North had only one qualifier for Tuesday's finals, Tim O'Neil, who had the third best qualifying time in the trials, 1:18.6, in the 600.

Barrett, with a 9:48.8 timing, was barely nipped by Bedford's Joe Collins, who had the same time. Barrett led all the way until the final few feet.

"We have a 14-point lead, but, with only one qualifier for the finals, I am hopeful but other schools have more qualifiers and our relay team will play an important role," Tozzi said. "I expect the most trouble from Scituate, Belmont and Dartmouth. O'Neil will have to do well in the 600 and the relay team of juniors O'Neil, John McGuiggan and Dan McIntyre and senior Tom Fennessey will have to come through if we are to win the title for the third year in a row."

North is the defending Class C titleist and two years ago won the Class B crown.

ENC Women's Team In State Basketball Tourney

The Eastern Nazarene College women's basketball team, rolling along with a 12-0 record, will be one of the top seeded teams in Division 2 of the state tournament March 3 and 4 at Amherst.

In their last outing the Crusaderettes topped King's College, 89-71, breaking the game open in the second half after leading by only a 37-36 margin at the half.

Randolph's Kristi Kottis, who exploded for 35 points, paced the second half splurge. Janet Ranstrom of Weymouth had 12 points, all in the second half. Quincy's Donna Fandel had 15 and Cindy Tozzi, also of Quincy, sister of North Quincy track coach Lou Tozzi, chipped in with 13.

In their previous game Coach Don Constantine's ENC women had topped Southeastern Mass., 70-59, as Fandel and Kottis scored 21 points each and Fandel also had 24 rebounds. Ranstrom had 11 points.

6 Teams Left In Men's Tourney

Six teams of the original 48 entries qualified for the quarterfinals of the 25th annual Greater Quincy Men's Candlepin Bowling Tourney following Sunday's matches at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome on Quincy Shore Drive.

Carlyle Merchants of Whitman bowled high pinfall for the day to defeat the Quincy League 1736-1556. East Weymouth followed close behind ousting the Quin-Wey unit 1735-1620. Hull Thursday Men eliminated the Wollaston Men 1680-1608. John Quincy Adams trounced the Dante Couples Men 1654-1536. The Tuesday Night Merchants bested the Quincy Eagles 1641-1592, and the Hull Monday Men edged out the Adams Heights Mens Club 1626-1600.

Carlyle jumped off to a 65-pin first string lead and romped to its 181-pin victory over the Quincy League.

Dave Handry paced the winners with a 393 followed by Bob O'Connell 357, Dick O'Connell 332, Lou Alberghini 328, and Dennis Chick 327.

Top scorer for the Quincy League was Neil Malone 342; Lui Milone 316, and Sal Russo 314.

East Weymouth lost its opening string to Quin-Wey by four pins, but rolled up a 52-pin win in the second string to coast to victory.

Rick Cassani was high man for East Weymouth with 374 and was aided in the win by Mike Fardy 367, Randy Hall 352, Joe Hamm 323, and Paul Paton 320.

Bill Anttilla with 360 was top for Quin-Wey, Al Wieneck had 325, and Ross Gardner 317 for the losers.

Hull Thursday Men had little trouble posting the win capturing each string as well as the total, from the Wollaston Men.

Steve McGonnigle led the victors with 367, while Bob Smolinsky Sr. hit 353, Bob Hurst 340, and Kevin Schwede 339.

Wollaston Men's leaders were Bob Reynolds Jr., 340, Bill Regan 335, and Bob Eames 332.

John Quincy Adams rolled up an 86-pin first string lead and settled back to its third tourney win, over Dante Couples Men.

Frank Nota led the winners with 371, Len Simes 335, Joe Marini 323, and Gino Marini 316.

Don Gunthier was top for the losers with 330, while Don Darling had 314.

The Tuesday Night Merchants topped the Quincy Eagles in the first two strings in posting their win over the Quincy Eagles.

Bob McDonough with 351 led the winning Tuesday Merchants while Paul Vickers had 341, John Catrambone 330, and Jim Boyd 318.

Bill Eklund was top for the losing Eagles with 334, Paul Eklund 329, and the third brother Mike Eklund bowled 320.

The Hull Monday Men put it all together in the third string to overtake the Adams Heights Mens Club and post its third win.

Top scorer for the winners were Ed McGunnigle 338, George O'Hare 333, Lou Pumphrey 325, and Charles Fiest 323.

Jack Casey was high for the losers with 343, Rich Collins 327, and John Giudici 320.

The team bowling high team total in next Sunday matches will draw a bye into the finals on March 12, while the remaining two winners will meet in the semifinal round on March 5.

The Tourney has been sponsored for the past twenty-five years by the Koch Club of Quincy.

ENC To Compete In N.Y. Tourney

Led by the men's basketball team and last fall's state championship women's volleyball team, and participants in eight other events, more than 200 Eastern Nazarene College students, faculty and alumni will travel to Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., this weekend for the 22nd annual Christian College Tournament.

ENC has dominated this tournament in recent years, winning the last three in a row and six of the last seven.

Events include men's basketball [ENC is 2-9]; women's volleyball [ENC was 16-3 last fall and won the state title] bowling, table tennis, chess, running, barbershop quartet and alumni basketball shooting.

Activities begin Thursday with the opening round of basketball. ENC is seeded third and plays Nyack at 6 o'clock. The Crusaders defeated Nyack, 66-48, earlier.

The volleyball competition starts Friday, along with table tennis and basketball semifinals.

Chess, bowling, running, alumni basketball shooting, barbershop quartet competition and the volleyball finals take place Saturday morning and afternoon. The basketball finals and consolation games and the awards ceremony conclude the tournament Saturday night.

Last year the Crusaders took seven of 10 events, setting a record with 257 points. First place honors came in basketball, bowling, running, mixed doubles table tennis, chess, alumni basketball shooting and barbershop quartet competition. King's finished a distant second with 103 points followed by Barrington with 95½.

Bantam B's Edge Needham, 3-2

The Quincy Rotary Club Bantam B team edged Needham, 3-2, in a qualifying game for the state tournament. Mike McNeice, John O'Connell and Kevin Duff had the goals and Steve Baylis, McNeice, Eddie Campbell and Mike Marshall had assists.

In anothe qualifying game the Bantam B's topped Weymouth, on goals by Kevin Chase, Duff and Marshall. Bobby Ready, Baylis, Duff and Campbell had assists.

In a league game the team topped Milton, 6-3, on goals by Chase, Steve Kraunelis, Ready, Marshall, Campbell and Dennis Furtado. Ready had three assists, Furtado two and Baylis and Duff one each.

Ping Pong Tourney
Water Carnival At 'Y'

A Singles Ping-Pong Tournament for boys and girls will be held on Friday, at 2:30 p.m. at the Quincy YMCA.

Quincy Matmen Tag North For 16th Win

Quincy's wrestling team, which last weekend qualified seven for next weekend's state championships, finished an outstanding season Friday with a 42-18 win over North Quincy.

Carmen Mariano's Presidents finished with a 16-2-1 record, while Steve Joyce's Raiders, forced to forfeit two and three matches in most meets, finished with a 4-10 mark.

Quincy's winners were Paul Orlando, 100 pounds pin; John FitzGerald, 107, forfeit; Dan Madden, 122, pin; Lou Venturelli, 129, 7-1 decision; Lennie Crowe, 140, 6-1; Jim Mullarkey, 147, 4-2; Don Heath, 157, 6-1; Len Picot, 188, forfeit, and Tony Akoury, heavyweight, forfeit.

North's only winners were Ed Beck, 115, pin; Butch Montoya, 124, pin, and Ed Evanson, 170, pin.

Quincy and North had the outstanding wrestlers in last weekend's South sectional Division 1 and 2 tournaments.

Quincy's Lou Venturelli was chosen outstanding in the Div. 1 tourney, while North's Montoya was selected in the Div. 2 event.

Quincy finished second to Weymouth North in Division 1, scoring 129½ points to 140 for Weymouth.

The Presidents qualified seven for the state championships Friday and Saturday at Springfield Cathedral High School.

The qualifiers are FitzGerald, fourth at 100 pounds; Madden, second at 114; Lou Venturelli, who won at 121; Steve Venturelli, winner at 129; Crowe, third at 135; Picot, winner at 188, and Akoury, third in the heavyweight class.

North was sixth in Division 2. Montoya, winner at 129, and Beck, second at 115, qualified for the states Friday and Saturday at Milford High, while Evanson, fifth at 170, is an alternate.

Quincy Qualifies For State Tourney After 27-Goal Splurge

By TOM SULLIVAN

The great blizzard slowed down a lot of people but it appeared to have the opposite effect on the Quincy High hockey team.

Upon returning to action following the storm-enforced layoff, Bob Sylvia's Presidents won three games in a row, scored 27 goals and Monday qualified for the Eastern Mass. Tournament for the ninth time in Sylvia's 13 years as coach.

While the Presidents were clinching a tournament berth and stayed in the running for the Suburban League title, Brian Bertoni was pulling away and virtually clinching the league scoring crown.

Bertoni scored 10 points in the three games for a total of 40. Teammate Tom Cahill had eight points, giving him 35 for the season.

Quincy blitzed Cambridge Rindge and Latin Monday, 10-1, to make the tournament.

The Presidents were tied with Newton North for first place in the league, but Newton had two games left [Brockton and Weymouth North], while Quincy had only yesterday's [Wednesday's] game with Waltham at Brockton left.

In Monday's clincher Mike Van Tassell had the hat trick, Cahill and Bertoni two goals apiece and Pat Clifford, Scott Richardson and outstanding sophomore Robbie Craig one each. Mike Bondarick and Mark Giordani had three assists apiece, Cahill two and Jack Campbell, Bob Molloy and Mike Furey one each.

Saturday Quincy pounded Weymouth South, 9-0, with Richardson having his best game of the year with the hat trick and three assists. Bertoni and Bondarick had two goals apiece and Craig and Giordani one each. Bertoni and Giordani had two assists apiece and Brian Jolley, Craig, Bondarick and Flynn one each.

Earlier in the week, in their first game following the layoff, Quincy had defeated Brockton, 8-5, with Cahill having the hat trick and Bertoni adding four assists. Craig had his finest game with two goals and two assists, and Chris Erikson, Giordani and Furey had a goal each. Giordani and Bondarick each had an assist.

"I'm very glad the boys made the tourney because they deserve it," Sylvia said. "This is a good hockey team and now that we have found a consistent attack, I am optimistic about the tournament.

"These kids have played a lot of pressure games, so the pressure of tournament play shouldn't bother them. Our defense has been strong and Jim Deitsch has done a fine job in goal. He made a superb stop of a penalty shot which I feel was the turning point of the Brockton game and he made a number of other great plays under pressure.

"I feel Bertoni is as good as any high school player in the state and it is too bad he missed his junior year last season. [Bertoni went to Canada to play junior hockey but returned and finished the year with Sylvia's South Shore Braves].

"We have several boys who can score, as they proved in our three games since the blizzard and I think we are ready for the tournament. The bad part about the storm as far as I am concerned is the fact we have to play the last game of the year with the league title in the balance at Brockton. It was scheduled for our home ice [Quincy Youth Arena] but there was no ice time there following the storm. We are unbeaten on our home ice this year."

More Frustration For North

This has been a frustrating season for Ron Erikson and his undermanned North Quincy hockey team and things haven't changed since the blizzard-enforced layoff.

Erikson hoped to help out Quincy Monday by upsetting Newton North, tied with Quincy for the Suburban League lead, but the Raiders were bombed, 7-1, dropping their record to 2-12-1.

Saturday North had one of its most disappointing games as it became the season's first victim of Cambridge Rindge and Latin, 7-5.

Paul Cooney had two North goals and Mark Rooney, Pat Ennis and Mike Marrella one each. Leo Doyle had two assists and Rooney, John Cooney, Paul McDonald and Mike Marks one each.

In their previous game the Raiders had lost to Weymouth North, 5-0.

"It has been hard for us with one of the smallest squads in the league," Erikson said. "While many schools had turnouts of 80 and more, we had only 29 and our lack of depth has hurt all season. The boys have lost some tough games and they have never quit on me. They've done well in several games against tough odds."

Women's Candlepin Tourney Opens Sunday

The 23rd annual South Shore Women's Candlepin Bowling Tourney sponsored by the Koch Club of Quincy will open Sunday, at noon at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome, Quincy Shore Drive, Wollaston.

Thirty-eight teams are expected to register in the annual event representing the same number of leagues and the best of over 1,000 candlepin lady bowlers.

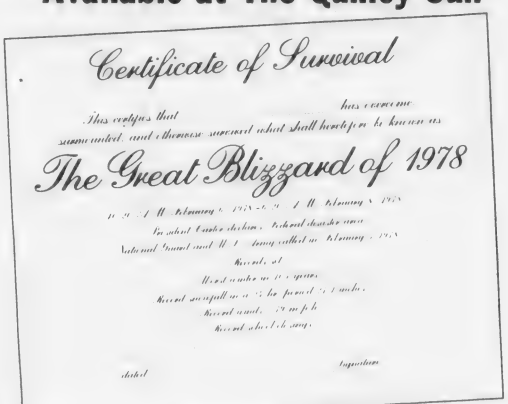
The first 16 teams entered will bowl at noon and the remaining entries will follow starting at 2:30 p.m.

Friday, Feb. 24, is the deadline for all applications to be returned to the alleys.

Teams entered must be from an organized candlepin bowling league and no pickup teams are allowed.

The top five bowlers as of Feb. 1, are entered with the sixth and seventh in the league standings used as alternates.

Each member of the championship team will receive a trophy emblematic of the victory and a $50 cash award will be presented to the team.



Trophies will also be given to the woman bowling tourney high average, high three string total and high single string.

It is an elimination tourney and each team must win every match to continue in competition.

Al Eklund Wins Set Of Bowling Balls In MDA Contest

Al Eklund of Quincy is the second winner of a set of bowling balls in the Lucky Total Contest for the Muscular Dystrophy Association at Olindy's Bowling Lanes, Quincy Ave., Quincy Center.

Eklund was one of six bowlers to roll a three-string 305 total to match Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth.

Eklund's name was drawn as the winner. Bosworth, with a back injury, was unable to bowl his three strings but drew a matching 305 in a drawing. In the first week of the contest Bosworth bowled a 318. He expects to be back in action this week.

The five others who bowled 305 last week were Herbert Gustausen, Joseph Campanale, William Collins, Tracey McNeill and Kathy Melledy.

Contestants donate 50 cents to help fight muscular dystrophy. They either bowl to try to match or guess Bosworth's three string total. A 50-cent donation entitles the contestant a chance to win throughout the contest. Contestants may also enter as often as they wish.

The contest will continue two more weeks.

Four sets of candlepin balls and a carrying bag were donated by Paramount, Inc., manufacturer and Olindy's Lanes operated by John, James and Stephen Mezzetti. One set and case is awarded each week.

Winner of the first set was Wes Cobb of 8 Mears Ave., Houghs Neck.

BUSINESS NEWS / REAL ESTATE

Quincy, S.S. Realtors Launch Energy Conservation Campaign

Members of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors have launched a grass roots Energy Conservation campaign in conjunction with the 25 other local Boards of the Massachusetts Association of Realtors [MAR].

John Gallant of Lawrence, Chairman of the MAR Energy Committee, said, "Members of local Boards will be working individually and with other community groups to help homeowners save energy and conserve natural resources year 'round. It is one of several Realtor-Sponsored public service programs held in 1978. We believe that voluntary citizen action within the Free Enterprise system is the healthier alternative to government over-regulation."

The Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors is offering a 13-minute slide/sound presentation entitled "Your Meter Is Running" for local showings. Also, new pamphlets with energy-saving tips and various other materials are available to the public from the local Board office and in many individual Realtor offices across the state. Association spokesmen will also begin appearing at various community gatherings and in the media to discuss Energy Conservation in the home.

Gallant noted that almost 20 percent of all the energy consumed in the United States is used in 71-million households...and more than half of that energy goes into heating and cooling. "We want to help make energy thrift part of the Massachusetts way of life where common sense energy practices will lead to dollars and cents savings for homeowners and continued energy health for our town, state, and country."

According to Gallant, the 500,000 member National Association of Realtors is supporting many proposals designed to conserve energy. These include incorporation of reasonable energy conservation requirements into building codes, tax deduction allowances to owners of real property who make their homes more energy efficient, energy-wise design of new buildings, and expansion of mass transportation systems.

Founded in 1924, the Massachusetts Association of Realtors has over 8,000 members and is the parent organization of members of the National Association of Realtors who subscribe to its strict Code of Ethics.

Paula Gold To Head Realtors Panel Discussion

Paula Gold, chief of the consumer protection division of the Attorney General's office, will head a panel discussion on the impact of 93A legislation at a dinner meeting to be held tonight [Thursday] at the Weymana Restaurant, South Weymouth, under the sponsorship of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors.

Edward P. Flavin, president of the realtor's group, said the meeting is part of an effort "to help our members understand the impact of the legislation on the real estate profession."

Flavin said the program is an important first step towards better cooperation and understanding between realtors and the attorney general's office.

"This program is educational," he said, "and is intended to inform our realtor members, members of real-estate related industries and area legislators that we are aware of consumer protection legislation and its impact on both our profession and the public we serve."

He explained that the program is intended to provide a means for the public to become aware of the realtors awareness and concern for consumerism.

Other members of the panel include: Atty. Walter Sullivan of the 93A study committee; Jerry DeCristofaro, chief investigator, Massachusetts Board of Registration, and J. Kinney O'Rourke, legislative counsel for the board.

Registration and a cash bar will open at 6 p.m. followed by dinner at 7 p.m. The meeting is scheduled to start at 8 p.m.

N.E. Telephone Earnings Up

New England Telephone reports earnings of $4.10 per share for 1977 compared with $3.61 for the previous year.

President William C. Mercer said 1977 was an unusually good year.

The net gain in primary telephones in 1977 was the best experienced in the last four years as the economy continued to improve in the company's five-state operating area. He also reported that the number of long distance calls showed "healthy growth" during 1977, with a nine per cent increase over the previous year's total.

Mercer said he expects good growth in the number of telephones as well as long distance calls in 1978.

He also said he anticipated the additional spending of about $450 million this year for equipment to meet customer service needs, and noted that he expected continued heavy pressures on the everyday cost of providing telephone service in these inflationary times.

AVOID FINANCIAL HEADACHES

Thinking about selling your home on your own? If so, you should commence a cram course in financing. How much money will you want down? How will you determine the prospect's credit history? Will you accept a second mortgage? Have you been in close contact with financial institutions, the FHA or VA? Can you advise a prospect where to get mortgage funds and who will pay what closing costs?

On the other hand, Realtors know that many sales are lost strictly for want of proper financing. They also know the intricate methods and sources of financing.

Honestly, The best way to market your home - probably your most valuable asset - is the professional way. Just as you would go to a doctor for medical aid, you should go to a Realtor for assistance in selling your home. It must make financial sense. Over 75% of all home sales are handled by people in the profession.

Thinking of selling your home? It makes sense to list it with PRESIDENT REAL ESTATE, 356 Hancock St., Phone: 328-8345.

Dee Dee's Moves Into First Place

Dee Dee's moved into first place in the Squirt House League with two wins during the past week.

Dee's blanked Feeney's Devils, 5-0, on goals by Bob Fleming, Jamie McArdle, Bill Connelly, Ed O'Brien and Jim Fay. Connelly and McArdle had two assists apiece and John McGowan, Jeff Burm and Fay one each.

Dee Dee's also shut out Feeney's a second time, 2-0, with Kevin Zanardelli and Connelly scoring the goals. McArdle had two assists.

Maher, the previous leader, split two games to drop into second place by a point. Maher defeated McGinn, 5-2, with Pete Schofield and Chris Edgar outstanding on defense for Maher. Pat Harrington, Ed Flavin, Joe Mastroianni, Mike Doyle and Bill Murphy had the goals and Mike Flaherty, Harrington, Doyle, Schofield and Bill Ward had assists. Paul Belanger had both McGinn goals with assists for Bill Lynch, Tim McCarthy and Ed Munroe.

	W	L	T	Pts.
Dee Dee's	11	4	2	24
Maher	11	5	1	23
McGinn	10	5	2	22
N. E. Solar	7	9	0	14
Baskin Robbins	4	10	2	10
Feeney's	3	13	1	7

McGinn knocked Maher out of first place with a 3-1 win as Munroe had two goals and Belanger one. Bill Capplis and Tim McCarthy had assists. Steve Brooks scored for Maher.

Baskin Robbins defeated N. E. Solar, 5-3, sparked by Mark Walsh's hat trick. Pete Scheurch and John Ferrara had the other goals. Bob Salton had three assists and Tim Hall, Steve O'Connell, Mike Joyce and Walsh one each. Tony Orlando had two Solar goals and Mark Simonelli the other. Simonelli had two assists and Paul Lally one.

Girls C Team Takes Top Spot

Quincy's Bob Charles Transportation Girls C team clinched first place in the Needham C League Sunday by playing a 1-1 tie with Lowell.

Goalies Nancy Roberts and Judy LaPoint were outstanding. Lowell took the lead on Laverne Charkin's goal but Laurie Barba scored the tying goal 45 seconds later on a power play.

Quincy's Kim Alberti, Linda Bujarski and LaPointe will play in an all-star game for Muscular Dystrophy Friday night at 8:30 at Charles River Rink in Newton.

Admission is free but donations will be accepted. Coaches Tom Roberts, Bernie Toland and Ralph Mosher will represent Quincy.

Bantam A's Defeat Weymouth

The Sons of Italy Bantam A team defeated Weymouth, 7-5, with Mike Hussey scoring two goals and Joe Rathgeb, Bobby Beniers, Mike Sullivan, Danny Boyle and Mark Boussy one each. Kevin Craig and Paul Flynn had two assists apiece and Boyle, Beniers, Tommy O'Connor, Karl Nord, Boussy and Hussey one each.

Pee Wee B's Win

The Pee Wee B team nipped Brockton, 3-2, with Paul Marshall, Brian Chase and Jamie Seamons having the goals. Marshall, Chase and Seamons each had two assists.

Pee Wee A's Win

The Quincy Elks Pee Wee A team topped Weymouth, 5-2, on goals by Tommy Schofield, Bobby Lynch, Dick Tapper, Pete Quinn and Scott Messina. Tapper and Frank Reynolds had two assists and Quinn, Larry Costello, Danny Kelly, Lynch and Dennis Croke one each.

Controversy Continues

Supper Meeting 'No Violation' Insists Solicitor

By TOM HENSHAW

Was it a secret, and thus illegal, meeting of the Mayor and the City Council?

Or was it simply the Mayor briefing his staff with members of the City Council sitting in, munching on sandwiches and sipping coffee?

Dist. Atty. William D. Delahunt says it was the former.

City Solicitor Richard W. Barry says it was the latter.

Apparently, if Delahunt wants to disagree further, his only recourse is the courts.

Barry threw the latest log on the fires of controversy Tuesday when he advised Delahunt that "no violation nor circumvention" of the State Open Meeting Law took place.

The meeting was held in the third floor conference room in City Hall prior to the regular meeting of the City Council on Tuesday, Feb. 21. The press and public were barred.

Barry called it "a dinner briefing".

"While this office by its very nature shares your concern, if not your zeal, to see that the Open Meeting Law is strictly complied with," said Barry in a letter to Delahunt, "we do not view that the law was intended to frustrate either the public's right to know nor the government's right to inform its individual members of critical government business.

"Each of these individuals at the dinner briefing were either elected or appointed officials and were charged by law to be

Over 30 Involved

County Line License Revoked After Brawl

By PETER BARNICLE

The Quincy Licensing Board revoked the license of the County Line Pub, 569 Washington St., Quincy Point, following a crowded hearing at City Hall Tuesday.

Although residents of the area indicated the premises were a constant source of aggravation, the board confined itself to an incident which occured at 1:20 a.m. last Oct. 1. The matter had been referred back to the board by the state Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission for a re-hearing.

The ABCC said the board had been "deficient" in its first report.

Police Officers Charles Rogers and Peter Flynn testified they were sent to the pub shortly after 1 a.m. on Oct. 1 and found a brawl in progress. Under questioning by Assistant City Solicitor Dennis Harrington, the officers described the melee which involved some 30 or more people.

Flynn told the board he took three females into protective custody. All were under age, one finally admitting to being 15.

Atty. Neil M. Kerstein, appearing for Harry V. Hogan, 41 Poulos Rd, Braintree, owner of the pub, brought out that a police detail had been sought.

Hogan testified he had called Officer Paul O'Leary, the detail officer, to request an officer be sent because he was having entertainment that evening. He said the officer failed to show up.

City Clerk John Gillis, board chairman, announced that the board would "out of courtesy" hear from some of the residents of the area who had appeared to protest continuance of the license.

A spokesman for the Ward 2 Civic Association presented a list of about 70 names. He explained these were people who had to leave before the case was called.

City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi said he was speaking "not as a City Councillor, but as a concerned resident of the area."

"We have been here many

Finn, Barry Checking 10-Mile Limit Effect

Quincy police officers and firefighters who live more than 10 miles from Quincy apparently will have to move within the limit or give up their jobs.

But no one seems to know for sure.

The State Supreme Court ruled last week that a law passed in 1966 requiring those involved in public safety to live within 10 miles of the city limits is constitutional.

The 1966 law was permissive legislation and the city of Quincy never adopted it.

However, said Assistant City Solicitor Robert J. Fleming, a 1971 amendment to the law made the requirement mandatory for all communities in the state.

Both Fire Chief Edward F. Barry and Police Chief Francis X. Finn said their departments have men who live outside the 10-mile limit but they did not know how many.

"I'm going to have to look into it," said Finn. "It will take a while to evaluate. I want to discuss it with various people."

Barry said he also wanted to consult the city solicitor before issuing any order. Barry said that 80 members of his 266-man department live outside the city.

The Fire Chief declined to comment on the law but Chief Finn said he is in favor of it.

"It definitely had an effect on us during the storm," he said. "We had people who did not make it to work. In an emergency like that you need your people.

"I'm in favor of the 10-mile limit but I haven't come to a conclusion as to how we're going to handle it."

Flood Plan Development Restriction Hearing March 13

The Quincy Planning Board will hold a public hearing Monday, March 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council chamber on a proposal to restrict subdivision development in flood plain districts.

The amendment to the city's subdivision regulations would call for a review of all proposals to determine whether they would be safe from flooding.

"If any part of a subdivision proposal is located within the flood plain district," says the amendment, "it shall be reviewed to assure compliance with the following:

" ● The proposal is designed consistent with the need to minimize flood damage.

" ● All public utilities and facilities, such as sewer, and water systems shall be located and constructed to minimize or eliminate flood damage.

" ● Adequate drainage systems shall be provided to reduce exposure to flood hazards.

" ● Base flood elevation [the level of the 100-year flood] data shall be provided for proposals greater than 50 lots or five acres, whichever is the lesser, for that portion within the flood plain district."

Ryan Re-appointed To Hospital Board

Dennis F. Ryan, clerk of Quincy District Court, has been reappointed to a third five-year term as a member of the Quincy City Hospital Board of Managers.

Ryan was first appointed by Mayor James R. McIntyre, reappointed by Mayor Walter J. Hannon and now reappointed again by Mayor Arthur H. Tobin.

Tobin's predecessor, Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia, last year asked Ryan to resign for conflict of interest because of his daily dealings with members of the City Council who are lawyers. Ryan refused.

South Shore Job Fair Set For April 1

The Norfolk County Development and Tourist Council will join forces with the South Shore Chamber of Commerce in sponsoring a Job Fair at State Street South, North Quincy on Saturday, April 1.

Last year's Job Fair attracted 5,000 job seekers with 52 companies participating and over 500 persons being placed in jobs directly as a result of the fair.

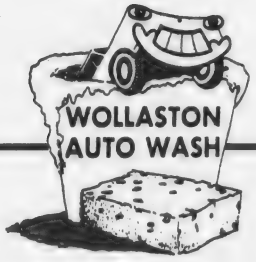
John C. Nourse, executive director of the council said that the estimated cost of $7,000 will be carried on a 50-50 basis by the Council and the Chamber.

Norfolk County Commissioner David C. Ahearn said the joint effort Job Fair is acquiring a reputation throughout the state as a positive method of bringing jobs and people together. He said it is being considered a model by counties throughout the Commonwealth.

JOBS BILL SIGNED -- Gov. Michael Dukakis signs the Jobs Bill sponsored by the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. Present at the ceremonial signing were from left, Rep. Andrew Card, Rep. Thomas F. Brownell, who introduced the bill for the Chamber; Rep. Michael Morrissey (partially obscured); Rep. Elizabeth Metayer, Rep. M. Joseph Manning, Charles Pearce, Thomas Curtis, president of the South Shore Economic Development Corporation; William Kelly, Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray and Walter Hannon.

Separate Graduations For High Schools Turned Down

The Quincy school committee has rejected a proposal to have separate graduations for the city's three high schools, despite a poll showing that students, some parents and staff members favored the idea.



Arthur Woodward, director of secondary education, told last week's committee meeting that the poll taken at Quincy High, North Quincy and Quincy Vocational Technical School, indicated students felt separate graduations would have a more personal touch. A combined ceremony has been held in past years.

There was some sentiment for a joint Quincy High-Vo Tech graduation with North Quincy High having a separate ceremony.

Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, superintendent of schools, said the combined ceremony will be held on Monday, June 5, the day after the Quincy Junior College graduation.

He pointed out that the combined ceremony will cost about $3,000 whereas three separate graduations would cost approximately $12,000. By moving the graduation back to Monday from Wednesday after the QJC ceremony there will be a savings in chair rental, he said.

Police, School Program

Helping Hand Mothers To Protect Youngsters From Child Molesters

By PETER BARNICLE

The Quincy school committee has been called on by the police department to cooperate in a "Helping Hand-Block Mother" program designed to protect youngsters from child molesters.

In a communication to the Committee last week Police Chief Francis X. Finn pointed out that the program would also provide children with a means of obtaining adult assistance in case of accidents, bothersome dogs, fighting or similar troubles.

"The most important function of a Helping Hand Mother is to provide a safe, convenient telephone station in an emergency situation," the chief said. "A link between the child and his mother. The Helping Hand Mother is not expected to act as a doctor, nurse or police officer."

Finn said the program would be administered by the school department and each grammar school parent-teacher organization. The program will be explained by a representative of the police department at a PTO meeting and teachers will be called on to tell their pupils. All interested mothers will be screened by each PTO and a Quincy police record check.

Each block mother will be given a symbol card and asked to display it in a prominent window of her home so children will be able to easily identify the home as a safe place to get help.

Children will be instructed to use a block mother's home only in an emergency situation such as; exposure incidents, attempted molesting, auto and bicycle accidents, dog bite, nosebleed.

"The home of a block mother is not provided as a convenient place to get a drink of water or use the toilet facilities," Finn said.

Block mothers will be given emergency telephone numbers to call should the situation require immediate help of police or an ambulance.

The block mother will be instructed to call the police and then call the child's mother. In situations where immediate assistance is not required the block mother will call the school which will contact the child's mother.

The committee agreed to hold an early meeting with officials of the PTOs to seek ways to implement the proposed program as soon as possible.

Committeeman John Sullivan praised the work of the late John Bartholomew as Quincy's safety officer and called on Chief Finn to appoint another officer to the post.

Sheets Protests Parking Restriction At Canton MBTA

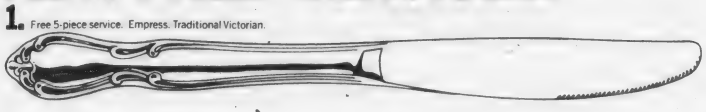
Rep. James A. Sheets (D-Quincy) has asked the MBTA to stop the town of Canton from restricting the parking lot at the Canton Junction MBTA station to residents only.

"Certainly the MBTA would not allow Quincy to restrict its MBTA parking lots in Quincy to residents only," said Sheets. "Why should Canton be allowed to do so?"

Sheets said Canton recently required that any car using the lot must have a sticker but, when non-residents went to the Town Hall to get stickers, there were none to be had.

Fuel Oil Average 50.4¢ Per Gallon

The price of a gallon of fuel oil in the Quincy area in the period Feb. 3-16 averaged 50.4 cents, an increase of .2 cents a gallon over the previous two-week period, according to the Massachusetts energy office.



Throughout Norfolk County, Suffolk, Essex and Middlesex, the price ranged from 46.9 cents per gallon to 51.9 cents.

Lowest prices were reported from the Fitchburg area where prices averaged 46.2 cents per gallon.

Project WAGE

Employment Opportunities For S.S. Women Under Study

The Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Women's Center of the Quincy Public School System are co-sponsoring a special project to assess the employment opportunities for women on the South Shore.

The project was made possible from a grant contract of $53,854 under Title VI of the Comprehensive Employment Training Act.

Focus of Project W.A.G.E. (Women Are Good Employees) will be:

- A comprehensive survey of employment opportunities for women.
- A community survey to ascertain the interests and needs of South Shore women.
- An examination of apprenticeships and training programs.
- An assessment of non-traditional vocational training programs.
- A study of affirmative action policies.
- Identification of barriers to the employment and/or advancement of women.

The findings of the study will be incorporated in:

- A directory of employment opportunities for women.
- A directory of South Shore Women interested in employment and/or training programs.
- An analysis of South Shore business and women which will provide innovative approaches to job development strategies.

The confidentiality of the data collected will be protected and used in a manner that is intended to produce long-term benefits for the entire South Shore Community.

The project staff will also:

- Offer periodic workshops and/or courses.
- Provide an employment resource center for South Shore women.
- Provide employment counseling addressed to the specific needs faced by women.
- Be available to work with employers to upgrade and/or establish affirmative action programs.
- Be available to work with employers to develop innovative approaches to expanding the employment of women.

Experience of the Mayor's Commission and the Women's Center has shown that employment is the most critical concern of women on the South Shore. A great deal of work has been done preparing women for the job market (helping women set career objectives, identify goals, prepare resumes, etc.) but specific information regarding the actual job opportunities on the South Shore has not been available.

If decision, with respect to gainful and satisfying employment are to be made by women it is necessary to tie the preparatory efforts that have been made to the realities of the job market on the South Shore.

Individuals or businesses seeking more information with regard to specific programs or services available are asked to call or write: Project W.A.G.E., 55 Sea Street, Quincy. 479-0734.

Women's Commission Orientation Meeting Rescheduled

The Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women has rescheduled its orientation for elected officials to Sunday, March 5.

The program will be held from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m. at the home of Commission member and School Committeewoman, Mary Collins, 116 Lansdowne St., Squantum.

Mayor Arthur Tobin, city councillors and school committee members have been invited to hear the commission discuss the objectives and programs of the commission as well as to provide an update on the Commission's planned activities for 1978.

Quincy Bar Association Studying Advertising

A five-member committee has been named by the Quincy Bar Association to study the subject of advertising by lawyers and make a report with recommendations.

The committee was set up at the last meeting of the association after a discussion during which some members expressed concern over the potential for misleading and misinformational advertising, unfavorable reflections on the profession by uncontrolled advertisements and similar considerations.

John E. Lamere, president of the association, named five attorneys to the study group. They are: George E. Howard, Paul A.M. Hunt, Ruth McNiff, Nathaniel M. Sherman and Joseph P. Wood.

Atty. Sherman was named chairman of the committee.

"The matter of advertising by the legal profession," Lamere said "presents a great many serious problems and considerations for both the profession and the public.

"Unless appropriate guidelines are established and a procedure created for their enforcement and control, both the public and the profession will suffer," he said.

NEW COMMISSIONER -- David C. Ahearn, [right], newly appointed Norfolk County Commissioner was sworn into office by Gov. Michael S. Dukakis in ceremonies at the State House. With them at left is John J. Sullivan, Jr., director of county operations. Ahearn succeeds the late Thomas McManus.

New Commissioner Ahearn Addresses Rotary Club

Newly appointed Norfolk County Commissioner David C. Ahearn of Norwood, spoke to the Quincy Rotary Club at the Neighborhood Club on Tuesday, discussing the problems facing the Commissioners.

"I have arrived on the scene right in the middle of budget hearings," he said, "and those requirements for making decisions relating to the needs within County Courts, Registry of Deeds, Norfolk County Agricultural School, County Hospital, District Attorney's Office, and Sheriffs' Office, including the county jail.

"To make reasonable recommendations to the legislature relative to the budget in the light of the increased court activity and the overcrowding of the county jail and all of its needs represents a good deal of pressure, especially in the light of the fact that the payment for all of the county's activities comes from the communities within the County, based on the real estate tax.

"Federal reimbursement is involved in a good number of areas. The basic problem is one of payment through the communities," Ahearn said.

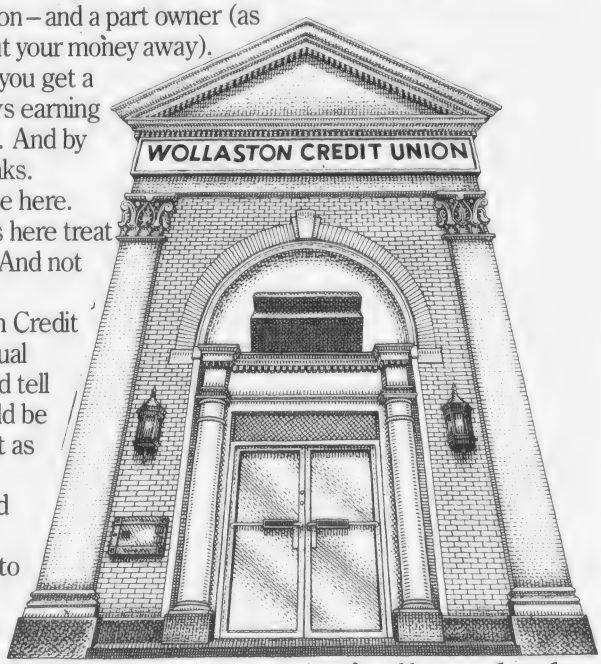
INSURED SAVINGS
ALL ACCOUNTS FULLY INSURED UNDER MASSACHUSETTS LAW

Come down Hancock Street towards Boston.
Right at the corner of Beale Street you'll see the Happy Chef Pizza Parlor. And right up the street, the Keene Pharmacy.
In between is a building that looks suspiciously like a bank.
But it's not. It's the Wollaston Credit Union.
And because it's a Credit Union it can do some things a bank can't do.
For one thing, when you open an account at the Wollaston Credit Union you become a member of the credit union – and a part owner (as opposed to a bank, where they simply put your money away).

And because you're a part owner you get a share of the dividends. By almost always earning higher interest on your savings account. And by borrowing at a lower rate than most banks.



There's also a difference in attitude here. Because you're a part owner, the tellers here treat you as one of the people they work for. And not simply a face or an account number.

And as a member of the Wollaston Credit Union you are hereby invited to the annual meeting and encouraged to stand up and tell the Credit Union what you think it should be doing. Your vote carries as much weight as the president's.

Can you name any bank that would do that?

So if you'd like to put your money to better use than you may be doing now, head for downtown Wollaston.

And look for the building that looks like a bank.

We're what a bank isn't allowed to be.

Wollaston Credit Union, 651 Hancock St., Tel.: 773-3500. Open Mon. & Thurs. 9 to 8 PM. Until 5:00 PM Tues., Wed. & Fri.

Deposits fully insured by the Massachusetts Credit Union Share Insurance Corporation. Up to $33,000 for single accounts and to $66,000 for joint accounts.

Library Seeks $5,000 To Print Old Quincy Scenes

The Thomas Crane Public Library is trying to raise $5,000 to have its Parker Collection of negatives and lantern slides of old Quincy scenes made into 8 by 10 photographs.

Thus far, $700 has been raised -- $600 from the Quincy Elks and $100 from the Quincy Cooperative Bank.

The Parker Collection includes some 2,400 lantern slides, or positive transparencies, of which 1,000 have been ruled good possibilities for reproduction at a cost of $3,500.

Before they can be printed, the lantern slides have to be converted into negatives at a cost of $2 each. Enlargements from the negatives cost $1.50 each.

About 1,000 of the 2,200 negatives in the collection have been deemed worthy of printing at a cost of $1.50 apiece. They are both glass and film negatives.

"The few prints we have in the Parker Collection are in constant demand," said Dorothy E. Newton, assistant director of the Library.

"There is a great deal of interest in old views of Quincy and prints made from the extensive collection would be an impressive contribution to the preservation and accessibility of Quincy history."

John Zambruno Honored At Retirement Party

John Zambruno of 162 Sumner St., Quincy Point, was honored recently for 30 years of service in the Quincy Water division at a surprise retirement party given by his fellow workers.

It was held at the Quincy Water Division shop on Sea St.

His co-workers presented him with a chrome engraved shovel, clam fork, fishing pole and reel. Zambruno also received a citation from Mayor Arthur H. Tobin.

He is the husband of Angie [Paolucci] Zambruno and the father of four children, John Jr. of Pennsylvania, Paul of Quincy, Judith Palaza of Quincy and Kevin of the home address.

Lawrence Kenney Missile Crewman

Specialist Four Lawrence E. Kenney, son of Joseph V. Kenney, 77 Adams Place, Quincy, recently was assigned as a Hawk missile crewman with the Eighth U.S. Army in Korea.

Kenney entered the Army in March, 1975.

Hallmarking enables the silver collector to establish the date of a piece and its authenticity. Under the system of hallmarking, the law requires that every piece of silver or gold must be stamped with the appropriate series of marks. These rules were established in England many centuries ago, some as early as 1180. These were not just to protect the buyer, but to guarantee goldsmiths' wares by their own will, not by outside enforcement. Hallmarks were refined and modified over the course of hundreds of years. Provincial centers modelled their system on London's. The lion passant was used by everyone to mark the Sterling standard.

We have set our own high standards for service. You, our customers, are important to us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490 and we do our best to make sure you are satisfied with your purchases. We are a family business. If it's not me, it's my wife, Marilyn, or my son, Bruce, who are always here to serve you. On school vacations, you'll also find our other son and daughter working. Hours: Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m. - 5 p.m.

Funeral Mass For Joseph F. McLaughlin, 58, Herald American Columnist

A funeral Mass was scheduled in St. John's Church, Quincy, Wednesday for Joseph F. [Joe] McLaughlin, Jr., 145 South St., Quincy, widely known newsman and author of the Herald-American's popular "Tell It To Joe" column.

Mr. McLaughlin died Saturday at the Sidney Farber Cancer Institute following a long illness.

The column was launched in the old Boston Traveler on Nov. 28, 1961 and has been carried on since the merger by the Herald-American. In the first year, a reported 13,000 readers sought assistance from Joe and his staff. Since then many others turned to him with problems when all other avenues of assistance failed.

Brought up in Roxbury Mr. McLaughlin had to make a choice between becoming a policeman, a professional baseball player or a newspaperman.

As a boy he sold newspapers near the old District 9 police station on Dudley St. and often used the station to do his homework and study the police manual. In sports he pitched for St. Patrick's in the Catholic League and also for the Boston Police Team.

When it came to a choice he picked the newspaper field and went to work for the old Boston Post. He worked his way up from copyboy to general assignments and rewrite. He also served at various times during 18 years as veterans editor, Social Security editor and supervisor of the Post's Question Box column.

Mr. McLaughlin joined the Traveler staff in November, 1956, and served as a rewriteman and military editor before the start of the "Tell It To Joe" column.

He was an Army veteran of World War II and lived in Mattapan for many years before moving to Quincy. He was a member of St. John's Church, Quincy, and a number of organizations.

He leaves his wife, Mary [Barker]; a son, Joseph 3rd of Braintree; a daughter, Miss Nancy McLaughlin of Quincy, two brothers, John and Robert McLaughlin; five sisters, Mrs. Eleanor Karshis, Mrs. Ruth Love, Mrs. Mary Fermano, Mrs. Alice Dixon and Mrs. Jean Skelton; a cousin, Joseph Duncan and three grandchildren. He is also survived by a grandmother, Mrs. Eleanor McLaughlin of Roslindale.

At Bethany Church

Church Women United World Prayer Service Friday

A World Day of Prayer Service, sponsored by Church Women United of Quincy, will be held in the chapel at Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy Sq., Friday at 2 p.m.

The service, prepared this year by church women of Canada, will be led by Mrs. Betty Allen of Adams Shore Community United Methodist Church, Mrs. Helen Sullivan of the Church of the Nazarene in Wollaston, Mrs. Dorothy Bartlett of the First Baptist Church in Wollaston, and Miss Francella Maddock of the Church of Christ Scientist of Quincy.

Speaker will be Mrs. Thelma Nauth of Greenwood Memorial United Methodist Church, Dorchester. Rev. and Mrs. Beal Nauth come from Guyana and Jamaica, and lived for a time in Canada before coming to the United States. Mrs. Nauth is a teacher and the mother of two children. She is a Conference officer of the United Methodist Women and is on the State Board of Church Women United.

The theme for World Day of Prayer this year is "Community Spirit in Modern Living."

The first World Day of Prayer was held over 90 years ago, and the first offering was taken in 1920. Church Women United's Intercontinental Mission program, enabled by World Day of Prayer offerings, shows a consistency of concern. Annual grants are made to Christian Colleges for women in Asia and the Committee on Christian Literature for Women and Children, as well as short-term grants to migrant ministries, Native American self-help projects, and programs for women in prison, for community development, and for ministry to the aging.

Memorial Ceremonies Sunday For Congressional Medal Winner William R. Caddy

Memorial ceremonies for Congressional Medal of Honor winner Pfc. William R. Caddy, U.S. Marine Corps Reserve, will be held at Caddy Park on Quincy Shore Drive at noon on Sunday, March 5.

Members of the William R. Caddy Detachment, Marine Corps League, will assemble at the park to pay tribute to the Quincy Marine who was awarded the nation's highest award of valor during World War II. A memorial wreath will be placed by Chaplain Thomas Pennor.

Pfc Caddy, a rifleman with Company I, Third Battalion, 26th Marines, Fifth Marine Division, fell in action at Iwo Jima on March 3, 1945. In the citation, awarded posthumously, the Corps noted that he "boldly defied shattering Japanese machine gun and small arms fire to move forward with his platoon leader and another Marine during a determined advance of his company through an isolated sector." Pinned down by enemy fire he made a final gesture by falling on a Japanese hand grenade to protect his companions.

Commandant Paul Norton of the Caddy Detachment, has requested that all members of the group attend the ceremonies.

31 Other Winners In $1400 Drawing

Merrymount Man Wins $500 Savings Bond In QCBPA Promotion

Christopher P. Donovan, 16 Neponset Rd, Merrymount, is the winner of a $500 U.S. Savings Bond, top prize in a $1,400 Quincy Center Business and Professional Association's four-day Washington's Birthday celebration promotion.

Donovan, a superintendent of customer relations at Boston Gas Co., and father of four, said in surprise: "It's the first time I ever won something like this. I'm the guy who never wins anything."

Second prize of a $100 U.S. savings bond was won by Mrs. Dorothy Serafini, 122 Willow Ave., Wollaston.

The drawing was held at The Quincy Sun office with Mrs. Shirley Tobin, wife of Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, picking the winner from a barrel jammed with thousands of coupons deposited at the various downtown stores and businesses participating in the sales days promotion.

Donovan, who received a season's ticket in the State Lottery for Christmas, said he learned of his good fortune when he called home to report he would be late for supper.

"I'm flabergasted by the whole thing," Donovan said. "When I called home my son, Dave, told me I was to call someone named Diane - that I had won something.

"I told him 'Yeh, it's probably something like 27 years of Life Magazine'. He asked me if it was okay if he called. I said 'sure but don't buy anything.' When I got home he told me what I had won."

In addition to the two top winners 32 other people were awarded $25 savings bonds.

Winners of the bonds and the stores where they deposited their coupons are:

Josephine Russo, 11 Kingsbury Rd, Canton, Anodyne Medical Service; A. Meagher, 148 Kendrick Ave., Quincy, Barkers; David Johnson, 160 Elm St., Quincy, Baskin-Robbins; Joanne Cook, 5 Main St., Carver, Budget Rent A Car; Sandra Goodman, 189 Everett St., Wollaston, Chair Fair; George McCarron, 68 Babcock St., Houghs Neck, Colman's; Elias Gaffen, 1025 Hancock St., Quincy, Cummings; Patrick Fay, 35 Dysart St., Quincy, Goodhue's.

E. A. Nicholls, 72 Fisher Rd, Weymouth, Hancock Bank; Donna Fitzgerald, 85 Town Hill Rd, West Quincy, Jason's Luggage and Music; R. W. Hooten, 112 Pilgrim Rd, Pembroke, Kincaide's; Rita Watkins, 21 Curtis St., No. Weymouth, Kustom Television; Helen Bird, 25 Hopedale St., West Quincy, Lerner Shop; Cynthia McClosky, 61 Moffat Rd, Merrymount, Miller Shoes; Mary J. Sullivan, 540 Hancock St., Quincy, Montilio's; Larry DeCelle, 20 Craig Ave., Quincy, Norfolk County Trust [Baybank].

Pat Luongo, 15 Pembroke St., Squantum, Cummings; Mel Gobeli, 144 Willow St., Wollaston, Photo Quick; Claire F. Zeiba, 146 Palmer St., Quincy, Presidential Cooperative Bank; M. Taylor, 1000 Southern Artery, Quincy Point, Quincy Cooperative Bank; Peter Hemphill, 125 Newbury Ave., Atlantic, Quincy Furniture; Olga Dawe, 78 Putnam St., Quincy, Quincy Savings Bank; Millie Cosindas, 3 Fairfield St., Braintree, Remick's; Marilyn Caruso, 71 Dayton St., Quincy, Ryder's; R. Lavery, 20 Nelson St., Braintree, Sawyer's Campus Shop.

William Bettuchi, 181 South St., Quincy, South Shore Bank; M. R. McNair, 71 Shed St., Germantown, Spinning Wheel; Mrs. A. S. Jenness, 64 Quincy Ave., Quincy, South Shore Television; Rita E. Sweeney, 15 Ratchford Cir., Houghs Neck, Standard Television; Pamela Noonan, 20 Gilson Rd, Wollaston, Stone Jewelry; Mrs. Lincoln Watson, 56 Fourth Ave., Weymouth, Tag's Sleep & Lounge Shop and Al Anson, 9 Quadrant Cir., Germantown, Woolworth's.

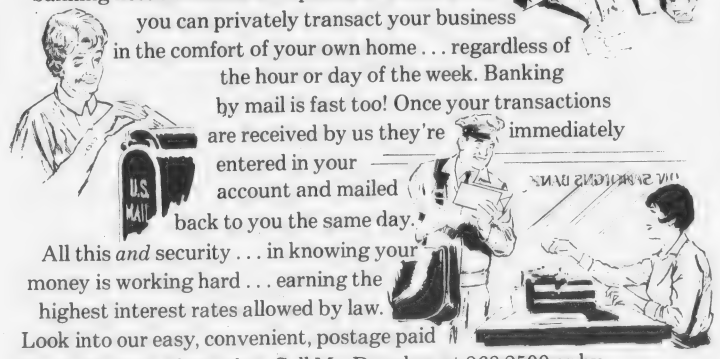
Flower tips from Andre Moreau

We all know a prominent member of the Bromeliad family - the pineapple - but there are over 2,000 relatives in all sizes, shapes and colors to meet. Bring one home and enjoy a plant with a spectacular flower that lasts for months. The foliage has unusual markings and the plant is handsome in or out of bloom. Bromeliads grow in the shape of a rosette, either upright or spreading. The rosette forms a cup in the center of the plant where the bloom will develop. Water must be kept in the cup and will last about ten days. This is more important than water around the roots. The Bromeliad is a perfect houseplant and will give years of pleasure with minimum care.



Let NORFOLK FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 help you select a long lasting houseplant that will be appropriate for most any occasion...birthday, anniversary, get well, or perhaps for the most warmly received of all...no special occasion or reason. We are also well known for our unique and original floral designs. Delivery to your satisfaction is always assured. Master Charge and BankAmericard honored. Hours: Mon. - Sat. 8-6, evenings by appointment.

HELPFUL HINT

Bromeliads can't tolerate "wet feet" so water soil only when dry.

Tobin, Harold On Collision Course

City Hall observers are just about convinced that Mayor-Senator Arthur Tobin and City Councillor Paul Harold are on a political collision course.

As inevitable, some think, as James McIntyre running against Amelio Della Chiesa, Joseph LaRaia running against Walter Hannon or Arthur Tobin running against Joseph LaRaia.

They are that sure it's going to happen--sometime. But when?

Some think it could be this fall with Harold challenging Tobin for his senatorial seat. Others think it might be next year when Tobin will be up for re-election as mayor. But no later, they believe, than 1980.

They're pretty sure a Tobin-Harold clash is coming.

Politically, Tobin and Harold see too many things differently. Their styles are different. They appeal to different followings. But they are alike in one way: Harold is as politically ambitious today as Tobin was at his age [30].

Harold, also like Tobin, has become a strong vote-puller. A Tobin-Harold head-on battle would be, as the boys say, a bit interesting.

The verbal clash between Tobin and Harold over the closed-door supper meeting last week between the Mayor and the City Council is only the tip of the iceberg as far as differences between the pair are concerned.

It was The Patriot Ledger that blew the whistle on the get-together when it complained to Dist. Atty. William Delahunt that the supper-session violated the Open Meeting Law. Delahunt has indicated that he believes it was a violation. City Solicitor Richard Barry, however, feels there was no violation.

But as far as Tobin is concerned, it was Harold who threw the grenade with his comment after the meeting that "there is absolutely no question it was a violation of the Open Meeting Law."

Tobin notes that Harold attended the meeting but made no objection then of any violation.

Harold says he feels Tobin had good intentions breaking bread with the City Council to discuss various federal disaster relief possibilities for the heavy Feb. 6 storm damage. But, stresses that the law does not allow excluding the press and closing the door.

Tobin counters that the meeting was strictly an informational one and was carried out with the city solicitor's opinion that it was all legal.

One question that could be explored: when the mayor and city council get together is it really a meeting of an official body? There is no such thing as a mayor-city council. There is a mayor, there is a city council, but no mayor-city council and no city council-mayor. And if together they do not make an official body, was their get together really in violation of the Open Meeting Law?

The ironic part of it is that when Joseph LaRaia was mayor he was criticized for not getting together with the City Council to keep that body informed on what was going on.

After a few months the mayor and councillors were as far apart as the North and South Poles.

It's too bad last week's get-together wound up in such a furor.

But some of the politician watchers think it was the opening salvo in an inevitable Tobin-Harold showdown, regardless of how the argument comes out.

RAY CATTANEO of the Quincy Park Dept. doesn't feel so bad now that Eddie Matthews is in baseball's Hall of Fame.

Ray and Matthews played together on the old Boston Braves Jacksonville Double A farm team back in the 1940's. They were both third basemen, and Matthews beat Ray out for the job with the Braves.

But, it took a budding Hall of Famer to do it.

Incidentally, on that same team with Ray were Doug Crandall, the catcher and later manager, and a youngster then playing second base by the name of Hank Aaron.

Historical Society Seeks Student Volunteer Guides

The Quincy Historical Society needs volunteers to conduct guided tours for its spring school program.

Volunteers will help small groups of students to discover the Society's library and collections. Anyone can be a volunteer who is willing to learn the necessary background material and techniques for stimulating a meaningful visit to the Society.

All volunteers will participate in training sessions. They will then assume guide duties on a regular basis.

Transit System Assaulted At Chamber Breakfast

The MBTA: Scrambled Eggs And The Fan

By TOM HENSHAW

"The MBTA is considered one of the best run transit systems in the world," said Sen. Joseph B. Walsh [D-Dorchester] with a straight face.

And that was when the scrambled eggs hit the fan at the sixth annual state legislative breakfast workshop of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

There were just too many businessmen and legislators in the house who lived through the great storms of January and February '78. They knew better.

"You have to go to Montreal or Chicago and see what they have going before you criticize the MBTA," said Walsh. "Experts come here and say this is the finest integrated rail system in the world.

"It's tough to tell the South Shore Chamber of Commerce that we've got a great rail system when nobody on the South Shore [below Quincy] has got a rail.

"But the Chamber of Commerce in Wakefield says, 'Gee, it's great. We can leave here and be in Boston in 12 minutes. There are 42 trains a day to Wakefield or Winchester.

"The trolley cars that were condemned as unsafe here 12 years ago are running on the first class line in Pittsburgh."

"Joe, I gotta check your cigarettes when you leave," said Mayor-Senator Arthur H. Tobin [D-Quincy], who is co-sponsor of a bill to investigate the MBTA after the storm of Jan. 20.

"If you tell me that the South Shore line is one of the finest lines around my answer is, 'God save the Commonwealth.' And if we sold our old trolley cars to Pittsburgh, 'God save Pittsburgh!'"

Tobin said he plans to meet soon with Robert Kiley, general manager of the MBTA "and he knows what questions I'm going to ask him."

"I want to know why," he said, "when the trains leave Andrew Station and they're going to Quincy, they stop at North Quincy and they say, 'All out. We're going back to Harvard.'

"And another train comes behind that one and picks you up at North Quincy and they tell you to get off at Wollaston because the train has to go back to Broadway."

"He was such a nice fellow until he got elected mayor," Walsh told the crowd. "What a difference a day makes. He [Tobin] was up there saying the same thing I was saying two years ago.

"As I remember, when a great mayor of Quincy wanted it, the South Shore Extension was only going to cost us $37.80.

"Jim McIntyre said we'll put this thing through and they had wild estimates of $70 million. Then it went to $80 million. I think we're up to around $170 million for that little thing we put in the South Shore.

"We've done pretty well for the South Shore."

"Just because the MBTA deficit is now part of your tax rate and you're now the mayor," he said to Tobin, "you're looking at a different picture, the other side of the coin.

"If it was on a referendum, the people would do away with the MBTA. Probably they'd do away with legislators, too. This is a fact of life. They'd do away with us. And maybe it'd be a good thing.

"But we're dedicated to the proposition that we should get this thing running and make it a great viable system for the city of Boston."

After that, it was open season on the MBTA.

"The MBTA does not operate the way it should," said Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy]. "Trains break down under any condition less than normal. I'd like to know why these trains are not designed to operate in cold weather.

"The stations are not kept up. The personnel on the MBTA are absolutely rude to the patrons. I think that's a very serious problem. The MBTA is not doing what it should do."

"We had a meeting with Kiley and all the big wigs of the T," said Rep. Elizabeth N. Metayer [D-Braintree], who is a member of the Legislature's Transportation Committee.

READER SPEAKS OUT

Says Priorities Out Of Line

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The pictures on the front page of last week's Quincy Sun (Feb. 16) graphically portray how out of line our priorities are in this fair city. While many of the streets in the residential sections of the city remained barely passable and people were suffering from the havoc of the storm in some of our coastal sections, we assigned the majority of our snow fighting equipment and personnel to Quincy Square so that the area was snowless and ready for the Washington's Birthday promotion shoppers a week away!

Apparently no consideration was given to the fact that our coastal areas were in many cases left virtually unprotected with seawalls in disarray and debris scattered along the beaches which with high waves could become potential missiles. Many of our schools were forced to remain closed for all of the week due to the hazardous condition of our streets and the children were deprived of their right to an education for the 14th day in less than a month.

We were supposedly in a state of emergency with only essential services in operation, yet within a day or two of the storm all the package stores were open, a Quincy men's clothing store was coaxing people out of their homes to buy the latest fashions, and another store was advertising its selection of paper goods. Those of us who lawfully obeyed the travel ban were nearly knocked over by cars joy-riding around the city. How many of these violators were given citations? I've never heard a figure.

It would seem that the almighty dollar is king in Quincy!

Sincerely,
Harold S. Crowley Jr.

Equipment On Loan Out

Crane Library Helps Deaf Communicate By Telephone

By PETER BARNICLE

The problems of deaf people are not as immediately apparent as those of the blind, but the affliction does handicap them in communicating with friends, relatives and fellow workers.

People who are hard-of-hearing can sometimes compensate for the difficulty by obtaining a hearing aid. Others, are completely deaf and unable to use this device.

Being unable to hear can be a very serious problem. It makes it impossible for the victim to use a vital means of communication - the telephone.

The Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Sq., has introduced a piece of equipment which has been developed to make it possible for members of the deaf community to communicate via the telephone.

Through a grant from the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners the Quincy library has purchased two especially equipped TTY machines to provide services to the deaf people of this area. A TTY is a teletype machine which operates over telephone lines and enables a person with a hearing disability to communicate with another person having a TTY.

The library has a standard TTY which will remain permanently in the main reading room of the central library. They also have a Porta Printer II, a portable unit, about the size of a portable typewriter and weighing eight pounds.

Ann E. McLaughlin, director of adult services at the library, said that the portable TTY can be loaned out for a two week period in the same manner as a book.

The machines have been in operation only a month, but the waiting list for the Porta Printer is usually from eight to 10. Some members of the deaf community have their own portable TTYs.

"They are expensive," Mrs. McLaughlin said. "But it is a matter of a person's priorities. The portable machine costs around $650. Some people pay that much for a television or a stereo combination."

A person using the TTY places the handset in a coupler and dials the number desired in the ordinary way. A monitor light tells the person being called when the telephone is ringing.

HEARING AID -- Ann E. McLaughlin, director of the Thomas Crane Library, Quincy, demonstrates newly installed TTY in the main reading room. Equipment is designed to allow the deaf community to use the telephone. On window sill is portable TTY which can be borrowed for use in the home on a two week period.

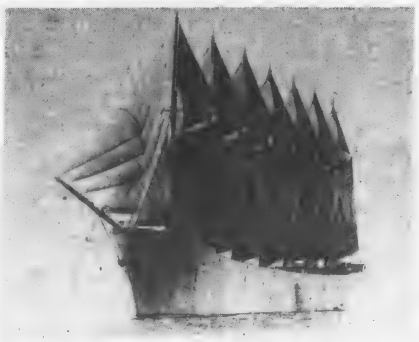
Some models can be hooked up to regular television screens and the message is flashed across the screen, line by line.

"Our machines have a paper print-out," Mrs. McLaughlin said. "This permits a permanent copy of the message. We felt that the line by line message on TV would be lost and people would have to be constantly asking to have it repeated."

The library's TTY telephone number is 472-3585 and members of the staff have been trained in the operation of the machine. They are ready to provide reference material and other information to TTY callers.

In cases of emergency the deaf person can call the Massachusetts State Police at 566-5126. Only a few local police departments are equipped with TTYs so the calls are fielded by state troopers and referred to the appropriate community.



Amtrak also has a special number [1-800-523-6590] which can be used by deaf persons wishing to make train reservations. And Sears Roebuck can be reached by dialing 247-2188.

The TTYs have a special loose-leaf directory listing all owners of the equipment in the United States, Canada and some foreign countries. The book is comparatively small, having at present 425 pages.

The portable TTY also comes with a battery pack which allows a person to make calls from a telephone booth or a hotel room.

The users of the TTYs have their own code abbreviations similar to teletype operators the world over. OIC - is for Oh, I see. CUL - see you later. And for the more affectionate there is the sign-off "88" - the abbreviation for "love and kisses".

QUINCY'S YESTERDAYS By Tom Henshaw

Pupils To Purchase Flag For USS Quincy

The 15,000 pupils in the Quincy School System were asked to contribute a penny apiece to purchase a city flag for the cruiser USS Quincy which was being completed at the Bethlehem Steel Co.'s Fore River Shipyard.

Mayor Thomas S. Burgin said the collection of one cent -- no more -- from each youngster would be made in mid-March to cover the cost of the flag, estimated to be between $100 and $150.

Meanwhile, Rear Admiral Paul N. Dungan, the ranking Naval officer at the Yard, said Bethlehem could be fined for late delivery of the Quincy, which was promised for Jan. 3 but now appeared due for completion about May 1.

Fore River officials blamed the delay on a serious fire that kept workers off the job and damage to the ship's machinery caused when a foreign object was dropped into the gears, apparently accidentally.

CRANE TO SEEK BARE FACTS

The city buzzed with reports that nude women models were posing at a new art school on Hancock St. in the downtown area.

Mrs. Esther V. Purcell of the School Committee said there was nothing the School Board could do about it and she lamented that there was no Watch and Ward Society in Quincy to stand guard against such goings on.

City Clerk Emery L. Crane said that he had heard the reports, too, and promised to investigate them personally.

QUINCY DROPS FINALE

The Quincy High School basketball team, still in contention for a berth in the Tech Tourney, lost to Brockton, 31-21, in the final game of the season played for the benefit of the team's sweater fund.

JUDGE ASSAILS OATH

Judge Kenneth Johnson of the Quincy District Court attacked the state's Teacher Loyalty Oath bill in a speech before a meeting of the Zonas Club.

"We need patriotism in this country but honor is of more weight than an oath," he said.

"History and tradition have proved that the real patriot develops and values right to property, free speech and free assembly."

Copies Of Budget Recommendations At Morrissey's Office

Copies of the Governor's budget recommendations for fiscal 1977, and a final draft of the bulletin of committee work and business of the legislature for 1977, has been made available by Rep. Michael W. Morrissey (D-Quincy) as research aids and a matter of general interest to his constituents.

Morrissey said, "the budget recommendation provides for a minimum increase of $153 million in local aid and assumption of costs now borne by the cities and towns. In addition, the document includes a narrative description of each state agency and its goals."

The document also includes the Commonwealth's capital outlay budget and a brief description of some of the major capital projects scheduled to be undertaken during the coming fiscal year.

The bulletin of committee work includes a complete index of the bills, acts, and resolves filed, enacted or worked on by the General Court in 1977. Rep. Morrissey said, "all of the work and business conducted by the legislature has been indexed and listed with the Committees that did work on the bills."

These documents are located at Rep. Morrissey's district office, 69 Billings Rd., North Quincy. They are available during office hours -- Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m., and Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

For further information, contact Rep. Morrissey at 328-0900, or 727-7035.

MONEY TALKS

A $9.30 dinner for two in 1962 will cost $32 Ten Years From Now

By Philip J. Lawrence, President

Colonial Federal Savings

and Loan Association of Quincy, Holbrook & Wareham

8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

You and your spouse set out from your recently purchased home, which cost you $115,290, in your new Chevrolet Impala [$7,500] with a full tank of gas [$20] for a night out at your favorite restaurant. The prime-rib dinner is delicious, and you don't mind paying the $32.06 bill the waitress places before you. A stop enroute home enables you to pick up a paperback novel [$3.99] and the morning newspaper [50 cents].

Ridiculous, you say? You wouldn't pay such prices? You may have to, as a national financial magazine points out, only ten years from now if inflation continues at a steady 5% or 6% rate of annual increase.

Compare these prices with what they were fifteen years ago. Your $115,290 house was then worth only $17,600, the car $2,529, gasoline 31 cents per gallon, the prime-rib dinner $9.30 for two, the paperback 95 cents, and the daily newspaper a nickel.

If inflation continues at the same steady rate, in just 20 years from now your house will be on the market at $244,387, the car will cost $11,786, that same dinner for two will set you back $52.72, the paperback $7.08, and the daily newspaper $1.27.

Scary figures. But if you are still in the work force, your salary increases will cover these skyrocketing expenditures. Right? Not if the current tax structures remain as they are and if Social Security taxes ten years from now increase as indicated by pending legislation. Our expert source points out that aftertax earnings as a percent of gross earnings for a professional person will decline from 78% fifteen years ago to 58% ten years from now and 52% twenty years hence. For a production worker, they will be reduced from 88% fifteen years ago to 78% ten years from now and 68% twenty years ahead. In terms of current dollar values, both earners will be worse off twenty years from now than they are today.

Suppose that some time within the next twenty years -- maybe next year or five or ten years hence -- you will be retired and earned income will cease. The stocks you may own will not serve as a hedge against inflation; their present state reflects the lack of confidence in the nation's capacity to hold inflation in check. That pension plan of yours is heavily invested in stocks and it too will be threatened.

Not a pleasant prospect, is it? About the only thing we can do is to demand of our elected officials that they curb spending to bring inflation under control. And we can watch our own spending so that we are not adding fuel to the fire. We can put more into savings; whatever they are worth in that grim future, they will be better than nothing at all.

Disaster Relief Program
Squantum Association Topic

A new Civil Defense program entitled "The Disaster Relief" will be the topic at a meeting of the Squantum Community Association Tuesday, March 7.

The meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. at the Squantum School Auditorium and is open to all residents of Quincy.

Guest speakers will be Ken Walsh, director of Civil Defense and William Dwyer, director of a new federally funded program called "The Disaster Relief." Walsh will focus on what Civil Defense is and how it works, while Dwyer will address residents on the availability of federal financing for current projects such as his newly formed disaster program.

All Squantum and Quincy residents are invited to attend the meeting.

Edward Welch Completes Training

Marine Private Edward F. Welch, son of Edward F. Welch of 136 Elliot Ave., North Quincy, has completed recruit training at the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C.

He participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill.

Welch joined the Marine Corps in July, 1977.

NQHS Band Trip To Ireland Cancelled

The six-day March trip to Ireland scheduled for the North Quincy High School Band, color guard and majorettes has been cancelled because not enough airline seats were filled.

Thirty seats were still unfilled at the time the Music Parents Group voted to cancel the trip, which the band has been planning since last year. The empty seats would have raised the price per person.

At a recent meeting, students and parents were refunded the money they had paid in. However, money that was raised by the band will remain in the account and possibly be used for another trip.

The group had been invited to march in the Dublin St. Patrick's Day Parade. Only 66 band members, 10 colorguards and 9 majorettes had planned to make the trip, but the number has since declined. The band that gone five years ago with 119 performing members.

The effective way to insulate your home

Insulation effectiveness is measured in its resistance to heat flow . . . either moving out of the house in winter or flowing in, during the summer.

Celsius foam insulation has a high "R" rating which creates an efficient thermal barrier in ceilings, attics and walls. Celsius foam is pumped into walls cavities and flows around pipes, electrical outlets and other protrusions. It effectively seals against heat loss and drafts by completely filling the spaces without settling.

With Celsius foam you save on heating/cooling costs all year round and you get a return on your investment every time you receive your utility bill. You'll enjoy extra living comfort too!

Call us today for more information on our homeowner's warranty and a free estimate. You need to insulate your home only once. Do it right. Call us today!

'Heart Time Concert, Ball Rescheduled For March 10

Mayor Arthur Tobin announces that the Quincy Senior Citizens "Heart Time Concert and Ball" postponed because of the blizzard, has been re-scheduled for Friday, March 10.

Mayor Tobin, who will host the event at the Quincy Armory said that the city-wide planning committee has resumed meetings to complete arrangements for the evening.

More than 550 tickets, free of charge, have been distributed for the activity. Mrs. Marion Andrews, general chairman, has announced that those tickets will be honored on March 10.

Highlighting the evening will be a concert from 7:30 p.m. until 8:30 p.m. by the 60-piece 215th Army National Guard Band. From 8:30 p.m. until midnight dancing will be provided by a 20-piece Army National Guard Band directed by John Yunits. A social hour will be held from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

Table decorations are being created by the 7th grade students of Central Junior High School. Refreshments will be prepared by pupils of the culinary department of the Quincy Vocational Technical High School under the direction of George Cole.

Many prizes, donated by local businessmen and organizations, will be awarded during the evening. All expenses will be paid for by donations from business, fraternal and veterans groups.

Others serving on the committee are: Mrs. Jane Wallace, secretary, Dr. Richard Crystal and Edward Hannon of the School Department; Thomas McDonald, representing the veterans organizations; William Dwyer, representing Quincy Businessmen; Herbert Blake, Richard J. Koch, Frank Glynn, Charles L. Alongi, Jr., Harold Coose, representing city departments and Mr. Yunits.

Bus transportation will be provided from all senior citizen housing units beginning at 7 p.m. These include: Tobin Towers, Martensen Street, Oceanview, Wollaston Manor, Pagnano Towers, Fenno House and 1000 Southern Artery.

Curtain Call Auditions For 'Damn Yankees'

Braintree's community theatre group, Curtain Call Theatre, will hold open auditions in March for the musical comedy "Damn Yankees".

Director George Stevens of Braintree said approximately 40 actors, singers and dancers of all ages are needed. Musical Director will be Dave Brayton of Hingham. Choreographer is Joan Grieco of Braintree.

Auditions will be held at the Curtain Call Theatre Clubhouse, corner of Commercial and Faxon Sts., Braintree, Sunday, March 5, and Wednesday, March 8, at 7:30 p.m.

Recreational Theater In 'The Gingerbread Lady'

The Quincy Recreational Theater will present Neil Simon's "The Gingerbread Lady" at Broad Meadows Junior High School, Calvin Rd., Merrymount, Friday, March 3, and Saturday March 4, at 8 p.m.

The performance will be given again March 10 and 11.

Evelyn Griffin, in the lead role, will portray a woman who struggles to overcome alcoholism. Other members of the cast include: Jim Martorano, Alyce Feathers, Mark Matthews, Sarah Poole and Mike Coleman.

Tickets are available at Hancock Bank, Sawyer's Campus Shop and Bernie's Modern Formal in downtown Quincy and Bernie's shop at 445 Willard St., West Quincy.

Transportation will be provided for senior citizens for the March 3 performance. Further information can be obtained by calling the Quincy Recreation Department at 773-1380, ext. 204.

Legal Secretaries Association Has Tickets For Curtain Call Theater

The Norfolk County Legal Secretaries Association has available tickets for the Curtain Call Theater's presentation of Neil Simon's play, "The Prisoner of Second Avenue," to be presented at the Central Junior High School, Washington St., Braintree, Friday and Saturday evenings, March 3 and 4.

The association has purchased a block of tickets. Anyone interested in purchasing any tickets may contact any member of the Norfolk County Legal Secretaries Association, the Association's president, Marie B. O'Neill, PLS, at the office of Quincy Attorney Paul A.M. Hunt, or the Ways and Means Sub-Chairman, Mrs. Audrey M. Watts, at the office of Weymouth Attorneys Newton & Jennings, P.C.

Any profit realized by the association from the sale of tickets will be used in its various legal education classes and programs geared to help persons employed in the legal field throughout Norfolk County keep abreast of the changing rules and procedures in their courts, etc.

The Association's Legal Education Chairwoman, Mrs. Norma F. Gelles, of Holbrook, is presently planning a series of legal education classes for sometime in the spring, particulars of which will be announced at a later date.

St. Joseph's To Present Variety Show In May

The Youth Activities Committee and the CYO of St. Joseph's Church, Quincy Point, announces plans for a parish variety show to be held in May.

Rehearsals for the show "Clowns-a-Poppin" will begin April 19. The show will be directed by Edward Rooney with choreography by Miss Betty Campbell.

Proceeds from the show and from a special ad book will be used to offset cost of various programs for the youth of the parish. All members of the parish are invited to participate in the show or to be patrons and boosters in the ad book.

Any person wishing to assist in any way may do so by contacting Frank Brillo of 15 Main St., Quincy Point.

Quincy Wins Pee Wee Title In 5-Overtime Thriller

Kevin White's goal in the fifth overtime period gave the Quincy Elks Pee Wee A team a 4-3 win over Wilmington and the Pee Wee championship in the annual Quincy Kiwanis hockey tournament last week at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Danny Kelly assisted on the goal which ended the marathon title game.

Frankie Reynolds, Dean Philips and Larry Costello had the other Quincy goals. Mike McGrath and Larry Costello had assists. Todd Richardson and Timmy O'Connor sparkled in goal.

Coach Bob Hayes' championship team started tournament play with a 15-0 bombing of Lowell as McGrath had four goals, Philips the hat trick, Tommy Schofield, Scott Messina and Reynolds two apiece and Kelly and Benson one each. Tommy Murphy had four assists, Philips and Reynolds two apiece and Dickie Tapper, White, Ralph Fitzmorris, Bobby Lynch, Peter Quinn, Dennis Croake, Benson, Costello and Messina one each.

Quincy clobbered Waltham, 14-1, as Croake and White had four goals apiece. Reynolds had two and Schofield, Benson, Philips and Tapper one each. White had five assists, Croake three, Kelly and Reynolds two apiece and Costello, Messina, Fitzmorris, Murphy, McGrath, Benson, Quinn and Lynch one each.

Venturelli, Beck Win State Titles

Quincy's Lou Venturelli and North Quincy's Ed Beck won state championships in last weekend's wrestling tournaments at Springfield [Class A] and Milford [Class B].

Venturelli won the Class A 122-pound title with a win over Craig Kosinski of Stoughton in the finals. Kosinski had defeated Venturelli during the regular season but Venturelli had avenged that loss in the sectional tournament. Venturelli was named the outstanding wrestler in the sectionals.

Quincy's Len Picot finished third in the 187-pound class and other Presidents who did well in the championships were Steve Venturelli, 128, and Dan Madden, 115.

In Class B Beck, undefeated in regular season competition during the past three years, won his state 115-pound title by defeating Scituate's Tom Kohl in their rubber meeting. Beck had won during the regular season but lost to Kohl in the sectional finals. Beck had advanced to the finals with a win over Henry Acquafresca of Milford.

North's Butch Montoya, the top seed at 128 pounds, won the consolation bracket for third place. He had been named the outstanding wrestler in the B sectionals.

Coaches Carmen Mariano of Quincy and Steve Joyce of North were pleased with the season. Mariano's Presidents finished 16-2-1 and, although Joyce's first North team was only 4-9, he received several outstanding individual performances. The Raiders were hampered by having to forfeit two and three matches in every meet.

At Ridge Arena

Quincy Faces Marshfield In Opener

Quincy High's hockey team, runnerup in the Suburban League, opens its state tournament competition tonight (Thursday) with an 8 p.m. game against Marshfield's Old Colony League champions at Ridge Arena, Braintree.

If they survive this test, the Presidents will face a rough assignment this Saturday against Don Bosco's Catholic Conference champions at 5:30, also at Ridge Arena.

Bob Sylvia's Quincy team qualified for the tournament last week, then lost a chance to at least tie for the league crown when it lost to Waltham, 6-3.

Newton North went on to win the league title with an 11-1-3 record, while Quincy finished second with an 11-4-1 mark.

Brian Bertoni had one goal against Waltham and won the league scoring title with 41 points. Tom Cahill had two assists and finished second with 37 points.

Quincy's other goals were scored by Mark Giordani and outstanding sophomore Robbie Craig.

"I think the boys just suffered a little letdown against Waltham after clinching a tournament berth in their previous game," Sylvia said. "I'm optimistic about our chances in the tournament, as the offense has come alive and our defense has been strong all year."

Prior to the Waltham loss, Quincy had won three in a row following the blizzard to clinch its ninth tournament spot in Sylvia's 13 years as coach and scored 27 goals in the the three games.

● Track

Fall Costs North State Title

North Quincy's track team came within an unfortunate fall of winning its third successive state championship last week at Reading.

Lou Tozzi's Raiders had a big lead in Class C following the first day's action, but, with only one qualifier for the finals, they faced a tough task as other teams had more qualifiers.

North's Tim O'Neil finished third in the 600 with a timing of 1:18.9 (the winner was Jim Wilson of King Philip in 1:17.7) and the Raiders needed only a fourth place finish in the relay to win its third state title in a row.

North's downfall came with the Raiders' Dan McIntyre and Scituate's Paul Dano fell. Dano was able to get back up and Scituate placed fifth but North could get only a seventh place finish and it lost the meet to Fitchburg, 32-30.

Despite the fall, North's team of McIntyre, John McGuiggan, Tom Fennessey and O'Neil turned in its best time of the year.

North had won the Class C crown a year ago and the Class B title two years ago.

"It was a tough way to lose, but I'm very proud of the way our boys performed," Tozzi said. "We led from the start of the meet right down to the final event, the relay. I'm naturally very disappointed for the boys, but those things just happen. We had a fine season."

On the first day, Mike Gallagher had won the shot put with his best effort ever, Mike Barrett had finished second and John Saville fifth in the two-mile and Bob Ferrara had placed fourth in the high jump.

Koch Rolls 267

Mayor Tobin To Bowl For Muscular Dystrophy

Mayor Arthur Tobin is a proven vote getter. But how is he at bowling?

You now have the opportunity to find out and at the same time help him fight muscular dystrophy.

Tobin will bowl Sunday at 1 p.m. at O'Lindy's Bowling Lanes, 170 Quincy Ave., as a substitute for Quincy Sun publisher Henry Bosworth who is sidelined with a back ailment.

Tobin will bowl three strings in the Lucky Total Contest. Contestants can either guess or try to match his three-string total. To be eligible, all you have to do is donate 50 cents which goes to the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Winner will receive a set of candlepin balls and a carrying bag. This will be the fourth and final set to be awarded in the four-week contest.

The sets of balls and carrying bags were donated by Paramount, Inc., manufacturer, and O'Lindy's Lanes, operated by John James and Stephen Mezzetti.

Last week, Richard Koch, executive secretary of the Quincy Park-Recreation Board substituted for Bosworth and bowled a 267 three-string total.

Winner of the set of balls and carrying bag was Joan MacDonald of Nonantum St., Newton, who guessed Koch's score.

Her name was drawn from among 12 contestants who guessed or matched the 267 total. The other 11 are: Don Mathewson, Weymouth; John Harrison, Milton; Ted Erickson, Scituate; Ed Romans, Weymouth; Aldo Saluti, Braintree; Paul Ferris, Quincy; Roderick Burross, Whitman; Thomas Sogue, Quincy; Dot Locke, Milton; Greta Gillecce, Hingham and Bert Bigger, Holbrook.

Winners the first two weeks, matching or guessing Bosworth's strings of 318 and 303 were Wes Cobb and Al Eklund both of Quincy.

O'LINDY'S
LUCKY TOTAL CONTEST

You can win a set of four Paramount balls and bag if your three string total comes closes to or matches the total bowled by Quincy Sun Publisher, Henry Bosworth.

Mail or bring to O'Lindy's Bowling Lanes, 170 Quincy Ave., Quincy, Mass. 02169. Enclose 50¢ donation.

Toland Suggests Eliminating February School Vacations

By PETER BARNICLE

Elimination of the February school vacation is among the suggestions made by Mrs. Patricia Toland, vice chairman of the Quincy school committee, for coping with lost classroom time which may result from snow storms in future years.

During a discussion of the problem at last week's school committee meeting Mrs. Toland said she felt a task force should be appointed by School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon to study this suggestion and others which would assure that the school system is able to fulfill the requirements of the state.

She pointed out that after the Christmas vacation the students have Martin Luther King Day off, Jan. 15, and also have a long weekend for Washington's Birthday in February.

"It is something that should be considered," she said. "I realize that it would have been impossible this year because so many parents had already made plans for trips during the February time off. However, if they have the school calendar in September they could make their plans accordingly."

She also asked the committee to consider moving the April vacation up to late March and calling it a spring vacation.

Mrs. Toland also proposes the school administration study the possibility of staggering the opening hours of school in emergencies and the use of buses as a shuttle service. The buses would pick up the students at designated spots along main streets.

Expanding on her ideas given to the committee Mrs. Toland has also suggested the enrollment of an auxiliary to the traffic crossing matrons. Mothers who could guide the elementary school students up to the bus routes. This plan she said could be worked out with the cooperation of various PTOs.

"It might be possible to close main streets to traffic for half an hour or so in the morning and again when school lets out to protect the children who have to walk in the streets," she said.

This, she conceded would require a traffic engineering study and would have to be approved by the police department.

The immediate problem facing the school system, the committee was told is the making up of 25 hours, or five days, of classroom time, lost as a result of the great storm in early February.

Arthur Woodward, director of secondary education, told the school committee the school year includes 90 classroom hours more than the 990 hours required by the state department of education. Students returned to class on Feb. 22 after the blizzard and attended classes during the January storm.

"We are right on target," Woodward said.

At the elementary level, students must complete 900 hours of classroom work and officials are working on a plan to find a way to make up the 25 hours which were missed. Although the state gave a four-day waiver the schools are still five days short of the required attendance, according to Fred Nolan, director of elementary education.

If the 25-hour deficit is not made up by the last day of school in June the students will have attended only 855 hours of class.

Superintendent Creedon told the committee that the homework program prepared by elementary school teachers during the second week of school cancellations was "an overwhelming success".

Families were notified of the project by the media and parents called at the schools to pick up the assignments. Creedon said that throughout the city about 80 percent responded and in some areas 100 percent response was reported.

Quincy Possible Alternative Site

Controversial Mail Center Delayed For More Study

The Quincy and Wollaston Post Offices will not be closed to make way for the proposed Incoming Mail Center in Braintree -- not right away, anyway.

Cong. James A. Burke (D-Milton) said the U.S. Postal Service has agreed to postpone construction of the IMC and has assured him that federally owned post offices will not be closed in the meantime.

The Post Offices in Quincy and Wollaston are owned by the U.S. Government while the one in North Quincy occupies a leased building and could be closed when the lease expires.

Burke, whose district includes Quincy, made the announcement following a meeting between postal officials and Sens. Edward M. Kennedy (D-Mass) and Edward W. Brooke (R-Mass) and Cong. Gerry Studds (D-Cohasset).

Representing the Post Office at the conference were Richard Barton, postal subcommittee staff director; Assistant Postmaster Jim Finch, and New England Regional Postmaster Frank Sommerkamp.

The Congressional delegation told them that the proposed site of the IMC near Braintree's Five Corners was a poor choice because it was not central to area to be served and there is a traffic problem.

Burke said the Post Office agreed to postpone construction for four to six months, conduct a study to determine the environmental impact and explore possible alternative sites in the more central city of Quincy.

The postal area includes Quincy, Milton, Braintree and Weymouth.

Burke said the postal officials also assured him that the environmental impact study will involve full local participation with input solicited in the form of public hearings.

The Postal Service purchased the land in Braintree on Granite St. near the King's Shopping Plaza in 1975 on which to build the $20 million facility for sorting and distributing mail in the four communities.

The proposal to close post offices in the area has been Roundly condemned by the Quincy City Council and the boards of selectmen in Braintree and Weymouth.

To Challenge Cerasoli

Dolores Nourse Candidate For State Representative

A Weymouth woman formerly of Quincy Point will challenge Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli for the Democratic nomination for state representative in the Third Norfolk District.

Mrs. Dolores E. Nourse, the former Dolores E. Tosi of Quincy Point, who now lives at 14 Lantern Lane, Weymouth, announced her candidacy Tuesday.

The newly revised Third Norfolk District is made up of Quincy's Ward 2 [Quincy Point] plus Precincts 5, 6, 9, 12, 13, 16 and 17 in Weymouth.

Mrs. Nourse, who is a professional photographer and an officer of Noursecraft Photography Corp., has been active in Weymouth affairs for 20 years and an associate member of the Democratic Town Committee for 16 years.

She was a major organizer of the League of Women Voters in Weymouth. A former board member, she chaired the "Know Your Town" study and served as the League's State House observer.

She is former treasurer of the Ralph Talbot School PTO, a past member of the St. Francis Xavier Sodality and twice vice chairman of the Weymouth March of Dimes.

A graduate of Quincy High School and Strafford Business School, she is the wife of John C. Nourse, director of the Norfolk County Development and Tourist Council and a member of the Weymouth Board of Assessors. They have three sons, John Jr., Paul and Jeffrey.

"I believe my knowledge of municipal, county and state governments give me an insight into the real bread and butter issues," said Mrs. Nourse.

"I feel I know how to make our democratic system work.

"I am the only candidate that has lived and worked in both the Quincy and Weymouth sections of the new district. I feel I know the territory, its people and its many problems."

McDonald's Seeks Mayflower Diner Site For Restaurant

McDonald's, Chicago-based fast food chain, has applied for a license to open a unit at 473 Southern Artery, on the site of the Mayflower Diner.

The firm appeared before the City Licensing Board this week to explain plans and request a common victualer's license. A spokesman for the company said the Mayflower Diner will be moved to another location and McDonald's will take over the 40,000 square foot lot and erect a new building seating 112 people. The plans call for a parking lot to accommodate 73 cars.

Police Chief Francis X. Finn was skeptical about the traffic count made by the company and asked for more time to study their report and check with his own traffic control officers.

Atty. Martin Cosgrove, said businessmen adjoining the proposed restaurant wanted an opportunity to voice their objections.

The McDonald's would be operated by John P. Gillig of Duxbury. He now operates the McDonald's in North Weymouth and recently opened a second unit in East Braintree.

According to Ernest Donrune, construction engineer for the restaurant chain, McDonald's would own the $250,000 building. Gillig said his investment would be about $28,000 and he would be responsible for the equipment, interior decor and maintaining the landscaping. He said he would also keep a crew on hand to clean up any litter which might accummulate.

The board voted to continue the hearing for two weeks to enable members to study the plans submitted by McDonald's.

Dr. Russell Street Scholarship Fund Established

A memorial scholarship fund to assist students in the medical field, has been established by the Quincy City Hospital Pathology Department in remembrance of Dr. Russell B. Street, Chief Pathologist for 25 years. Dr. Street died last Sept. 17.

The Russell B. Street Jr., M.D. Memorial Scholarship Fund has been established by friends and associates in honor of Dr. Street's service. Anyone wishing to contribute should make checks payable to the R. B. Street Scholarship Fund in care of the Quincy City Hospital Pathology Dept.

Dr. Street received his M.D. degree from the University of Maryland in 1945. He served his residency in Pathology at the V.A. Hospital, McKenney, Texas; V.A. Hospital, Waco, Texas; and Boston City Hospital.

After serving as assistant pathologist at Cleveland City Hospital and Massachusetts Memorial Hospital he came to Quincy City in 1952. Under his leadership and guidance the Laboratory developed into one of the best in the area. It has achieved continued accreditation from the Department of Public Health; American Association of Blood Banks and College of American Pathologists.

QCAO Heating Help For Seniors, Low Income Families

The Quincy Community Action Energy Program is now offering assistance to low income families and seniors in meeting high heating costs.

Funded by the state, the Emergency Fuel Assistance Program will aid income eligible persons with up to $250 in one-time only assistance in the form of payments to fuel suppliers.

Intent of the program is to clear up arrearages in heating bills so that the client's heat supply is not in danger. Eligible bills include oil, wood, propane gas and coal. Natural gas bills will be considered only if the client is heating with gas and has received a notice of discontinuation of service. Electric bills will be considered only with a discontinuation notice.

Information and applications will be available Monday through Friday from 9-4 at the following locations:

Germantown Service Center, 9 Bicknell St., Quincy.

Southwest Community Center, 372 Granite St., Quincy.

Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 150 East Squantum St., North Quincy.

Braintree Town Hall, 1 JFK Memorial Drive, Braintree.

Milton Town Hall, 525 Canton Ave., Milton.

Weymouth Town Hall, 75 Middle St., Weymouth.

Persons applying for this assistance should bring any back heating bills and positive proof of present income.

More information is available at the Quincy Community Action Energy Office at the Germantown Service Center, 9 Bicknell St., in Quincy at 471-1321.

MBTA Runs Into Flak At Chamber Breakfast

[Cont'd from Page 14]

On other issues handled by the legislators:

Sen. Walsh told the breakfast that the Southwest Corridor plan for a transportation system connecting I-95 in Canton with downtown Boston is not yet dead.

"There will be some movement now for the Southwest Corridor as a result of the chaos the storm created on Route 128 and the Southeast Expressway," he said.

"They are determined to go ahead with it but they will have to make some sort of peace with the community groups. In the next few months there will be some move forward."

Rep. Philip W. Johnston [D-Marshfield] and Rep. Mary Jeanette Murray [R-Cohasset] differed over the rebuilding of homes damaged by the storm which were in violation of later building codes.

"Many of the homes that were damaged along the coast were very old and probably should not have been constructed in the first place," said Johnston.

"They were built 40 to 50 years ago and would not be allowed today under present regulations. The state has said it will not allow any zoning variances at this point.

"I personally have strong reservations about approval."

"People who lost everything should be allowed to rebuild," said Mrs. Murray. "Those who do not rebuild should be compensated. I have filed a bill that would allow rebuilding using only part of the building code."

Sen. Allan R. McKinnon [D-Weymouth] said he foresees that something will be done for employers who paid their employees for time lost during the storm yet were forced to pay the 1 per cent solvency tax to cover unemployment compensation for workers who were not paid.

"I would think that the Legislature should look seriously at some sort of a tax credit for those employers who paid their people," he said. "I think you'll see some sort of action in that direction."

"I feel very strongly," said Rep. Flynn, "that the employers should not pay. The state and federal governments have the responsibility to pick up the full cost."

Both Republican and Democratic spokesmen predicted an early adjournment of the Legislature, largely because this is an election year.

"The Republican leadership," said Rep. Andrew H. Card Jr. [R-Holbrook], who is minority whip in the House, "has traditionally said the legislative process should move along much more quickly than it does, even in a non-election year.

"We should accomplish our business before the end of the fiscal year in July.

"The Legislature probably will get out in the first week in June if we can keep up the schedule now.

"I don't anticipate a great deal of creative legislation. The thrust will be on the budget and finishing up the legislative year so that the campaign season can begin in earnest."

"I think it will be a short year," said Sen. McKinnon. "Last year was a very long, dreary, dismal year because of the trial in the Senate, the Speaker's injury and the long wrangle over court reform.

"I think this will be a short year because the Speaker and the Senate President are committee to it. I hope that by June or July we will be out."

"We asked them, 'What are you doing to protect the best interests of the people who use the T?' We were assured by them that they had a perfectly marvelous plan of action for natural disasters, storms, winter weather. In fact, it was a 155-page brochure.

"One of our complaints was that we stand in the station and the train doesn't come and no one tells us why. They don't tell you if the train is going to come in 10 minutes, 15 minutes or three months. They assured us everything was going to be rosy.

"Then we had the January storm. I stood in Andrew Station for an hour and 10 minutes. We have them against the ropes. The transportation committee is very well aware of defects in the system."

"I'd like to have the T look at the town of Milton," said Rep. M. Joseph Manning [D-Milton]. "In the past storm we established our own transportation system from Milton to South Station and the patrons were in raptures over it.

"If the T wants to know how to run a system they might look at the town of Milton."

Rep. Paul F. X. Moriarty [D-Abington] brought up the old complaint of towns that are within the MBTA district yet have no direct service.

"Rockland pays quite an assessment," he said. "Last year it was $189,000 and we have no service whatsoever. We have been trying to get Rockland out of there since it went in 14 or 15 years ago but the MBTA won't let any town out."

"We file a bill every year," said Rep. William J. Flynn Jr. [D-Hanover], "to have Rockland, Hanover and other towns withdraw from the MBTA and the number of people who co-sponsor it increases every year.

"Unless we can revise the formula, I think we have to look at the question of increasing the fare. It's been 25 cents since 1968. It's unfair to continue to pass the deficit on to towns within the district with no service."

"I want to take a shot at these people down in Rockland," growled Walsh. "I see red buses come into my district to Ashmont station every day and when they're going out they say Rockland on them. I don't know how many people come in every day from Rockland. They enjoy that service.

"The MBTA is something we've got to live with and it's something we can't live without."

Supper Meeting 'No Violation'

informed about the matters at hand.

"Would you after a further and more thorough review see any possible infraction [even technical] of this law or that similar future informal dinner briefings of this nature would fail to be in compliance or in any way jeopardize the public's right to know we would welcome a judicial determination of your contentions and feel confident that the court would uphold the position of this office."

The private nature of the meeting was also protested by City Councillors Paul D. Harold and Francis X. McCauley and the Patriot Ledger.

Those who attended the meeting say that city finances were discussed but both press and public were barred, an action that didn't set well with Harold or the Patriot Ledger.

"There is no question it was a violation of the open meeting law," said Harold. "You can call it whatever you want but it's still a meeting in which public matters were deliberated."

Donald C. Wilder, editor of the Patriot Ledger, took the matter to Dist. Atty. Delahunt, who called it a violation, too -- "if the facts concerning the meeting were correctly reported" in the Ledger.

Barry told Delahunt in his letter that "unfortunately, the facts as reported in the Ledger ... were incorrect."

Delahunt asked Council President John J. Quinn to make available "a complete, detailed record of the closed deliberations, signed an sworn by the persons who were present."

The DA set Tuesday, Feb. 28, as the deadline.

Meanwhile, Councillor McCauley said that he consulted two impartial but unidentified attorneys and they agreed with Delahunt that the meeting was in violation of the open meeting law.

Tobin, who called the meeting to hear about the financial aspects of the Great Storm of '78, conceded that it came within "a gray area" of the state's open meeting law.

The Mayor was inclined to blame the ruckus on Councillor Harold, who is said to have his eye on the state senate seat that is currently held by Tobin.

"At no time," said Tobin, "did any city councillor or anyone else object to the meeting. No one was disgruntled. No one raised their voice at all.

"It wasn't until afterward that certain individuals started giving their opinions. I don't feel bound by their opinions.

"It is unfortunate that the editor of the Patriot Ledger and the district attorney overreacted on this thing. I wish they would have at least given me the courtesy of a phone call. That's all it would have taken to clear this up."

Tobin called the meeting "just an informal briefing by the Mayor and the solicitor's office to my staff and members of the City Council individually over sandwiches and coffee."

Others attending, he said, were: Treasurer Robert E. Foy III, Auditor Charles L. Shea, Executive Secretary George R. Riley, Administrative Assistant Muriel Chandler, City Solicitor Barry, Assistant Solicitor Dennis E. Harrington, City Clerk John M. Gillis and Josephine Carnali, Clerk of City Council Committees.

"We were going under the assumption," he said, "that we had just come through a very trying period in our city, the worst storm in its history with many complex and new problems.

"I thought that the actions of a majority of the city councillors during the storm was a tremendous help to me. We've been working very closely together.

"I felt that since we were discussing the disaster account, the procedures for paying overtime to city employees, it might be enlightening if the councillors joined us and listened to the briefing.

"If anyone wants to make a big deal out of that for strictly political reasons and their own personal motives then so be it.

"I'm not going to sit back and let my character and integrity be impugned anymore. I've taken all I'm going to take for the past two years, what with the Post Gazette and a lot of other slanderous statements in the heat of a political year.

"Enough is enough."

County Line License Revoked

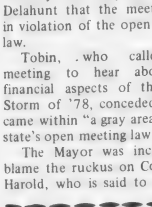
times before and the board has taken action, but nothing has changed. I now ask the board to take strong action," he said.

Rep. Robert Cerasoli said a license was "intended to serve the common good and public need". He said the license holder had been given a number of chances, but the time had come for definite action by the board.

"We have been grossly discriminated against," Mrs. Dorothy Bradley, widowed mother of eight children and a resident of the area, told the board. "And this is because we are in a low socio-economic area. We should not have to live with a 30-year old mistake. It is really exploitation."



Hogan told the board he had paid $65,000 for the pub in May 1976 and still owes $33,000 on a personal note. He told the board that business has fallen off drastically since the incident and that if the license was revoked he would have no way of recouping his loss.

The board voted unanimously for revocation "Forthwith".

Police Chief Francis X. Finn told Hogan that if he found a new location the board would reconsider their action to enable him to do business elsewhere.

FISH TANK FATALITY

It happened in Washington, D.C. A 3-year-old girl went to feed her favorite goldfish, which were housed in a 25-gallon tank set on a wrought iron stand in the bedroom. The tank was a little too high for her, so she tried to climb up, grabbed the top of the tank and the whole works came tumbling down upon her in a gurgling crash.

Broken glass and a sharp corner of the tank punctured vital organs. After three operations, the girl finally died in the hospital.

Aquariums can topple even if they seem sturdy. The aquarium stand had hairpin-type metal legs with curved bottoms - making it easy to tip over. The girl's father thinks that the tragedy might not have happened if the legs had been straight, or if the stand had been bolted to the wall, or if it had been wider so that the aquarium could sit back further from the front. He also thinks that parents should not put tanks where young children can climb up on them.

SGM Named Agency For Facemate

SGM & Co. has been appointed agency of record for Facemate Corp., Springfield, Ma., announces Fred Baxter, Facemate president.

Facemate is one of the nation's leading manufacturers of interlinings for men's and women's apparel. In addition, the company recently introduced a line of sew-it-yourself doll kits for the youth market.

Plans currently underway call for an extensive space advertising program supported by a broad sales promotion effort.

Steve Viegas, agency vice chairman, is the account supervisor.

SUZANNE JACKSON, East St., East Mansfield, has been promoted to assistant treasurer of Hancock Bank, headquartered in Quincy. Mrs. Jackson serves as assistant branch administrator of the bank.

THOMAS SWINDELLS, Brookfield Rd, Franklin, has been promoted to assistant vice president of Hancock Bank, headquartered in Quincy. Swindells serves as a commercial loan officer for the bank.

Albert Cobb Appointed To Plumbers Board

Governor Michael Dukakis has appointed Albert R. Cobb of Quincy to the Board of State Examiners of Plumbers and Gas Fitters.

The board, one of the state's 29 boards of registration, formulates practice codes, inspects materials and work, approves plumbing plans for the Commonwealth and has the power to issue, suspend and revoke licenses.

"The boards of registration are among the state's most powerful consumer protection agencies," Dukakis said. "They allow the voice of the consumer to be heard in the professional fields."

"On Dec. 23, I signed an act establishing the Board of State Examiners of Plumbers and Gas Fitters, an expansion of the existing Board of Plumbers. Albert Cobb, having learned of my intention to sign this act, expressed his concern for consumers and offered his services to the board. He has demonstrated his interest in the board by regularly attending its meetings for over a year, prior to his appointment to the board."

"His strong professional record and concern for the consumer make him an ideal candidate for membership on the board," he said.

Cobb is a graduate of Quincy Trade School (now Quincy Vocational Tech.). He received his Master Plumbers and Master Gas Fitters license in 1950, and since then has been in business for himself in Quincy installing and supervising industrial gas heating, gas heat treating, home appliance and heating systems.

In 1973 he received the first "Contractor of the Year" award for his achievements in the plumbing, heating and gas fitting industry. He has also worked with the Boston Gas Co. on planning and implementing seminars to educate contractors in this field.

Cobb will serve until January 1980, and will receive $500 a year for his services.

HOME-OFFICE DEDUCTION

If you use one room of your home as an office, make sure that you are taking advantage of the tax break that is entitled to you. How much of your home office expenses can be taken as a business expense depends on the size of the room in relation to the rest of the house.

For example, if the house has 1,600 square feet of space and the office measures 10 x 16 feet [or 160 square feet], you are allowed 10% of the total running costs of the house's light, heat, repairs, painting, and other maintenance, depreciation, taxes and so on.

But, remember that the room must be used exclusively for business use; preferably as a main place of business, or show that the room was necessary to see clients or patients. Also, expenses cannot exceed the income earned from the business.

Also, if you have any valuable equipment in your home office, don't assume that it will be covered by your regular homeowners insurance policy. You'll need a special floater to protect against loss.

Over $2 Million For Snow Costs

City Faces $4 Million Deficit

OPERATION CLEAN-UP -- William Dwyer, director of Quincy Disaster Assistance Program, surveys clean-up work as back hoe digs into massive pile of snow in Houghs Neck. The QDAP has been set-up to assist in clearing snow and debris from storm ravaged sections of the city.

By TOM HENSHAW

The city of Quincy is faced with a deficit of at least $4 million at the end of the fiscal year, with a minimum of $2 million, possibly $2.8 million, of that sum attributed to snow removal costs.

What may be only the tip of the iceberg that is the city's financial plight surfaced at the City Council meeting Monday night when the following related actions were asked, taken or discussed:

- The Tobin Administration requested what amounts to a supplemental budget of $2,438,000 to cover expenses, many of which were unforeseen, that were not included in the budget prepared by the former administration of Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia.
- City Auditor Charles L. Shea disclosed that he has received authorization from the State Bureau of Accounts to spend up to $800,000 on overtime salaries due to the snow storms and $550,000 to pay for equipment hired for snow removal.
- The Tobin Administration also asked the Council for a home rule petition to the Legislature for permission to spread out loan repayments over a period of five years instead of the two years that are permitted now.

The Council sent the $2,438,000 request and the

New Year-Long Program

$620,000 To Help City Blizzard Victims

By PETER BARNICLE

Quincy has been allocated $620,000 federal funds for a year long disaster assistance program to aid people who sustained damage to their homes during the Feb. 6-7 blizzard.

The Quincy Disaster Assistance Program [QDAP] has been set up by Mayor Arthur Tobin and the City Council in cooperation with CETA to handle immediate and urgent clean-up projects throughout the city.

William Dwyer has been appointed director of the project which will also endeavor to find housing for those who are still in temporary quarters.

"The first task," Dwyer said, "is to make sure the elderly and handicapped have egress from their homes. Some of these people are unable to leave their homes to get to the store for groceries."

The situation was aggravated by last week-end's snow storm which dropped another eight to nine inches of snow on top of the 27 inches left by the blizzard.

An administrative team from QDAP will make a survey of

Via Mini-Computers

Coming Attraction: 'Instant' Tax Bills

New mini-computers in the city auditor's office soon will be able to spit out real estate tax bills ready for mailing a scant six hours after the tax rate is set.

Auditor Charles L. Shea told the Quincy Taxpayers Association last week that the machines have the capability of doing that now with personal property tax bills.

"We are working with the Hancock Bank on converting the real property tax bills," he said. "Our first run on those will be in November.

"The only thing we will have to do to print those bills is plug in the tax rate and the machine will do the rest."

The mini-computer system, which has cost the city $98,000 for equipment and programming, was delivered on Dec. 10, 1976.

"Already we're saving in excess of $30,000 a year with these machines," said Shea. "We're hoping that in the next few months we will add equipment so that we can put every billing process in the city on them.

"We are designing a program now whereby we put the entire voting list on a single nine-inch record and it can be updated

Council To Probe Boathouse Fire

The City Council's Park and Recreation Committee is going to investigate the burning Feb. 26 of the boathouse on Black's Creek.

It seems that the insurance policy on the building and its contents had been cancelled in September, 1977, for non-payment of a premium due in April, 1977.

"It bothers me that the policy was allowed to lapse for non-payment of a $175 or $200 premium," said Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi, who asked for the investigation.

Raymondi said the boathouse and contents, valued at $21,000, had been insured for $8,200.

Ray-Al License Revocation Extended 45 Days By Board

Ray-Al Cafe, 505 Washington St., Quincy Point, closed since its license was revoked, Nov. 15, was given a 45-day extension of the revocation by the licensing board at its meeting this week.

Atty. David L. Trainor, appearing for the licensee, said the extension was sought to enable him to complete negotiations with a possible new buyer. He told the board that papers filed prior to the expiration of the 90 days which the board had allowed had not been completed.

Trainor said the blizzard of Feb. 6-7, made it impossible for the interested purchaser, a Hull resident, to travel during the emergency.

Board chairman John Gillis commented that he doubted if residents of the Quincy Point area could be convinced that return of the license -- even to a new owner -- would benefit the district.

Ted DiCristaro, speaking for the Ward 2 Civic Association, asked that a public hearing be held before the license be restored to a new owner.

Fire Chief Edward Barry, a board member, seconded the motion for the extension until April 25.

Snoopy Evicted As Fire Hazard

Snoopy has been evicted by the Quincy Lodge of Elks on orders of the city licensing board.

Fire Chief Edward Barry pointed out that the large papiermache replica of the comic-strip character constituted a possible fire hazard. The internationally famous beagle appeared on the Elks float in last year's Christmas Festival Parade.

Snoopy's fate was decided at a hearing on the petition of the lodge to change its corporate structure, and transfer of its all-alcoholic license from Elk's Home of Quincy, to the newly formed corporation to be known as Quincy Lodge of Elks No. 943, BPOE.

Louis Tozzi, a trustee of the lodge, told the board that the move was suggested by the Grand Lodge mainly for bookkeeping purposes.

There was no mention of Woodstock.

Same As Cadets, Interns

Auxiliary Asks Equal Preference In Appointment To Regular Police Jobs

Auxiliary police of Quincy would like to be placed on the same footing as the police cadets and student interns when appointments are being made to the permanent police force.

A home rule petition offered by City Councillor Daniel G. Raymondi would give special preference to the cadets and interns. It currently resides with the Council's ordinance committee.

Tuesday night, however, members of the auxiliary police, led by Chief Anthony Siciliano, turned out in force at the Committee meeting, asking that Raymondi's proposal be amended to include them.

While everyone agreed that the auxiliary police were performing a valuable service to the community as unpaid volunteers, councillors and the regular police officers were cool to the idea.

Paul Quinn, president of the Quincy Police Betterment Association, said that his executive board did not favor adding the auxiliary police to the petition.

"The cadet proposal could be passed but to open another door is to open still another door after that," he said. "We support fully the original proposal for the cadets."

Raymondi didn't think that the amendment was thought out enough in detail.

"I'm sure there is going to be a court test of cadet preference in Springfield," he said. "I would like a more definite proposal before I'd favor adding the auxiliaries to the petition."

The Ordinance Committee held the matter for further study.

Riley Named Acting City Purchasing Agent

George Riley, the Mayor's executive secretary, has been named acting purchasing agent for the city until a successor can be named for the retired Agatha Deschenes.

Mayor Tobin said a new purchasing agent probably will be appointed in a week or two "as soon as the individual has given proper notice where he is employed."

Tobin asked the City Council Monday night to increase the salary of the purchasing agent from $17,861 to $20,000.

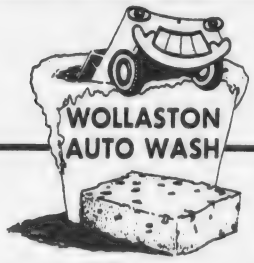
"There are only two department heads below $20,000," he said, the other one being the director of personnel. "For the responsibilities of these two departments the discrepancy in all fairness should be rectified."

He said the salary of the personnel director will be raised in the 1978-79 budget but, since a new purchasing agent was about to be named, "we thought we'd do that now."

Mrs. Deschenes, who worked in the department for 18 years and was purchasing agent for the last two years, retired Friday.

The personnel director, who has civil service status, is Mary McGinty.

QHS Guidance Staff Evening Hours



The guidance staff of Quincy High School will hold evening office hours Tuesday, March 14, from 6 to 9 p.m. for students, parents, and members of the community.

Appointments are suggested and may be made by calling 471-0100 [Ext. 385].

Vincent Smollett Receives $13,688 Pension

The City Council Tuesday night voted a lifetime annual pension of $13,688.40 to Vincent J. Smollett, 59, who is retiring March 24 after 30 years on the Quincy Fire Department.

Dukakis In Economic Conference Here March 31

Governor Michael S. Dukakis and his chief economic advisors will place the state's economic focus on Quincy and surrounding communities at a major policy conference at Quincy High School, March 31.

The conference, arranged in cooperation with the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, will discuss how government, labor and business can better work together to bring more jobs to the South Shore area and improve the overall economic climate.

The conference will also deal with the long-term economic consequences of the recent storm in badly affected communities such as Scituate, Hull and Marshfield.

Governor Dukakis, Lt. Governor Thomas P. O'Neill, the state's Development Cabinet, and several agency heads will set up workshops devoted to key problem areas -- transportation, industrial development, environment, local-state-federal relations, long range disaster recovery -- and participate in a general conference during which major economic development issues will be aired.

The conference will start at 8:45 a.m. and last until noon.

Elected officials, labor, businessmen and the general public are invited to sit down with the Governor and the state's leading economic policy-makers for a discussion on jobs and the economic future of the area.

Cooperation among state government, business and labor has been a key ingredient in Massachusetts' economic recovery. The expansion of Massachusetts' industry has created over 200,000 more jobs since January, 1975, according to the Governor's office.

Area businessmen, labor leaders, developers, state and local officials will meet in a pre-conference planning session to draw up a list of those economic issues considered critical to the economic growth of the South Shore. Those issues will then be thoroughly researched by state officials for an in-depth discussion at the conference itself.

The format of the conference includes a reception between 8:45 a.m. and 9:30 a.m., the conference itself from 9:30 to 10:50 a.m., during which Governor Dukakis, Lt. Governor O'Neill and Development Cabinet will discuss questions raised by local conference participants from the floor, and workshops conducted by individual cabinet secretaries from 10:50 a.m. to noon to expand and focus on issues raised at the conference.

The Development Cabinet focuses on three major problem areas of concern to residents: potential for job growth in the state; the cost of doing business in Massachusetts, and the role government can play in industrial development.

The Development Cabinet includes: Secretaries Howard N. Smith (Economic Affairs); Fred Salvucci (Transportation and Construction); Evelyn Murphy (Environmental Affairs); Bill Flynn (Communities and Development); and Director of the Office of State Planning Frank Keefe.

Other officials attending include: Nick Roussos, Commissioner (Labor and Industries); John Crosier, Commissioner (Commerce and Development); John Hodgman, Director (Division of Employment Security); B.J. Rudman, Asst. Secretary (Manpower Development); and Joseph Jamele, Asst. Secretary (Economic Affairs).

Quincy To Get $104,292 For Subsidized Housing

Quincy is one of three South Shore communities which will be able to provide subsidized housing for 60 additional families over the next year, according to Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton].

Quincy will receive $104,292 to cover the cost of 30 units to add to their existing stock of HUD Section 8 housing under the "Existing Housing" program. Abington will receive $56,952 for 20 units and Braintree $34,584 for 10 units.

The Section 8 program pays the difference between what a family can afford to pay for housing - generally not more than 25 percent of their income - and a federally-established Fair Market Rent.

The state's Department of Community Affairs also received $406,596 which will enable it to assist approximately 125 more families throughout the Commonwealth.

Today's Women

At QHS April 8

8 Workshops, Social To Highlight Woman-To-Woman Day

Eight in-depth workshops on issues of current concern to women, a social sponsored the Quincy Cooperative Bank, and a special guest speaker will be featured at the second annual Woman-to-Woman Day planned for April 8.

Sponsored by the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College, the all-day program for women will also include day care for children three years and over, a luncheon, and informational booths displaying literature on women's and community groups in the area.

The program will be held from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Quincy High School and conclude with a social at the Neighborhood Club.

Mrs. Janice D'Avignon who is coordinating the event said workshops will focus on such subjects as employment, success in business, health issues, and lifestyles. Women returning to school, the Mass. Equal Rights Amendment, alcoholism and drugs, and battered women will be the subjects of workshops as well.

"Workshops will include panel discussions, films, exercises, and much audience participation and interaction," said Mrs. D'Avignon. "Over 15 Boston and South Shore agencies will have representatives participating in the program. We have attempted to offer a variety of programs so that there will be something of interest to everyone. We hope as many women as possible will attend -- our goal is to surpass last year's attendance of 150 people."

Mrs. D'Avignon stressed that the program is free and open to the public ($1.40 charge for lunch). Preregistration is required for those desiring daycare or lunch.

Twenty area women's groups are being asked to help distribute programs. Interested persons can obtain programs by contacting the Women's Center at Quincy Junior College, 479-8445. Groups interested in having booths during the day should also contact the Women's Center.

'Learn Not To Burn' Program At Quincy Methodist

The Quincy Babysitting Co-op and Quincy Centre Methodist Church will present a program entitled "Learn Not to Burn" Monday, March 13, 7:30 p.m. at Quincy Methodist Church, Fort and Granite Sts., Quincy.

This is a one-night burn prevention program including filmstrips, discussions and a speaker from the Quincy Fire Dept.

Filmstrips will cover a house fire, an accident with gasoline and analyzing accidents involving children. Each film will be followed by a group discussion and everyone will receive a book to keep on the subject.

The program is free and open to the public.

7 Cadet Girl Scouts To Receive Medals At St. Mary's

Living My Faith Medals will be presented to 7 Cadet Girl Scouts from Troop 176 at the 10 a.m. Mass at St. Mary's Church, Crescent St., West Quincy, Sunday, March 12.

Presentation will be made by Rev. James Lanergan.

Kathleen Donovan, Mary Ann Higgins, Janice Martin, Brenda McCormick, Lisa Rizzi, Mary Verrochi and Ellen Ward will receive medals earned while they were Junior Girl Scouts with Troop 141.

Work for this medal is done above the usual Girl Scout program. The project enables the girls to become more aware of the place God and religion play in their daily lives.

The Msss and presentation will be followed by a breakfast served by the cadet troop to the Brownies and Jr. Scouts and their families.

Mrs. Fred Costanza On CPS Centennial Committee

Mrs. Fred Costanza of Quincy is serving on the Centennial Planning Committee for Children's Protective Services, the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

A reception is being planned to celebrate the agency's 100th Birthday, April 30, at the Copley Plaza, Boston.

Mrs. Costanza is secretary of the South Shore Board of Directors, Norfolk/South Shore District of Children's Protective Services, Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children.

The private statewide agency, founded in 1878, helps families in which children are abused or neglected. In 1977, the agency served some 8,000 children statewide and 304 children in the Norfolk/South Shore District.

Koch Club 30th Anniversary To Begin With May 6 Dinner Dance

The Koch Club of Quincy will begin the celebration of its 30th anniversary Saturday evening, May 6, with a dinner and dance at the George F. Bryan VFW Post Hall, 24 Broad St., Quincy.

A social hour will be held from 6:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m., followed by a catered roast beef dinner to be served at 7:30 p.m. There will be dancing until 1 a.m. to the music of Earl F. Hannafin and his Orchestra.

James B. Moody has been appointed General Chairman of the event. Moody has served in the same capacity for the 10th, 20th and 25th anniversary celebrations of the organization.

Mrs. Marilyn Nestor, ticket chairwoman, announces the banquet will be limited to 50 tables or 500 persons to allow ample dancing room.

Mrs. Nestor said 30 tables have already been reserved by most of the guests who attended the 25th anniversary event.

Former members and friends of the Koch Club and graduates of its various activities planning to attend may contact Mrs. Nestor for reservations.

The Koch Club is in the process of preparing a 30th anniversary booklet containing a history of the organization in pictures and material.

The final date for persons to register as patrons, sponsors or boosters in the publication is Friday, March 31.

Some 3,500 copies of the anniversary booklet will be published and distributed to members at the awards banquets of the basketball and bowling leagues and upcoming activities of the summer boys' baseball and girls' softball leagues.

The proceeds of the publication will be used to establish a charity fund in the city of Quincy that will assist those in need at Christmas time.

Honorary members of the Koch Club 30th anniversary activities include: Mr. and Mrs. Gary Demole of the North Quincy district, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony T. Delmonico of the Broad Meadows district, Mr. and Mrs. Howard F. Crowley of the Montclair district and Mr. and Mrs. David J. Donaghue of the West Quincy district.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Koch will be co-chairmen of the Koch Club anniversary year, which will include a series of events beginning with the May 6 banquet and closing with the Flag Day Parade on June 14.

Historic District Commission

The Historic District Commission will meet at the Public Works Department Building, 55 Sea St., at 7:30 p.m., Monday, March 13.

Jewels & Gems

by Stan Manin

Anklets are making a comeback in the jewelry fashion world. They reached their height in popularity more than twenty years ago, but faded from the scene in the mod, unisex 1960's. Now, with the return of soft, feminine clothes, women once again are drawing attention to their legs. Anklets are available in a wide variety of materials. The most popular style in the 50's was the delicate gold chain with two hearts or a monogrammed plaque. This type of chain is not only attractive, but also practical--its flat construction does not catch stockings.

You'll find most popular styles of jewelry available from us at GRONO & CHRISTIE, INC., 536 Adams St., 696-1490. We have precious and semi-precious stones in all types of jewelry and we handle repairs, diamond setting, designing and remodeling on our premises. Our work is not sent "downtown". Stop by and visit us. We welcome browsers. Open: Mon. thru Sat. 9 a.m.-5 p.m. We hope you'll think of us if you're looking for a gift for Easter.

HELPFUL HINT:

Today you can buy anklets studded with diamonds or other gems.

Was your home or business hurt by the blizzard? We can offer disaster assistance.

If you are one of the many families or businesses in the recently designated Federal Disaster Areas that has been approved for a disaster loan from the Small Business Administration (SBA), and want to proceed even before you receive your Treasury Department check, come in and see us.

The SBA has assured us of cooperative support for our interim financing program and we can advance funds to approved SBA disaster loan recipients at our prime loan rate.

If you have not applied for an SBA loan or are not eligible, but still want financial assistance to repair your home or business, we would be happy to discuss our several loan plans with you.

For further information, stop in at or call any of our offices.

Flower Tips from Andre Moreau

If you really like to see flowers in their natural habitat, there is one you do not want to miss. It is the largest blossoming plant in the world, and has an estimated 1,500,000 blossoms during its five week blossoming period. The plant is a giant Chinese wisteria in Sierra Madre, California. It was planted in 1892 and now has branches at least 500 feet long. It covers nearly an acre of land and its estimated weight is about 252 tons. Now that is what I call a flower.

At NORFOLD FLOWER SHOP, 49 Beale St., Wollaston, 472-7100 you will find a spectacular display of fresh and dried flower arrangements you do not want to miss so come by at your earliest convenience and feel free to browse around our shop. You can be sure of quality when you deal with NORFOLK. All of our flowers are maintained in humidity and temperature controlled cases; and most are delivered daily from the market. "For the Creative and Unusual in Floral Designing". Master Charge and BankAmericard honored. Open: Mon. - Sat. 8-6, evenings by appointment.

QJC To Mark 20th Anniversary At June 2 Dinner Dance

A dinner dance, June 2, celebrating Quincy Junior College's 20th Anniversary will be sponsored by the Community College Association of Quincy and the South Shore, at the Holiday Inn, Randolph.

Alumni, students, faculty, school and city officials, and the general public are all encouraged to join in the celebration. Tickets for this event may be purchased from Community College Association members or from Toby Felton and James Gibbs at Quincy Junior College.

James R. McIntyre, Senate Counsel and chairman of the Board of Directors of the Association, will be toastmaster. Four 20th Anniversary Scholarships will be established by the Community College Association to benefit students attending QJC.

At a meeting of the Association, Cyril McCarthy, chairman of the Anniversary Committee, briefly reviewed the founding of the College back in the 1950's.

"There were two municipally sponsored junior colleges already in existence at the time QJC was organized," he explained. "Now Quincy Junior is the only one operating, and because of current Massachusetts enabling statutes, no other municipality can now sponsor a junior college. The tuitions the college has received over the years have supported its expenses.

"Many of the present Association members were active members of the original committee of citizens whose initial efforts resulted in the launching of QJC," added Mr. McCarthy. "There were only three students in the first class to graduate, but in the ensuing years the College has served thousands of students. A varied academic curriculum in both the day and evening divisions, off campus centers in several South Shore communities, and a six-week summer program is all available."

Members of the anniversary celebration committee of the Community College Association are: Clement O'Brien, Mrs. Helen Lipp, William Brooks, Robert Krovitz and Charles Sweeny.

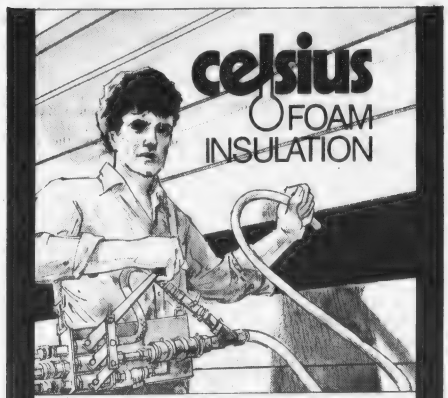
3 New Advocates At South West Center

Three new advocates, Diane Largey, Joanne Powers and Brad Hultman, have joined the staff of the South West Quincy Community Center.

Miss Largey will assist with welfare, Social Security and SSI problems; Ms. Powers with special education: and Hultman with tenant-landlord problems.

The Center at 372 Granite St. is open daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Home visits for the elderly, disabled and shut-ins can be arranged by calling 471-0796.



Recreational Theatre Seeks Salaried Director

The Quincy Recreational Community Theatre announces an opening for the salaried position of director for the June 8-9-10 production of Agatha Christie's mystery drama, "The Mousetrap".

Auditions are scheduled for March 28 and 30. Rehearsals will be held Tuesday and Thursday evenings and will begin April 4.

Job resumes should be sent to: The Quincy Recreational Community Theatre, 306 Whitwell St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Deadline for resumes is March 15.

The effective way to insulate your home

Insulation effectiveness is measured in its resistance to heat flow . . . either moving out of the house in winter or flowing in, during the summer.

Celsius foam insulation has a high "R" rating which creates an efficient thermal barrier in ceilings, attics and walls. Celsius foam is pumped into walls cavities and flows around pipes, electrical outlets and other protrusions. It effectively seals against heat loss and drafts by completely filling the spaces without settling.

With Celsius foam you save on heating/cooling costs all year round and you get a return on your investment every time you receive your utility bill. You'll enjoy extra living comfort too!

Call us today for more information on our homeowner's warranty and a free estimate. You need to insulate your home only once. Do it right. Call us today!

Was It Apathy Or Autonomy?

Was it apathy or autonomy?

The School Committee met last week in the first of three Wednesday night public sessions to consider a proposed $31,549,063 school budget.

Outside of School Committee members, School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon and school department personnel only four other people showed up to tune in on where their money is going.

And two of them were office holders: City Councillors Joanne Condon and Steve McGrath.

Leaving only two non-official observers, interested enough to attend.

The meetings scheduled for [March 1, March 15 and March 28] in the School Committee Room at Quincy High School had been advertised in advance.

Even though the School Committee has fiscal autonomy over the budget, members try to prune it before it is finally passed.

The proposed budget is up $1,723,473 or 5.7% over the last [current] budget. The current tax rate is $197.20 of which $95.58 of it is for school purposes. The general rate for everything else is $101.62 -- just $6.04 more.

It would seem more people would want to look in and see how all that money is being spent.

HERE'S ONE: City Auditor Charles Shea, speaking before the Quincy Taxpayers Association the other day, explained why there had been a delay in a new program designed to expedite issuance of the city's monthly financial statement.

Special paper is required for the department duplicating machine and Shea placed an order for it with a New York firm last May. It was the only firm he could find that has the paper. He was told it would be delivered within about six weeks.

Shea said he waited patiently for two and a half months, then telephoned the company and asked: "Did you ship it?"

"Yes," he was told. "You should have it by now."

"Where did you ship it?" Shea pressed.

"1120 Hancock St., Quincy, Ill.", he was informed.

The somewhat embarrassed company tracked down the shipment to Illinois and got it back to New York. They then called Shea to assure him everything was hunky-dory. "Be on the lookout for the paper," they said. "It's on the way. We found it out in Illinois."

So Shea kept looking -- but no paper. Another six weeks went by and Shea called New York again.

"Where is the paper," he asked. "You should have it, Mr. Shea," he was told.

"Where did you send it?", Shea persisted.

"One minute and I'll give you the answer," the voice on the other end of the line said. He went off to check, returned and said: "We sent it to 1120 Quincy St., Hancock, Mass."

There's no Quincy St. in Hancock, Mass., so the shipment somehow wound up in a trucking company's warehouse in Springfield.

"We finally tracked the paper down and we got the paper in December," said Shea who still dreams about paper at night.

But all is O.K. now. And with the paper the auditor's office can turn out in six hours what it used to take two to three weeks to do.

THERE WAS AN announcement from Pat McCarthy the other day. No, not that he's a candidate for Congress in the 11th Congressional District. But that he's a dad again. His pretty wife, Diana, presented him with their second daughter, Jeanne Erin born on George Washington's birthday.

McCarthy's announcement as a Congressional candidate is expected this spring. In the meanwhile he's been doing a Marco Polo around the district and is distributing campaign literature proclaiming him "A Congressman for the 80's."

MAYOR ARTHUR TOBIN was on hand to drop the opening puck for the Quincy Kiwanis International Hockey Tourney at the Quincy Youth Arena. And while there welcomed the teams from Canada. One coach introduced him to his team as "His Worship, The Lord High Mayor of Quincy," as the title would be back in Canada.

Former Mayor Walter Hannon who was with Tobin at the time has been needling him since, calling him "Your Worship", whenever he sees him.

5 Students To 'Interview Cerasoli On WBZ-TV

Five Quincy seventh graders will interview Rep. Robert Cerasoli on the WBZ-TV program "For Kids Only" to be aired at 10:30 a.m. Sunday, March 12.

The five students are: Cynthia Rogers, Atlantic Junior High School; James Doherty, Broad Meadows Junior High; Joseph Moynihan, Central Junior High; William Traynor, Quincy Point Junior High, and Alison Fantacchio, Sterling Junior High.

The students will tape their segment of the show today (Thursday). After the taping the group will have an opportunity to meet various WBZ-TV and radio personalities and tour facilities of the broadcasting station.

Should We Or Shouldn't We?

The Fluoridation

To fluoridate or not to fluoridate, once again that is the question.

For two days last month the water supply of Quincy and 31 other cities and towns in the Metropolitan District Commission area was being treated with fluoride.

The MDC started adding the chemical to the water at the Sudbury Reservoir Feb. 7 but on Feb. 9 opponents of fluoridation obtained a court injunction that halted the program.

Both sides immediately cranked up the mineograph and Xerox machines to turn out a barrage of releases telling us why we should or should not fluoridate our water.

The Pro:

For the advocates of fluoridation comes Quincy Health Commissioner Dr. Samuel Solomon to note that it has the approval of the Mass Medical Society, the Mass Dental Society, and the State Department of Public Health.

"Many people are presently confused, particularly parents whose children are taking vitamins with fluorides as prescribed by their physicians," he said.

"It is the present consenus of health officials that parents should continue giving their young children vitamins with or without fluoride, whichever their doctor has prescribed.

"Also, fluoride toothpaste can be used as directed by the family dentists."

Dr. Solomon also forwarded a "fact sheet" issued by the Mass Department of Public Health, generally outlining the pro-fluoride position. It says:

What is fluoridation?

Nature has provided practically all water supplies with some fluoride. Fluoridation is simply the process in which the fluoride level of a public water supply is adjusted to a level that is optimal for dental health, approximately one part of fluoride to one million parts of water or 1 ppm.

What is fluoride?

Fluoride is the charged form of the element fluorine, the 17th most abundant element in nature. Fluoride is an essential nutrient as determined by the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council in 1969.

Most food and water supplies contain small amounts of fluoride. Although we all ingest fluoride on a daily basis from a normal diet if the water level is not fluoridated at the optimum level [approximately 1ppm], our bones and teeth do not receive the full health benefit.

How does fluoride benefit teeth?

Fluoride strengthens the enamel on teeth making them more resistant to decay. Individuals who live in a fluoridated county during tooth development - birth to 14 years of age - may have as much as 70% less new tooth decay.

How serious is the extent of tooth decay?

Tooth decay affects over 98% of the United States population. In Massachusetts the average 16-year-old has had approximately 15 teeth affected by tooth decay.

What are the economic benefits of fluoridation?

Children brought up in fluoridated communities have 50 percent lower dental bills. The cost of fluoridation is approximately 15 to 30 cents per capita. For every dollar spent for fluoridation there is a $40 to $60 benefit in dental health.

Is fluoridation safe?

Fluoridation at the level recommended for optimum dental health does not have any adverse effects on the human body. Millions of people have lived for generations in naturally fluoridated areas with fluoride levels as much as eight times the recommended level. Intensive studies of these communities show no negative effects of fluoride on human health.

Detailed studies have consistently demonstrated no relationship between fluoridation and cancer. In 1972 and again in 1977, the National Cancer Institute of the National Institute of Health declared that there is no causal relationship between fluoridation and cancer.

Approximately 10,711,000 people live in areas where the natural fluoride content of the water is at an optimal level. Ever since 1948, when it was discovered people living in naturally fluoridated areas had significant reductions in dental decay, studies have been done.

More than 10,000 studies have been done on fluoride. Water fluoridation has been shown to be a safe, economical, and an effective preventive measure of tooth decay.

There are now more than 105 million Americans living in fluoridated communities. Some 24 million people, in more than 100 cities in the U.S. with populations of 50,000 or more, have had adjusted fluoridation for more than 20 years.

Is fluoridation legal?

Chapter 111 of the Massachusetts General Laws, Section 8, states that "Local Boards of Health may order Fluoridation of water supplies." The procedure goes like this:

The State Department of Public Health notifies the MDC and most local communities that were not fluoridated that the fluoride content of their water supply is not at an optimum level for dental health.

The local board of health may then order fluoridation. If 10 percent of the registered voters of the city or town in which the board has ordered the upward adjustment of the fluoride content, file a petition within 90 days of the publication of such an order, the question of fluoridation, is placed on ballot to be voted on at the next local election.

What specific legal basis does the MDC have to fluoridate?

Twenty-seven out of 32 boards of health in the MDC area ordered fluoridation by March 1971. This majority vote gave the MDC the authority to fluoridate. This vote required the MDC to fluoridate as stated in the Attorney General's ruling of March 1972.

What steps to actually fluoridate were taken by the MDC?

The MDC requested $1 million for a fluoridation study, plant/equipment and first year operation costs. In 1974 the MDC received $1,150,000 for plant and equipment costs. In 1976, construction of a Southboro plant began. The plant was completed in 1977.

The cities and towns affected are:

Arlington, Lexington, Needham, Stoneham, Belmont, Lynnfield, Newton, Swampscott, Boston, Malden, Norwood, Wakefield, Brookline, Marblehead, Peabody, Waltham, Cambridge, Medford, Quincy, Watertown, Canton, Melrose, Revere, Weston, Chelsea, Milton, Saugus, Winchester, Everett, Nahant, Somerville, Winthrop.

Cambridge, Lynnfield, Needham, Newton, Watertown, Weston and Winchester already were fluoridating. These communities planned to terminate use of their

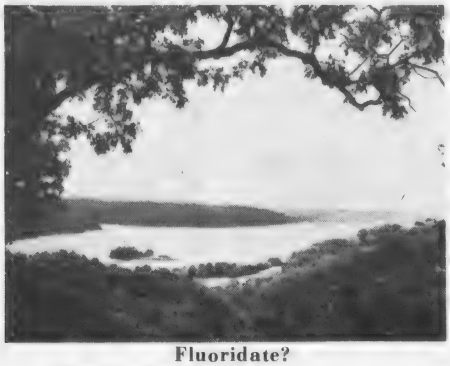
READER SPEAKS OUT

Their 'Sincerest Thanks' To Many For Storm Help

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

We would like to shout from the highest point our gratitude for all the help we received during the terrible flood.

May we please thank the following. We hope we don't leave anyone out. Our sincerest thanks to the National Guard of Quincy; the Vo Tech custodians, cooks and all of the Quincy School Dept. from the top man down. I wasn't going to mention any names but I have to name "Bobby" the young boy who helped in the Vo Tech Cafeteria. He stayed a whole week and did everything that was humanly possible. He's a credit to himself, his family and the whole community.



Please let me list more who deserve our sincerest thanks. The Mayor of Quincy, the Superintendent of Schools, the Red Cross, the Civil Defense, the Firemen, Policemen, Electric Light Co., Metropolitan Petroleum Co. men, Gas men, Telephone men, the Salvation Army and those who plowed.

We would like to thank Dr. Lawrence Creedon who opened the schools to us. We stayed at the Vo Tech.

So once again, thanks to all our friends who helped us in our trouble.

Sincerely,
Mary, Bart, Mary Ellen and Tim O'Leary,

Fluoridate?

[Cont'd from Page 10]

individual operations and receive fluoridated water solely from the MDC.

Is this MDC fluoridation efforts more economical?

Yes. The cost to each of the 32 communities Fluoridating separately would be more than $2.5 million, or about 25 cents per person.

The cost of the MDC-regional measure would be $1.15 million, or about 10 cents per person.

Does fluoride in the public water supply have harmful effects on humans?

Numerous studies have shown fluoridation to be safe and effective in reducing dental decay. More than 105 million Americans now drink fluoridated water. Organizations such as the American Dental Association and AMA have found fluoridation to be a safe effective means of reducing the incidence of dental decay.

Does fluoridation cause or aggravate health problems, such as allergies, cancer, heart disease. staining of teeth and damage to internal organs?

Fluoridation does not cause allergies. The American Academy of Allergies has found no evidence for fluoridation to cause allergies.

The National Cancer Institute states: "Fluorine or fluoride salts are not carcinogenic". The American Cancer Society has reviewed numerous studies and have found no relationship between fluoridation and cancer.

The American Heart Association along with the National Heart and Lung Institute have concluded from extensive studies that there is no relationship between heart disease and fluoridation.

At the level used by the MDC there will be no staining of teeth. In fact fluoridation will improve the appearance of teeth by reducing the number of cavities a child receives by as much as 70 per cent.

At the concentration used by the MDC there is no harm to the kidneys or other internal organs. The National Kidney Foundation stated in 1973: "Fluoride does not harm the kidney, nor does it have any adverse after-effects."

Does Fluoridation cause health conditions such as neurosis, phychosis, lowered mentality, parasthesia, stammering, failing memory, interference with transmission of neural impulses, neuritis, neuralgia, poliomeylitis, multiple schlerosis, degeneration of nervous tissue etc...?

An exhaustive review of more than 1,393 scientific references fails to provide any evidence linking fluoridation with any of these ailments.

Does it cause arthritis or aggravate arthritis?

There is no evidence to suggest this.

Does fluoridated water have a particular taste, color or odor?

At the concentration of 1ppm there is no color, taste, or odor.

Will fluoride combine with hydrocarbons in the water supply to form cancer producing chemicals?

There is no evidence to show that fluoride combines with traces of hydrocarbons to form these chemicals.

Will the filter on my water faucet remove the fluoride from my drinking water?

Only a special filter using activated aluminum will do this.

Should I or my child change our drinking habits when fluoride has been added?

No! The fluoride level has been set to provide a wide latitude in water consumption while assuring maximum dental health benefits. You should not change your water drinking habits.

Should parents discontinue giving their children fluoride vitamins?

Yes! There is no need to continue dietary fluoride supplements. However, it still is important to receive regular fluoride treatment applied directly to teeth by your dentist, and to use a fluoridated tooth paste.

The Con:

On the other side comes the Massachusetts Citizens Rights Association, which filed suit in Suffolk Superior Court to block fluoridation of MDC water.

The MCRA is based in the Newton home of its secretary, Mrs. Eloise Dyer, and the North Andover home of its treasurer, Howard M. Thomason since its Boston office was taken for urban renewal.

Says the MCRA:

"THE MCRA objectives are to insure the right of Massachusetts citizens to have their water supplies kept free from any drug or chemical not required for purification or for corrosion prevention.

MCRA strongly objects to any additive, such as fluoride, intended to affect the bodies of the consumers of the water.

MCRA supports the right of every citizen to freedom of choice in matters concerning his health, as long as this choice does not infringe upon the equal rights of others.

MCRA supports the right of physicians, dentists and scientists to investigate and speak freely without fear of censure or reprisal.

Since its formation in 1959, MCRA has concentrated on providing the core of opposition to fluoridation in Massachusetts. Many fluoridation referenda in cities and towns have been

Quincy, MTA Need Each Other

Thomas J. McLernon, general manager of the Metropolitan Transit Authority [MTA], told the St. Joseph's Holy Name Society that Quincy and the MTA "need each other."

"The MTA is straitjacketed within the confines of a 14-community area," he said. "It can stagnate within those very confines."

McLernon forecast a $5 million reduction in the $20 million annual deficit in 1962, adding that "a manageable, almost pain-free deficit" of $8 million can be brought about.

LOSSES END SEASON

The basketball season ended for both the Quincy and North Quincy teams on the same day and under similar circumstances.

Quincy led Brockton 47-35 at halftime only to fall 81-74 in the semi-final round of the Tech Tournament. Brockton forward Steve Sarantopoulos poured in 37 points.

North Quincy led Coyle of Taunton 23-21 going into the second half only to be eliminated from the Bay State Tournament 57-47 as the Taunton team outscored them 23-9 from the foul line.

On the court for Quincy were Bill Donovan, John Pizzi, Capt. Bill Nolan, Rich Scanlan, forwards; Frank Driscoll, center; Bobby Chew, John Mariano, Bobby Mina, guards.

The North Quincy team included: Jack Brean, Rich Erickson, Dave Cahill, forwards; Tom Kiley, Paul Gullickson, centers; Dave and Steve Olson, guards.

KENNEDY SEES TRADE BENEFITS

Edward M. Kennedy, assistant Suffolk County district attorney, just back from a tour of European Common Market countries, said Quincy has nothing to fear from lower U.S. trade barriers.

He predicted that the Fore River Shipyard would benefit from a trade expansion act since "it appears reasonable that provisions should be made to provide American-built vessels to handle it."

KNIGHTS VOTE RECONSTRUCTION

The North Quincy Knights of Columbus 59ers Association voted to reconstruct Council headquarters on Hollis Ave., a project Grand Knight John J. Sullivan estimated would cost $56,000.

During the past year, the Council had sought to buy Moswetuset Hummock as a site for the building and also had been negotiating to purchase the Wollaston Legion Post Home.

Grade 1 Registration At Sacred Heart March 14

Registration for Grade 1, at Sacred Heart School, will take place Tuesday, March 14, from 12:30 to 2:30 in the school auditorium.

Children entering first grade must be six years old by Dec. 31, 1978. A parent must accompany the child to the school auditorium for registration and should bring all immunization records for the school nurse who will be present.

A baptismal record is required if the child was not baptized at Sacred Heart Church. A $25 book fee is due at the time of registration.

Communal Penance Service At St. John's

A communal penance service will be held in the lower church at St. John's Church, Quincy Center, Tuesday, March 14, at 7:30 p.m.

The service is planned to give parishioners the opportunity to show awareness of their relationship to other members of "the mystical Body of Christ."

Following the service individual confessions will be heard and visiting confessors will be available.

Fr. Joseph Manton St. Joseph Triduum Speaker

Rev. Joseph Manton CSSR, well known preacher from Mission Church, Roxbury, will conduct a triduum in honor of St. Joseph at St. Joseph's Church, Quincy Point, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, March 12-13-14.

Services on Monday and Tuesday will be at 9 a.m. and 7:15 p.m. For many years, Fr. Manton conducted the Novena to Our Lady of Perpetual Help at the Mission Church in Roxbury. He has authored many books and has preached extensively on radio and television.

Evangelistic Series At Salvation Army

The Quincy Salvation Army, 6 Baxter St., will present an evangelistic series of meetings, March 9-12, conducted by Brigadier and Mrs. Walter G. Hooper of the Salvation Army Divisional Headquarters.

The Hoopers were appointed to Philadelphia last June 29 when they came from Ladore Lodge, Waymart, Penn., where they had served as the directors since September 1976. They have also commanded Salvation Army work in Utica, N.Y.; Bedford, and have been Divisional Youth Secretaries for the Western New York Division with headquarters in Buffalo.

The programs will take place Thursday and Friday at 7:30 p.m. and Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m.

Can Descend 5,000 Feet

Quincy Man Pilot For Sophisticated Submarine Rescue Craft

A Quincy man is topside pilot for the world's most sophisticated undersea rescue craft, the Navy's Deep Submergence Rescue Vehicle [DSRV] "Avalon".

He is Electronics Technician 1/c Stanley Osborne, 31, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Osborne of 186 Common St., West Quincy, who is stationed at North Island Naval Air Station near San Diego, Calif.

"Avalon", a 50-foot craft that resembles a giant pickle, is designed to descend into the depths of the ocean to rescue crew members from disabled submarines.

It has been submerged to a test depth of 5,000 feet where pressures reach 2,250 pounds per square inch but its 26 layers of fiberglass, titanium and steel alloy is designed to withstand 3,300 pounds.

STANLEY OSBORNE of West Quincy, electronics technician first class, checks his gear as topside pilot for the Navy's Deep Submergence Rescue Vehicle "Avalon".

Osborne, who is responsible for all the electronics gear on the tender boat, has been down to the 5,000-foot level and enjoyed particularly seeing the unusual creatures that live at that depth.

"We had a doctor of oceanography aboard," he says, "and every time he would see something interesting through the viewports, we'd all get a chance to look.

"I couldn't even pronounce the names of some of the things we saw. There were colonies of fish all strung together and fishes that were all mouth and no eyes."

"Avalon" is based at North Island but is readily available by air in case a submarine is disabled anywhere in the world and cannot rise to the surface.

It is capable of rescuing 20 crewmen at a time, which will empty any submarine in the Navy in 10 round trips. It carries a fourman crew.

The last time Osborne was down in a submarine was about seven years ago.

"At that time," he says, "the DSRVs were still a thing of the future. If we had sunk or been disabled we could have said goodbye."

Non-College Prepared Careers NQHS Counseling Program

The Counseling Department of North Quincy High School will present a program "So You Don't Want to go to College.....What Else is There?" Wednesday, March 15, from 7 to 9 p.m. in the Teale Building, Newbury Ave.

Parents, students, and members of the community who are interested in learning about the wide variety of careers which do not require a four-year college education are asked to attend. Speakers from business and industry will be available to discuss the following areas: on-the-job training programs, apprenticeships, allied health careers, community colleges, and military service.

In addition to discussing specific jobs in these areas, the speakers will also talk about how to obtain the necessary training. There will also be an opportunity for questions and answers.

COMMISSIONED – Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy] at left, is sworn in as a notary public by Secretary of State Paul Guzzi during ceremony at the State House. The Executive Council confirmed Morrissey's appointment to a seven year term after his name was submitted by the governor.

New Hours At Morrissey's District Office

Rep. Michael W. Morrissey [D-Quincy] has announced a change in the hours that his district office at 69 Billings Rd, Atlantic, will be open for visits by constituents.

The new hours, effective this week, are 9 a.m. to 10 a.m. Tuesday and Thursday, 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday, and by appointment Friday morning.

Morrissey said the new schedule is due to various committee hearings in the State House.

"My committee, Urban Affairs, is meeting Monday and Wednesday mornings through March," he said, "and I didn't want to lose my morning hours in Quincy.

"Many of my constituents find it hard to stop by at night and mornings are the only time they can stop in."

Albert Hoffman Local 575 Meat Cutters Union President

Albert J. Hoffman, 36 Harriet Ave., North Quincy was installed as president of Local 575 Meat Cutters Union at recent ceremonies.

Hoffman has been employed by union meat companies for 25 years. At the time of the election he was working at City Packing Company, Boston. He is now devoting full time to union duties.

He is married to the former Teresa Doherty of Dorchester. They are originally from St. Margaret's Parish in Dorchester. The Hoffman's have two children, Mary, 16, a student at Sacred Heart School, Weymouth, and Paul, 12, a student at Sacred Heart Grammar School in North Quincy.

Hoffman is the former commander of the Robert F. Ryan VFW Post, Dorchester, and is active in the McKeon Post, Neponset, at the weekly blitz.

DeFalco To Speak At Fenno House

Anthony DeFalco will speak to the residents of Fenno House, 540 Hancock St., Wollaston tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m.

DeFalco is the director of Quincy City Hospital and will give an informative talk about the hospital and its operation. There will also be a question and answer period.

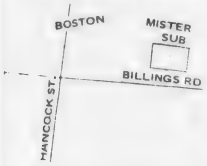
Blue Ribbon Commission

The Legislature is in full swing. Committees are reporting out legislation as fast as they can for floor action. It is hoped that the House will take up the 1979 Budget in early May, which is almost unheard of.

There are 3 important issues which the House is now considering. [1] MBM Scandal, [2] Court Reform, and [3] Local Aid and Distribution through the Education Formula.

The most pressing issue is the MBM Scandal. Two Representatives have filed a bill calling for a Blue Ribbon Commission to investigate contract frauds and corruption. The Blue Ribbon Commission will be made up of a good cross-section of the public and will have supoena powers. A hearing on the bill for a Blue Ribbon Commission will be held on March 23, 1 p.m. at the State House. Final action on the bill has been promised to be no later than April 10th.



Court Reform was taken up in the House on Tuesday. It is almost the same bill as last year, except for one major change. The bill calls for the state to immediately assume all County Court costs. Last year's bill spread the takeover costs over a 5 year period.

The people in Quincy are always hoping for lower taxes. We as elected officials have an obligation to provide more state aid to local cities and towns. The assumption of the County Court costs should help relieve the property tax. There is also a movement to revamp the educational re-imbursement formula to cities and towns.

The largest share of our tax dollar goes to education costs. The Governor's Local Aid Package is built on a change in the Education re-imbursement formula. A fight over the local aid alternatives appears to be near. I will have more on these issues next article.

I have changed my office hours because of a conflict with my Committee hearings. I will hold office hours on Tues. & Thurs., 8:30-10 a.m. and Fri. by appointment. I still will hold regular evening office hours on Tues. & Wed. from 6:30-8:30 p.m.

Bridal romance at home and around world

The "something new" is "something old" in this year's wedding planning! Old-fashioned romance is the key to 1978 bridal fashions and festivities, from flower-brimmed hats to petal-strewn aisles, layers of lace and shimmering satin to elegant morning coats and tuxedos of Byronesque grace and style.

Along with this return to romance, there is also a return to individual ethnic traditions and customs in today's weddings.

People all over the country are taking a revitalized interest in searching out their "roots," and what better way to express the family's cultural inheritance—or the meeting of two wonderfully different backgrounds—than in that most vital and meaningful family event of all, the wedding?

Incorporating ethnic traditions, customs and even dress into the modern marriage ceremony is not as involved and unusual a process as one might think. No matter where one travels in the world, weddings are found to be a constant source of joy for all peoples in all places.

The individual customs may vary, the languages may have different words for expressing the vows, the dress, the food and the festivities may follow different styles and patterns, but the beauty of the wedding ceremony lies in its universal significance—the world-wide affirmation of hope, love and unity that it represents.

Some brides may be escorted to the altar by their father, some may march to their wedding service on the arm of their groom, some may be led in procession by a high-ranking member of the community or a family elder, but all brides and grooms are joined in marriage in the company of their families and friends, with as happy onlookers or active and honored participants.

Almost every culture has its traditional wedding apparel for both the bride and the groom. Some couples are married in traditional ethnic dress whose origins date back hundreds, even thousands of years. Some brides go to the altar in the same gown that their mother or grandmother wore. Others will either design and sew their own wedding dress or choose a gown of very special appeal to them from the current collection of retail bridal wear.

But whether the bride chooses to wed in a modern "bridal gown" or a family heirloom of ethnic origin, all brides share the desire to marry in attire that will make

Financial guide for bride and groom

Who's responsible for what in a wedding? The bride and groom each have a number of financial obligations — which, incidentally, balance out very well if they follow this simple guideline.

Obligations of the Bride

The bride pays for:

- Her wedding gown, headpiece and veil.
- Her personal trousseau.
- The gifts for her attendants (the attendants purchase their own gowns).
- The bridal portrait.
- All decorations (including the floral decorations) and music for the wedding and reception.
- The attendants' bouquets.
- The wedding photographs.
- The wedding reception, including the fee for the place in which the reception is held.
- The fee for the place of the ceremony.
- The wedding cake.
- The wedding ring for the groom.
- The bride's personal wedding gift to the groom.

Obligations of the Groom

The groom purchases:

- The engagement and wedding rings for the bride.
- The marriage license.
- The bachelor dinner, if any is given.
- Gifts to the best man and ushers.
- Contribution to the clergyman or officiating authority.
- The bride's bouquet and going-away corsage, as well as corsages for both mothers and all boutonnieres.
- The groom's personal gift to the bride.
- Attendants' ties and gloves, if the wedding is formal.
- The wedding trip.

Reflect your personality in choosing your wedding music

You may not want 76 trombones played at your wedding and 110 cornets may overfill your hall. But why not consider three trombones and perhaps one cornet?

If you like the sound of brass, go ahead and include it in your wedding plans. Young couples today have a much greater latitude in planning not only where they'll have the wedding but all the elements which help make it "the perfect day."

And, if you have friends who play musical instruments, include them.

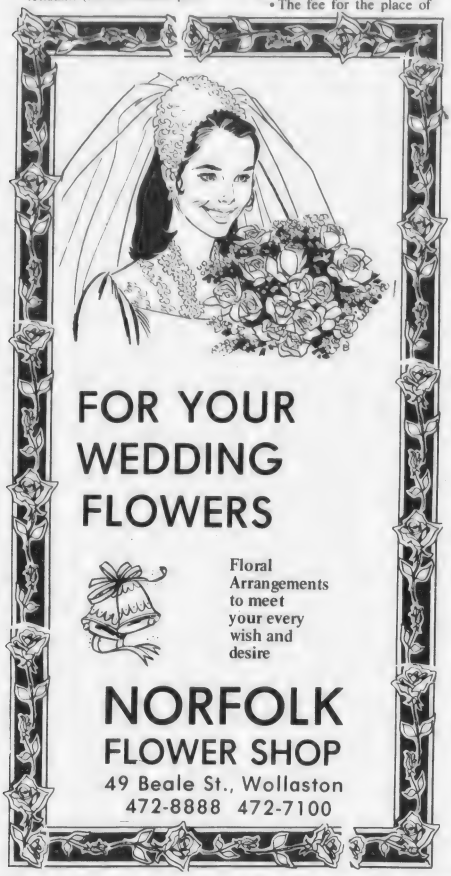
The American Music Conference says that many about-to-be-marrieds are making their weddings much more reflective of their own personalities than was true even five years ago.

While you'll still find Mendelssohn's "Wedding March" among the ceremonial selections, a great many brides and grooms are more likely to say their vows to the theme from "Elvira Madigan" or even a jazz version of "Yellow Submarine."

If you have a friend or relative who plays guitar, think about having him (or her) play at the wedding as a solo or with piano or organ. Another good combination is violin and flute or piano and electric bass.

If you prefer classical music, Mozart on trumpet and cornet would add a distinctive, lyrical note to the festivities.

Perhaps you want to involve your attendants more fully in the proceedings. Why not ask each of them to choose a musical selection. The result will be a surprising blend — from Chopin to country, jazz to Joplin.



By involving your friends and family more fully in the ceremony, you'll be following an age-old tradition of amateur music-making.

Whether it's baroque, brass or bells, let the music set the tone and reflect your individuality. It's your day — make it even more extra special with music.

BRIDE AND GROOM PUNCH

Combine 1 cup sugar, 2 cups water, rind of 2 oranges and 2 lemons cut in strips, and several sprigs of fresh mint or 1 tbisp. mint sauce in a saucepan. Stir until sugar is dissolved, bring to boil, simmer 5 minutes, remove from heat, cool and strain.

Combine this syrup with 2 24-oz. bottles of Chateau Volgny (imported French Sauterne), 2 6-oz. cans frozen orange juice concentrate, ½ cup lemon juice. Refrigerate; when ready add ice, pour in 1 bottle champagne, garnish with orange slices. Serves 30.

Professional photographers capture treasured moments

Dressed in white or flowered chintz, witnessed by many or a select few, accompanied by organ strains or the lilt of a recorder—weddings can take so many different forms.

Whatever the size and style of event, it is a day for the newlyweds to feel romantic, pampered and perhaps a little bit awed. And it's a day to remember and share with others during a lifetime to come.

That's why the occasion calls for the services of a professional photographer who can capture all the moods of the many moments—from the excitement of preparation right through to the quiet farewell to parents. These quality prints on Kodak paper will help keep alive the memory of the day.

To be sure you will have the type of photography you want, make your plans early. Talk to your local photographer as soon as your wedding date is set, and plan together what events you'll want recorded. He can show you many different styles of photography—from superimposed mood pictures to candid close-ups—that will help you decide what you will want.

Also, make arrangements for the bridal portrait that will illustrate newspaper articles about the wedding. This can be taken in advance, or, if you prefer, may be a portrait of bride and groom made at the time of the wedding.

So you can be free of any concern at the wedding, ask a relative or friend to accompany the photographer that day, pointing out the people you'd appreciate in your photo album—from childhood chum to office coworker.

And, from this wealth of pictures, you'll have a vast choice for all your needs—large prints to decorate your new home, smaller views for the wedding album, selected framed photographs for parents and other special people, and one portrait of bride and groom to be used with thank-you cards.

Initial Romance

Inscribing your name or initials, and your wedding date on the inside of each band is traditional and romantic.

To ensure their lasting 'til your golden anniversary, plan to spend about one week's salary for each band. Since price varies with the style and amount of work involved, there is no practical buying guide to use, but the salary guide just mentioned can be a starting point.

At Home and Around The World

the occasion truly memorable.

In some parts of the world a bride may still bring her dowry with her to her marriage, a symbol of her collected contributions to her new life—but almost everywhere brides and grooms receive a welcome array of thoughtful presents along with many good wishes to help start them on their life together.

The message is clear: while the accent may be foreign, the fashions varied in color and style, the ceremonies running the gamut from the quaint to the somber and formal, there is an amazing and refreshing similarity in the celebration of matrimony throughout the world.

And by adding a touch of the old traditions to the modern marriage, brides and their families alike will be thrilled to see the new depths of meaning it brings to the wedding ceremony and all of their lives to follow.

The bridal registry . . .

An easy solution to 'duplicate problems'

To avoid collecting myriads of toasters or white elephants — chosen by well-meaning friends and relatives as wedding gifts — the wise bride-to-be will make a visit to a wedding gift registry a must.

A free service offered by virtually all department, gift and jewelry stores, the registry records the bride's preferences in tableware, kitchen items, and other furnishings for her new home.

Betsy Abbott, registry consultant at B. Altman and Company in New York explains, "We give advice to brides on color schemes, patterns, and design trends. We also help friends and relatives who are not familiar with the bride's tastes escape the time-consuming search through the store to find the 'right' gift."

In coordinating china, crystal, and silver choices, the registry is particularly valuable, according to Arlene Hirst, design consultant for Lenox, whose fine china is registered for by more brides than any other firm.

"We design such a wide variety of patterns, shapes and colors that the professional advice of the consultant is invaluable in helping brides choose Lenox styles to suit their tastes," she said.

Choose china first

"China, because of its importance on the table, is usually selected first; crystal and silver are then chosen. Color, pattern, and lifestyle are key factors today in assembling a coordinated look in table fashions that will last for years," Ms. Hirst said.

In home entertaining, the successful hostess is rated not only by the menu she prepares but by the tablesetting she creates.

With the dramatic use of color in linens and accessories—and with imaginative centerpieces—she can create a background for her china and crystal that truly reflects her personality," said Ms. Hirst.

In choosing her china and crystal, color is important, the Lenox designer advised. In new dinnerware designs, there are rich chocolate browns, bold terra cottas, and natural blues. In crystal, gold, green, blue, and brown are popular casual colors.

Fine china patterns also range from the traditional floral sprays, etched gold bands, and oriental motifs to the contemporary white-on-white and simple platinum banded designs. And in crystal, there are graceful new flared stemware shapes, over-sized wine glasses, and contemporary decanters and table accessories.

Helpful hints

By keeping abreast of trends in tableware design, the wedding gift consultant offers brides up-to-the-minute advice, said the Lenox consultant. Here are the tips she offers in using the registry:

- Register as soon after your engagement as possible—at least several months before the wedding. The closer you get to your wedding date, the busier you will be. Often, relatives and friends also consult the registry to buy engagement gifts.
- Mother, members of the bridal party, and close friends will help spread the name of the store where you are registered. It is best to select one store—department stores with branches usually coordinate the information within their chains. The consultant keeps up-to-date records as gifts are purchased.
- Most brides register their choices for fine china, crystal, and silver, but it is also advisable to register for casual tableware items. You are not obligated to make a purchase at the store where you register.
- Register for the number of place settings that will fit your lifestyle. You can start with as little as two and go up to ten or twelve. Buffet place settings consist of three pieces: a dinner plate, cup and saucer.

Complete place settings also include the salad and bread and butter plates, a total of five pieces which you would use for entertaining.

- Lenox china and crystal patterns are available in "open stock." You can continue to add pieces to your set and build a full service as long as the pattern is made.

Packing tips keep clothes fresher on honeymoon trip

After the excitement of your wedding day, you'll be off for your honeymoon. Whether it's a big trip or a small one, you'll save a lot of bother if you plan your packing carefully. Here are some hints:

- Pack shoes, hair dryers, clocks, and other heavy things at the hinge side of your suitcase — they'll be on the bottom when you carry it, so they won't crush your clothes.
- Pack firmly. Loosely-packed clothes will shift around in transit and wrinkle more easily.
- Pack in sections and not in layers — sportswear together, evening wear together, lingerie together. It's easier to get at things that way, and easier to re-pack firmly.
- Distribute weight evenly on both sides of your suitcase (pack one heavy article at either end of the hinge), and it will be easier to carry.
- Fasten all buttons and zippers, then fold everything in thirds lengthwise — a lengthwise fold will come out naturally as you wear the garment.
- Pack all liquids (shampoo, cosmetics) and aerosols in a separate carry-on case.
- Take clothes that don't wrinkle easily.
- Because you'll be trying to save as much space as possible, take clothes and accessories that you can mix and match.

MIDDLE EAST CUSTOM

Why do we throw shoes after the bride? Probably it dates from the ancient Middle East, where men would exchange their sandals to symbolize the exchange of property. So shoes signify transfer of authority from the bride's father to her husband.

Planning a shower? Pick rooms!

Looking for some new ideas in shower planning? Why not try giving a "Shower of Hours," with every guest assigned a time of day on the invitation. Guests will then search for a gift appropriate for their hours — 8:00 A.M. would be breakfast utensils and accessories, 4:00 could be tea cups and "break time" articles, evenings for party and entertaining materials.

Or hold a "Room Shower," with every guest assigned a special room of the house to cover — this way the bride will be certain to receive things for all areas of her home and all aspects of her lifestyle, instead of 10 extra blankets, 10 toasters, and no towels!

Any way you slice it, wedding cake implies happiness

"The bride cuts the cake . . . the bride cuts the cake . . . " As the merry guests sing this happy refrain, the bride, her hand steadied by her new husband, cuts the first slice of the tiered white wedding cake.

Did you know this time honored tradition is meant to insure their happiness?

For almost as long as there have been weddings, there have been wedding cakes surrounded by all sorts of romantic traditions. In the time of the ancient Romans, the wedding cake was broken over the head of the bride, its crumbs collected by guests as tokens of good luck.

In merry medieval England, the bride and groom tried to kiss over a pile of tiny wedding cakes brought to the ceremony by their guests, and heaped together in the middle of the table. They were supposed to kiss without disturbing the pile of goodies!

In an attempt to make this tradition less of an obstacle, an itinerant French baker put all the cakes together and iced them as one, thereby giving birth to the much admired tiered wedding cake.

A piece of this treasured confection, under the pillow of an unmarried girl, will induce dreams of her future groom.

With informal weddings growing in number, many young women now bake their own wedding cakes, lovingly made and trimmed with garlands of flowers, stars, lovebirds, and cupids, unfailingly topped with a miniature bride and groom.

Bridal showers forecast

Looking for an unusual theme for a bridal shower? Think about a garden shower, whether or not the future bride will really have a garden out of doors. Clusters of potted plants in an apartment need lots of TLC and will bring many hours of delight.

Guests can bring seeds, flowering bulbs, unusual plants, handsome pots, plant stands, planting tools, books on growing greens and flower arranging.

Another unusual idea would be a wine shower with an assortment of wines, wine glasses, graceful carafes, pitchers and even cheese boards.

Imagine the delight of the novice cook, being feted with a recipe shower. Each guest brings her favorite recipe or two and a suitable dish in which to prepare it. The possibilities are endless.

LET THEM EAT CAKE

Whether a wedding be large or small, traditional or in a country garden, the wedding cake adds beauty and excitement to the day.

An added modern day custom is to put the top layer of the cherished cake in the freezer, to be savoured on their first anniversary.

French beauty of yore won diamond's rights for women!

You've good reason to be grateful to a ravishing young French beauty named Agnes Sorel if you now own or have high hopes of acquiring a diamond some day.

The reason? Way back in 1444, Agnes enterprisingly snatched diamonds out of the male domain and made them fashionable and romantic for women to wear.

It seems before Agnes, according to the Jewelry Industry Council, diamonds were considered strictly for masculine wear. Believing that the diamonds' unmatched hardness gave men extra strength and courage, kings and noblemen wore them into battle. Women, with the exception of a few liberated royal ladies, didn't wear them at all.

Patient plotter!

Then there was Agnes, daughter of a poor but noble French family. Through family connections, she was appointed a lady-in-waiting to the royal court of Charles VII while still in her teens. This was the same Charles for whom Joan of Arc had fought and died some years before.

Agnes, who idolized Joan and Joan's quest to free France from the English, was attracted to the young monarch.

While a promising beauty even in her teens, Agnes, try as she might, could not catch the eye of the King, who was constantly surrounded by beautiful women. It took several years—until she was 22, history reports, before Agnes could plot a scheme to impress Charles.

An important royal ball was to take place, and Agnes was determined the King would notice her this time. She borrowed all the diamonds she could from her male relatives, and took them to a Parisian jeweler requesting that he make them into a dazzling necklace.

She chose a lustrous low-cut gown that spotlighted her graceful neck, creamy white shoulders and comely curves.

When young Agnes swept into the ballroom, every eye in the room was riveted on her. The royal page announced her presence, and when the King looked up, he gave an appreciative smile and beckoned her near.

Whether it was the flashing diamonds, or the blooming beauty of the young maiden, Agnes caught the King's eye, and walked into his life to stay.

Her lovely figure, chestnut hair, deep blue eyes and flawless complexion caused him to nickname her the court's "Dame de Beauté" (Lady of Beauty), and in fact, he built an impressive palace for her—the Chateau de Beauté near Paris.

Through the King's influence, Agnes was elevated to an enviable social position—she became a style-setter and popularized the custom of women wearing diamonds.

Not just 'pretty face'

Agnes Sorel was the first officially recognized King's mistress, and gained official status because of this. Historians say, reports the Council, that Agnes was more than just another pretty face. Remembering the goal of her idol, Joan of Arc—that of pushing the British out of Burgundy—Agnes is credited with aiding and inspiring Charles to do just that.

She not only provided encouragement, but cold hard cash as well, arranging loans from important merchants to help finance the King's armies.

While the beauteous Agnes lived a story book life—bearing four lovely daughters to the King, and remaining his favorite—she did not as they say, "live happily ever after."

Legend lives on

Some scholars believe she died in 1450, giving birth, while others hint darkly she was poisoned by someone. The guilty party, or parties, were purported to be everyone from the King's own son, who resented his father's mistress usurping his mother's place, to one of the merchants who had loaned the King money. The King was so indebted to the moneyman that Charles discredited and imprisoned the merchant to cancel his debt.

Whatever the cause of her death, Agnes Sorel to this day is a national heroine in France where she is honored for her beauty, fidelity and patriotism. But women the world over will remember her as the girl who was the diamond's best friend, making diamonds fashionable for the fair sex!

Friends share in joy of music

When talented friends of family of the bride and groom perform the music at the wedding, it adds a personal touch that's irreplaceable.

If you're asking friends to sing or play at your wedding, though, keep in mind the friend's own enjoyment of the big event.

Try to have the musical program shared among several musicians, so that no one person bears too much of the "burden" of performing!

'Hair' rehearsal can save your show on the big day!

You're not making your Broadway debut—but it's your "big day" — so why not a rehearsal of your own wedding day hair style?

Knowing exactly how you want your hair to look, how it works with your veil, and some ideas as to how it will stand up to a full day of activities will save time and frustration at the last minute.

Start early

Don't leave a new style, or cut or permanent to the last minute! Ten days or so before the event, visit your beauty salon for a trim which will shape your hair and get rid of split ends and stray pieces.

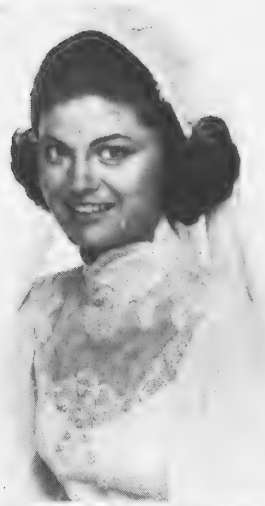
If your hair is fine or very straight, you may want to have a body wave or a permanent. Be sure to take your wedding veil with you so your hair stylist knows the shape of the headband or cap. If he's used curlers, ask him about the direction to wind to achieve the look he has created.

Rehearse

After two or three days, wash and blow-dry or set your hair and "rehearse" the style you planned on. If possible, have a "complete" dress rehearsal. Move around your home to get used to your gown and veil.

See how the hair style will hold as you walk down the aisle and back, receive your friends and dance. At the end of your rehearsal you'll have a pretty good idea of what's right and wrong with your hair.

If you're planning the curly look but the curls sag too soon, you'll know you need to roll your hair on smaller curlers. If you feel the curls are too tight for your tastes, larger rollers are in order.



On the day

Shampoo your hair and blow dry or set in the style you rehearsed. For a curly look, set wet for a longer hold. When dry, comb curls out gently, using Hair Spray to get stray wisps under control and hold curls in place.

Have someone take a brush and your hair spray along so you can refresh your hair between the ceremony and the reception.

Going away

If your hair begins to droop by the time you change to go, set a few key curls on instant rollers, spraying lightly with hair spray before and after rolling.

CURLS AND WAVES WILL ENHANCE the traditionally feminine look of the 1978 bride.

By the time you have donned your going away outfit and refreshed your makeup, your hair style too will have been renewed.

Put together a first aid kit for your hair to take along on your honeymoon. Include a small dryer and a curling wand or mini set of instant curlers. You'll also want your favorite shampoo, creme rinse and hair spray.

If you're going to be swimming in salt water, be sure to include Clean Rinse to apply when shampooing the salt out of your hair to keep it manageable and shining.

Finally, don't forget a few scarves and headbands for sports, combs and barrettes for quick hair style changes to fit the occasion and your outfit.

Snowstorm Keeps Burke From Luncheon In His Honor

Congressman James A. Burke (D-Milton) was grounded in Washington by a snowstorm last Friday, but a luncheon in his honor at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel went on as scheduled.

Edward J. Moore, administrative assistant to the congressman, filled in as federal and state officials paid tribute to Burke for his leadership in legislative moves to improve the social security system.

The luncheon was sponsored by the Massachusetts Council of Social Studies Teachers and the Golden Ring Council of Senior Citizens. Burke, chairman of the House Social Security Subcommittee, served as honorary chairman of the Social Security essay contest for high school students. The contest was sponsored by the Golden Ring Council, HEW, and the state department of education.

Among the 130 Bay State winners was John Berlandi, 52 Coddington St., Quincy. Topic for the contest was "How Does Social Security Fulfill the American Way of Life?"

City Faces $4 Million Deficit

home rule petition to the Finance Committee for study but there are indications that the committee will have more than that to consider before the fiscal year ends on June 30.

Mayor Tobin said the $2,438,000 deficit was inherited from the LaRaia Administration, a statement which will be recognized as similar to one made by ex-Mayor LaRaia about the prior administration of Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

"We are talking about a little in excess of $2 million that we inherited," said Tobin. "So we are close to $4 million now, including the storm, that we have to find monies for.

"A $4 million burden added in one year would be staggering to the taxpayer. That would be an extra $15 on the tax rate, not counting whatever else we're going to run into.

"This is why we are going after a home rule amendment that would enable us to spread the costs over five years so they won't be a burden on the tax rate in one particular year."

Public Works Commissioner James J. [Pete] Ricciuti said the cost of snow removal is going to be considerably higher than the $1,350,000 that the auditor is authorized to pay for overtime salaries and equipment rental.

Some of it is going to be reimbursible by the state and federal governments.

"It's more than $1.3 million," said Tobin, "and we don't know how much will be reimbursible. We are over $2 million now and it could go to $2.5 or $2.8 million. We don't know right now.

"There is a $4 million deficit facing the administration at this time. We feel it probably will be in excess of that. That's a conservative figure given to me by the city auditor. All the facts are not in yet."

The $2,438,000 requested in excess of appropriations included:

- Hospital expense -- $1,000,000.
- Temporary loan interest -- $290,000.
- City's share of Blue Cross-Blue Shield -- $800,000.
- Workmen's compensation -- $150,000.
- Veteran's benefits -- $56,000.
- Sanitary waste pickup -- $142,000.

The $1 million request for City Hospital drew the most attention from the councillors and Hospital Director Anthony DeFalco and Comptroller John J. Fantucchio were on hand to explain.

Fantucchio said that part of the problem was that the City Council last spring had trimmed $328,405 from the hospital budget and another part was the unanticipated higher costs for new drugs.

"The cost of intravenous solutions alone has gone up $110,000," he said.

DeFalco conceded that "there is some question in my mind whether we need to go to $1 million. It appears we could live through the fiscal year with $750,000."

It was disclosed that the $290,000 in temporary loan interest came about because tax bills were mailed late last year; the $800,000 for Blue Cross was due to increased health costs; and $56,000 was paid out of Veteran's Benefits for the strike at the Shipyard.

Some councillors were upset by the fact that, while they had voted approval for Auditor Shea to spend $800,000 on overtime, the State Bureau of Accounts had authorized him to spend $550,000 on equipment without even telling the Council.

"By what authority did the Bureau of Accounts give you a figure of $550,000 without coming through the legislative branch at all?" asked Councillor Paul D. Harold.

"They looked on the Feb. 6 storm as a national disaster and a state of emergency," replied Shea. "Under normal conditions it would have required a vote of the Council but they were loaded with requests and were trying to expedite them.

"All I can tell you is they sent me the letter, duly signed with the authorization.

"At the time we discussed the $800,000 for personal services we had no idea what the expenses would be I couldn't give you a figure at the time. They asked for one. I gave them a ball park figure."

Harold still thought that the Bureau of Account was "usurping our power."

"I don't like the idea of appropriating money without an order in front of us," said Councillor Francis X. McCauley. "We should have had an order drawn and brought here tonight. I'd be more comfortable with something like that."

Councillor Leo J. Kelly suggested that since "this was the only national disaster in this area maybe it's time for the city solicitor to make a detailed study of the functions of the Mayor and the City Council in time of emergency.

"It would be interesting to see how powerful the mayor's position is in times of national emergency."

5 Pinball Machines Approved For Strand Theater

The Strand Theater, 12 Chestnut St., Quincy, has been granted a license to operate five pinball machines in a second floor former lounge at the theater.

The City Licensing Board granted Joseph F. O'Connor permission to operate the machines for a six-month period, at the end of which the board will review the action.

City Clerk John Gillis, chairman, said the board was interested in keeping the theater in business. He cautioned, however, that any trouble on the premises would lead to revocation.

O'Connor said that Quincy Cinema, Inc., owner of the theater is exploring the possibility of converting it to "twin" cinemas.

In other action, the board granted a one-day all alcoholic license to the Quincy K. of C. for a St. Patrick's Night party at Our Lady of Good Counsel parish hall, March 17.

Similar licenses were granted the Marine Corps League for a dance at Fore River Clubhouse, March 11; Quincy High School Basketball Alumni Club for a dinner at Fore River Clubhouse, March 30, and the Committee to Elect Rep. Robert A. Cerasoli for a reception at State Street South, June 3.

Face Saugus In Tourney Quarterfinals

Milestone: Quincy In First Boston Garden Appearance

By TOM SULLIVAN

"This is the greatest thing that has happened in my coaching career."

So said Bob Sylvia, Quincy's hockey coach, following the Presidents' stunning 5-4 win over unbeaten Don Bosco Saturday night in an Eastern Mass. Tournament second round game at Ridge Arena in Braintree.

Quincy was a definite underdog as Don Bosco had won the championship of the Catholic Conference, rated one of the state's strongest leagues, unbeaten and one of the tournament's top five seeded teams.

Sylvia has coached Quincy for 13 years and has taken nine teams into the tournament but today (Thursday) at 5:30 p.m. the Presidents make their first appearance at the Boston Garden when they face Saugus in the quarterfinals.

"We were the underdogs, but I don't think any league was stronger than our (Suburban) this year," Sylvia said.

"We had a well-balanced league with only one or two weak teams and we finished only two points out of first place. I felt we could hold our own against anyone and we proved it Saturday.

"This has to be the brightest and most emotional moment in Quincy hockey history. Every hockey player dreams of playing at the Garden where Bobby Orr, Gordie Howe and all the greats played. We have won some big games in the tournament but making the Garden for the first time makes this our greatest victory."

The veteran coach said the win was greater than the surprise victory several years back over Arlington.

"I played at the Garden in the college Beanpot tournament and I know what it means to a player to be in there," Bob added. "Years from now these kids can say they played at the Garden and only a small percentage of high school players can make this claim.

"Bill Hutchinson got the hockey program started at Quincy and when I played here I dreamed, as every high school player does, of playing at the Garden."

Sylvia paid tribute to the Quincy Youth hockey program and credited it with the rapid improvement in Quincy and North Quincy High hockey.

"Everyone connected with the youth program can be very proud," Bob said. "All of our players came up through this program and both our high schools have really benefited from it."

Sylvia explained that his assistant coach, Jack Crowley, also a former Quincy star, is so excited about the team playing in the Garden that he wants to skate with the players before the game.

"I make it a habit of shaking the hands of all the seniors before our last game or what we think will be our last game," Sylvia continued. "I didn't do it before the tournament opener with Marshfield and some of the boys asked me why I didn't do it before the Don Bosco game. I told them it was because I didn't feel it would be our last game."

In the big win over Don Bosco, Brian Bertoni, the Suburban League's leading scorer, scored the first four goals to go along with the three he scored in the 5-4 overtime win over Marshfield.

The winning goal was scored by Scott Richardson at 9:45 of the final period with sophomore Robbie Craig and Mark Giordani assisting.

"Our goalie, Jimmy Deitsch (37 saves), made one of the most unbelievable stops I've ever seen on their great scorer, (Bill) O'Dwyer, with eight seconds left," Sylvia said. "I don't know how he ever made the stop and the Don Bosco players were so sure the puck was in that they raised their sticks in elation, thinking they had tied the score."

O'Dwyer, one of the state's leading scorers with more than 70 points, had only one goal.

Craig, Mike Bondarick and Tom Cahill had two assists apiece and Richardson, John Norton and Giordani one each.

Saugus, today's quarterfinal opponent, also pulled a surprise Friday by eliminating Arlington, a perennial tournament power, 6-3. The North Shore team had dumped Boston Latin, 8-3, in its opener.

In the Presidents' overtime win over Marshfield, Giordani scored the winning goal at 1:46 of the overtime session.

"Our hats are off to Marshfield," said Sylvia. "They gave us a great game and wouldn't let us get our shots off for most of the game."

Marshfield's goalie, Steve Capps, one of the best in the Old Colony League, played a masterful game to keep the score down and Deitsch made many more great stops for Quincy.

The Presidents had to overcome an early 2-0 Marshfield lead. Craig made it 2-1 at 1:37 of the second period but the Rams made it 3-1 at 10:01. Bertoni,'s first goal at 13:10 cut the gap to 3-2.

Bertoni tied it with an unassisted goal only 21 seconds after the third period faceoff but Marshfield broke the tie just 33 seconds later. Bertoni again tied it at 7:30 and then came Giordani's winning goal in the OT.

Cahill and Giordani had two assists apiece and Mike Furey and Richardson one each.

Only two of the five top seeded teams won, Billerica and Burlington. Don Bosco, Arlington and Norwood were all upset. Joining Quincy and Saugus in the Garden quarterfinals are Burlington, Billerica, Austin Prep, Natick, defending champion Matignon and Beverly.

If Quincy wins today it will play the Burlington-Natick winner in the semifinals Saturday at 2. The championship game will be next Wednesday at 8.

Dinan President

Bay Mariners Form Board Of Directors

The Quincy Bay Mariners, the South Shore Coastal Baseball League's newest member, announces the forming of its Board of Directors for the team.

Serving as president is Bob Dinan, who has been a coach in the Quincy Babe Ruth League for the past nine years as well as a sponsor and coach for Quincy's Senior Babe Ruth team.

Bob Woodman, a former commissioner of the Quincy Baseball Leagues, will be vice president of the board.

Dave MacMillan, presently a coach in the Quincy Babe Ruth League, will be secretary to the board. MacMillan has coached at the Babe Ruth level for the past 18 years and has also been a coach with the Quincy Post 95 Legion team for the past three years.

The team's treasurer will be Theresa Brill.

Also serving as the board chairman is T. David Raftery, a former president of the Quincy Babe Ruth League and an active member of the Quincy Baseball Leagues Board of Directors. Raftery will help along with its other members in getting the team off the ground for the 1978 season.

Brill, the team's co-founder and coach for the coming season, reports that fund raising for the team is starting. A big fund-raising campaign is planned. The Mariners are raising money by forming a baseball advertising scorecard in which businesses can place advertisements. The scorecards will be distributed at all Mariner home games.

Brill said the Mariners would like anyone interested in helping the team in either the fund raising or a possible coaching position to call Brill (471-7264) or MacMillan (471-2322.)

The Mariners, who have been represented at the past two South Shore Coastal League meetings, are now trying to work out their coming season schedule with Legion and Babe Ruth officials as requested by the Quincy Park and Recreation Board.

The team's uniforms for the coming season will be styled after the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Special Buses To Boston Garden For Quincy Game

The Athletic Department of the Quincy Public Schools has made buses available for today's 5:30 hockey game between Quincy and Saugus at Boston Garden.

The round trip cost is 50 cents for students and $1 for adults payable at the door of the bus today. The buses will leave the Vo-Tech parking lot at 4 o'clock

This is Quincy's first time in the Garden. The game is a quarter-final contest in the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

HELPING HIS HONOR -- When Mayor Arthur Tobin bowled against muscular dystrophy Sunday at Olindy's Lanes, Quincy Ave., a team was on hand to help him out. Everybody Pitches In

Despite Bad Back Tobin Bowls For Muscular Dystrophy

Two bad backs got together with a number of healthy ones Sunday to help fight muscular dystrophy.

The two bad backs belong to Mayor Arthur Tobin and Quincy Sun publisher Henry Bosworth -- the healthy ones to several members of the City Council and School Committee and others.

It all happened Sunday at Olindy's Bowling Lanes, Quincy Ave., Quincy in the fourth and final week of the Lucky Total Contest to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

As a result, Peg Kirker of Brockton won a set of bowling balls and a carrying case and the MDA had some more money with which to help wage its battle against muscular dystrophy.

This is the way it went:

Tobin had agreed to substitute for Bosworth who had suffered a back pull bowling in the fund-raiser a few weeks ago. But before Tobin could get to Olindy's Sunday, he threw his back out when the wind blew a door open on him at home.

Bosworth met him at Olindy's and offered to help him bowl the three strings. Tobin declined but asked Bosworth to help him tie his shoes because he couldn't bend over.

Tobin then bowled two strings and had his son, Matthew, 13, bowl the third string for him. Their combined total was 239.

The 239 was the total guessed by Peg Kirker and she won the bowling balls. Four others also guessed the same total. They were: Sally Saluti, Braintree; Mary F. Green, S. Falco and Mary McGinty all of Quincy. Peg's name was drawn from the five.

Contestants were eligible to win a set of bowling balls and case each week for four weeks by donating 50 cents per guess to the MDA.

Sunday's climax had an extra bonus.

Two teams were organized to bowl along with Tobin, the losing one making an extra donation to MDA. And the cost of all the strings also went to the cause.

Tobin captained one team which included City Councillors Joanne Condon, Steve McGrath and Dan Raymondi, WJDA's Herb Fontaine, Willy Pasquale and Chris Condon and Matthew Tobin.

The other team, captained by Bosworth, comprised School Committee members Patricia Toland, Mary Collins, Chris Kennedy, Shirley Tobin, the mayor's wife, and Bob Bosworth, 13.

The Bosworth team won with a three-string total of 1240 to 1214.

The individual three-string totals: H. Bosworth (283), Raymondi (276), Collins (253), B. Bosworth (246), S. Tobin - Kennedy (244), Toland (244), J. Condon (243), A. Tobin - M. Tobin (239), McGrath (228), Fontaine - C. Condon - Pasquale (218).

Each bowler's highest single string:

H. Bosworth (117), Collins (112), Toland (103), Raymondi (101), B. Bosworth (91), Fontaine - C. Condon - Pasquale (89), J. Condon (88), A. Tobin - M. Tobin (86), S. Tobin - Kennedy (85), McGrath (80).

The sets of bowling balls and carrying cases were donated by Olindy's Lanes, operated by John, James and Stephen Mezetti and Paramount, Inc., manufacturer of the balls. The benefit fund-raiser was also sponsored by Olindy's.

ENC In Eastern Regionals Saturday

The Eastern Nazarene men's basketball team, which won the Kings College Tournament for the third year in a row two weeks ago, followed up with a 72-64 win over Kings last Saturday in the District One playoffs of the National Christian College Tournament.

The Crusaders advanced to the Eastern Regionals and will face Geneva College at Pittsburg Saturday for the right to move into the national finals in Tennessee, a tournament in which ENC has competed several times and has always made a good showing. ENC is ranked seventh nationally among Christian colleges, while Geneva is ranked 11th.

In the District One win, Mike Barefoot turned in his usual clutch effort and scored 19 second half points as ENC wiped out a 35-33 Kings halftime edge. Barefoot, senior forward, now has 1,750 career points and is the third all-time scorer at ENC, only 20 points behind second place.

Jerry Perara, 6-3 guard, had 20 points, while Pete Ribeiro had eight points and 14 assists.

The Crusaders take a 17-9 record into Saturday's Eastern Regionals.

Not only did the ENC men's basketball team win its third straight King's Tournament title recently, but the college won the overall championship for the fourth year in a row and the eighth time in the last nine years.

The Crusaders took first places in four of the 10 events, men's basketball, women's volleyball, men's single's table tennis and barbershop quartet. They placed second in bowling and mixed doubles table tennis and third in jogging, women's singles table tennis, chess (tie) and alumni free throw (tie). ENC finished with 236⅓ points, well ahead of host King's College with 117⅓.

Jerry Perera, Mike Barefoot and Peter Ribeiro made the all-tourney basketball team and Perera was awarded the Sportsmanship Award, an honor previously bestowed on only two Crusaders, Gary Jones in 1964, and present coach Ron Bradley in 1970.

With more than three month's layoff and tough competition, the women's volleyball team, state champions last fall, rose to the challenge as the tournament's top seed. The Crusaderettes defeated Eastern College, Messiah and Barrington for the title.

Among those excelling for ENC were Lois Malvesti, Donna Brickley and Donna Fandel of Quincy, Janet Ranstrom of Weymouth and Sue Bish.

Members of the winning Barbershop quartet were Kevin Doolittle, Jay Larkin, Tim Shetler and Dan Whitney.

The bowling team of Donna Rahaim, Jim Cox, John Metcalfe and Sally Smith finished 34 pins behind winning Messiah.

In chess, Bruce Braswell won one, lost one and had one draw, putting him in a third place tie.

In jogging, defending champions Connie Underwood and Tim Lalone of ENC finished third as the competition was held on the hilly roads of the King's College campus when weather conditions made it impossible to run on the track.

Ben Cheung took first place in the men's singles table tennis, Donna Brickley was third in women's singles and Nora Stephens and Steve Vaughn were second in mixed doubles.

Jean Macchi of Quincy and Don Constantine of North Quincy, present women's coach, finished in a third place tie in the alumni free throw competition.

6 Winners In Elementary Wrist Wrestling Champion ships

The Quincy Recreation Department's after-school elementary program for boys at the Merrymount school recently held a wrist wrestling championship in five different classes.

The event was under the direction of leaders Rich Page and Bill Dolliver. The weight class winners are:

Light Weight - James Leary and Adam Rosen.

Welter Weight - Mark McManus.

Middle Weight - Matthew King.

Heavy Weight - David Alberti.

Special Class - Eugene McCarthy.

Each winner received a gift certificate to Brigham's, compliments of the Recreation Leaders.

Recreation Summer Job Deadline April 3

The Quincy Park-Recreation Board announces that the Recreation Department will be accepting applications for summer employment until April 3.

Applications are available in the Recreation Department Office at 1120 Hancock St., daily from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Applicants must be 16 years of age by June 26.

Those who have previously worked for the Department and wish to re-activate for the summer should do so in writing to the Director of Recreation prior to April 3. Additional information can be obtained by calling the Recreation Department.

SEVERE BLEEDING

A Michigan man bagged a deer on the second day of hunting and took it home to dress it. His seven-year-old son stood by and watched as the man hung the deer in the garage and started working on it. The boy picked up the skinning knife to help, but the blade slipped on the tough hide and slashed deeply into the youngster's leg.

The man put his son in the car and headed for the nearest doctor - 14 miles away. When he arrived, everyone had already gone home. The father now sped to the nearest hospital, half an hour away. He got there too late. His young son arrived dead. He bled to death along the way.

The distraught father probably could have saved his son's life just by applying a pad of gauze or a clean handkerchief directly on the wound, wrapped the leg firmly with a strip of cloth, and having the boy lie down with his leg propped up.

But, like many of us, he felt helpless in the face of medical emergency, either ignorant of what to do or afraid he would do the wrong thing. So the boy died. Remember - if bleeding is profuse, you Can't wait for medical attention. Stop the bleeding first.

Quincy Varsity-Alumni Hockey Game Set For March 25

The Friends of Quincy Hockey, the high school booster's club, will sponsor its annual Varsity-Alumni game Saturday, March 25, at 8 p.m. at the Quincy Youth Arena.

The game was originally scheduled for this Saturday but had to be postponed due to the high school team's progress in the Eastern Mass. Tournament.

The opening game will pit the Oldtimers, players who go back to the start of the high school hockey program, against the junior varsity.

The Alumni, made up of players from the past four or five years, will meet the varsity in the second game.

All former players interested in playing are asked to call Jack Raymer, president of the boosters club, at 479-8223.

The club will hold its annual banquet for the high school team Friday, March 31, at 7 p.m. at Morrisette Legion Post.

QHS Basketball Teams Reunion March 30

The first reunion of all former Quincy High basketball players has been organized by the Quincy High School Baskeball Alumni Club to "support our Quincy High basketball and to show support for our team and to assist them in every way possible," said Atty. George G. Burke, one of Quincy's outstanding former players.

Guido Pettinelli is the general chairman and announces that the event will be held Thursday, March 30, at the Fore River Clubhouse with dinner at 8 and a social hour from 7 to 8. Donations are $10 per person.

It is hoped that this will become an annual event. In addition to former Quincy players, friends of any Quincy High basketball players are also invited.

The banquet committee is as follows:

George Page, chairman; Buddy Page, John Rodophele, John Reggiannini, John McKinnon.

Ticket and financial committee:

Donaghue Receives Jack Donovan Award

Defensive back Harry Donaghue was given the Jack Donahue Award for being the best North Quincy player in the Quincy game at the annual North Quincy Football Boosters' Club dinner Sunday night at the Sons of Italy Hall.

The award is named for the legendary coach who was North's only coach from 1933 to 1960.

The Unsung Hero Award given by the Quincy Fathers' Club in memory of William Schaetzel, past North Boosters Club president, went to Colin McEachern.

Nearly 100 senior, junior and sophomore players were honored and all received jackets, sweaters, trophies or suitcases from Coach Dave Burke and assistants Ken McFee, Ted Sadowski and Jack Raymer.

The newly elected captains for 1978, Paul McNamara, Kevin Cobban and Tom Quinn, were introduced.

The coaches were given engraved barometers and 14 cheerleaders were given trophy desk sets.

Among those attending were Supt. of Schools Dr. Lawrence Creedon; North Principal Peter Chrisom, Assistant Principal Lloyd Hill; Rev. Cornelius Heery of Sacred Heart Parish, and Bill Hocking representing the Quincy Fathers' Club.

Quincy, Whitman Teams In Men's Tourney Showdown

The Tuesday Night Merchants of Quincy defeated East Weymouth 1742-1698 in the semi-finals of the 25th annual Greater Quincy Men's Candlepin Bowling Tourney Sunday afternoon at the Wollaston Boulevard Bowladrome, Quincy Shore Drive.

The win assures the Tuesday Night Merchants of a berth in the tourney finals next Sunday against the Carlyle Merchants of Whitman, to decide the championship.

The Merchants ran up a 115 pin first string lead over the ice cold Weymouth combine, enough to assure the victory. Weymouth struggled back to capture the final two strings, but it was too little too late as the Merchants chalked up their fourth tourney win by 44 pins.

Bob McDonough led the Merchants' attack firing a hefty 390 and was aided in the cause by Jim Boyd 356, Ron Johnston 345, Paul Vickers 326, and John Catrambone 325.

Top scorer for the losing Weymouth team was Rick Cassani 382, Mike Fardy 362, Paul Paton 329, and Joe Hamm 321.

Tourney and Koch Club Director Richard J. Koch will present Sunday's winner with $100 and a team trophy.

● Little Loop

Kelleher's 327 Paces Bryan Post

Frank Killilea's 327 led Bryan VFW Post to a 4-0 sweep of the Joseph LaRaia Club and a three-point lead in the Quincy Bowling Little Loop with eight weeks to go.

A 310 by John Kiley also helped.

Other scores last week: Councilor Paul Harold Club 4, Montclair Men's Club 0; Atty. George Burke Club 4, Dick Morrissey Club 0; Quincy Lodge of Elks 4, Hennessy Plumbing Supply 0; Granite Lodge 1451 AFL-CIO 3, Wollaston Bowladrome 1; James R. McIntyre Club 3, Hutchinson Oil 1; Joseph E. Brett Club 3, Atlantic Fuel Oil 1.

The standings: Bryan Post, 47-21 (total pinfall of 22,358); Burke, 44-24 (22,121); McIntyre, 44-24 (21,969); Granite Lodge, 44-24 (21,939); Elks, 39-29 (22,059); Bowladrome, 35-33 (22,110); Harold, 35-33 (21,908); Atlantic, 31-37 (21,666); Hennessy, 30-38 (21,617); Morrissey, 28-40 (21,489); Montclair, 27-41 (21,558); Hutchinson, 26-42 (21,441); LaRaia, 25-45 (21,744); Brett, 23-45 (21,359).

Bryan Post rolled the weekly high team three of 1406 and high single of 484. Dick Hallberg of Granite Lodge rolled high individual three of 363 and high single of 134.

The Top Ten: Hallberg, 111.8; Mike Hatfield, 103.3; Joe Crifo, 99.0; Chris Petrillo, 97.2; Paul Leonard, 96.6; John Reardon, 96.6; John Sullivan, 96.3; Frank Killilea, 95.6; Tom Doherty, 95.3; Paul Anastas, 95.3.

● Bowling

10 Teams Left In Women's Candlepin Tourney

Ten teams remain of the original 38 entered in the 23rd annual South Shore Women's Candlepin Bowling Tourney following Sunday matches at the Wollaston Boulevard Alleys.

In the nine contests in the Koch Club sponsored event, East Weymouth bowled high for the day to oust the Keglerettes, 1488-1411.

In other action:

The Koch Club topped the South Shore Bowlerettes 1471-1451; Kemper Insurance knocked out the Whitman Merchants 1465-1408; the Youngbloods edged the Rag Dolls 1457-1454; Dante Couples Women ousted State Street 1453-1427; the Parkettes eliminated the Coffee Royals 1439-1317; the classic Lassies beat the Pin-ups 1438-1392; the Wollaston Wednesday Ladies upset St. Mark's VFW 1436-1404, and the Hull Friday League defeated the Patriot Ledger 1419-1374.

The Alley Kats will return from a bye next Sunday to join the nine winners from Sunday's competition.

East Weymouth could only post a 2-pin lead over the Keglorettes in the first string but gathered in 78 more in the second to put the match out of sight for the losers.

High scorers for East Weymouth were Jeanne Hodgdon 307, Janet Connolly 306 and Nancy Jermyn 302. Elaine Brodie paced for the Keglerettes with 309.

The Koch Club dropped the first string by 8, tied the second and won the final by 28 for its second victory. Linda Bowes led the Koch Club with 318, while Gerry Cavicchi posted a 300.

Kemper Insurance took each string as well as the total to oust Whitman. Cheryl Acker led Kemper with 304, and Diane Willard with 302 was top for Whitman.

The Youngbloods took the final two strings for a 3-pin triumph. The winners' top scorer was Norma Staiti with 309, while Virginia Mayher had 310 for the losers.

Dante Women beat State Street by 25 pins in the first string to assure its victory, Nancy Slocum hit 309 for the winners, and Jane Whitcomb 300 for the losers.

The Parkettes captured all points in its second tourney victory, defeating the Coffee Royals. Marlene Briggette was top scorer in the match with 300 for winners.

The Classie Lassies rolled up a 102 first string lead and held on for the win. Top scorers for the Lassies were Marge Crowell 309, Carol Stenman 303, and Ginny Dindy 302.

The Wollaston Wednesday Women put it all together in the last string to gain the successful triuimph. Cathy Lally's 317 was top in the contest.

Hull ran up a 37 pin first string lead over the Ledger and coasted to victory. June Hubbard was top with 313.

The Fluoridation Controversy

won by local citizen groups in cooperation with MCRA.

MCRA has no quarrel with anyone who wants to use any form of fluoride or any other chemical or drug for medicinal or other purposes. We do not recognize the right of any such person to insist that other citizens be obliged to take any amount of the fluoride or other chemical as patrons of the public water supplies.

Consumers of fluoridated water take uncertain, unmeasured doses of the chemical every day, an inherently irrational way of taking any drug.

In the case of such a powerful, cumulative chemical as a fluoride, which accumulates in body tissues as well as in bones and teeth, the irrationality is made public policy by adoption of fluoridation.

Comprehensive information on the link between fluoridation and cancer is assembled in a special issue of the Cancer Control Journal, put out by the Cancer Control Society, Los Angeles. One of the principal findings is that upwards of 10,000 cancer deaths each year in the United States are linked solely to fluoridation. About two-thirds of these deaths are in the age group 65 and over.

The statistical link between fluoridation and sharply higher death rates from heart disease among older citizens is given in "Fluoride". The quarterly journal of the International Society for Fluoride Research, P.O., Warren, Mich.

Evidence for higher death rates in fluoridated cities is presented in the special issue on fluoridation of the Journal of Arts, Science and Humanities, published by Anthony University, Philadelphia. Higher death rates for all age groups combined and higher stillbirth rates and infant death rates in a fluoridated city in Chile are compared with the death rates in a comparable non-fluoridated city and a comparable city with natural fluoridation.

Many articles have appeared in National Fluoridation News, Gravette, Ark. showing the futility of fluoridation as well as the many adverse effects of all fluorides on human bodies, animal life, plants and trees. Fluoride's role as environmental pollutant is well documented.

An excellent paperback book, "Fluoridation and Truth Decay", published by Top-Ecol Press, Lawrence, not only gives the full fluoridation story but demolishes the myth of "60 to 70 percent reduction" in tooth decay, and the false claims for safety and reduction of bone disease.

Fluoridated children are shown to have just as much tooth decay as their unfluoridated friends who were one to three years younger.

Fluoridated teeth are shown to decay approximately as fast as unfluoridated teeth. Fluoritic damage to malnourished children is indicated to be about twice as severe as to children with more adequate diets.

These references indicate that no long list of endorsements or promotional claims can obliterate the grim facts that emerge from an honest, sincere and thorough investigation of fluoridation.

South-West Center

Norma Barriere, director of the South-West Community Center, 372 Granite St., has announced the following programs for next week:

Gets $620,000 To Help Blizzard Victims

property damaged by the blizzard and assess claims filed with federal agencies, Dwyer said.

At the same time Dwyer and his staff are telephoning every available rental agent in the area in an effort to find housing for disaster victims.

The program was set up by Mayor Tobin and city officials after a meeting with James Oser and Alan Schwartberg, leasing specialists with HUD's disaster field office.

The plan calls for location of 75 to 100 multiple family dwellings [1-4 bedroom apartments] for home owners, in the process of repairing their property, and those who rent apartments.

People interested in being considered as eligible should get in touch with QDAP at 773-1380, Ext. 393.

As part of the program CETA workers will assist in cleaning up park property and repair potholes after the human needs have been attended.

"We will work with the highway department, the building inspector, the wire inspector and other city officials as they bring problems to our attention," Dwyer said.

Ten percent of the federally allocated funds will be used for administrative costs and the rest of the money will go for rental of equipment and the hiring of CETA personnel to work on the projects. QDAP already has 40 laborers on the job and at top strength the project will have 62 employees.

In a related development Environmental Quality Engineering Commissioner David Standley announced that Governor Dukakis has issued an executive order accelerating urgent repair work in Quincy and 23 other storm-damaged coastal communities.

The local conservation commissions have been empowered to issue an emergency order under the Wetlands Protection Act, on the spot after a site visit. This enables the communities involved to begin emergency work on coastal structures and damaged buildings

"The order may be issued for any work needed to protect a building or other structure from imminent danger of collapse or to provide temporary protection where the structure has been made vulnerable to further storm damage," Standley said.

Local conservation commissions will be able to advis residents on requirements for eligibility.

City Will Soon Have 'Instant' Tax Bills

daily so that we can run off accurate voting lists as of 5 p.m. the day before election."

He said Quincy officials are asking the state to let the city do its own auto excise tax billing on the computers and thus catch up on a process that is currently as much as eight months behind.

"In the same vein," he said, "we are working with Judge Albert Kramer in Quincy District Court to enable us to process parking fines which are not being processed now by the court.

"We find that people are parking all day in downtown Quincy with no fear of getting a ticket even if they put no money in the meters. They just don't care. We are losing revenue."

Shea said the first things that were programmed on the mini-computers were the payrolls of the police and fire departments and those of retired city employees.

"The police payroll had been done by an outside agency at a cost of $200 a month," he said. "The fire department was the same. The monthly retirement payroll was done at a cost of almost $900 a year. We eliminated those costs.

"We put the water bills on the machines in May, 1977. At that point they were five months behind. On Oct. 31, 1977, for the first time in almost 10 years, our water bills were current.

"We found that our revenues from the Water Department increased by 14 per cent. This would have been reflected in this year's tax rate if we didn't have that little snow storm."

Late billing, said Shea, meant temporary borrowing in anticipation of payment which in turn meant that the city was paying $24,000 in extra interest.

Thanks to the computers, he said, the monthly statements of city finances, which once took two girls two weeks to prepare, are now being done by one girl in four hours and 10 minutes.

"We are also compiling a list of regular vendors which do business with the city," the auditor said. "Right now I have one girl in my office who does nothing but hand-type checks for them. The city has a reputation of paying 45-60 days after the bills are due.

"We're going to put these vendors on the computer and then we'll ask them how much discount they will give us if we pay them within 15 days of billing.

"Some will give us as much as 3 or 4 per cent. We're going to tell those who won't that our new system means that we're not going to be able to pay them until 75-90 days.

"We hope they'll turn around and say they'd rather get it in 15 days and they'll give us at least a 1 per cent discount."

Rice Eventide Home To Receive 'Excellence' Award Friday

William B. Rice Eventide Home, 215 Adams St., Quincy, will be presented the "E for Excellence" award of the Massachusetts Federation of Nursing Homes at a ceremony at the home Friday at 2 p.m.

Larry Warner, president of the federation, will present the award to Andrew J. Comeau, administrator of the home, who will accept the flag and plaque.

At the federation's recent annual meeting Eventide was presented a Massachusetts Better Life Award.

The "E for Excellence" award is bestowed under a peer review program instituted recently by the federation, which, upon request from a member facility, sends out a team of experts in every discipline to examine and review the facility.

Among those invited to the ceremony are Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, Jack MacCracken, chairman of Eventide's board of directors, and Thomas S. Burgin, member and past president of the board.

Philip Lawrence Named To 3 U. S. League Savings Allocation Committees

PHILIP J. LAWRENCE

Philip J. Lawrence, President of Colonial Federal Savings and Loan Association of Quincy, has been appointed to three committees of the United States League of Savings Associations.

The appointments were made by Stuart Davis, recently elected President of the League. Davis, also Chairman of the Board of Great Western Savings and Loan Association of Beverly Hills, Calif., announced the appointment from the U.S. League's offices in Chicago.

Lawrence is to serve on the National Legislative Committee, the Committee on Development of Neighborhood and Smaller City Institutions, and the Advisory Committee on State Legislation.

The United States League represents more than 4,400 savings institutions throughout the nation and is the principal trade organization for the savings and loan business.

Lawrence is currently Vice Chairman of the Massachusetts Federal Savings Council and is to be Chairman next year.

Lawrence is a retired Colonel in the U.S. Army Reserve, a former president of Quincy Rotary Club, and a member of Taleb Grotto of Quincy. He is a member of the Coast Guard Auxiliary, Power Squadron and several amateur radio organizations, having been active in amateur radio for many years. His other interests include fishing, photography, scuba diving, and flying. He is licensed for both power craft and gliders.

A resident of Groveland, Mass., with his wife Audrey, he has served as town counsel for West Newbury, on the school committee, and on the Pentucket Regional School Committee and the Pentucket Scholarship Foundation.

During his Army service he served in the Pacific Theatre in several campaigns. He later was Director of the Command and General Staff College Department of the 1030th Boston U.S. Army Reserve and taught at the Army Command and General Staff College in Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, for many years.

A graduate of Harvard Law School, he practiced law in Boston with the firm of Spencer and Stone before he joined Colonial Federal. He is a member of the Federal Bar, the Federal Communications Bar, and the Massachusetts and South Carolina Bars Association. He has been on the Executive Committee and is a director of the New England Federal Savings League and a director of the Massachusetts Federal Savings Council.

Telephone Dividend

New England Telephone directors have declared a quarterly dividend of 72 cents per share payable Saturday, April 1, to share owners of record at the close of business Friday, March 10. The amount is the same as the preceding quarter.

THE IMPACT OF EXTERNAL APPEAL

The external appearance of your home has an important impact on potential buyers. You will never get a prospect interested unless he stops to look. Don't rely on the inside of your home "selling" it. Your prospect may be "turned off" before he reaches the front door. So look at the exterior with a critical eye.

Give the house a fresh coat of paint if needed. Replace any broken or cracked windows. Replace loose shingles. Fix the fence. Keep the lawn mowed and the shrubs trimmed to give your house that "well-cared-for" look. Make sure your screen or storm door is in top shape and your wooden door is inviting with a fresh coat of paint or varnish. It is not uncommon to see a hundred dollars worth of improvements and some elbow grease increase the value of a house over a thousand dollars.

Put yourself in the buyer's shoes. He is looking for charm, comfort, location and a bargain. Give him the best show for the money.

COUNTY OF NORFOLK

PROPOSAL

Sealed bids will be received at the office of the Norfolk County Commissioners, Superior Court House, Dedham, Massachusetts 02026 for:

Snow Blowers for the Wollaston Recreational Facility.

To be considered, bids must be received by 12:00 noon on Wednesday, March 15, 1978 at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read. Envelopes containing bids must be clearly marked on the outside "Bid for Snow Blowers for the Wollaston Recreational Facility" with the date and hour of the opening. Bids received after the hour named will not be considered.

Details of contract requirements and specifications shall be obtained at the office of the Purchasing Department, Registry of Deeds Building, Room 4, Dedham, Massachusetts. A deposit of ten dollars [$10.00] in the form of a check payable to the Norfolk County Commissioners is required for each set of documents so obtained. The amount of the deposit will be refunded to the bidder.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a certified check in the amount of at least five per cent [5%] of the bid, payable to the Norfolk County Commissioners. If the bidder whose bid is accepted refuses or neglects to comply with the terms of the proposal, the certified check will be forfeited and become the property of Norfolk County.

The Norfolk County Commissioners reserve the right to accept or reject any or all bids; or to accept any bid or portion thereof deemed by them to be in the best interest of the County.

Toland: 'Whole Thing Distorted'

Anselmo Seeks Reconsideration Of QHS Football Coach Vote

By PETER BARNICLE

Quincy School Committeeman Francis F. Anselmo will seek reconsideration of a vote by the School Committee rejecting the recommendation of a screening committee in the selection of a new head football coach for Quincy High School.

Anselmo charges that the committee failed to give any explanation before casting a 4-3 vote turning down the candidate presented by School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon.

Voting against the recommended candidate were School Committee vice chairman Patricia Toland, and members Joan C. Picard, Christopher F. Kennedy and Mayor Arthur H. Tobin.

Anselmo, John J. Sullivan and School Committeewoman Mary P. Collins voted to accept the recommendation.

Kennedy, Picard and Toland have told The Sun they will not change their vote.

It will take four votes to reconsider.

According to Anselmo the screening committee voted 5-1 in favor of the appointment of Eugene Macomber, an assistant coach at Quincy from 1963 to 1973, who is now coaching at Broad Meadows Junior High.

Although Macomber's name was not mentioned in open meeting, his identity soon became known. Also reported in contention for the post are assistant coaches John Bogan, Bill Maver, and Peter Chella, Quincy baseball coach Art [Bud] Mosher, and North Quincy assistant Tom Fitzgerald.

The search for a new head coach started with the retirement of Henry [Hank] Conroy who stepped down last fall after 14 years as coach of the Quincy High School football team.

"I have no idea why I was rejected," Macomber said after the vote, "The whole thing is

Sun Student Poll Shows

Reaction To Separate Graduations Mixed

By LINDA TRUBIANO

Students of North Quincy, Quincy and Vo Tech High Schools have mixed reaction on recently approved separate graduations.

The Quincy Sun polled a number of seniors from the three high schools. Their reactions:

JOHN McDONALD, treasurer of the senior class at North and student representative to the School Committee: "I'm all for it. I think there should be more of a sense of identity with the school you attended -- a more personal feeling about graduation from high school."

PATTY SULLIVAN, also from North, disagreed: "They should just keep them together like they always were. It's costing more money and will probably be just as long."

DONNA JACKSON, who said a classmate, shared her feeling's: "I think they should be all together. A lot of kids here have friends that go to Quincy and we are all one school system. It is really a waste of time and money."

MARYANNE McRAE added, "We're always the enemy with Quincy, but graduation kind of brought us together. It probably won't be any shorter separate, and it doesn't make any difference to me how personal it is. "

LINDA DiCROCE thinks it will be "more personal". "When all three are together only a certain number of

Officials' Kin On Storm Payroll Triggers Furor

By TOM HENSHAW

The sons and daughters of high city officials were on the city payroll during the storm emergencies in January and February, according to anonymous letters sent to city councillors and new media this week.

The letter received by The Quincy Sun claimed that Mark Tobin, son of Mayor Arthur H. Tobin, received $1,176.77 for 148 hours work and $181.53 for 39 hours work while his brother, Steven, got $83.78 for working 18 hours.

The Mayor said he put his son, Mark, to work directing an out-of-town snow plow crew on Hospital Hill and that his son, Steven, "unbeknown to me" obtained a job shoveling snow by lining up at the Public Works Garage.

The names of offspring of city officials that appeared on the anonymous list included Elizabeth and Susan Hannon, daughters of former Mayor Walter J. Hannon; Janice Ricciuti, daughter of DPW Commissioner James J. Ricciuti; and Richard Coose, son of Harold Coose Jr., Tobin's aide in the State House.

Their names did appear on payroll records at the City Auditor's office, the Hannon girls and Miss Ricciuti under the pay classification of clerks, and young Coose apparently as a snow shoveler.

Tobin said Misses Hannon and Ricciuti helped to man an emergency switchboard that was set up at the Public Works garage. Ricciuti said his daughter did not accept a pay check [$161.20 for 31 hours work] for her services.

Tobin called the letters "hate mail".

"You're dealing with information that was taken clandestinely from the city files by people who worked in the previous administration to insinuate that there has been some big ripoff," he said.

"It had to be someone who had access to the auditor's or the treasurer's office or the DPW building either during working hours or afterward.

"I don't know what good purpose it will serve but there

Gun Case At Pub Taken Under Advisement

At a lengthy hearing the Quincy Licensing Board Tuesday heard testimony regarding a gun allegedly found at Bobby Dodd's Pub, 160-162 Hancock St., North Quincy, after an informant's tip.

At the conclusion of the five hour hearing the board took the case under advisement and said it will announce a decision March 28.

Police Det. Robert Crowley testified under questioning by Asst. City Solicitor Dennis Harrington, that he had been informed that a patron at the pub had a gun on his person.

He said investigation was made and the gun was eventually found in the ceiling of the cellar. He said the owner of the pub, Robert Devoe, consented to the search only after police had threatened to obtain a search warrant.

Under cross examination by Atty. Herbert Lewis, counsel for Devoe, Crowley stoutly refused to name his informant and his stand was backed by Police Chief Francis X. Finn and other members of the board.
